—°. But our faith is, was, and will for ever be, in the Lord God the Saviour . . . thus accommodated to reception, and by means of which the Divine Spiritual is united to the Natural of man, and there results a spiritual faith in the Natural, whence the Natural becomes as it were transparent from the spiritual light in which our faith is. The Truths of which it consists, are as many as the verses in the sacred Volume ; these Truths are all like stars which manifest and form this faith by their light. Man takes this faith from the Word by means of his natural lumen, in which it is knowledge, thought, and persuasion ; but in those who believe in Him the Lord causes it to become conviction, trust, and confidence ; thus it becomes spiritual natural, and through charity living. This faith with us is like a queen adorned with as many precious stones as the wall of the holy Jerusalem.

177. That from the Nicene trinity and the Athanasian together, has originated a faith which has perverted the whole Christian Church. Gen.art.

—°. From the faith of every Church arises not only the whole of its worship, but also the whole of its dogma ; and therefore it may be said that such as is the faith, such is its doctrine. . . The faith is the principle, and the doctrinal things are the derivatives ; and the derivatives derive their essence from the principle . . .

—°. The faith of the Church concerning God is like the soul in the body, and the doctrinal things are like the members of the body . . . From this faith it may be seen how the Word is understood in the Church where it is ; for a faith adapts and draws to itself, as it were by cords, whatever it can. If the faith is false, it plays the harlot with every truth there, and perverts and falsifies it . . . But if the faith is true, the whole Word favours it, and the God of the Word . . . pours light upon it, breathes upon it His Divine assent, and makes the man wise . . .

—¹. The modern faith, which in the internal form is a faith in three Gods . . . has extinguished the light in the Word, and has removed the Lord from the Church.

178. The faith of every Church is like a seed from which all its dogmas originate . . . Therefore, when the primary faith, which from its predominance is called saving, is known, the quality of the Church is Known. Examp.

183^e. This induces a stupid faith . . .

209^e. This exceeds all belief. 224¹.

245. See CHURCH.

336. On faith. Chapter.

— . They did not see that faith is not faith unless it is conjoined with charity, and that charity is not charity unless it is conjoined with faith, and thus that they make one ; and, if not, that neither of them is anything in the Church.

337. That saving faith is faith in the Lord God the Saviour Jesus Christ. Gen.art. III.

338. That the faith of the apostles was no other than faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. III.

—². It is believed in the Church that its tripersonal faith was meant by Paul . . . for the reason that for fourteen centuries . . . the Church has recognized no other faith . . . Therefore, wherever faith is mentioned in the New Testament, it has been believed that that faith is meant . . . Hence the only saving faith . . . has perished. . . Now since faith, in that saying of Paul, does not mean faith in God the Father, but in His Son . . . the foundation-stone of the faith of the present day is gone . . .

339. The reason we ought to believe, that is, have faith in God the Saviour Jesus Christ, is that this is faith in the visible God, in whom is the invisible ; and faith in a visible God, who is Man and at the same time God, enters into man ; for in its essence faith is spiritual, but in its form natural ; and therefore with man this faith becomes spiritual natural ; for, in order to be anything with man, what is spiritual is received in what is natural. . . But, on the other hand, merely natural faith, or faith bereaved of spiritual essence, is not faith, but only persuasion, or knowledge. Persuasion emulates faith in externals, but as in its internals there is nothing spiritual, there is nothing saving. Such is the faith with all who deny the Divine of the Lord's Human . . . What is faith devoid of that to which it is determined ? . . . In a word, faith in an invisible God is actually blind, because the human mind does not see its God ; and the light of this faith, because it is not spiritual natural, is a fatuous light . . . The naturalism reigning at this day is from this origin . . .

—³. Very different is faith in the Lord God the Saviour ; He being God and Man, may be both approached and seen in thought ; faith in Him is not indeterminate, but has its terminus whence it comes, and whither it goes ; and, when once received, it remains. (By comparisons.) These things have been written in the presence of the Lord's twelve apostles, who were sent to me by the Lord while I was writing them.

340. That the sum of faith is, that he who lives well, and believes rightly, will be saved by the Lord. Gen.art.

342. What is the first of faith in Him ? . . . The acknowledgment that He is the Son of God. III.

343. That man receives faith by approaching the Lord, learning Truths from the Word, and living according to them. Gen.art.

— . It is necessary first to premise the summaries of faith, from which may be had a general notion in the singulars of faith. . . For faith enters into each and all the parts of a system of theology, as the blood enters into the members of the body, and vivifies them . . .

344. THE BEING OF THE FAITH OF THE NEW CHURCH is, 1. Confidence in the Lord God the Saviour Jesus Christ. 2. Trust that he who lives well and believes rightly is saved by Him. THE ESSENCE OF THE FAITH OF THE NEW CHURCH is, Truth from the Word. THE MANIFESTATION OF THE FAITH OF THE NEW CHURCH is, 1. Spiritual sight. 2. The harmony of Truths. 3. Conviction. 4. Acknowledgment inscribed on the mind. THE STATES OF THE FAITH OF THE NEW CHURCH are, 1. Infant faith ; adolescent faith ; adult faith. 2. The faith of genuine truth ; and the faith of the appearances of truth. 3. The faith of memory ; the faith of reason ; the faith of light. 4. Natural faith ; spiritual faith ; celestial faith. 5. Living faith ; and miraculous faith. 6. Free faith ; and forced faith. THE FORM ITSELF OF THE FAITH OF THE NEW CHURCH IN A UNIVERSAL IDEA, AND IN A PARTICULAR IDEA, may be seen above.

345. There shall also be presented in a summary the things of merely natural faith, which in itself is persuasion counterfeiting faith, and is a persuasion of falsity, and is called heretical faith. Its denominations are, 1. Spurious faith, in which falsities are commingled with truths. 2. Harlot faith, from truths falsified ; and adulterous faith, from goods adulterated. 3. Closed up or blind faith, which is the faith of mystical things, and which are believed although it is not known whether they are truths or falsities, or whether they are above reason, or are contrary to it. 4. Wandering faith, which is faith in a number of Gods. 5. Squinting faith, which is faith in any other than the true God ; and, with Christians, in any but the Lord God the Saviour. 6. Hypocritical or Pharisaic faith, which is a faith of the lips, and not of the heart. 7. Visionary and inverted faith, which is the appearance of falsity as truth from ingenious confirmation.

346. Since faith as to its manifestation with man is spiritual sight . . . every state of faith may be compared to some state of the eye and its sight ; the state of the faith of truth, to every normal state of the eyesight, and the state of the faith of falsity, to every perverted state of the eyesight. (The above-named forms of merely natural faith compared seriatim to diseases of the eye.)

347. As to the formation of faith. . . First: Faith is formed by man's approaching the Lord; because faith which is faith, thus which is the faith of salvation, is from the Lord and in the Lord. Ill. Now as faith is from the Lord and in the Lord, it may be said that the Lord is faith itself; for its life and essence are in the Lord, thus from the Lord. Secondly: Faith is formed by man's learning Truths from the Word; because, in its essence, faith is Truth; for all things which enter into faith are Truths; and therefore faith is nothing but a complex of Truths shining in the mind of man . . . Faith without Truths is like seed deprived of its inside substance . . . Whereas faith from Truths is like good grain . . . In a word, the essential things of faith are Truths . . . Thirdly faith is formed by man's living according to Truths; because spiritual life is a life according to Truths; and Truths do not actually live until they are in deeds . . .

[T.] 348. With the man in whom (the above) three things are separated . . . there is not the faith of salvation; but this faith originates when the three are conjoined; and the faith is such as is the conjunction. (Described by comparisons.)

—e. Faith without Truths is like a vine bearing wild grapes; whereas faith from Truths is like a vine bearing clusters of noble wine. Faith in the Lord devoid of Truths may be compared to a new star appearing in the expanse of Heaven, which in time grows dim; whereas faith in the Lord together with Truths may be compared to a fixed star which shines for ever. Truth is the essence of faith; and therefore such as the Truth is, such is the faith, which without Truths is wandering, but with them is fixed; moreover, the faith of Truths shines in Heaven like a star.

349. That an abundance of Truths, cohering as it were in a bundle, exalts and perfects faith. Gen.art.

— From the perception of faith which exists at this day it cannot be known that faith in its compass is a complex of Truths; and still less that man can contribute anything towards procuring faith for himself; when yet faith in its essence is Truth, for it is Truth in its light; and as Truth can be procured, so also can faith . . . Every Truth in the Word and from the Word gives light, and Truth in light is faith . . .

350. That the Truths of faith are multipliable to infinity. Ex.

351. That the disposition of the Truths of faith is into series, thus as it were into bundles. Ex.

352. That faith is perfected according to the abundance and coherence of Truths, follows . . .

— As faith in its essence is Truth, it follows that according to the abundance and coherence of Truths, it becomes more and more perfectly spiritual, thus less and less sensuous natural; for it is exalted into a higher region of the mind, from which it sees below it troops of confirmations of itself in the nature of the world. True faith, by an abundance of Truths cohering as it were in a bundle, also becomes more enlightened, perceptible, evident, and clear; it also becomes more conjoinable with the goods of charity, and consequently more alienable from evils; and successively more removed from the allurements of the eye and from the concupiscences of the flesh; and therefore more happy in itself.

Epecially does it become more powerful against evils and falsities, and consequently more and more living and saving.

353. It was said . . . that Truth shining is faith in essence; and therefore the beauty and grace of faith from that enlightenment, when its Truths are multiplied, may be compared to various forms, objects, and pictures. Enum.

—². The light and glory of faith, from the abundance of Truths fitting into it. (Shown by comparisons.)

— The exaltation of faith by the abundance of Truths. (Described by comparisons.)

— The power of faith from a plurality of Truths formed against falsities and evils. (Described by comparisons.)

356. That man can procure faith for himself. Ex.

360^o. As spiritual light is within natural light as in its receptacle . . . so is spiritual faith within natural faith . . . This being so, it is evident, that when a man is in spiritual faith, he is also in natural faith.

369^o. What is faith but conjunction with God by truths which are of the understanding and thence of the thought?

378. That there is a true faith, a spurious faith, and a hypocritical faith. Gen.art.

379. That the true faith is the one only faith; and that it is faith in the Lord God the Saviour Jesus Christ; and that it exists with those who believe Him to be the Son of God, the God of Heaven and earth, and one with the Father. Ex.

— Faith in a general sense consists of innumerable Truths, for it is the complex of them; but these innumerable Truths make as it were one body . . . Some make the arms and hands; some make the feet; interior Truths make the head, and so on. . . Of this body . . . the Lord God the Saviour is the life and soul . . .

—⁴. The reason that these three things are characteristic testimonies that men are in faith in the Lord . . . is that not all who approach the Lord are in faith in Him; for true faith is internal and at the same time external. They who have these three precious characteristics of faith are in both the internals of that faith and in its externals; thus it is not only a treasure in their hearts, but also a jewel in their mouths. It is otherwise with those who do not acknowledge the Lord as the God of Heaven and earth . . . These break the true faith to pieces . . . and then there is faith no longer, but only the ghost of faith . . . Who can deny that the true faith is faith in one God who is the God of Heaven and earth, consequently faith in God the Father in the Human form, thus in the Lord?

—⁵. These three marks, testimonies, and indications, that faith in the Lord is faith itself (described by comparisons).

380. That spurious faith is all faith which departs from the true and only faith; and that it exists with those who climb up some other way, and regard the Lord . . . as only a man. Ex.

—². In proportion therefore as faith departs from these three essentials of it, it is spurious.

381. That hypocritical faith is no faith. Ex.

382. That there is no faith with the evil. Gen.art.

383. That the evil have no faith, because evil is of Hell, and faith is of Heaven. Ex.

—². That where there is evil there is no faith (shown by comparisons).

384. That all those in Christendom have no faith who reject the Lord and the Word, although they live morally, and speak, teach, and write rationally about faith. Ex.

—². That they alone have faith who believe in the Lord, and that others have not faith. Ill.

484². But, my friend, shun what is evil, and do what is good, and believe in the Lord from all your heart, and in all your soul, and the Lord will love you, and will give love to do, and faith to believe; and then from love you will do what is good; and from faith, which is trust, you will believe . . .

506^e. Now we see the Divine Providence, why a conjunction of faith and good works has not been found which has been acknowledged by ecclesiastical society. It could not be found, because it could not exist; for there has not been faith in the Lord who is the Word, and consequently neither has there been faith in the Word.

512. Contrition which is said to precede faith . . .

618². Faith cannot exist without truths, for faith and truth make one thing; for the good of faith is like a soul, and truths make its body. To say, therefore, that a man believes or has faith, while he knows no truths thereof, is like dragging the soul out of the body . . . Moreover, all the truths which make the body of faith, emit light, and enlighten, and present the face of faith to view.

619². The second sphere, which takes away faith, is like a black cloud in winter-time . . .

643. On the imputation of faith. Gen.art.

647. (The faith of the former Church contrasted at great length with the faith of the New Church.)

654. That the faith together with that with which it conjoins itself, passes sentence. If true faith conjoins itself with good, sentence is passed for eternal life; but if the faith conjoins itself with evil, sentence is passed for eternal death. Gen.art.

655. (Thus) faith in the one true God causes good to be good in the internal form also; and on the other hand, faith in a false God causes good to be good in the external form only . . . What is faith in God but a looking to Him, and hence His presence, and at the same time trust that He gives aid? And what is true faith but this, and at the same time trust that all good is from Him, and that He makes His good to be saving?

657. That evil, and faith in the one true God, cannot be together . . .

677². See BAPTISM.

722¹. That faith in the Lord is the third means of the enjoyment of the Holy Supper. Ex. and Ill.

Ad. 914. This first conception . . . may be called intellectual faith . . .

D. 239. What true faith is, and how it affects the Heavens . . .

257. Faith taken up by man . . . effects nothing . . .

341. That as soon as the causes or means are unfolded . . . faith perishes.

—^e. Therefore, faith is destroyed by human philosophy . . .

413^e. Charities are the fruits of faith.

1291. That it is better to have faith without understanding by means of knowledges.

1608. As faith must be the sole thing in all things . . .

1627. That true faith can never exist . . . from Knowledge alone, or from one's own application . . .

1757. That intellectual faith is only a thing of the memory.

1871. There are three things which are the sum of faith . . .

2383. On intellectual faith, and on the persuasion of those things which are of faith.

2385. Faith does not exist unless in the Knowledges there is persuasion, and in the persuasions the desire of confirmatory things, and thus love. Thus faith is saving, because the Lord is in the faith, and the Lord is the faith which gives the faith. 2467.

2467^e. Have only a faith of the memory . . . only a scientific faith . . .

2474. Faith and works are as the soul and the body . . .

— . Faith exists with much variety; faith merely oral; faith held scientifically; faith held intellectually; faith attended with persuasion; faith attended with persuasion from love towards the neighbour . . .

2491. That true faith is action.

2688. That he who lives in faith in the Lord cannot possibly receive violence from the evil, because he is in the order of natural, spiritual, and celestial things. 3493^e. 3561.

— . The order of celestial and spiritual things is faith . . .

2947. On the four degrees of faith. 2976.

3002. On the force of a look through faith. 3005.

3342. The sphere of faith . . .

3428. On those who reject all faith, and believe only in life.

3533. (The common people) and little children in the other life are they who firmly, and without doubting, stand steady in the faith . . .

3568. That they who are not in faith cannot even name the Lord.

—^e. Nor could that Spirit name faith.

3569^e. Therefore it is necessary for faith to be implanted otherwise than by mere knowledge and experiences.

3603. On faith . . . faith defined. . . The Knowledges of faith are faith, because we are to have faith in them.

3695. They who are in the persuasion of true faith . . . Therefore they cannot come into the persuasion of faith except from the Lord. 3696.

3863^e. At this day faith is scientific, or of the memory . . .

[D.] 3892^c. Faith must be inrooted in freedom. Ex.

3903. How difficult it is for those who are not in faith to live the life of faith. Ex.

3992. That at this day there is no faith.

4021. On faith and good works.
— (Thus) saving faith is of love, and love is impossible without good works . . .

4023. It is true that faith saves, but according to the quality of the faith, so it saves . . .

4077. On the love of faith.
— Therefore, unless a man loves the neighbour, he has not faith.

4078. Faith is life . . .

4252. Man can never . . . receive faith, or be confirmed in faith, if he obtains what he desires, and knows how everything is . . .

4422. It was not fitting that any should read (my works) first, except those who are in faith . . .

4443. How blessed it is to have faith at heart that the Lord rules the universe: this is the principal of faith.

4650. (These Jew Spirits) did not understand what faith is . . .

4655. Faith is to think rightly and justly about every subject . . .

4724. On faith and love. 5973.

4727. On the faith of Wolff.

4758. Therefore they who have faith from revelation can confirm these things by many things in nature, and thus corroborate their faith . . . 4759.

4785. (The Moravians) call confidence in Him faith.

5015. On persuasive faith devoid of saving faith; how hurtful it is.

5659. They who in the world have not faith, have not faith in the other life. . . They are at once in a like faith to that in which they had been in the world.

5926. On faith . . . (Melancthon) shown that he had no more faith than in so far as it proceeded from his good.

5945³. Faith and charity come forth simultaneously. Ex.

—⁵. If they have not received spiritual faith . . . in the world, they can never receive it. Ex. E.242⁷. 860.

6004³. That it is the good of life which makes faith . . .

6011. See TRUTH.

6014. On the progressions of a certain faith.

6079. On the way of faith into the will, or from it.
—². To go from faith to good works is to go in inverted order. Ex. 6085.

6085^c. They liken faith to a tree, and its fruit to works; but this is fallacious. By the tree is meant man; by the branches and leaves faith; and by the fruits, good works. The man is that which produces.

6098. See ENGLAND. 6104. J.(Post.) 213. 216.
— Being convinced, he at last confessed, that unless the fourth Work, concerning faith, were accepted, the three former ones would fall to the ground.

E. 22^e. Faith is the affection of truth from good.

136. Truth is of faith with man in proportion as it derives from the good of love.

203. 'Philadelphia'=those of the Church who are in the faith of charity.

204². There is spiritual faith, and there is faith merely natural. Spiritual faith is all from charity, and in its essence it is charity . . . Spiritual faith is thence; for all that is loved is called truth when it is thought of . . . All truths in one complex are called faith, because they are believed.
—³. But merely natural faith is not the faith of the Church . . . but is only knowledge. Ex.

229. 'The beginning of the handiwork of God'=faith from Him, which, as to the appearance, is the first of the Church. Ex.

239. All who are in Heaven see truths with the understanding . . . and if anyone says to them that they must have faith even if they do not understand, they turn away, saying, What is this! What I understand I believe; but what I do not understand I cannot believe . . .

242⁵. The faith of Knowledges, before it becomes the faith of life, is historical faith . . .
—⁸. Falsities become of faith when evils are of life.

250⁹. The faith in man is the faith of life; but the faith not yet in man is the faith of memory and of the thought thence. The faith of life is meant by 'believing in God.'

256. All things of the Church relate to these four generals, (one of which is) faith according to life.

299. For faith which is faith entirely makes one with love; for what a man loves is of his faith; but what he does not love is not of his faith. It does indeed appear that that is faith which anyone thinks from memory and teaches from doctrine, but if he loves it only from a natural and not from a spiritual love, it is only the sight of the thought of the external man, which sight counterfeits faith. But this faith is not in man but behind him; because before it is implanted in the internal man and its love it is devoid of life. The faith which is implanted in the internal man and its love, is to believe and love truth because it is truth . . .

313¹⁴. The inmost of man is his love and the faith thence; and such as is the love and the faith thence, such is the whole man.

401³³. 'Stony places'=historical faith, which is the faith of another in one's self; for the man believes it to be true, not because he sees it in himself, but because another, in whom he has faith, says so.

405³⁸. The Lord spoke these things concerning saving faith, which faith makes one with charity, and is all from the Lord, and therefore the Lord calls this faith 'the faith of God' (Matt.xvii.20). —. 815¹⁰.

411²⁹. The faith of falsity and evil. Sig. and Ill.

427⁴. Truth is not of faith until it is willed and done . . . Before this, truths are mere Knowledges and knowledges, in which man has no other faith than as of what is heard from another, from which he can recede if he afterwards thinks otherwise; and therefore this faith is the faith of another in himself, and not his own; yet man must have his own faith if it is to remain with him after death; and it becomes his own when he believes, sees, wills, and does it . . .

—⁵. All things whatever which man keeps in his memory . . . are not faith . . .

— . If this is called faith, it is historical faith, which is the faith of another in one's self . . .

443³. As 'Simeon'=obedience, he also=faith; for faith is faith with man when he obeys and does the commandments . . . it then enters the will, thus the man himself, and becomes faith.

445. 'Of the tribe of Issachar were sealed twelve thousand'=faith and salvation.

—². The reason faith is here signified (by 'Issachar') is that they who are in good works from obedience are in faith. . . Hence they who are in the ultimate Heaven are said to be in faith, for they believe according to their apprehension what they hear from the letter of the Word and from preachers, and do not see and perceive whether it is true; therefore their thought about the things which are to be believed is called faith; for that is properly called faith which is believed without intellectual sight and perception; whereas when that which is believed is seen and perceived, it is not called faith, but apperception and perception.

739⁶. Celestial men do not mention faith; for faith involves what is unknown, and which is to be believed although not seen.

759⁴. Blind faith is not faith, but only persuasion; and as this persuasion is from another . . . it is historical faith, which is natural and not spiritual . . . 769². 789³. 790². 832³.

—⁵. Therefore they who in the world have seen truths only from blind faith, when carried into Heaven, see nothing whatever, not even the Angels there . . .

785². He who does goods has faith; but he who does not do goods has not faith.

787⁴. They have invented degrees of the progression of faith to good works . . .

789⁴. That the love and will enter into all things of man's faith and thought; but that the faith and thought cannot enter into the love and will. Ex.

—⁹. Spiritual faith is produced from spiritual love, which is charity, as light is produced from the sun; and it does not produce that love, as light does not produce the sun; and therefore faith merely natural is produced from love merely natural, which derives its soul from the love of self . . . Hence it is evident that faith proceeding therefrom cannot produce goods, as a tree produces fruits; and that if it does produce any, they are goods from the proprium of man . . . 790¹⁴. 787⁵.

790². How spiritual faith, which is faith from charity, is acquired. Fully ex.

—¹³. For faith is nothing but to think that it is so in Truth. 795.

798³. They invert the Divine order (and say) that faith produces charity. Still, with those who confirm this conjunction in doctrine and life, this inverted order can be afterwards restored, and they then enter Heaven in its ultimates. Ex.

800². The faith of these is spiritual in proportion as they know truths from the Word, and live according to them; for faith is spiritual from the life.

802⁴. This is to annihilate faith.

—⁷. That by 'works,' and by 'doing,' in the Word, is meant faith, and to have faith. Ex.

803². How a man may know whether . . . his faith is the faith of truth. Fully ex.

—⁵. That faith and love are with man when his internal has been purified from evils in the aforesaid manner.

805. vii. It is this which is meant by . . . 'Shall he find faith in the earth' (Luke xviii.8).

— . viii. That in these there is no faith in the Lord. Ex.

808². Saving faith is to believe that the Lord is the Saviour of the world, and that He is the God of Heaven and the God of earth, and that by His coming into the world He acquired the power of saving all who receive truths from Him through the Word, and live according to them.

813. 'The faith of the saints'=the implantation of truth with those who become spiritual from the Lord. . . The reason 'faith'=the implantation of truth, is that faith with man is truth acknowledged at heart . . .

815². Passages in the Gospels where 'faith' and 'believing' are mentioned. Ex. seriatim.

—⁴. The 'faith' by which the sick were healed, means no faith but that which is called historical, which at that time was also miraculous faith; and therefore at that time many performed miracles by that faith. That faith was, that the Lord was omnipotent, because He could of Himself perform miracles . . . But this historical faith must by all means precede, before the same becomes saving; for the historical faith with a man becomes saving, when he learns truths from the Word and lives according to them. —³, Ex.

—⁵. There were three reasons why their faith in the Lord healed them. Ex.

— . But the faith by which spiritual diseases are healed by the Lord does not exist except through truths from the Word and a life according to them. The truths themselves and the life according to them make the quality of the faith.

—⁶. For faith presents the Divine of the Lord present . . . —⁸.

—⁷. Why He called them 'men of little faith.'

817⁵. For all faith necessarily conjoins itself with some love . . . De Conj. 75.

828². The celestial Angels do not know what either charity or faith is; but instead of charity they have the love of good, and instead of faith they have the love of truth.

831⁴. The spiritual Angels . . . therefore, do not know that faith is anything but the acknowledgment of truth . . .

832³. Hence these have spiritual faith, which in its essence is the acknowledgment of truth because it is seen by the understanding. —⁶.

837¹⁰. For example, he who sees a tree . . . in a garden, supposing some one else were to say that he should . . .

have faith that it is a tree . . . he would reply, What do you want me to have faith for, when I myself see it? Hence it is that the Angels of the Third Heaven . . . are not willing even to mention faith, and do not even know what it is. And also that the Angels of the Second Heaven . . . do not recognize the term faith. They marvel and smile when they hear anyone saying that the understanding is to be held captive under obedience to faith, and that faith is to be had in things which are not perceived and seen . . .

[E.837]¹¹. Then faith began to be mentioned.

—¹². So long as faith was conjoined with works . . . the Church was in truths, but only in a few, because they did not see them . . .

—¹³. There does not exist any truth and still less any faith with man, unless he wills and does . . .

839. That a man's faith is according to his love or life. Gen.art.

842. As works are with a man . . . so is faith; therefore if the works are evil, there is no faith of truth, but faith of falsity . . . But if the works are good, the faith is of truth . . .

846². The quality of intellectual faith. Ex.

893. The faith with these is charity . . .

895. 'The faith of Jesus' = the implantation of truth by the Lord, and also the acknowledgment of Him.

— Truth and faith in their essence are one, because faith must be of faith, and truth must be of faith; and therefore the ancients did not say faith, but truth instead; but the moderns instead of truth say faith . . . (Such) is the difference between the ancient and the modern faith; namely, between that which is seen and that which is not seen. But in reality the truth which is seen . . . is not to be called faith, but that which is not seen . . . It follows, that it would be better to drop the term faith, and to say Truth instead. Still, that which is believed and is not seen, may be called faith, but this faith is only knowledge. Whereas the moment a man becomes spiritual . . . the scientific thing which is called faith becomes Truth, for he then sees by light from Heaven. . . The reason Truth should be mentioned instead of faith, is that all intelligence and wisdom comes through truths; but by faith, and especially by faith separated, comes all ignorance in spiritual things. Therefore the Angels of the higher Heavens turn themselves away when they hear of faith . . .

929². Every Church is at first in . . . charity; afterwards it is in faith and in charity thence; and at last it is in faith separated from charity. When it is in charity and in faith thence, the Church is spiritual; when in faith and in charity thence, the Church is rational; but when in faith separated from charity, it is natural, which is no Church.

936^e. Therefore to shun evils as sins is a sign of faith. 948⁴.

952^e. Before Heaven confirms, there is only a faith of the lips . . .

988². Divine truth in the Christian Church is called faith . . . for faith involves something that is not understood . . . —³.

1016. At this day everything is called faith. Enum.

1049³. The faith of childhood is a faith of the memory . . . but the faith of the age of manhood is faith of the understanding . . . This faith can be profaned . . .

1100². They say that intellectual faith is not true faith . . .

J. (Post.) 32. Conversation with Luther concerning faith and love.

244^e. Faith which is of Knowledge conjoined with corporeal love . . . makes the man ugly . . . Therefore, in order for it to be faith, it must be conjoined with spiritual affection.

358. On faith. 359. . . This is the faith of the New Jerusalem.

D. Wis. xi. 1a. On wisdom and faith. Gen.art.

— That faith is nothing but Truth. Ex.

2a. That Truth . . . is called faith when it is known and thought. Ex.

C. 185. Some answer that they have had faith. But it is replied:—If you have not thought within you of evils as sins, how can you have faith? faith and evil do not conjoin themselves.

5 M. 9. They exclaimed, What is faith but truth? . . . If the understanding is in darkness, what in that case is faith but a sleep-walker? If confirmation from merely natural lumen is added to it, that faith becomes a bat. . . A priest shouted, What has faith to do with understanding? The Angels answered, What is faith without understanding but blind faith?

De Just. 64^e. The notion that good works follow faith as fruit does a tree, exploded.

Scia. 9. Occurs. 10. 11. 12. 13. 23. 24. 25. 26. 27. 30. 33. Can. viii. 7. ix. 4. x. 3. Inv. 40^e.

Inv. 7. How it is to be understood that faith enters by the hearing of the Word.

Coro. 35³. All evil is . . . born from atheistical faith as a mother; and all good is . . . born from saving faith as a mother.

Faith alone. Fides sola.

Faith separated. Fides separata.

See CAIN, CALVIN, DRAGON, GOAT, LUTHER, MELANTHON, NIMROD, and PHILISTINE.

A. 35. See FAITH. 36. 398². 1076². 2354. 2982². 3325¹¹. 3427⁴. 3451⁴. 6610. 7317. 7778⁴. 8148³. 8987³. 9050⁶. 9366. 9367. 9368. 9369. 9434². 10582². H.482. F.9. R.124. 417⁸. B.102. T.382. 506^e. etc.

341. Faith separated from love, which is no faith. Sig.

348. The works of faith without charity. Sig.

371. See CHARITY. 1017. 1079². 2231². 3416. 4683. 4715. W.216. R.386. 875³. —¹⁴. —¹⁶. T.367². 377. D.5881^{1/2}.

379. Faith without charity never conjoins; for it is no faith; it is mere knowledge . . . 381.

433. That it would be sacrilege to do violence to the faith separated meant by 'Cain.' 436. 1093².

724. Unless there is love or charity from which the faith comes, it is never faith: it is love and charity which sanctify faith. The Lord is in love and charity; but not in faith separated; but in faith separated is the man in whom there is nothing but what is filthy; for when faith has been separated from love, it exists for the sake either of self-praise or self-gain . . .

794². He who adopts the principle that faith alone saves without the goods of charity can prove it from the Word. What is more pleasing than to live according to the flesh, and still be saved . . .

904². Faith without love and charity is a separated or disjoined affair . . .

1063. See HAM. 1076. 1079. 1093³. 1162. 4680².

1077. If a man does not live according thereto, what is faith but an empty affair . . . For to believe that a man can be saved however he lives, provided he has faith, is to say . . . that he is saved though he should pass his time in hatreds, revenges, rapine, adulteries . . .

—^e. The case is altogether different with those who have said that faith alone saves, but still have lived a life of charity . . .

1162. Faith separated from charity is no faith; and where there is no faith, there is no worship . . . or if there is any worship, it is corrupt worship . . . They hold a false opinion who call faith the mere knowledge of celestial and spiritual things separated from charity . . .

1163. So many nations by which are signified the Knowledges, knowledges, and rituals which are of faith separated from charity.

1175. The religion of those who separate faith from charity is of this character. Ex. and Sig.

1176. It was the chief doctrinal (of Nimrod) that faith alone saves . . . They who call mere Knowledges faith, are they who beget and institute such worship.

1178. Faith separated from charity is such as to persuade many. Sig.

1179. They who were in such worship called faith separated 'Jehovah.'

1608³. The heavenly kingdom cannot be given to those who are in faith without charity, that is, to those who say that they have faith, and yet bear hatred against the neighbour . . .

2261². Therefore no one can ever say that he can be saved by truths, or, as it is commonly expressed, by faith alone, unless there is good in the truths which are of faith . . . As they say that the acknowledgment of truth is the faith which saves, it is to be known that with those who live in things contrary to charity, acknowledgment can never exist, but only a kind of persuasion, to which is adjoined the life of the love of self or of the world . . . The worst men of all . . . can lay hold of the truths of faith, and confirm them by many things; but still, with them, truths are dead: the life of truth, thus of faith, is solely from the Lord . . . and of this they can never partake who . . . despise others . . . and bear hatred . . .

2371². It here treats of those who do not want to hear anything about good works, but only about faith separated from them; and this from the reasoning, that in man there is nothing but evil, and that good from him is in itself evil . . . and that no one can merit Heaven by any good . . . It is this doctrine which flourishes in the last times . . . But it is false to conclude that anyone can have an evil life and a good faith; also that because there is nothing but evil in man, good cannot be given by the Lord . . .

—⁶. They who lead a life of evil, teaching and professing that in faith separated there is salvation, do not know that such good is possible; and . . . in the other life, the same persons . . . want to merit Heaven by some goods they recollect, because they then know for the first time that in faith separated from charity there is no salvation. Sig.

2417. See DOCTRINE. 9468⁴. N.4.

3849². Hence everyone can judge what is the faith which is of truth without the charity which is of good. 3870. 4180⁴.

3870². This faith separated from charity, and thence contrary to charity, is represented by Reuben lying with Bilhah . . . 6329.

— The will and affection contrary to charity of this faith separated from charity, are described by Simeon and Levi in these words . . . 6329. 9093³.

3957². Believes . . . that he can be saved by faith, however he has lived; and this if he receives faith at the last moment . . .

4171³. If one who lives a life of good . . . suffers himself to be persuaded . . . that he can be saved by faith without a life of good . . . and is afterwards careless about the life . . . he is said to be 'torn.'

4601. See REUBEN. 4761.

—². The profanation of good by faith separated takes place when the truth and good of the Church are acknowledged and believed, and yet men live contrary thereto; for with those who in the understanding and thence in the life separate the things which are of faith from those which are of charity, evil is conjoined with truth and falsity with good . . . The profanation of good by faith separated is represented by Cain killing his brother Abel; by Ham being cursed by his father; and by the Egyptians being submerged in the Red Sea; as also here by Reuben.

—³. It here treats of the rejection of this faith.

4638³. They who are in truths in which there is no good, believe that they are equally accepted . . . for they suppose that faith alone saves; not knowing that there is no faith where there is no charity. Sig. —⁹.

4663². They who vaunt the salvation of man by faith alone can explain these words only in this way: that the things which the Lord says about works are the fruits of faith; and that He has mentioned them only for the sake of the simple . . . But granting it to be according to their opinion, still it is evident that it is the fruits of faith which make a man blessed and happy after death. The fruits of faith are nothing but a life according to the precepts of faith; consequently a life according to these saves, and not faith without life . . .

4665. In (Gen.xxxvii.) it treats in special of those who are in faith separated from charity, that they are against the Divine Human of the Lord. 4689.

4683. Joseph's 'brethren' . . . here, = those who are of faith separated from charity. 4690.

[A.4683]². As they place nothing of salvation in the life of faith . . . but only in faith, and yet know manifestly from the Word, and also from their own Intellectual, that doctrine is nothing without life, or that faith is nothing without fruits, they make the saving power of faith to consist in confidence, in order that so they may get away from the fruits also. (See CONFIDENCE, here.)

4689. Faith separated from charity is attended with (a refusal to adore the Divine Human), because the Lord is present in charity, and in faith only through charity . . . What is truth without good? and what is the Intellectual without the Voluntary? thus what is faith without charity? or what is confidence without its essence? —², From experience.

—². See CHRISTIAN.

4692². See DIVINE HUMAN. —⁴. 4727.

4697⁸. What is doctrinal concerning faith separated from charity, is signified by 'the great star' . . .

4715⁴. Faith in which there is no charity. Sig.

—^c. Joseph is here said to have been sent from the valley of Hebron, because he was sent to those who were teaching about faith; for they who are in faith and not in charity are in lower things, because with them faith is only in the memory and thence in the mouth . . .

4721². That it may be known what is meant by the special things of false principles, take as an illustration some doctrinal things of the Church which acknowledges faith alone as a principle; namely, that man is justified by faith alone; that in this case all his sins are wiped away; that he is saved by faith alone even in the last hour of his life; that salvation consists in mere admission into Heaven from grace; that infants also are saved by faith; that the gentiles are not saved, because they have not faith . . .

—³. The Church which acknowledges faith alone as a principle can never know what charity is, nor even what the neighbour is, thus not what Heaven is . . .

4724⁴. They who fight for faith alone, and do not live the life of faith, believe the Lord's Human to be purely human, not unlike the human of another man; and therefore many of them deny the Divine of the Lord, however they may orally profess it.

4726. As Divine truth, in respect to its essentials, is rejected by those who are in faith alone . . . when the Word is opened as to the internal sense . . . such as are in faith alone reject it as vain . . .

4727². Nor can they who are in faith alone know what makes man new or sanctifies him . . .

4730. Preachings concerning the Lord's Divine Human have appeared and still appear as falsities to those who are in faith alone . . . for the things which are confirmed from the life of cupidities appear no otherwise.

—². (How men are led to adopt faith alone.)

— . This is why faith alone has been acknowledged as the essential in Churches; but the reason why it has not been acknowledged everywhere in a similar manner, is that the leaders could gain nothing by faith alone, but only by the preaching of works.

4731². This supreme truth, that the Human of the Lord is Divine, is denied by those in the Church who are in faith alone; but as they know from the Word that the Lord has Divinity . . . they make a distinction between His Divine and His Human nature.

4736². When faith is believed to save without works, truth may indeed exist, but still it is not truth to him, because it does not regard good . . .

4741². As faith alone and the consequent confidence appears (like smoke) to all those who think seriously about it, (they who are in them) labour to annihilate also the appearances of truth. Sig.

4754. Those who are in simple good acknowledge the Lord's Human as Divine, and also that the works of charity must be done in order for a man to be saved; and those who are in faith separated from charity know this, and therefore they do not strenuously insist on it before everyone, and scarcely at all before those who are in simple good, chiefly because they dare not go against common sense . . . For if they denied such things, they who are in simple good would say that they are fools; for they know what love is and what are the works of love; but what faith separated from them is, they do not know; and arguments in favour of faith against works, and concerning a distinction between the Human and the Divine of the Lord, they would call sophisms . . . and therefore in order that they and what is from them may be accepted, they freely concede . . .

4758. The alienation (of that which is signified by Joseph) from those who are in faith separated. Sig.

4766^c. When faith separated from charity establishes this and also confirms it in life, however it may talk about the fruits of faith, where then is the Church?

4769³. The power from faith separated even to those things which are states of the light of Heaven. Sig.

4776. The cupidities of evil extinguish the veriest truth of the Church; and then a means is excogitated which is called saving, namely, faith; which, being separated from charity, truths themselves are defiled . . .

—². While they are at worship it appears to them that they believe . . . but as soon as they come out of that state, they do not believe at all . . . Such are all who, in both life and doctrine, are in faith separated.

—^c. The contrary comes to pass with those who are in faith separated; that is, who are in some truths, and not in charity; their loves receive such things as are in agreement with them . . . which are contrary to truths, and are such things as exist in the Hells.

4783². The dogma concerning faith separated may be confirmed by John iii.16; from which, and also from other passages, they conclude that faith alone without works is that by which eternal life is attained; and when they have persuaded themselves of this, they no longer attend to the things the Lord so often spake concerning love to Him, and concerning charity and works. Refs. . . If they are told that no one can believe in the Lord but he who is in charity, they at once flee to their interpretations; as to these; that the law has been abrogated; that they were born in sins and therefore cannot do good from themselves; and that they who do cannot but on that account claim merit for themselves; and they also confirm these things from the sense of the letter of the Word, as from what is said in the parable about the Pharisee and the publican.

—³. They, too, who are in faith separated from charity, cannot but believe that everyone can be admitted into Heaven from grace, however he has lived; and thus that not the life but the faith remains with everyone after death . . . The reason they who are in faith separated from charity thus believe, is that they are utterly unaware of what Heaven is; and this because they do not know what charity is . . .

—⁴. They who are in faith separated cannot but believe that they will rise again with the body . . . The reason they who are in faith separated believe this, is that if they were told that the body will not rise again, they would altogether deny the resurrection; for what the internal man is they neither know nor apprehend; for no one can know what the internal man and his life after death is but he who is in charity, because this is of the internal man.

—⁵. They who are in faith separated cannot but believe that the works of charity consist merely in giving to the poor . . .

—⁶. They who are in faith separated see nothing in the Word but the things which confirm their dogmas; for they have no interior view; for they who are not in the affection of charity are in external sight only . . . Hence it is that they see falsities as truths, and truths as falsities . . .

480². Hence it may be evident what faith is without the life of faith.

484^e. After the Church had turned aside from charity to faith, and still more after it had separated faith from charity, and had made it saving without the latter and its works, their minds could no longer by means of Knowledges be elevated to heavenly things, nor by means of doctrinal things be led to life; and this to such a degree, that at last scarcely anyone believes that there is any life after death . . .

488^a. Hence it may be known what is faith without works.

492². From this one error (that truth is the essential of the Church, and so essential, that truth which is called faith can save a man without the good of charity), a host of others have been derived . . . as, that however a man lives, provided he has faith, he is saved; and also that the most wicked, provided that at the last hour they confess such things as are of faith, they are received into Heaven; that everyone can be received into Heaven merely from grace, whatever his life has been; and as they are in this doctrine, they at last do not know what charity is . . . and finally they do not believe in its existence, consequently, not in that of Heaven and Hell. The reason is, that faith without charity, or truth without good, teaches nothing; and the more it recedes from good, the more it infatuates a man; for it is good in and through which the Lord flows in . . .

500³. See CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

508⁴. It is a fallacy of sense that man is saved by faith alone; and that faith can exist with one who has not charity; and also that after death faith remains, and not the life.

523². As everything in universal nature has relation to good and truth; and good is represented in heat, and faith in light, everyone may judge what the quality of man is from faith alone without charity; or, what is the same thing, from only understanding truth without willing good: does it not resemble a state of winter . . . Such is the state of the man who is in faith alone, and not in the good of love: he is in icy cold and darkness . . .

529¹. By him who received one talent, is signified he who has faith alone without charity . . .

535¹. Hence also it is, that at this day they make faith the first and the very essential of the Church, and charity a secondary and non-essential; but they have gone far beyond the ancients in the way of error, by insisting that faith alone saves. . . They do indeed call charity and its works the fruits of faith; but who believes that the fruits conduce at all to salvation, when he believes that a man is saved by faith in the last hour of his life, however he may have lived before? and further, when, by what is doctrinal they separate from faith the works of charity, saying that faith alone saves without good works; or that the works which are of life conduce nothing to salvation? Oh, what a faith! and oh, what a church! to adore a dead faith, and to reject a living one! when yet faith without charity is like a body without a soul, (which is) removed out of sight because it stinks; and it is the same with faith without charity in the other life. All in Hell are those who have been in faith, so called, without charity. 625⁶.

582⁶. See CONFIDENCE.

627². See CHURCH. F.69.

634⁶. 'Slight as water'=that faith alone has not such things; namely, neither glory nor Power.

634⁸. Faith separated from the good of charity has filthy conjunction. Sig. For if faith in doctrine or understanding . . . is not initiated into good and conjoined therewith, it is either dissipated . . . or is initiated and conjoined with evil and falsity; which is the filthy conjunction here signified; for it then becomes a profane thing. . . This is manifest from those in the other life who have been in faith alone and in no charity,—the faith is there dissipated; but if it has been conjoined with evil, they receive a lot with the profane.

635³. 'Swords'=doctrinal things; here, the doctrinal things by which a combat is waged against truth and good, and by which these are extinguished, because it is done by those who are in faith alone, or in faith separated from charity, with whom there exists what is contrary. These doctrinal things enum.

703⁹. 'Behold, I slay thy first-born son'=the extinction of faith without charity, and the consequent devastation of truth with them.

—². It is said faith without charity, but by faith is here meant the Knowledge of such things as are of faith; for there does not exist faith where there is not charity. Ex.

708⁴. Faith without love is like light without heat . . .

709². They who are in the Hells, and infest those of the Spiritual Church, are for the most part from such as have said that faith alone saves, and yet have lived a life contrary to faith . . . 7112. 7127.

[A.]7127². They do indeed say that the works of charity are the fruits of faith, but still they make no account of them, and persuade that man is saved by faith alone, whatever his life has been, even in the last hour of life, thus by faith without its fruits . . .

—^e. They who have persuaded themselves that faith alone saves, and yet have lived a life of evil, are in Hell, at a considerable depth towards the right and a little in front; and from there I have heard them infesting the upright with reasonings . . .

7272². For example, he who believes that faith alone saves, and that the works of charity contribute nothing to salvation . . . and, from these principles, lives devoid of charity . . . these evils are the evils of falsity . . .

7763. In (Ex.xi.) it treats of the damnation of faith separated from charity, which is signified by the first-born of Egypt being given to death at midnight.

7766. Faith is said to be damned when the things of faith are applied to support falsities and evils . . . for they then pass over to their side, and become confirmatory; this takes place with those who in both doctrine and life separate faith from charity. But with these there is no faith, but only the knowledge of the things of faith, which by them is called faith. This is meant by faith being damned. 7778.

7778³. From these things it is evident what is meant by the damnation of faith separated from charity; that it is the damnation of the falsified truth and adulterated good which are of faith . . .

7779². The falsified truths which are in the first place are those which are acknowledged as essentials, as these; that faith saves however a man has lived; and that it saves a man in the last hour of his life; and that he is then pure from sins; thus that these are wiped away in a moment, like dirt from the hands by water; and which affirm that faith exists without charity; and that, in respect to the salvation of man, the life effects nothing; and also that a man devil can in a moment become an Angel of light.

7950². They who are in faith separated from charity are in mere darkness and thick darkness concerning the truths of faith. Ex.

—^e. Hence it is that they who are in faith separated from charity cannot but falsify the truths of faith.

8093². The opinion concerning faith alone or separated is not new . . . but existed in the ancient Churches, and prevailed together with evil of life. It is described in the Word passim, but by names; first by 'Cain' . . . also by 'Ham' . . . afterwards by 'Reuben' . . . and by 'Simeon and Levi' . . . This faith is also described by 'the Egyptians' . . . It is also described by 'the Philistines'; and also by 'Tyre and Sidon' . . . and at last also by 'Peter' . . .

—^e. (Refs. on the subject of faith alone.)

8094. 'Because it was near' . . . 'Near,' when said of faith separated, = that it first presents itself. How it is to be understood that the opinion concerning faith separated or alone first presents itself. Ex.

8099. 'The Red Sea' = the Hell where they are who are in faith separated from charity, and in a life of evil. 8345.

8125. It treats in (Ex.xiv.) of the immersion of those who are in faith separated from charity in Hell, where there are falsities from evils.

8137². The Hell where are they who have lived in faith separated from charity and in a life of evil, is encompassed as it were by the waters of a sea. Ex.

8146. 'He harnessed his chariot' = the doctrine of falsity which is of faith separated in general.

—². In what now follows, it treats of the gathering together of all falsities from evil with those who have been in faith separated from charity and in a life of evil. In what precedes it has treated of the vastation of the truths of faith with them, and at last of their reduction to such a state that they were in mere falsities from evil, thus in damnation. In this chapter it now treats of their being cast down into Hell . . .

8148. 'And he took six hundred chosen chariots' = each and all the doctrinal things of falsity which are of faith separated, in their order. 8332.

8152. With those with whom faith is separated from its good, both as to doctrine and as to life, the truth of faith, or faith, is the essential or in the first place. These are not of the Spiritual Church . . .

8210². There is now at hand the last state of the devastation of those of the Church who had been in faith separated from charity and in a life of evil, which is the state of their being cast into Hell . . .

8311. For example, that faith alone saves. In itself, this is false, especially with the evil, who thus exclude the good of charity . . . But this falsity becomes mild with those who are in the good of life; for they apply it to good, saying that faith alone saves, but that it is not faith unless it is attended by its fruit . . .

8313^e. But they who are in faith without charity are haughty, and want to be served by all . . .

8321². Faith without charity is hard and resistant, and rejects all the influx from the Lord.

8332^e. 'Pharaoh' and 'the Egyptians' = those who are in faith separated from charity, and in a life of evil. Refs. 8364.

8364. That they are to be withheld from the evils of those who are in faith separated and in a life of evil. Sig.

8423^e. (Thus) faith without love or charity can produce no fruit; but fruit must come from both conjoined.

8530^e. (Thus) the quality of truth without good, or the quality of faith without charity, is like that of the organic forms of the body devoid of life, etc. 9154².

8765². They who place salvation in faith alone, and not at the same time in the life of faith . . . believe that anyone can come into Heaven . . . however he has lived . . . If they are told that evil cannot be turned into good . . . because it is contrary to order . . . thus to God Himself . . . they reply that such things are reasonings about salvation, which they do not care for. (Thus) it is evident what blindness concerning salvation and eternal life is induced by the doctrine of faith alone.

8780³. For example; they who place salvation in faith alone, when they read the Word, do not attend at all to the things which are said there about love and charity; they do not even see them . . . 10640². P. 318².

8990². They who are in faith and not in charity, are not free, but are servants . . . —³, Tr.

9186². Hence they are in darkness who separate . . . the truth of faith from the good of charity, as do they who say that man is saved by faith alone, or by the mere confidence which is of faith.

9224². There are two disputes which have infested the Church from primeval times . . . The second is, whether faith separated from charity saves . . .

—⁴. He would then have seen the errors which are induced by the doctrine of faith separated from charity. Enum.

9297². Faith is from the Lord . . . but not faith separated from charity; for this faith is from proprium, and is called persuasive faith . . .

9363. To believe the things which the Word and doctrine teach, and not to live according to them, appears as if it were faith, and some suppose that they are saved by it; but by this alone no one is saved; for it is persuasive faith.

9642². It is here predicted that the Church will perish by the doctrine of faith separated from the good of charity.

10087². As faith without charity does not love the Lord, but still can teach such things as are of faith and love . . . the Lord said three times, 'Lovest thou Me?' and 'Feed My lambs,' and 'Feed My sheep' . . .

—⁵. They who are in faith separated not only do not follow the Lord, but are also indignant that (those who are in the goods of charity do so). Sig.

H. 474. (Thus) faith separated from love is no faith, but only knowledge, which has no spiritual life in it.

526². The dogma of faith alone is the head of the rest . . .

— Faith alone with anyone is impossible . . .

N. 121. (Refs. to passages on the subject of faith separated from charity.) J. 39².

J. 69². See FORMER HEAVEN.

C. J. 44. (A gigantic image representing faith alone made by presbyters from England.) T. 810. D. 6007.

Life 4. There are many in the Christian Churches who teach that faith alone saves, and not any good of life or good work. They also add that no evil of life . . . condemns those who are justified by faith alone, because they are in God and in grace. But it is wonderful, that although they teach such things, still they acknowledge—and this is the effect of the general perception which is from Heaven—that they are saved who live well, and that they are condemned who live evilly . . . 7.

F. 41. The quality of faith separated from charity, and the quality of faith not separated from it (shown by a conversation of an Angel with two reformed Christians). T. 391.

42. With the one who was in faith separated from charity, the Angel spoke as follows: Friend, who are you? He replied, I am a Reformed Christian. What is your doctrine, and religion thence derived? He answered, It is faith. The Angel asked, What is your faith? He replied, My faith is that God the Father sent the Son to take upon Himself the damnation of the human race, and that we are saved thereby. The Angel asked further, What more do you know about salvation? He replied, Salvation is effected by that faith alone. Again the Angel asked, What do you know of redemption? He replied, It was accomplished by the passion of the cross, and the merit of the Son is imputed through that faith. Again, What do you know of regeneration? He answered, It is effected by that faith. What do you know about repentance and the remission of sins? He replied, They take place through that faith. Tell me what you know about love and charity. He replied, They are that faith. Tell me what you know about good works. He replied, They are that faith. Tell me what you think about all the precepts in the Word. He replied, They are in that faith. Then he said, So you do nothing? He replied, What should I do? I cannot do what is good, that is good, from myself. He said, Can you have faith from yourself? He replied, I cannot. He said, How, then, can you have faith? He replied, Into this I do not inquire, I will have faith. At last he said, Surely you know something more about salvation! He replied, What more, seeing that salvation is by that faith alone? Then the Angel said, You answer like one who sings only one note on his pipe: I hear nothing but faith. If you know that, and nothing else, you know nothing. Go away, and see your companions. He went, and met them in a desert where there was no grass. He asked why; and they told him that it was because those people had nothing of the Church.
VOL. II.

44. On the quality of faith separated from charity. Gen. art.

— Faith separated from charity stated in its nakedness.

70^e. They who have confirmed themselves in faith separated from charity, have not any Truth.

72. Such are they who have confirmed themselves in faith alone in both doctrine and life; but not they who, although they have heard and believed that faith alone saves, have still shunned evils as sins.

W. 429^e. They who have lived in faith separated from charity are sent away into deserts . . .

P. 114². Yet when on the same day (as that on which they have heard the Exhortation before the Holy Supper) they hear preaching about faith alone . . . and that works have nothing saving in them, but faith alone, they return home entirely forgetful of their former confession, and with the rejection of it, in so far as they think from the preaching about faith alone.

—^e. If you have religion you will see that . . . faith separated from repentance is not faith . . .

115. They who are in faith separated from charity, and who have confirmed themselves in it from Paul's saying to the Romans . . . adore this saying like men who adore the sun. (The saying ex.)

117². Such are many who have confirmed themselves in faith separated from charity; who, because they believe that the law does not condemn them, pay no attention to sins; and some doubt whether there are any sins; and think that if there are, they are not sins before God, because they have been pardoned . . .
2 Y

[P.] 136^s. Hence it is that man cannot be reformed by faith alone; but by the love of the will, which makes a faith for itself.

153^s. It is as if they had daubed faith over all things of the Word . . .

258^s. The doctrine of faith alone was permitted . . . lest they should profane the Divine of the Lord and the Holy of the Word. Ex.

—³. It is of the Divine Providence that although faith separated from charity has become a matter of religion, still everyone knows that that faith does not save, but the life of charity . . .

264^s. Does anyone of those who have confirmed themselves in faith separated from charity . . . want to know what the good of life is . . .

265. The reason almost all do not know (that to shun evils as sins is the Christian religion) is that faith separated has obliterated it; for this declares that faith alone saves, and not any good work or good of charity; also, that they are no longer under the yoke of the law. They who have heard such things a few times no longer think about any evil of life, nor about any good of life. Besides, every man from his nature inclines to embrace this idea; and when he has once embraced it, he thinks no more about the state of his life.

278a². They who from religion omit to search . . . are especially those who separate charity from faith; for they say to themselves, Why should I search whether there is evil or good? Why search for evil, when it does not condemn me? or why for good, when it does not save me? It is faith alone, thought and expressed with trust and confidence, which justifies and purifies from all sin; and when once I am justified, I am whole before God. I am indeed in evil; but God wipes this away as soon as it is done, and so it no longer appears.

279⁴. They are in this error (that the state of a man's life can be changed in a moment) who separate charity from faith, and place salvation in faith alone; for they suppose that the mere thought and utterance of the words of that faith, if it is done with trust and confidence, justify and save . . .

318⁹. There is a confirmation which is intellectual, and not at the same time voluntary . . . For example, they who confirm faith separated from charity, and yet live a life of charity.

R. 82². (Decline of the Church from goods of life to truths of doctrine, and at last to faith alone.)

90^s. Around those who are in faith separated from charity there is not even grass, but sand. 401.

132. 'Thou permittest the woman Jezebel' = that in the Church with them are those who separate faith from charity, and make it alone saving.

133. It is known that in the Reformed Christian Church faith alone has been accepted as the only means of salvation . . . Hence it is, that at this day the universal doctrine of man's salvation, which is called theology, is that faith.

134. They who have confirmed faith alone, to the exclusion of the works of charity, are in the lust of the adultery of a son with his mother. . . This adultery is signified by the adultery of Reuben with Bilhah . . .

136. That those who have confirmed themselves in this doctrine do not recede, although they see things contrary to it in the Word. Sig.

143. 'The depths' = the interiors of this doctrine of faith separated from charity, which are nothing but falsities. The depths and interiors of this doctrine are the things which are delivered in their books, and in the lectures in the colleges, and thence in their preaching. The nature of these may be seen in the things prefixed to chap.i., where their doctrinal things are adduced, in particular those concerning justification by faith, and concerning good works; where it may be seen stated, that only the clergy are acquainted with the secrets of that doctrine, but not the laity.

153. A Relation concerning the lot of those after death, who, in both doctrine and life, have confirmed themselves in faith alone even to justification. T.281.

294^s. See CHRIST.

387, Pref. It treats (in Rev.viii.) of the Church of the Reformed, as to the quality of those therein who are in faith alone. 388. 391. 419, Pref.

395. Spiritual love in which is celestial love, and its influx into the lower parts, where were those who were in faith separated from charity. Sig.

396. That after communication was opened with them, there were heard reasonings concerning faith alone, and confirmations in favour of it; and that the state of the Church with them was perceived to be tottering to destruction. Sig.

397. That they were prepared and qualified to explore the state of the Church, and thence of the life, of those whose religion is faith alone. Sig.

398. The exploration and manifestation of the quality of the state of the Church with those who are interiorly in that faith. Sig.

402. And with those who are exteriorly in that faith. Sig.

405. That those who have lived and are living this faith cannot be reformed, and receive life. Sig.

407. The exploration and manifestation of the Church with those whose religion is faith alone, as to their quality in respect to their affection for and reception of Truths from the Word. Sig.

412. The exploration and manifestation of the state of the Church with those whose religion is faith alone, that they are in evils of falsity and in falsities of evil. Sig.

416. The deepest lamentation over the damned state of those in the Church who, in both doctrine and life, have confirmed themselves in faith separated from charity. Sig.

417. Those who composed the flock of goats were those who had confirmed themselves in the doctrine of justification by faith alone . . .

—². Most of them were of the clergy, who gloried in the reputation of their learning, because they knew the secrets of justification by faith alone. They said that they were gathered . . . as a council, because they had heard that the saying of Paul (Rom.iii.28) . . . was not rightly understood. (Many things quoted from him which show) that Paul rejected faith without good works equally with James (ii.17-26).

—³. To this they added that they saw in Paul that the law of the Decalogue is to be lived, and that it is fulfilled by charity . . . and thus not by faith alone.

—⁴. (After deliberation) they all suddenly turned to the flock of sheep, but still appeared as goats . . . I asked, What now? They said that they had concluded that faith alone produces the goods of charity . . . as a tree produces fruit. Then there was thunder and lightning from above; and an Angel appeared . . . who cried . . . Do not listen to them. They have not receded from their former faith . . . Neither is faith a tree, but man. . . The Angel then divided the sheep into two flocks, and said to those on the left, Join yourselves to the goats; but I tell you that a wolf will come, who will carry them off, and you with them.

—⁵. Then the left-hand flock . . . said . . . Are not faith and charity one, as a tree and its fruit are one? . . . Ask our priests. . . And the priests looked round to the rest; who winked . . . Then they answered that it was so, that faith is preserved by the fruits; but they were not willing to say that faith is continued into the fruits. But then one of the priests . . . on the right, arose and said, They answered you that it is so; but still to their friends, that it is not so; for they think otherwise . . . They think that every good of charity . . . which is done by a man for the sake of salvation . . . is evil . . . and, among themselves, they call the good works done by man . . . cursed, and say that they merit Hell rather than Heaven. But they of the left flock said, You speak lies against them. Do they not preach before us charity and its works, which they call the works of faith? He answered, You do not understand their preaching; only a clergyman . . . attends and understands. They think only of moral charity, and its civil and political goods, which they call those of faith . . . On which account they say unanimously, that no one is saved by any works, but by faith alone. Ex. (Their ideas further ex.)

—^e. The rest of the priests . . . waved their hats, and shouted, Faith alone; faith alone, for ever. T.506.

419. The exploration and manifestation of the state of life of those in the Church of the Reformed, who are called learned and wise from the confirmation of faith separated from charity, and of justification and salvation by it alone. Sig. 442, Des.

421. The opening of the Hell . . . where those are who have confirmed themselves in justification and salvation by faith alone, who are all from the Church of the Reformed; here, however, those who . . . appear as learned and erudite; (whereas) they who confirm that faith even to its interiors close up the higher things of their understanding, and at last so completely, that they can no longer see any spiritual truth in the light.

—². Their Hell, and their lot there. Des.

426^c. The reason they who have confirmed faith alone even to the arcana of justification and salvation by it, cannot take away any truth and good of faith, nor any affection and perception, from any but those who are not in the faith of charity, is that scarcely anyone except the leader who teaches and preaches them comprehends these things. The layman hears them, but they pass in at one of his ears, and out at the other . . . It may be seen from this, that faith alone justifying is the faith of the clergy, and not of the laity, except of those who live carelessly. The laity draw from these mysteries only this, that faith alone saves; that they cannot do good of themselves; that neither can they fulfil the law; that Christ suffered for them; besides a few more general propositions similar to these.

429. That those who are in the doctrine of faith separated wish that in matters of faith the understanding should be shut up, and the will closed, and thus that they should not have any spiritual light and life; but that it is provided by the Lord, that the understanding should not be shut up, nor the will closed, lest spiritual light and life should be extinguished with man. Sig.

430. The appearance and images of those who have confirmed in themselves faith separated from charity. Sig.

442. The exploration and manifestation of the state of life with those in the Church of the Reformed who are not so wise, and still place the whole of religion in faith, and think of that alone . . . and thus live as they list. Sig.

—². Their lot and vast numbers. Des.

447. The reasonings concerning faith alone, with which the interiors of their minds were crammed, from mere falsities of evil in abundance. Sig.

449. That it was then disclosed that the reasonings of the interiors of their minds concerning faith alone were imaginary and visionary, and that they themselves were insane from them. Sig.

—². Some of their reasonings. Enum.

—³. Besides, they spoke shamelessly with all license, and were lascivious in both words and actions, without the restraint of fear for any misdeed, except by pretence for the sake of the appearance of respectability. Such are the interiors of the mind, and thence the exteriors of the body, of those who make faith alone the whole of religion.

450^c. The reason their argumentations for faith alone are thus described, is that all who believe themselves to be justified, that is, absolved from sins, by means of faith alone, never think of repentance; and an impenitent man is in nothing but sins . . .

451. Their phantasies concerning faith alone as if it were in power. Sig.

456. Those in the Church of the Reformed who are not so spiritually dead from visionary reasonings, the love of self, the pride of their Own intelligence, and the concupiscences thence, as the former, and still make faith alone the head of their religion. Sig.

—². Their abodes. Des. . . They know nothing from that religion, except that there is a God; that there are three Persons; that Christ suffered the cross for them; and that it is faith alone by which they are saved; and also by worship in the churches, and by prayers at stated times. . . There are many clergy among them, whom I have asked what they thought when they read in the Word of works, love and charity, fruits, the precepts of life, repentance; in a word, of the things to be done. They answered, that they indeed read them, and so saw them, but still did not see them, because they held their minds in faith alone, and thence in the idea that all those things are faith; and that they did not think that they are the effects of faith. That such ignorance and stupidity belongs to those who have once embraced faith alone, and have made it the whole of their religion, can scarcely be believed; although it has been given me to know it by much experience.

[R.] 457. The reason it is said of those who are here treated of, that 'they repented not,' is that they who make faith alone the whole of religion, say to themselves, What is the need of repentance, when sins are remitted, and we are saved by faith alone? What do our works effect towards this? I know that I was born in sins, and that I am a sinner. If I confess this, and pray that my faults may not be imputed to me, is not repentance then done? What need of more? And so he does not think anything about his sins, even till he does not know that they are sins; and therefore he is continually carried along by delight and pleasantness from them, in them, and into them, as a ship with a favourable wind and tide is carried on the rocks, while the helmsman and sailors are asleep.

458. He, therefore, who invokes faith alone as the head of his religion, or as his idol, as he does not search out any evil in himself which he calls a sin, and therefore does not want to remove it by repentance, remains in it; and (therefore) becomes a demon after death. Sig.

461. That the heresy of faith alone induces in the heart stupidity, shuffling, and hardness, so that they do not think anything of the precepts of the Decalogue, nor indeed of any sin that it is to be shunned because it is with the devil and against God. Sig.

463². (The Angels said) The turtles represent those of the clergy there, who altogether separate faith from charity and its good works, affirming in themselves that there is plainly no conjunction between them; but that the Holy Spirit . . . enters into a man and purifies his interiors . . . and that thus the inner or higher part of a man's constitution is for God, and that the outer or lower is for man; and that so nothing which the man does, either good or evil, appears before God . . . and since this is the case, man is permitted to will, think, speak, and do whatever he pleases, provided he is careful before the world. . . These are the things which the small head (of the turtles) represents, which they draw into the fore part of the body, and conceal, and also insert into the great head when they are speaking to the laity; for they do not speak to them from the small head, but from the large one, which appears in front as furnished with a human face. And they speak to them from the Word about love, charity, good works, the precepts of the Decalogue, repentance; and they quote from the Word almost everything there is therein on these subjects. But they then insert the small head into the large one, from which they understand inwardly in themselves, that all those things are to be done not for the sake of God, Heaven, and salvation, but only for the public and the private good. But as they speak about these things from the Word . . . agreeably and elegantly, they appear to their hearers as fine men, wise above all others in the whole world. . . In your world they are little distinguished from others,—only by this, that they believe themselves to be wiser than all. . . They carry a kind of small mark with them on their garments, by which they are known to one another. . . T. 462.

464. Pref. It treats further (in Rev.x.) of the exploration and manifestation of those who are in the Churches of the Reformed, what they believe about the Lord as being the God of Heaven and earth, and as to His Human being Divine; and that this is not received there; and that it can with difficulty be received, so long as the dogma concerning justification by faith alone is seated in their hearts.

483. That as this is the case, they must be still further taught of what quality they are who are in faith alone. Sig.

484. He said that (all the books) treated of justifying faith: those from Sweden and Denmark profoundly; those from Germany more profoundly; those from Britain more profoundly still; and those from Holland most profoundly of all. . . T. 161.

—4. A building (seen) divided into little cells, in each of which two were sitting, who were collecting from the Word texts in favour of faith alone. (Their notion of faith in act explained and refuted.) T. 505.

—7. (A discussion as to) whether the good a man does in the state of justification by faith, or in the progression of it after the act, is the good of religion, or not. T. 390.

485. Pref. The state of the Church with the Reformed is still treated of (in Rev.xi.), of what quality they who are interiorly in faith alone are in their opposition to the two essentials of the New Church.

500. See BEAST.

—2. The reason why they who are in the internals of the doctrine of faith alone will fight against and reject the two essentials, is that they have confirmed in themselves the two things which are antagonistic to them: First, that God the Father is to be approached; and, Secondly, that a life according to the precepts of the Decalogue is not spiritual life, but only moral and civil life. . . All those who have impressed these dogmas deeply on their minds in the schools. . . do not afterwards recede from them. For this there are three reasons. Enum.

501. That the two essentials of the New Church are altogether rejected by those who are interiorly in the falsities of the doctrine of justification by faith alone. Sig. . . It is the reigning doctrine among the clergy in the whole Reformed Christian world, but . . . not in like manner with the laity.

505. When all who have been and shall be in falsities of doctrine and thence in evils of life from faith alone, at the end of the Church which still is, to the beginning of the New one, have heard and shall hear of the two essentials (they will condemn them). Sig. 506.

507. The delight of the affection of the heart and soul in the Church on that account with those who were in faith alone as to doctrine and life. Sig.

509. That these two essentials . . . are in opposition to the two essentials received in the Reformed Church, of which the one relates to a trinity of Persons, and the other to salvation by faith alone, without the works of the law; and that owing to this opposition, the two essentials of the New Church . . . are held in contempt, disgust, and aversion. Sig.

514. That those who are in faith separated from charity heard them, but remained fixed in their falsities. Sig.

516. That in that state all those who confessed faith alone, and on that account made nothing of the works of charity, perished. Sig.

524. That those who are in faith alone and thence in evils of life became enraged, and infested those who are against their faith. Sig.

— Those who are in faith alone . . . are in evils of life, because their religion is that the law does not condemn them, provided they have faith that Christ has taken away its damnation.

531. A pestilential smoke rose up from the Jerusalem which is called Sodom and Egypt: I was half-dead with severe pain . . . I lay thus in my bed for three days and a half . . . Then I heard around me voices . . . How can repentance be performed without faith? . . . When we are saved of free grace without any merit of our own, what do we need but the faith alone that God the Father sent the Son to take away the damnation of the law; impute to us His merit; and thus justify us before Him . . .

—². But then a voice came forth from Heaven, saying, What is the faith of the impenitent but a dead faith? The end is come upon you . . . justified in your faith, you devils.

—³. I desired to know their lot in the deep . . . Then they were seen by me in a sandy bottom, where heaps of stones were piled up . . . And they cried out, Why has this come upon us? Are we not, through our faith, clean, pure, just, and holy? And others cried, Are we not, through our faith, cleansed, purified, justified, and sanctified? And others, Are we not, through our faith, made such that we may appear . . . before God the Father as clean, pure, just, and holy? Are we not reconciled, propitiated, expiated; and so absolved, washed, and cleansed from sins? Has not the condemnation of the law been taken away by Christ . . . Did we not believe in Christ when we believed in His merit? Have we not repented, when we confessed that we are sinners? . . . But a voice was then heard speaking to them from one side, Do you know any sin in which you are? . . . Have you on that account shunned any evil as a sin against God? And he that does not shun it is in it. Is not sin the devil? B. 114. T. 567.

—⁷. The Reformed have a certain deep-seated . . . aversion to actual repentance, which is so great that they cannot compel themselves to examine themselves . . . Some there inquired why this is so; and they found that faith alone has induced such a state of impenitence, and such a heart.

532. Pref. They who believe in justification by faith alone (are meant in Rev. xii.) by 'the dragon.'

539. It is said that the dragon has great power, because the salvation of man by faith alone without the works of the law . . . captivates the mind, and then confirmations are convincing. It captivates, because when a man hears that the condemnation of the law has been taken away, and that by mere faith in this the Lord's merit is imputed to him, he can indulge in the pleasures of the lower mind and body, without the fear of Hell. This is the source of the power which is signified by the ten horns of the dragon. That he has had such power is very evident from the reception of that faith in the whole Reformed Christian world.

558. Lamentation over those who are in the externals and in the internals of the doctrine concerning faith alone, and in consequent evils of life, because their like have been cast down from Heaven into the World of Spirits, and are consequently in conjunction with the men of the Earth, whom from hatred against the New Church they excite to persevere in their falsities and consequent evils. Sig.

566². There came up some from the abyss, who at first appeared like locusts . . . They were those who in the world . . . had confirmed themselves in justification by faith alone; and they said they saw that man is justified by faith without the works of the law, in clear light, and also from the Word. They were asked, By what faith? They answered, In God the Father. After they had been examined, they were told from Heaven that they did not know even one doctrinal truth from the Word . . .

—⁴. When they came to their own in the abyss, and told them what the Angels had said . . . they prayed to the Lord . . . and ascended to the number of three hundred. And . . . they said, We were celebrated in the world because we knew and taught the mysteries of justification by faith alone; and, from confirmations, we not only saw the light, but also as it were a sparkling radiance; as we still do in our cells. . . We will therefore demonstrate that we have truths from the Word in great abundance. (They then enumerate them.) But they received the answer, All the things which you have advanced are in themselves true; but you have falsified them . . . That it is so we will demonstrate to the very sight. Not far from here there is a . . . table. When any paper on which a truth from the Word is written is placed upon it, the paper . . . shines like a star. Write your truths, therefore, on a paper, and let it be put on that table. They did so . . . and withdrew a little and looked at it; and behold, the paper shone like a star. Then the keeper said . . . Come nearer, and look intently at the paper. They did so, and the light suddenly disappeared; and the paper became black, as if covered with the soot of a furnace. Then the keeper said, Touch the paper . . . And when they did so, a flame burst forth, and consumed it. Seeing this, they fled away.

—⁷. But a certain person, who in the world had been a leading author on the doctrine of faith alone, boldly came up, and said, When I was in the world I did not falsify the Word; I also exalted charity together with faith; and I taught that man, in the state of faith, in which he does charity and its works, is renewed, regenerated, and sanctified; and also that faith does not then exist in a solitary state, that is, without good works; as a tree is not without fruit. . . and I blamed those who said that good works are not necessary; and, moreover, I magnified the precepts of the Decalogue, and also repentance; and I thus applied all things of the Word in a wonderful manner to the article of faith, which I set forth and demonstrated to be still alone saving. . . He came up to the table. . . and touched the Word, and an explosion took place. . . by which he was thrown into a corner of the room, and lay there as if he were dead for nearly an hour. The angelic Spirits wondered at this, but they were told that that leader had exalted the goods of charity as proceeding from faith. . . but that still he had meant no other than political works, which are also called moral and civil ones, and which are to be done for the sake of the world and of prosperity therein; but not any works which are to be done for the sake of God and of salvation; and also that he included the unseen works of the Holy Spirit, of which man knows nothing. . .

[R.] 576. That this matter of doctrine, which is the head of the rest,—that man is justified and saved by faith alone without the works of the law, does not agree with the Word, where works are so often commanded. Sig.

606. (Although this doctrine varies in different countries, its head is the same everywhere, which is) That faith, without the works of the law, justifies and saves. B. 17.

611⁴. It was given to see more than three hundred of the clergy of the Reformed world, all learned men, because they knew how to confirm faith alone even to justification, and some of them further. . . Permission was given them to ascend into a Society of Heaven. . . As they ascended, they were seen at a distance as calves. . . But while they were conversing (with the Angels), a tremor seized them; then a shuddering; and at last torture as of death; and they then cast themselves down headlong; and in their fall they seemed like dead horses. Ex.

612. An exhortation to recede from the faith separated from charity in which is the present Church. Tr.

633. A further [revelation] from the Lord concerning those who are in faith separated from charity. Sig.

—e. As they who are in faith separated from charity stand in the way, there now follows a threatening and denunciation of damnation against those who still persevere in that faith.

634. There are three degrees of the reception of this doctrine (of faith alone). . . The first degree is to acknowledge it; the second degree is to confirm it in one's self; and the third degree is to live according to it. . . There are those who are in the first degree (only); there are those who are in the first and second, and not in the third; but they who are in the third (are here treated of). To live according to it is to make nothing of evil, by thinking that evil does not condemn, because the works of the law do not save, but faith alone; also, to make nothing of good, by thinking in one's self that no one can do what is good of himself. . .

637. A perpetual state in undelightful things with those who acknowledge that faith and receive its doctrine, and who confirm and live according to it. Sig.

638. That the man of the Lord's Church will be explored by temptations from them. . . Sig.

675. See ENGLAND. D. 6103.

—4. Then those bishops replied. . . Is not faith in act, which is faith fully justifying and saving, the Church? And is not faith in state, which is faith proceeding and perfecting, religion? But the wise Englishman said. . . Does a man conceive faith in act like a stock? . . . Is not faith in state the continuation and progression of faith in act? And since according to your idea, everything saving is in faith, and not anything in the good of charity from man, where then is religion? The bishops then said, Friend, you speak thus, because you do not know the mysteries of justification by faith alone. . . The Englishman said, I know your mysteries of justification better than you do yourselves. . . Your faith in act. . . or, what is the same, your act of justification by faith alone,—does it teach the doing of any good which is of God and from God? and does it teach the shunning of any evil which is of the devil and from the devil? Absolutely nothing. . . What is your faith in state. . . but the same with faith in act? How can this be perfected, when you exclude all good done by man as of himself? (He then enumerates their arguments.) Are not these your mysteries? But in my eyes they are mere subtleties and artifices contrived in order to set aside good works. . . in order to establish your faith alone. . . You do not know what charity is; when yet charity is the soul, the life, and the essence of faith. And because charity is all this, what then is faith when charity is removed, but dead faith? and dead faith is nothing but a spectre. I call it a spectre, because the apostle James calls faith without good works not only dead, but also diabolical. Then one of those bishops. . . threw his mitre on the table, saying. . . That James, that James. Upon the mitre was a plate, on which was engraved faith alone. There then suddenly appeared a monster rising out of the earth. . . which took the mitre from the table, and stretched it out beneath, and put it upon his seven heads; after which, the earth opened under his feet, and he sank down into Hell. T. 389.

676. Influx from the Lord. . . into the Church of the Reformed, where are they who are in faith separated from charity as to doctrine and as to life, to take away truths and goods from them, and to open the falsities and evils in which they are; and thus to separate them from those who believe in the Lord. . . Sig. These are the things in a summary which are contained in (Rev. xvi.).

677. (Influx) into those who are in the interiors of the Church of the Reformed, and who study the doctrine of justification by faith alone, who are called the clergy. Sig.

678. 'A sore' = the evil originating from a life according to this head of doctrine, that faith alone without the works of the law justifies and saves.

—^c. 'A sore' = evil appearing in the ultimates . . . This takes place with all who persuade themselves that faith alone saves, and on that account do not reflect upon any evil in themselves . . .

679. By 'having the mark of the beast,' is signified to acknowledge faith alone; to confirm it in one's self; and to live according to it: and by 'worshipping his image' is signified to receive the doctrine of it. By living faith alone, and receiving the doctrine of it, is meant to make no account of life for the sake of salvation . . . This they do especially, who know and acknowledge the interiors of this doctrine.

684^e. The reason they who are in faith alone falsify all the truths of the Word, is that the whole Word treats of a life according to the precepts therein, and of the Lord as being . . . the only God; and they who are in faith alone do not think of a life according to the precepts in the Word, nor do they approach the Lord. 687, Sig.

686^d. The reason it is from the Lord's Divine Providence that those who are in faith alone falsify the truths of the Word, is that if they knew them, so as to think about them interiorly, they would profane them. Ex. 688.

701, 702. That from a theology founded upon . . . the doctrine of justification by faith alone . . . there arise mere ratiocinations and cupidities of falsifying truths. Sig.

710. Ratiocinations, falsifications of truth, and arguments from the falsities of evil in the Church with those who are in faith alone, and who shuffle out of reflecting upon the evils in themselves, because they do not want to recede from them if they knew them. Sig.

835. That all (those who professed faith alone, and were interiorly evil; both laity and clergy) were cast, as they were, into the Hell where are the loves of falsity, and at the same time the cupidities of evil. Sig.

838. Let everyone, therefore, beware of the heresy that man is justified by faith without the works of the law; for he who is in it, and does not fully recede from it before the end of life draws near, is consociated after death with infernal Genii. Sig. and Ex.

843. That the Lord altogether removed those who were in faith alone, and took away all their communication with the rest, lest they should inspire something of their heresy into those who were being elevated into Heaven. Sig.

875¹⁷. Faith separated from charity deadens all things . . . This deadening can be seen to the life in our Spiritual World; because here faith is light, and charity is heat . . . and where there is faith separated from charity there is not even grass; and where it is green, it is so from briars, thorns, and nettles. . . Not far from us there were some of the clergy, whom the angelic Spirit called justifiers and sanctifiers of men by faith alone, and also mystery-men. We said these same things to them, and demonstrated them so that they saw that it was so. But when we asked, Is it not so? they turned themselves away, and said, We did not hear. We, however, cried out to them, saying, Hear now, then. Then they put both hands over their ears, and shouted, We will not hear. B. 115. T. 385².

926. See FALSE PROPHET.

B. 12. On justification by faith without the works of the law. (From the Formula Concordiæ.)

13. On the fruits of faith. (From the Formula Concordiæ.)

21. That the leading Reformers retained all the dogmas concerning . . . justification by faith, etc., as they were and had been with the Roman Catholics; but that they separated charity or good works from that faith, and declared that they were not at the same time saving, in order that as to the very essentials of the Church, which are faith and charity, they might be torn asunder from the Roman Catholics. Gen.art.

23. (The Council of Trent on justifying faith.)

24. That nevertheless the leading Reformers adjoined good works to their faith, but in man as in a passive subject; whereas the Roman Catholics did so in man as in an active subject; and that still there actually is conformity between the latter and the former as to faith, works, and merits. Gen.art.

42. The modern faith is preached as the only saving faith, because it is a faith in one God, and a faith in the Saviour; but still this faith has two faces, one internal and the other external; its internal face is formed from the perception of three Gods . . .

45. That the present faith has separated religion from the Church; for religion consists in the acknowledgment of one God, and in the worship of Him from the faith of charity. Gen.art.

46. For it is declared that in good works there is no salvation, in these words: That faith without good works justifies; that works are not necessary to salvation; nor to faith, because salvation and faith are neither preserved nor retained by good works; consequently, that there is no bond of conjunction of faith with good works. If it is afterwards said, that good works follow faith spontaneously, as fruits from a tree, who in this case does then? nay, who thinks of them, or who is spontaneously carried to them, when he knows and believes that they contribute nothing to salvation? and further, that no one can do any good of salvation from himself? and so on. Further ex.

—^c. The leaders first laid down faith alone as their rule, in order that they might be severed from the Roman Catholics; and afterwards they adjoined the works of charity, lest it should be against the Holy Scripture, and so that it might appear to be religion, and thus be healed.

47. That the faith of the present Church cannot be conjoined with charity, and produce any fruits, which are good works. Gen.art. 49.

51. That from the faith of the present Church there pours forth a worship of the mouth and not of the life. Gen.art.

54. The paradoxes flowing from such a faith are many: as . . . that those who by grace obtain faith, and believe these paradoxes, are saved by the imputation, application, and translation of His righteousness to themselves; and that man, at his first reception of that faith, is like a statue, a stock, or a stone; and that faith flows in by the mere hearing of the Word; and that faith alone without the works of the law, and not formed from charity, is saving; and that it operates the remission of sins without previous repentance . . .

[B.] 59. Because (these ministers of the Church) are on this account reputed wise . . . they revolve in their thoughts, and teach from their pulpits, scarcely anything else than mystical things concerning justification by faith alone, and concerning good works as her humble attendants. And from their learning about both, they in a wonderful manner now separate; now conjoin them . . . For example: They teach that good works are not necessary to salvation, because, if done by man, they are meritorious; and at the same time they also teach that they necessarily follow faith . . . They teach that faith without good works, as being alive, justifies; and at the same time, that faith without good works, as being dead, does not justify. They teach that faith is neither preserved nor retained by good works; and at the same time, that the latter proceed from faith, as fruit from a tree, light from the sun, and heat from fire. They teach that when good works are adjoined to faith they complete it; and at the same time that when they are conjoined together as in a marriage or in one form, they deprive faith of its saving essence. They teach that a Christian is not under the law; and at the same time, that he must be in the daily exercises of the law. They teach that if good works are intermixed in the business of salvation by faith, as in the remission of sins, justification, regeneration, vivification, and salvation, they are hurtful; but if they are not intermixed, they are profitable. They teach that God crowns His own gifts, which are good works, with rewards even of a spiritual nature; but not with salvation and eternal life, because, with these, He crowns faith without works. They teach that this faith is like a queen, who marches magnificent with good works as her servants behind her; but if the latter conjoin themselves with her in front, and kiss her, she is cast down from her throne, and is called an adulteress. And especially when they are teaching faith and good works at the same time, they regard merit on the one hand, and no merit on the other, making choice of expressions which they use in two different senses; one for the laity, and the other for the clergy: for the laity, that its nakedness may not appear, and for the clergy, that it may. Consider whether anyone who hears such things can draw from them anything of doctrine leading to salvation . . .

60. That the doctrine of the faith of the present Church ascribes to God human properties. Ennuu., and Gen.art.

64. That from the faith of the present Church have been produced, and still may be produced monstrous births: as instantaneous salvation from immediate mercy; predestination: no attention of God to man's acts, but to faith alone; that there exists no bond between charity and faith; that man in conversion is like a stock . . . Gen.art.

67. That God pays no attention to a man's acts, but to faith alone, is a new heresy springing from the two former (that is, instantaneous salvation and predestination); and, what is wonderful, it has been made from faith alone deeply examined and unfolded, which has been done by the most sagacious ones of this age, as a third progeny brought forth by the mother wolf of predestination; but as it is insane, impious, and machiavellian, it has hitherto been kept shut up in the uterine coats . . . but the insanity and impiety of it may be seen described in R.463.

68. That there exists no bond between charity and faith; (shown by quotations).

—². That there actually cannot exist a bond of charity with that faith, has been shown; and therefore it may be said that it was provided and predestinated that the Reformers should cast out charity and good works from their faith; for if they had conjoined them, it would have been as if they had conjoined a leopard and a sheep . . .

69. That man in conversion is like a stock, the faith of the present Church acknowledges as its own offspring in these express words. (Quoted).

75^e. Hence the great affliction at this day. That this has been brought on chiefly through the doctrine of justification and imputation by means of faith alone . . . will be seen in what follows. 79, Ex.

79. The doctrine of justification by faith alone is the sole cause (of this great affliction); for it teaches faith as the only means of salvation; of the influx, progress, indwelling, operation, and efficacy of which, no one has ever seen any sign; and into which neither the law of the Decalogue, nor charity, nor good works, nor repentance, nor the study of a new life, enter, or touch it in any way; for it is asserted that they follow spontaneously, without being of any use to preserve faith, or to procure salvation. It also teaches, that this faith gives to those who are born again the staff of liberty, so that they are not under the law; and also that Christ covers their sins before God the Father, who forgives them as though they were not seen; and crowns them with renovation, holiness, and eternal life. These, and many other like things, are the interiors of that doctrine. The exterior things, which do not enter into them, are precious sayings about charity, good works, acts of repentance, the exercises of the law; but these are accounted by them merely as slaves and drudges, which follow their mistress faith, without being permitted to come near her. But as they know that the laity regard these things as saving together with faith, they diligently subjoin them to their sermons and conversation, and pretend to conjoin and insert them into justification, merely to tickle the ears of the common people, and prevent their oracular sayings from appearing like riddles. (Shown by quotations. So.) T. 518.

81. It is wonderful that the doctrine of justification by faith alone gets every vote in the whole Christian Reformed world, that is, it reigns there as almost the sole theological matter in the sacred order. It is this which all clerical students greedily learn and imbibe in the schools; and which they afterwards teach in the churches, and publish in books, as if they were inspired with heavenly wisdom . . . It has been evidenced to me that the doctrine of faith in imputed righteousness has at this day blinded minds to such a degree, that they will not, and thence as it were cannot, see any Divine truth in the light of the sun, or in the light of the moon, but only in the light of a fire by night; and therefore I am able to predict, that if Divine truths concerning the conjunction of charity and faith, concerning Heaven, the Lord, and eternal happiness, were let down from Heaven set forth in silver letters, they would not be thought worth reading by the justificarians; but quite different would be the case if a paper about justification by faith alone were brought them from the lower regions. (Shown by a quotation.) T.181.

87. That those who have confirmed themselves in the present justifying faith, are meant in the Revelation by . . . the dragon, his two beasts, and by the locusts; and that this same faith, when confirmed, is meant there by the great city which spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, where the two witnesses were slain; and also by the bottomless pit out of which came the locusts. Gen.art.

92. The reason why no flesh could be saved unless the days were shortened, is that the faith of the present Church is founded on the idea of three Gods, and with this idea no one can enter Heaven; thus not with that faith, because that idea is in each and all things of it; moreover, in that faith there is nothing of life from the works of charity. Ex.

93. I have sometimes spoken in the Spiritual World with the justifiers of men by faith alone; and I have said that that doctrine is erroneous, and likewise absurd; and that it induces security, blindness, sleep, and night in spiritual things; and thus death to the soul; exhorting them to desist from it. But I received for answer, Why desist? Does not the excellence of the learning of the clergy over the laity depend upon it . . . T.182.

98. The sole reason why the Christian world has fallen into a faith, which has put away from itself all the truths and goods of Heaven and the Church, even to the separation of them, is that they have distinguished God into three, and have not believed the Lord God the Saviour to be one with the Father, and thus have not approached Him immediately. Ill.

105. That at this day the Roman Catholics know nothing of the imputation of the merit of Christ, and of justification by faith therein, into which their Church was formerly initiated . . . and therefore if they will recede in part from the externals of their worship, and approach immediately God the Saviour Jesus Christ, and receive the Holy Eucharist in both kinds, they can be brought into the New Jerusalem . . . more easily than the Reformed. Gen.art.

112. That the faith of the imputation or application of the righteousness or merit of Christ, being impossible, is an imaginary faith. Ex.

T. 72^d. I said, Learn the laws of Divine order, and afterwards open that faith, and you will see a vast waste, and in it Leviathan . . .

98. That the Divine and the Human in the Lord are united like soul and body, is indeed according to the faith of the present Church . . . yet hardly five in a hundred know it. This is because of the doctrine of justification by faith alone, which most of the clergy . . . have embraced with all study . . .

110^s. Then a voice was heard from a certain dragonist: This statue represents our faith as a queen; and the other behind it, charity as her maid-servant.

137. A council convened of those who had been celebrated for their writings and learning concerning the present faith, and concerning the justification of the elect by it . . . One said, Oh, brethren, what an age! There has risen up one from the herd of the laity . . . who has pulled down our faith from Heaven, and cast it into the Styx . . .

185^d. Oh, what a great mystery is our holy faith! which is . . .

385^s. I said that by living experience it had been given me to know that solitary faith is like the light of winter. That for some years Spirits with faith of various kinds had passed by me, and that whenever those came near who had separated faith from charity, such coldness seized my feet, and then the loins, and at last the breast, that . . .

—^e. Faith without charity is dead (because) its death is from cold; from which that faith expires like a bird in a severe winter: first it dies as to its power to see; then as to its power to fly; and at last as to its power to breathe; and then it falls headlong from the branch into the snow, and is buried there.

503^s. They replied, In our universal theology there is not anything spiritual, which reason apprehends. Our faith is the only thing which is spiritual therein; but this we keep carefully shut up, to prevent anyone from looking into it; and we have taken care that no spiritual ray should go forth from it, and appear before the understanding; and besides, man does not contribute a particle to it from any will of his own . . . Respecting justification, the remission of sins, regeneration, and thence salvation, we deliver nothing spiritual; we say that faith operates them; but how, we have no idea. Instead of repentance, we have taken contrition; and lest this should be believed to be spiritual, we have removed it from faith, so that it has no contact with it.

518. In a like hypocritical worship are they who have confirmed with themselves the present faith, that . . .

616. Can there possibly be a blinder stupidity concerning regeneration than such as exists with those who confirm themselves in the present faith? which is, that faith is infused into a man while he is like a stock or a stone; and that then, when it has been infused, it is followed by justification . . . In order that this dogma might be still more firmly established, they have deprived man of all free-will in spiritual things . . .

626. That the faith of the present Church—which is said alone to justify—and imputation, make one. Gen. art. 627.

628. Therefore they have fallen . . . into this abominable thing, that God does not attend to the deeds of a man's life, but only to faith inscribed on the interiors of his mind.

[T.]632. That the faith which is imputative of the merit and righteousness of Christ the Redeemer first originated from the decrees of the Nicene council concerning the three Divine Persons from eternity; which faith has been received by the whole Christian world from that time to the present. Gen.art.

636. That a faith imputative of the merit of Christ was not known in the apostolic Church . . . and is nowhere meant in the Word. Gen.art.

644. The reason . . . they have understood the imputation of faith on which the righteousness and merit of Christ have been inscribed . . . is that since the time of the Nicene council, they have not wished to know of any other faith. Therefore this faith alone has had its seat in their memory, and thence in their minds, as if it were organized; and from that time it has supplied a light like that from a conflagration at night, from which that faith has been seen as if it were true theology itself . . . And therefore, if, when reading the Word, they were to think of any other than this imputative faith, that light, together with all their theology, would be extinguished; and a darkness would arise from which the whole Christian Church would vanish away. Therefore it has been left to them, like 'the stump of the roots in the earth; the tree having been cut down and destroyed; until seven times should pass' (Dan.iv.23). Who among the confirmed leaders of the Church at this day, when this faith is attacked, does not stop up his ears as with cotton wool, so as not to hear anything against it?

645. This faith compared to the disease of the eye, called yutta serena.

647^b. The faith of the former Church is, that when faith has been given and imputed, repentance, the remission of sins, renovation, regeneration, sanctification, and salvation, follow of themselves, without anything of man being commingled or conjoined with them.

Theorem at end of T. The bishops replied, The head of religion in Christendom is faith alone justifying and saving. (The electoral duke then showed them that there is inwardly concealed in that faith the acknowledgment of the Lord in His Human).

D. 648. (The impotence of faith alone to save.) 694. 1244. 1757. 2474. 4077. 4171.

3980. From the persuasion of faith alone there arose a sphere so general, that other Spirits supposed that they disappeared as if they were nothing . . . Such a sphere was sad; for there is nothing determined. 3981. 3982. 3988.

3988. One who has confirmed himself that faith alone saves, thinks nothing about love . . . Their vague idea of what this faith is. Des.

4021. (Conversation with a solidifian to show that saving faith is of love.) 4022. 4023.

4050. There are two lives—the life of persuasions, and the life of cupidities—with men who suppose that man can be saved by faith alone. Ex.

4052. But those who are in the life of persuasion that faith alone is saving, and yet live mercifully, from conscience, . . . are saved. (Their magnificent city des.) 4231.

4053. Representations of those who are in the life of the persuasion that faith saves without works. Des.

4218. On those who say that faith alone saves without good works. . . I perceived a sphere of whoredom . . . It came from those who had persuaded themselves that faith alone is saving . . . They are under the buttocks; in quarrels and scoldings with each other . . . I asked them what they believed in saying that only faith is saving; this they did not know . . .

4227. A discourse with those who have believed that faith alone without works is saving. . . I was shown how many there are who had so believed. They are above, round the left part of the brain . . . They infested me all night, for they are tenaciously vindictive for the most part priests who are in such faith . . . 4228.

4230. On faith alone and the adulteries thence. 4235.

4261. On faith alone (in connection with death-bed repentance).

4653. On those who are in faith alone. (Their varieties and situation.)

4699. On a city where there is faith alone. 4926.

4924. On Heaven; and on those who are in faith separated.

4935. On faith in doctrinal things and the Word without doing.

5066. They who most infest the good there, are they who have placed the whole of religion and salvation in faith alone . . . Of these there is a vast number. They also believe that all the evils which they do are remitted . . .

5070. There are five kinds of Spirits who ascend upon the rocks and mountains. 1: They who believe that faith alone is saving, and care nothing for the life of faith . . . They persecute the good . . . by desiring to loosen marriages and commit whoredom. This is their delight, because marriages relate to the marriages of good and truth . . .

5228. On those who are in faith alone. (The Judgment on them.) 5351.

5364. (Those in faith alone shown experimentally that they do not believe in any Divine truths.)

5704. Such, especially, are they who have confirmed themselves concerning faith alone, and have not lived the life of faith.

5731¹. Those who were in faith alone (at the Last Judgment). 5732. 5741. 5758.

5804. That faith alone is an impossibility. E.714^a. 789⁷, Ex. J. (Post.)203.

5827. On those who are in faith alone and not in life; their quality in Heaven.

5828. On those who are in faith alone, that they become heathens of no religion.

5911. The affection of truth cannot exist from the doctrine of those who are in faith alone . . .

5918. They who are in doctrinal things concerning faith alone, and still are in some good of life, have two states. Ex.

5926. (Faith alone discussed.)

5929^e. They who have been in faith alone, or in no doctrine . . . cast down a sphere of nefarious adultery with a maternal aunt and with a daughter-in-law. (And also with a mother. 5939.) 6096. E.237^o. De Conj. 74. 75, Ex.

5958. That faith alone . . . can never be conjoined with charity.

5970. On faith separated from charity. (In connection with the Exhortation before the Holy Supper.) 5971.

5973. If they wish, let them believe that faith justifies, provided . . .

5985. On faith separated from charity . . . They wanted to conclude that faith produces charity . . . This heresy answers to a quasi marriage conjunction with a hermaphrodite.

6001^e. It was thus clearly shown what faith alone is; that faith alone and saving does not exist; but that it is persuasive faith, or historical faith; nay, that it is an adultery or a conjunction with a filthy love, as with the love of self.

6002. On faith alone with the English. . . Many of the Anglican bishops and priests do not want to hear anything else than that faith alone justifies; and that faith alone produces good works . . . They believe that faith alone produces an endeavour towards good . . .

6003³. They say that those who are in the Lord do not do evil, and thence deduce that as they have been justified through faith, there is no evil in their life. This conclusion is false. Ex.

6023. On those who are in faith separated. 6044. 6046. 6048. 6050. 6060. 6065. 6098². —⁵. 6099².

6108. There was a great change in the Spiritual World: they who are in faith alone were for the most part gathered together . . . and an opportunity was afforded them of flowing into my brain . . . and this for 3½ days . . .

E. 9^o. As in the last time of the Church, faith . . . would reject the good of charity, saying that faith alone makes the Church and saves, Jesus said to Peter, by whom is there signified such faith, 'Follow thou Me' . . .

107. 'The Nicolaitans'=those who separate charity from faith. They who do this have no life, because . . . there is no life in faith separated. Ex.

210. 'The synagogue of satan'=those who are in the doctrine concerning faith alone, and in no charity . . . Hence it is that (such) are in no enlightenment.

211. They who are in faith alone and in no charity, do not know that they are in falsities . . . when yet from the false principle . . . that faith alone saves, falsities flow in a continuous series . . .

—³. (Refs. to passages on faith separated.)

212². That such a lot awaits those who are in faith alone and in no charity. Sig.

227. 'The Church of the Laodiceans'=those who are in faith alone, thus who are in faith separated from charity.

—². By faith separated from charity is meant faith separated from life, (which is) outside man, because it resides merely in the memory . . .

230. 'I know thy works'=a life of faith alone.

231. 'Neither cold nor hot'=neither in infernal love nor in spiritual love, but between the two . . . Such are they who are in faith alone . . . for they live to themselves, the world, and their genius, (thus) are in infernal love; and yet by reading the Word, by preachings, by taking the Holy Supper . . . they look to Heaven. (Their state des.)

232. 'Would thou wert cold . . .'=that it is better there should be no faith . . . They who are in the doctrine of faith alone have, indeed, no faith . . . but they have natural faith, which may also be called persuasive faith. (This faith des.) Still, merely historical faith . . . has some conjunction with Heaven . . .

233. 'Lukewarm'=those who live from the doctrine of faith alone, and of justification thereby. Ex.

—². (The doctrine of faith alone in the Churches at this day stated.) They care nothing about evils . . . Hence in their life they do not look at all to God, but only to self and the world . . . By such thought they look to Heaven; but by their life they conjoin themselves with Hell . . .

—³. But the greater part of those who are born within the Churches where the doctrine of faith alone is received, do not know what faith alone is . . . and therefore when they hear these things . . . they think that a life according to the precepts of God . . . is meant . . . All who are saved are kept in this state . . .

—⁴. 'The lukewarm' are those who say in their hearts . . . It is enough to have faith; and what does it matter if I think, will, and do evil . . . But there are very few who live thus from doctrine . . . which is of the Divine Providence . . . because the lot of the lukewarm is not unlike that of profaners . . .

235². That . . . those who live from the doctrine concerning faith alone are separated from Knowledges from the Word. Sig. and Ex.

236². That those who are in the doctrine concerning faith alone (believe themselves to be in truths above others). Sig. and Ex. (Their real state shown from experience. —³.)

237⁷. When those who have embraced faith alone . . . read the Word, and see that the Lord teaches that a man shall be recompensed according to his deeds, etc. . . they call goods . . . the fruits of faith; not knowing that goods . . . are all from charity, and none from faith alone.

239. That those who are in the doctrine concerning faith alone . . . are devoid of the understanding of truth, and are devoid of the understanding and will of good. Sig. and Ex.

241. A means of the reformation of those who are in the doctrine concerning faith alone. Sig.

242². They said that faith is possible without charity, because it is prior to it. Ex. and refuted.

—⁶. There is indeed a like enlightenment with those who have confirmed themselves in such things as are of the doctrine concerning faith alone . . . but it is a fatuous enlightenment . . .

[E.242]⁸. Then those who were in the doctrine concerning faith alone . . . could not but affirm that it was so ; but as soon as that light was taken away from them, and they were let into their own light . . . they could not see but that the sight of Knowledges is saving faith.

246. 'As many as I love' = all who are in the doctrine concerning faith alone, who are in good . . . and thence in truths . . . And while this is taking place with those who have been in the doctrine concerning faith alone, they cannot but be let into temptations. Sig. and Ex.

248⁴. Hence it is evident how greatly those are mistaken who say that man is justified and saved by faith alone, because he cannot do good from himself. 250².

250³. They teach (the good of life) when they preach from the Word . . . But as soon as they . . . look to their doctrine concerning justification by faith alone, they no longer believe those things, saying that all are led by God from evil to good after they have received faith . . . But this takes place with no one who believes in justification by faith alone. Ex.

—¹⁰. I foresee that those who have confirmed themselves in the doctrine concerning faith alone . . . will not recede from it, because they connect falsities with truths . . . by saying that the fruits of faith are the goods of life . . . and yet that the goods of life contribute nothing to salvation, but faith alone. Ex.

251. It is the greatest mistake to suppose that the Lord inflows into faith alone . . . In this faith there is no life. Ex.

365⁴. It has been found that those who have confirmed themselves (in faith alone) in both doctrine and life, have not a single just idea of truth . . . 720².

418⁶. That from the one principle, which is faith alone, there rise up many falsities conjoined with evils. Sig. 632³.

427³. The deadly heresy that faith alone saves whatever the life may be . . .

445³. Many of those (in the First Heaven) call faith alone the essential of salvation, but do not separate it from good works ; for they say that faith is given by the Lord because they are in good works . . .

632². They who believe that they are saved by faith alone, whatever their life may be, become corporeal sensuous, and are thence in falsities as to all things of the Word . . .

684¹. 'The bird of abominations' = faith alone.

716². Why faith alone has such power. Sig. and Ex.

717¹⁷. 'The king of the north' = those who are in knowledge from the Word, and not in life, thus who are in faith alone, so called.

736. They who place everything of the Church and of salvation in faith alone, cannot be in any affection of good and truth. Ex.

740. They are of this character because they make life of no account, saying that faith alone saves . . .

741². The arguments by which the defenders of faith alone seduce the world. Ennum.

752². Lamentation over those who . . . are in faith separated from charity . . . who become merely natural and sensuous. Sig. 753.

758². They who are in faith separated from charity have such hatred against those who are in charity. Sig.

759⁵. All those are such who have separated faith from charity . . .

763. Cunning reasonings in abundance concerning justification by faith alone from those who think sensuously . . . Sig. —², Ex.

769². (Thus) all who separate faith from charity do not know either what faith is or what charity is . . . Such faith is merely historical faith . . . and when it is confirmed it becomes persuasive faith ; but neither this faith, nor historical faith, is spiritual faith ; nor, consequently, saving faith . . .

774¹. (Arguments in favour of faith alone refuted at great length.)

775. (Thus) they who separate faith from its life, that is, from its love, cannot but falsify the Word . . .

778⁵. They who adopt faith exclusively as the means of salvation, and confirm this not only in doctrine, but also in life, saying in their hearts, Goods do not save me, nor do evils condemn me, because I have faith, blaspheme the Holy Spirit. Ex. . . But the case is otherwise with those who . . . do indeed believe faith to be the only means of salvation . . . and at the same time live a good life . . .

780. How those who separate faith from its life, which is good works, reconcile it with what does not agree with it. Ex. —¹.

781². (Fallacies in connection with faith alone. Ennum.)

785. (The disagreement of faith alone with the Word, and the methods by which its upholders have conjoined works and love with faith.) Sig. 786, Ex.

786². 1 : The most simple know no otherwise than that faith alone is to believe what is in the Word . . . 2 : The less simple do not know what faith alone is, but suppose that faith consists in believing what is to be done : few of them distinguish between believing and doing. 3 : Others do indeed suppose that faith produces good works, but do not think how it produces them. 4 : Others think that faith must necessarily precede, and that goods are produced from it as fruits from a tree. 5 : Some believe that this is effected by the co-operation of man ; some that it is without his co-operation. 6 : But as the doctrine says that faith alone without good works saves, some make no account of good works, saying in their hearts, that all things they do are goods in the sight of God, and that evils are not seen by God. 7 : But as deeds and works are so frequently mentioned in the Word . . . from the necessity of reconciling the Word with that dogma, they devise conjunctions of various kinds ; which, however, are such, that faith is kept by itself, and works by themselves ; in order that salvation may be in faith, and nothing of it in works. 8 : Some conjoin faith with the endeavour to do good with those who have arrived at the last degree of justification, but with an endeavour which derives nothing from the Voluntary of man, but is solely from influx or inspiration . . . 9: Some conjoin faith with the Lord's merit, saying that this operates in all things of man's life, while he is ignorant thereof. 10: Some conjoin faith with moral good and with civil good, which goods are to be done for the sake of life in the world, and not for the sake of eternal life . . . and that for the sake of uses, these good works are to be taught and preached to the laity . . . 11: Many of the learned suppose that the conjunction of all things takes place in faith alone; namely, that in it are love to God, charity towards the neighbour, the good of life, works, the Lord's merit, and God; besides that man himself thinks, wills, and does something in relation to these things. 12: Many other methods of conjunction have been invented, and still more by the same people in the Spiritual World . . . I saw a certain person there devise more than a hundred methods of conjunction . . . but when he arrived at the end of each one, and believed that he now saw the conjunction, he was enlightened, and he found that the more interiorly he thought about the thing, the more he separated faith from good works, instead of conjoining them.

787⁴. How the head of that religion, that in faith alone there is salvation, and not in good works, has been in appearance removed . . . The learned have invented degrees of the progression of faith to good works, which they call the degrees of justification. (These degrees enum.) This conjunction of faith with good works has been invented by the learned, and has been also accepted by them; but it rarely spreads to the common people. Why.

—⁵. This conjunction of faith with good works, and thereby an apparent agreement with the Word, is received otherwise by those who are less learned. These know nothing about the degrees of justification, but believe that faith alone is the sole means of salvation; and when they see from the Word . . . that goods must be done, and that man is to be judged according to his works, they think that faith produces good works; for they (think) that to know what the preacher teaches, and thence to think that it is so, is faith; and as this precedes, they believe that faith produces good works, which they call the fruits of faith; not knowing that this faith is a faith of the memory only, which, regarded in itself, is historical faith, because from another . . . and that such faith can never produce any good fruit. Into this error most of the Christian world have fallen, in consequence of faith alone being received as the . . . only means of salvation.

789². I will here show that faith alone can never produce any good, or that no good fruit can ever exist from faith alone. (Ex. at great length.)

790⁵. It is thought from this storehouse (in the memory), which is called faith by those who separate faith from good works in doctrine and life.

794². The goods of the Word are chiefly destroyed by this, that they teach that faith without good works justifies and saves. (How they confirm this, and establish it from the Word.)

796³. The destruction of the Church is here treated of . . . which is effected by the doctrine of faith separated from life. Ex. . . For the doctrine of life, which they call moral theology, is an out-of-doors doctrine, of service to the Church if one likes, but is regarded as having nothing of salvation in it, because nothing of faith . . .

—³. It is supposed that from the doctrine of faith separated a man can believe that there is a God, that there is a Heaven and a Hell . . . that the Word is Divine . . . These things the man may indeed know, think, and to some extent understand from the light of reason; but still he cannot have a faith in them which will remain long after death; for the faith of the life remains, but not the faith separated from the life . . . (Thus) from faith alone a man cannot believe even that there is a God; and how then can he believe all the rest? (And thus) the doctrine of faith separated destroys the Church as to all its goods and truths. That it is so has been made abundantly evident to me from such persons after death . . . The followers and defenders of faith separated, who have cleansed only the outside of the cup and of the platter, after a short time have rejected all the things which in the world they had said and believed to be of their faith . . .

797². All those entirely close Heaven against themselves who confirm with themselves, in doctrine and at the same time in life, that faith alone without good works justifies and saves. (The reason ex. at great length.)

798². (With those, however) who confirm with themselves that the faith which justifies and saves produces the goods of life, as a tree its fruits, and who confirm this doctrine in life, Heaven is not shut, but its ultimate is open. (The reason ex. at great length.)

800². Something shall now be said about those who, although they are in the Churches where faith alone is acknowledged, still do not falsify the Word. (Fully ex.)

802². (The spider's web of the defenders of faith separated from life, is this :) That faith has been given as the means of salvation, because man cannot do what is good from himself; and that still God operates goods with man while he is ignorant thereof; by which operation the evils done by the man who is justified by faith are not sins, but infirmities of nature; and that evils of purpose . . . are remitted either at once, or after some repentance of the lips; and that hence it follows, that by 'works,' and by 'doing,' in the Word, is meant faith, and having faith. (All these points refuted at great length.)

803. That this domination (over all the truths and goods of the Church) exists, is evident from the fact, that faith alone is the universal principle which reigns in the Churches . . .

—³. Most people at this day believe that they will come into Heaven if they have faith, live piously, and do goods; and yet they are not averse to evils because they are sins; and therefore they either do them, or believe them to be allowable . . . But let them know that their faith is not faith, their pieties not pieties, and their goods not goods . . .

805². That the received faith, which they call the only saving one, That God the Father sent His Son into the world, in order that propitiation, redemption, and salvation might be effected through the passion of His cross, if understood according to the idea of the defenders of faith separated from life . . . is no faith. (Shown at great length.)

[E.] S12². Because the dogma concerning faith alone excludes all truths and rejects all goods . . .

S17⁶. This is the reason those who are in faith separated from charity have not any truth, except only as to speech or preaching from the Word; the idea of truth perishes the moment they think about it. S62².

S19³. (Reasonings from the natural man in favour of faith separated, stated in order.)

S22. The disagreement removed by invented conjunctions of works with faith. Sig.

—⁵. (Thus) the man who separates faith from works is devoid of faith, and his works are evil . . .

S32. Because all those who are in faith separated from life are not spiritual, but are merely natural . . .

S37¹². As soon as faith was separated from charity, the Church lapsed from truths into falsities; and at last into a faith which destroyed all the truths of the Church. This faith is the faith of justification and salvation through the Lord's merit with the Father; for, when this faith alone saves . . . what need is there of truths . . . Live and believe however you like, and only keep hold of this faith, and you will be saved. But let me tell you, reader, that all who live this faith are in natural love separated from spiritual love, which is the love of self and of the world, and thence the love of all evils, and from evils of all falsities . . .

S40³. 'The foolish virgins' = those in the Church with whom faith is separated from charity.

S44. That the doctrine of those who have separated faith from life . . . is insanity. Sig.

S46². They who are in faith separated from charity, exclude the understanding . . .

S47. The quality of faith separated from life from all falsities and thence all evils in the complex. Sig. and Ex.

—³. Where faith alone is taught, are not all evils of life permitted, in so far as the civil laws do not forbid? for faith alone conceals, remits, and takes them away. Ex.

—⁴. If salvation is in this faith alone, what need is there to know what love to the Lord is? what charity towards the neighbour? what man's life; and the goods and evils of life? what the remission of sins? what reformation and regeneration? Are not all these things faith alone? . . . Hence it is evident that this faith alone . . . like a dragon, has swallowed up all the truths and goods of the Word and thence of the Church. —⁵.

S79². The Church is devastated secondly by faith separated from charity, thus from the goods of life; and at last by faith alone . . .

SS5². In the Churches in which faith alone is received . . . there are many who teach faith conjoined with life. (This ex. at great length.) Why the defenders of that doctrine permit it.

SS7. That the imbuing and appropriation of evil are effected by faith separated from good works. Sig. and Ex.

SSS⁴. This (Hell) takes place chiefly with those who think from faith alone, and at the same time live from faith alone . . .

S93². The persecution of those who are in charity by those who are in faith separated from charity. Sig. and Ex.

S94. How little the followers of faith alone know what love is . . .

902⁵. How this life is destroyed by the present faith. Ex.

928². The Church with the Reformed has been devastated by faith alone . . .

932². Because the religion concerning faith alone has prevailed, which is faith separated from the goods of charity . . .

949². With the Reformed, there are falsities and evils thence; the falsities spring from the principle of the justification and salvation of man by faith alone; that is, by faith without good works . . .

990. Because they who are in faith alone are interiorly against the truths and goods of Heaven and the Church. Sig.

998². How the doctrine concerning faith alone has blunted and almost extinguished the faculty of understanding Divine truth. Sig.

100S². For the religion and doctrine of faith separated from good works, is the religion and doctrine of truth separated from good . . .

Ath. 61. They were permitted to write thus (in the Athanasian Creed) . . . because it was foreseen that faith alone would be adopted as the essential of the Church; with which it does not agree to believe in the Lord alone.

208. From these words to Peter it is evident that those who are in the doctrine concerning faith alone would not acknowledge the Lord's Divine Human . . .

J.(Post.) 29. They said that they hear the preachers of faith alone . . . and while they hear them, the preaching sounds full of wisdom . . . but as soon as they get home, they know nothing of what they have said . . .

145. A vast number of those who had vaunted faith alone . . .

191. On faith alone. Gen.art.

222. All those preachers who . . . have confirmed themselves in faith alone . . . are not permitted to preach . . .

C. 210². All who have believed that man is saved by faith alone, if they live in a Christian manner . . . do good from obedience, and not from affection.

Inv. 16. While preaching thus, they remember nothing concerning . . . their mystical faith . . . But let them know that the falsities which they have imbibed in the schools are clinging to them interiorly . . .

Faithful. Fidelis.

Faithfulness. Fidelitas.

Faithfully. Fideliter.

See TRUST—fidere.

A. 896. See FAITH.

1259³. 'The just nation keeping faithfulnesses' (Is. xxvi.2).

2320. The salvation of the faithful, and the damnation of the unfaithful. Tr.

2335². The faithful are judged from good, and the unfaithful from truth. Sig.

2604^e. The Africans want to be called the obedient, but not the faithful. They say that Christians can be called the faithful, because they have the doctrine of faith . . .

2760². (The Rider on the white horse) is called 'faithful,' etc. from good. W.H.1².

8408⁴. It treats here of the salvation of the faithful: the faithful are 'the pots,' being so called on account of the reception of good from the Lord . . .

9228. It treats of the salvation of the faithful . . .

H. 364. Act sincerely and faithfully . . .

Life 83. See SINCERITY. 84².

R. 102. 'Be thou faithful unto death' (Rev.ii.10)=the reception and acknowledgment of Truths even until falsities are removed. (=permanence in truths to the end. E.125.)

—, In the natural sense it means that, to the end of life, we should not go back from faithfulness.

744. See CHOOSE.

—, 'The faithful'=those who have faith in the Lord.

821. 'Faithful and true' (Rev.xix.11)=the Divine good and the Divine truth. 'Faithful'=the Divine good, because this is faithful. 'Faithful,' when men are treated of, =one who is in the Third Heaven; thus who is in celestial good.

D. Min. 4630. On the misfortunes of the faithful.

E. 27. 'He is the faithful witness' (Rev.i.5)=from Whom is all truth in Heaven . . . 228.

208⁴. 'Keeping faithfulnesses'=him who is thence in truths.

223³. 'The just nation keeping faithfulnesses'=those who are in good and thence in truths.

675⁹. Therefore it is said . . . 'Ye have been faithful over a few things' (Matt.xxv.21,23).

750. The faithful who have suffered temptations for the sake of these truths. Sig.

1074. 'The faithful' (Rev.xvii.14)=those who are in the faith of charity. . . The Angels of the First Heaven, who are in the faith of charity, are called 'faithful.'

D. Love xiii². Fidelity mentioned. D. Wis.xi.4.

Coro. 36. The elevation of the faithful to God, from whom was made a New Heaven; and the removal of the unfaithful from God, from whom was made a new Hell.

Faithful. Fidus.

R. 886. 'These words are true and faithful' (Rev. xxi.5)=that they are to be believed, because the Lord Himself has testified and said it.

Falker. D.5885.

Fall. Cadere.

Fall. Casus.

See FALLING.

A. 355. See FACE. 358. 1999. 6499. E.463.

1689. 'To flee, and to fall' (Gen.xiv.10)=to be conquered.

2761. See BACKWARDS. 6401.

2896². Celestial and spiritual things . . . fall into . . .

3203. See CAMEL.

3387⁵. 'To fall from heaven' (is said according to the appearance).

4096². Does not fall into the understanding. 9543.

5492^e. It falls into this when it descends.

6567. 'They fell before him' (Gen.1.18)=submission.

6876^e. The idea falls into nothing.

8831. 'And many of them fall' (Ex.xix.21)=that thus they would perish.

9086. 'To fall'=to perish. (See ASS, here.)

—, 'To fall' also=to make a slip by mistake.

10184⁶. 'To descend (from the housetop)' (Luke xvii. 31)=a relapse to the former state.

10492. 'To fall' or be slain (Ex.xxxii.28)=to be closed. . . Evils and falsities are what close the internal man . . .

H. 302². He would at once fall down dead. T.118.

534^e. See BREAK IN PIECES.

W. 5. In order that this may fall into the understanding . . .

202³. The thoughts of the Angels do not fall into natural ideas.

P. 277a. Where the tree falls, there it lies. D.2805. D.Min.4645, Ex. 4646.

R. 333. 'To fall from heaven into the earth' (Rev.vi. 13)=to disappear. (=to perish. E.402.)

339. 'To fall upon them, and hide them' (ver.16)=to protect against the influx from Heaven; and as this is done by confirmations of evil by falsity, and of falsity from evil, these are signified.

370. 'To fall upon the faces and adore' (Rev.vii.11) =humiliation of heart, and adoration thence. Ex. E.463.

408. 'There fell from heaven a great star . . .' (Rev. viii.10)=the appearance of Own intelligence . . . 409. E.517. 518, Ex.

515. 'The tenth part of the city fell' (Rev.xi.13). . . 'To fall'=to sink down into Hell. (=to disappear. E.675.)

521. 'To fall upon their faces . . .' (ver.16)=the highest adoration . . . E.688.

631. 'Babylon is fallen, is fallen . . .' (Rev.xiv.8) . . . 'To fall'=to be dispersed . . . (=to be damned and utterly destroyed. E.879.)

712. 'The cities of the nations fell' (Rev.xvi.19) . . .

'To fall'=to be destroyed. (=to be dissipated. E.1020.)

[R.] 755. See BABEL.

E. 77. 'I fell at His feet' (Rev.i.17)=adoration from humiliation.

388³. 'To fall' (Ezek.xxxix.4)=to perish.

391²⁶. 'To fall' (Ezek.vi.13)=to be damned.

E. 481. 'Neither shall the sun fall upon them . . .' (Rev.vii.16)=that they shall not have evil from concupiscences.

518. 'To fall' (when said of the stars)=to perish. 535², III.

644²⁴. This man yields in temptations, and falls into grievous falsities, which are the falsities of evil; and therefore it is said, 'great was the fall of it' (Matt. vii.27).

1004⁵. Therefore, when an Angel merely thinks of it, he falls from Heaven.

1097. 'Is fallen, is fallen' (Rev.xviii.2)=destruction and ruin, thus the Last Judgment . . . for they are then cast into Hell.

Fall. Excidere.

R. 83. 'Remember whence thou hast fallen' (Rev.ii.5)=remembrance of going astray. E.105.

Fall. Ilabi. A.1637².

Fall. Labi.

Fall. Lapsus.

A. 127. The desire of men to inquire into the mysteries of faith by means of sensuous and scientific things, was the cause not only of the fall of the Most Ancient Church, that is, of its posterity; but it is also the cause of the fall of every Church; for thence come not only falsities, but also evils of life. 205, Ex.

151. 'To build'=to build up that which is fallen.

2523. (Otherwise) the Lord would have had to come into the world immediately after the fall of the Most Ancient Church.

3167². By the fall, the natural man began to raise himself above the spiritual, and thus inverted Divine order itself . . .

S391. Of himself, man is continually falling . . .

9942³. When that Church had fallen, which was effected by means of reasonings from scientifics concerning Divine truths . . . The first state after the fall of that Church is that which is here described. 9960²⁹.

P. 241². The fall, mentioned. 275.

M. 153a. (The fall.) Des.

Ad. 922. The sole cause of men being lower than the brutes is the fall of Adam. Ex.

984. Immediately after the fall, the hinge of the intellectual mind was reversed . . .

D. 2823. On the fall of Angels from Heaven.

2923. Falls, and other misfortunes (are caused by evil Spirits).

2950. On the fall of man.

3109. When they see that a man is falling, they help in every possible way to make him fall—cadat—headlong.

3117⁶. In the thought of his fall . . .

3353. On . . . Adam after the fall.

E. 774¹. (They say that) by the fall of Adam, free-will, which is the freedom of doing what is good of one's self, was destroyed.

Fall away. Desciscere. H.327. D.2950.

Fall down. Decidere.

W. 25⁶. If an Angel thinks of a number of gods . . . he falls down.

116⁶. He then falls down from what is angelic.

368². Ready to fall—deciduum.

T. 110. I observed the place where it fell . . . I saw a certain Spirit falling down from Heaven like a thunderbolt.

135. This sentence fell down through the middle Heavens . . .

D. 2551. Occurs.

2597⁶. (The Spirits) seem to themselves . . . to fall down—delabi, or to fall down (from Heaven).

2831. That Angels do thus fall down when they are in phantasies confirmed by reasonings. Such falls—lapsus—are very numerous, and take place almost every moment . . . When they fall down, they are driven according to the phantasies . . . See 3063.

4439⁶. When they come to an angelic Society, they fall down like a weight.

E. 403³. 'All the army falls down as a leaf from the vine, and as that which falleth from the fig-tree' (Is. xxxiv.4)=a laying waste by the falsities of evil.

Fall down. Delabi.

A. 1380⁶. The moment their conceit is taken away, they fall down into their Hell. This is not an appearance, but a fallacy . . .

3219². They said that they had fallen down from a certain angelic Society . . . Therefore they fell down thence; not that they were cast down . . . but, being in falsity, they fell down—deciderunt—of their own accord.

6309². When . . . I fell down into thought about worldly things . . .

8279. Falsity from evil . . . falls down towards lower things, like a heavy body in the world.

8298. Falsity and evil are both heavy, and therefore they both fall down . . .

8878⁶. When . . . they fall down into their natural light . . . they fall—labuntur—into thick darkness . . .

9330². They who are in falsities from evil fall down into Hell. 9333⁶.

10284⁶. Thus, of their own accord, they fall down into Hell.

R. 399. When the sphere of the Divine . . . falls down into the Societies below . . .

420. See STAR. E.535.

M. 444⁸. I have sometimes heard goods and truths which have fallen down from Heaven into Hell . . . turned into their opposites . . . E.518².

D. 4016. Without such a Providence, they would fall to pieces every moment.

4605. I saw some one who had fallen down from a certain heavenly Society.

4902. On the fall of Spirits from the Heavens.

E. 535². That 'to fall down' or 'to fall-cadere' from Heaven into the earth = to perish. Ex. and III.

Fall down. Occumbere.

A. 3884². He would fall down dead. 4067².

Fall down. Procidere.

R. 251. See ELDER. 275. E.290.

818. 'I fell down before his feet to worship him ; and he said to me, See thou do it not' (Rev.xix.10)=that the Angels are not to be adored and invoked.

E. 290. 'To fall down'=humiliation, reception, and acknowledgment.

322. 'They fell down before the Lamb' (Rev.v.8)=acknowledgment from a humble heart.

1206. The reason 'to fall down'=humiliation of heart, is that a falling down-procidencia-upon the knees and upon the face, is a gesture which corresponds to inmost humiliation.

1228. 'I fell down before his feet to adore him'=perception from him of the Divine, to which belongs adoration ; (for) 'to fall down before the feet, and adore'=to acknowledge, to confess, and to worship the Divine.

Fall to pieces. Dilabi.

H. 303. When the cause is taken away . . . the effect is dissolved and falls to pieces.

W. 260. Unless the natural mind reacted . . . the interiors would relax themselves . . . and thus fall to pieces.

R. 153⁸. What they build up by day falls to pieces in the night.

T. 10. Unless it depended upon one, every divided thing would fall to pieces of itself. Examp.

679. It is this unity which effects the preservation of the whole, which would otherwise fall to pieces . . .

Fall to ruin. Collabi. W.157².

Fallacious. Captiosus. E.978².

Fallacy. Fallacia.

Fallacious. Fallax.

A. 24². Through fallacies of the senses, etc., man is led and bent by the Lord to things true and good. Sig. 50².

25. That the Lord does not break fallacies. Sig.

735. The reason temptation as to intellectual things, that is, as to the falsities which are with man, is light, is that man is in the fallacies of the senses ; and the fallacies of the senses are of such a nature that they cannot but enter ; and therefore they are easily dispelled.

For instance, they who remain in the sense of the letter of the Word, where things are said according to the apprehension of man, thus according to the fallacies of his senses, if they have faith in simplicity, because it is the Lord's Word, although they are in fallacies, they suffer themselves to be easily instructed. Examps. 1408².

1273. Can put on a fallacious state.

1376². (These Spirits) are unwilling to be persuaded that there is any appearance, or that there is any fallacy ; for they desire to live in fallacies. They thus preclude themselves from apprehending . . . truths and goods, which are utterly removed from fallacies. (See PLACE, here, and at 1380. D.4087.)

1378². Things which are contrary to the fallacies of the senses, and which are nevertheless believed. Examps.

1380². See APPEARANCE. 1408². 1911⁷. 3131⁶. 3207³. —⁴. 3857. 3901⁸. 4302². 8443. W.108. P.213⁹. 310. D.3386.

1861¹². As it so appears . . . it is so said in the Word according to the fallacies of the senses . . . 1874.

2249². See IDEA.

2524². Hence it is that to the truths of the Rational there adhere, from sensuous things, many fallacies, which cause the truths not to be truths. But still, when the Divine good inflows into them, and conceives them, they appear as truths . . .

3175³. See TRUTH.

3679³. There are very many such fallacies of the senses. Examps.

4169. This may be a fallacious truth.

4341². Truth is tempted . . . by fallacies and illusions, and by the affection thereof, which adhere to truths in the Natural. For when good flows in . . . the ideas of the natural man which are formed from the fallacies of the senses and the illusions therefrom, do not endure its approach, because they are discordant. Hence comes anxiety in the Natural, and temptation.

4342². To interior truths, fallacies and the illusions therefrom do not adhere so much as they do to sensuous ones . . .

4424². See BELIEVE.

4503⁷. See DENY.

4552. 'To be hidden under an oak'= . . . that which is fallacious and false ; because the lowest of the Natural is relatively entangled and fallacious in so far as it derives its knowledge and pleasure from the sensuous things of the body, thus from fallacies.

—². Fallacious truths are towards the exterior circumferences.

4729. See FALSITY.

4788. They who are in the truth of simple good, for the most part suffer themselves to be led away by the fallacies of the senses, thus by the scientifics which are from them.

—². Thus (internal men) are not led away by the fallacies of the senses . . . But if external men . . . consult scientifics, they suffer themselves to be easily led away by fallacies ; for they have no dictate within.

5008². See CONFIRM.

[A.] 5033^e. Before the Exterior, fallacies appear as realities.

5084. For sensuous things, and the things which enter into the thought immediately through sensuous things, are fallacies: all the fallacies which reign with man are from this source. It is from these that few believe the truths of faith, and that the natural man is against the spiritual . . . If, therefore, the natural man begins to have dominion . . . the things of faith are no longer believed, for fallacies overshadow . . . them.

—². As few know what the fallacies of the senses are, and few believe that they induce so great a shade . . . we may illustrate the subject by examples, showing first what are the fallacies of the senses which are merely natural . . . and then what are the fallacies of the senses in spiritual things. (Fourteen fallacies stated.)

5120^f. To cultivate and imbue the good of faith causes . . . fallacies to be accepted as truths. Sig.

5133². Unless these ideas (received through sensuous things) are enlightened by the things which are in the interior Natural, they present fallacies, which are called the fallacies of the senses. When a man is in these fallacies, he believes nothing but what agrees with them, and nothing but what they confirm. This is the case if there is not correspondence; and there is not this, unless the man is imbued with charity . . .

5510³. In the other life . . . it appears with what shades, or with what rays of light, they had kept the truth beset . . . With some it appears among . . . the fallacies of the senses . . . If the man had been in good . . . then from that good . . . the truths are illuminated, and the fallacies of the senses in which they are, are beautifully irradiated; and when innocence is insinuated by the Lord, these fallacies appear as truths.

6400. 'Biting the horse's heels' = fallacies from lowest nature.

— . That those who are in truth and not as yet in good are in fallacies from lowest nature, may be evident from the fact, that truth is not in any light, unless good is with it or in it . . .

—². What fallacies are. Ex.

6401. 'His rider' = those who are in fallacies from lowest nature; (for) 'the horse' = these fallacies. . . And therefore 'Dan' = those who hatch and scatter about falsities from fallacies.

6472². Thus does the Lord lead man according to . . . his fallacies and the principles thence taken; but by degrees He leads him out from them . . .

6479. See DOUBT.

6567². The affection itself and the reason thence derived . . . subjugate in the Natural . . . the fallacies which had filled the scientifics there . . .

6948². As the things in the world . . . appear otherwise than as they are, they are full of fallacies; and therefore when the Sensuous is in these evils only, it cannot but think against the goods and truths of faith, because it thinks from fallacies . . . That the man who is not elevated from the Sensuous . . . and thinks from it, thinks from fallacies, may be illustrated by examples. (Fallacies enum.)

—⁴. That fallacies and the falsities thence derived have dominion instead of truths. Shown.

—⁵. From this it may be evident, that, regarded in itself, and left to itself, the Sensuous of man is in fallacies, and in the falsities thence derived.

—^e. See DARKNESS=caligo.

7087. In (Gen.v.) it treats of those who . . . afterwards infested still more, by injecting fallacies and fictitious falsities, which those of the Spiritual Church could not dispel.

7112. Those scientifics are called the lowest which are full of the fallacies of the senses . . . for on account of the fallacies these scientifics can be turned in favour of principles of falsity and cupidities of evil. Sig. and Ex.

7236^f. See GOOD.

7265. The first degree of vastation is that mere fallacies, from which came falsities, began to reign with them. Tr. 7293. 7295.

7293. 'A serpent' = the Sensuous and Corporeal, and therefore fallacies; for the Sensuous and Corporeal separated from the Rational . . . is full of fallacies, inasmuch that it is scarcely anything but fallacies.

—². As 'whales' = scientifics which pervert the truths of faith, they also = reasonings from fallacies. whence come falsities. Ill.

—⁴. Therefore 'water-serpents' . . . = the falsities themselves from fallacies, from which come reasonings, and by which come perversions. Ill. 7295.

7298. As fallacies cause truths not to be apperceived, so dulness is induced. . . The magicians in the other life . . . know how to induce fallacies, and to present them in a light like the light of truth . . .

7307. That those who were infesting would be in falsities from fallacies. Sig.

7316. Power over the falsities which are from fallacies. Sig.

7318^e. See FALSIFY.

7320. They who are in falsities from fallacies . . .

7344². Truths and falsities are complete opposites; and opposites cannot be applied unless there are intermediates which conjoin; the intermediates which conjoin are the fallacies of the external senses.

9011³. The blamelessness of one who has (unintentionally) injured anyone . . . by scientifics from the fallacies of the senses. Sig.

9212. As the Sensuous abounds with fallacies, and as fallacies extinguish truths, 'to pledge the garment of thy companion' = the disappearance of truths through fallacies from sensuous things.

—². That the Sensuous is in fallacies. Refs.

9213². That the truths taken away by fallacies are to be restored while the man is still in the light of truth, for he can recover them then, and also disperse the falsities induced by fallacies; but not when he is in a state of shade from the delights of external loves, because these delights reject the truths, and the shade does not receive them; and thus the fallacies inhere and are appropriated. Sig.

9301^e. That these are fallacies (they who are in the innocence of ignorance) do not apprehend. The truths which are of this innocence are for the most part founded upon the fallacies of the external senses, which, however, are to be dispersed as the man advances to wisdom.

9425^e. They who teach the externals of the Word without its internal . . . call that truth which favours the fallacies of the senses.

10283^g. To reason and conclude from sensuous things, is to do so from the fallacies of the senses of the body. Sig.

N. 53. (Refs. to passages on the subject of the fallacies of the senses.)

— There are fallacies of the senses in natural things, in civil things, in moral things, and in spiritual things, many in each; but here I will enumerate some in spiritual things. (Twelve fallacies of the senses in spiritual things. Enum.) D. 5823. 5824. E. 575⁴.

220^g. If he confirms with himself (the correspondence and the appearance), he is in fallacies, and is in conjunction with the Lord only as are those who are in falsities and the evils thence; for fallacies are falsities with which evils conjoin themselves.

R. 436. Argumentations from fallacies, by which they fight and prevail . . . Sig.

T. 338^g. Hence so many fallacies have crept into their doctrines . . .

605^e. This fallacy has caused confusion . . .

D. 2544. On the fallacies of the senses, that they are to be removed in matters of belief.

D. Min. 4790. On the fallacies of the senses. (Seven fallacies enum.)

E. 632. To destroy . . . by the fallacies which are called the fallacies of the senses, from which, when not cleared up, mere falsities come forth. Sig.

780^g. The cunning of deceiving by fallacies. Sig. The fallacies of the senses are here signified by 'the wolves of the evening,' because fallacies are from the sensuous man, who, in the dark, sees falsities as truths.

781. 'His feet as of a bear' = from natural things, which are fallacies. . . So far as these reasonings are from the natural man . . . they are fallacies, which are signified by 'the feet of a bear.' (These fallacies ex. and enum. —4. —5.)

941^e. As the understanding is perfected, so . . . fallacies are dispersed.

1215¹. The fallacies in all reasoning concerning spiritual, moral, and civil things, which are innumerable, originate thence; for fallacy is an inversion of order, and is the judgment of the eye and not of the mind, and is a conclusion drawn from the appearance of a thing and not from its essence: and therefore to reason from fallacies concerning the world and the coming forth of things in it, is like confirming by reasonings that thick darkness is light . . .

5 M. 1. All falsities take their rise from the fallacies of the senses.

Falling. Caducus.

P. 217⁴. When dignities and wealth . . . are curses, they are temporary and perishable.

T. 82. Like a falling star . . . 335. 339. 503^g.

375. That charity and faith are only mental and vain things, unless . . . 376^e.

D. 4572. Occurs.

Fallow land. Novale. A. 7071.

A. 9144^g. 'Break up your fallow ground' (Jer. iv. 3). 9272⁴.

9272^g. See REGENERATE.

H. 464^e. The Rational of man is like . . . fallow ground.

D. Wis. xii. 5^g. Beneath these atmospheres, in each Heaven, there are . . . fallow lands, etc.

False prophet. Pseudopropheta.

See under PROPHECY.

R. 567. See BEAST. 701. 834. 864.

926. I said that I was meditating about the false prophet. He then said, I will take you to the place where are those who are meant by the false prophet. He said they were the same as are meant in chapter xiii. by the beast out of the earth . . . I followed him, and . . . saw . . . leaders, who taught that nothing saves man but faith, and that works are good, but not for salvation; but that still they are to be taught from the Word, in order that the laity, especially the simple, may be held more closely in the bonds of obedience to the magistrates; and may be compelled to exercise moral charity as from religion, thus interiorly. (Their temple, and the image of their faith. Des.) B. 118. T. 187.

E. 195¹². 'False prophets in sheep's clothing, who inwardly are ravening wolves' (Matt. vii. 15) = those who teach falsities as if they were truths, and in appearance lead a moral life; but in themselves, when they are thinking from their own spirits, think about nothing but themselves and the world, and study to deprive all of truths.

624^g. By 'false prophets,' 'false Christs,' and 'false prophets-falsos prophetas' (Matt. xxiv. 11, 24) . . . are meant all those who pervert the Word, and teach falsities.

999. 'Out of the mouth of the false prophet' (Rev. xvi. 13) = the doctrine of faith separated from life, and of justification thereby, confirmed from the Word falsified. Ex.

Falsify. Falsificare.

Falsification. Falsificatio.

Falsifier. Falsificator.

See LEOPARD, and WHOREDOM.

A. 337. See DOCTRINE.

1285. How the doctrine began to be falsified and adulterated. Tr.

2385^g. When a false principle is confirmed by truths, they become truths falsified, because they are defiled by the essence of the principle.

3242^g. 'Midian,' in the opposite sense, = those who falsify truths. The falsifications are signified by 'the witchcrafts in their hand.'

[A. 3242]⁴. 'The spoil,' which was gold, silver, cattle, = the truths which were falsified.

—⁵. In (Judg.vi.vii.viii.) each and all things are representative of the falsification of truth, and of punishment on that account.

4818⁸. Judah's lying with his daughter-in-law involves and represents the damnation of truth falsified from evil; for 'whoredom,' in the Word, everywhere = the falsification of truth.

6385⁴. That the truths and goods of doctrinal things from the Word were falsified. Sig.

6405⁸. See AMMON.

6432⁴. That the affections of good and truth were perverted by falsifications. Sig.

6661. Doctrines from falsified truths in the Natural where there were estranged scientifics. Sig.

6978. See BLOOD. 7047. 7102⁹. 7297². 7317. 7326. 7327. 9050¹¹. 9755¹². L.18⁸. P.231². R.332. 379². 399. 404. 497. 566⁸. 653. 684. 687. 688. 730. E.391¹⁰. 556¹². 745⁶.

7295³. The second degree (of the removal and deprivation of the influx of truth and good) is described by the waters of Egypt being turned into blood, by which is signified that truths themselves were falsified.

7318. That the Scientific of truth would be extinguished by falsification. Sig.

— . What the falsification of truth is, shall be illustrated by some examples. (Nine examples given.)

—^e. There is not a single truth which cannot be falsified, and the falsification confirmed by reasonings from fallacies.

7319⁶. Profaned truth is falsity conjoined with truth; and falsified truth is falsity not conjoined but adjoined to truth, and ruling over truth.

7320. 'The Egyptians' = those who falsify truths.

7327. Falsification becomes total when falsity begins to reign, for the man then lives according to the evil innate and acquired . . . and as the truths of faith prohibit such things, he abhors them, and when he abhors truths, he rejects them . . . and if he cannot reject, he falsities them.

7332. See EVIL. 7344². 8087. 8094. 8149. 9298².

7337. That their falsifiers fashioned the like. Sig.

7342². If the affection of these loves has the dominion, it draws truth over to its own side, and so falsifies it. . . . Hence it is, that the evil, so far as they can, falsify the truths of faith.

7344. That truths cannot be applied to mere falsities, that is, cannot be falsified by mere falsities. Sig. and Ex.

7346. The end of the state after truths were falsified. Sig.

7351. That the reasonings should not be from falsified truths, but from mere falsities. Sig. The reason is, that reasonings from falsified truths are at last turned into blasphemies against truth and good; and, moreover, real truths reject falsification from themselves; for they cannot be together with falsities . . . Hence it is, that after a man has falsified truths, he at last utterly denies them; otherwise falsities would have dominion over truths . . .

7778². The damnation of faith separated from charity is the damnation of the falsified truth and adulterated good which are of faith; for when truth has been falsified, it is no longer truth, but falsity . . .

7779. 'From the first-born of Pharaoh that is about to sit upon his throne' = the falsified truths of faith which are in the first place.

—². The falsified truths of faith which are in the first place are those which are acknowledged as essentials. Enum.

7780. 'Even to the first-born of the handmaid who is behind the mills' = the falsified truths of faith which are in the last place. Ex.

8051. 'What is leavened shall not be eaten' = that nothing falsified shall be appropriated.

8062. That which is falsified, which is signified by 'what is leavened;' and falsity, which is signified by 'leaven,' differ in this: that what is falsified is truth applied to confirm evil, and falsity is everything which is against truth.

8311. For by applications to evil, all truths whatever are falsified. Examp.

8317. See ADULTERY. F.49. P.233¹⁰. —¹¹. J.(Post.) 136.

8405⁷. This miracle represents that the falsified good of the Church becomes good by means of truth from the Word. . . . 'The wild gourds from a vine of the field' = falsification.

9230. That the falsified good of faith shall not be conjoined. Sig.

9324. See DISEASE.

10109. The truths with those who are in evil are truths falsified, which are dead.

10638². See FALSITY. 8094. M.243.

10648². The falsification of truth is effected in three ways. First: if a man is in evil of life, and acknowledges the truths of doctrine; for then evil is within the truths, and evil falsifies truth; for evil dissipates from truths what is celestial and Divine, and implants what is infernal; hence comes falsification. Secondly: if a man is first in truths as to doctrine, and afterwards accedes to the falsity of another doctrine; which takes place only with those who are in evil of life; because evil has an appetite for falsity, and eagerly seizes upon it for truth. Thirdly: if a man who is in evil as to life, and in falsities as to doctrine, seizes upon the truths of another doctrine, he, also, falsifies truths; because he does not acknowledge the truths for the sake of truth, but for the sake of something of gain, of honours, or of reputation. All these falsifications are in the Word called 'whoredoms' and 'harlotries;' because . . . unlawful conjunctions are meant by 'whoredoms.' III.

H. 488⁴. They who have applied Divine truths to their own loves, and have thus falsified them, love univous things, because univous things correspond to the delights of such love.

N. 21^s. (Refs. to passages on the subject of the falsification of truth.)

S. 26^e. The harlot with a dead horse signified the falsification of the Word by many at this day, by which all the understanding of truth has perished.

Life 44². If there is anything in the understanding which does not agree with the will, when the man is left to himself . . . he either casts out the truth which is in the understanding, or compels it to be one by falsification.

W. 267. See ELEVATE.

274³. If truths from the Word in the second degree are taken to it to form it, these truths are falsified from the first degree, which is the love of evil . . .

P. 298³. If man's Own intelligence then sees truth, it either turns itself away, or it falsifies the truth. Ex.

R. 136. If it is asked, How much of the Word have they falsified? . . . The answer is, that they have falsified the whole Word . . .

409. That thus all the truths of the Word were completely falsified. Sig. 410.

410². As the Jewish Church had falsified all the truths of the Word . . . 'they gave Him vinegar to drink mingled with gall.'

411. The extinction of spiritual life with many by the falsified truths of the Word. Sig.

— . The reason 'bitter' = falsified, is that the bitter of wormwood is meant; and 'wormwood' = infernal falsity.

438. The truths of the Word falsified, by which they induce a stupor. Sig.

— . 'The tail' = all its confirmations in the aggregate, which are from the Word; thus the truths of the Word falsified.

439. Cunning falsifications of the Word, by which for a short time they darken and fascinate the understanding, and thus deceive and captivate. Sig.

— . 'Stings in their tails' = cunning falsifications of the Word; 'stings' = cunning; and 'tails,' the truths of the Word falsified.

473. If that doctrine . . . were to be received by any others . . . before the dragon is cast out, it would be rejected . . . and if it should not be rejected, still it would be falsified, nay, profaned.

481. That the acknowledgment that He alone is the God of Heaven and earth . . . is disagreeable and difficult, owing to falsifications. Sig.

—². The chief of these falsifications are . . .

540. See DIADEM. —. —². 570.

541. That by falsifications of the truths of the Word they have discarded from the Church all spiritual Knowledges of good and truth. Sig.

— . 'The tail,' where it treats of those who have confirmed heretical things by the Word, = the truths of the Word falsified.

566⁵. See FAITH ALONE. 686.

—⁸. The angelic Spirits then conversed together concerning the falsification of the Word; and they agreed in this: that to falsify the Word is to take truths from it, and apply them to confirm falsities. Examp.

570^e. Here, the power of falsifying many truths of the Word is signified; but there, the falsification of them all; for the laity are able to do it, but do not. For they who are in falsities and in the faith of them, are against truths; and therefore when they see truths in the Word, they falsify them.

595. That they speak, teach, and write from the Word as if it were the Lord's Divine truth, and yet it is truth falsified. Sig.

610. 'His number is six hundred and sixty-six' = that the quality is this: that every truth of the Word has been falsified by them.

635. That they falsify the goods and truths of the Word, and imbue the life with them falsified. Sig.

— . 'The wine of the anger of God mingled un-mixed' = the truth of the Word falsified.

E. 162^e. Hence it is, that those who have falsified truths by applying them to the delights of the love of self and of the world, are not able afterwards to turn themselves to truths.

366. The falsification or extinction of truths. Sig.

—³. That truths would be falsified, and thereby extinguished. Sig.

520³. Thus are the truths of the Word falsified by all those who are in the conceit of their Own intelligence from the love of self.

522. Because the truths of the Word are falsified. Sig.

535. The Knowledges of truth falsified, and thus turned into falsities. Sig.

— . This Book does not treat of those who deny truths, but of those who falsify them . . .

— . The Knowledges of truth and good from the Word are falsified by those who acknowledge the Word, but apply it to favour their own loves and to favour the principles which are from their Own intelligence; for they thus turn the truths of the Word into falsities . . .

—³. The reason they who falsify the truths of the Word by interpretations to confirm evils of life, turn themselves away from Heaven and turn themselves to Hell . . .

575. Falsifications of the Word by reasonings from fallacies. Sig.

591^e. Spiritual life is extinguished by perversions of good and falsifications of truth . . .

618³. The adulteration of good, and the falsification of truth. Sig. Good is adulterated when good is called evil, and when evil is called good; and truth is falsified when 'darkness is put for light and light for darkness;' 'darkness' = falsities, and 'light,' truths.

632⁷. 'To break through the wall' = to falsify, and thus to destroy the truths which protect the Church.

654⁵⁶. See DEVASTATE.

714¹³. See DRAGON.

718. The falsification and adulteration of all the truths of the Word. Sig.

[E.] 719. How it is that the Sensuous falsifies and adulterates the truths of the Word. Ex.

— . Thus is falsified the truth that the sun does not move, but the Earth; but it is not falsified when the Rational enlightens the matter.

—². From this it is evident how innumerable things in the Word are falsified and adulterated . . .

720. For truths are extinguished and destroyed when they are falsified and adulterated. Truths falsified and adulterated are greater falsities than those from any other origin; for falsities from any other origin do not so completely extinguish and destroy truths . . .

759¹. Most things in the sense of the letter of the Word are appearances of truth, which, if confirmed as genuine truths, are falsified; and falsified truths are falsities.

768²³. 'The sons of the sorceress,' and 'the seed of the adulterer' = falsities from the falsified and adulterated Word. . . The Word is said to be falsified when its truths are perverted; and it is said to be adulterated when its goods are perverted, and also when its truths are applied to the loves of self.

778. See BLASPHEMY. —². —³. —⁹. 794. 797. 1027.

—⁴. Apparent goods and truths are those which are adulterated and falsified; and they are said to be adulterated and falsified when they are explained contrary to genuine goods and truths; for in this case Heaven removes itself . . .

797². Who and of what quality (those solidians) are who so falsify the Word as to completely close Heaven against themselves; who and of what quality they are who do not so falsify the Word as to close Heaven against themselves; and who and of what quality they are who do not falsify the Word. Ex. 798². —⁵. 800².

—⁹. If the sense of the letter is falsified to the destruction of the spiritual sense, Heaven is closed.

798. They who separate faith from good works in both doctrine and life, falsify all the quality of Divine truth, or all things of the Word. . . (For) they exclude love and charity . . . and therefore not only falsify those things of the Word where it teaches of love to God and of love towards the neighbour, but also those places where works, deeds, working, and doing are mentioned; and when these are falsified, all things of the Word are falsified; for the other things of the Word, which are called its truths, live from the things previously mentioned. . . Moreover, everywhere in the Word there is the marriage of good and truth . . . and therefore when the good is taken away, the truth which remains is falsified; and truth falsified is falsity.

815. See BEAST. — . 932. 998.

819². The Word in the letter consists of appearances of truth . . . and therefore when any falsity is confirmed by the appearances of truth which correspond to genuine truths, the Word is falsified; and the falsification of the Word can only exist through reasonings from the natural man. Sig.

—^c. Hence it is, that . . . it is reasonings from the natural man by which the Word is falsified; for the Word cannot be falsified without reasonings from the natural man.

862. 'Those not defiled with women' = those who have not falsified the truths of the Word.

— . They who are in truths from good cannot falsify truths . . .

881². 'The wine of the anger of whoredom' = the falsification of truth: and falsified truth adulterates good.

888². How infernal and injurious it is to falsify the Word to the destruction of the Divine truth and the Divine good in the Heavens. Ex.

—⁴. These cannot do otherwise than falsify the Word to the destruction of its genuine truth.

914². The devastation of the Church as to Divine truth . . . is effected by the falsification of the Word; for when the Word is explained in favour of earthly loves, and to confirm falsities of doctrine, the Church is vasterated . . . —^c.

920. The falsification of the Word as to all spiritual truth, and the consequent damnation from there being no . . . charity. Sig. 923.

—^c. The falsification of the Word is also a production of falsity from evil; for evil falsifies . . .

966. The Divine truths of the sense of the letter of the Word are said to be falsified when they are perverted to the destruction of interior Divine truth . . .

975. Because they have falsified the truths of the Word and of doctrine from the Word. (For) 'blood' = Divine truth, and 'to shed it' = to do violence to Divine truth, which is to falsify it. 976.

976. The reason truth falsified is the falsity of evil, is that evil falsifies truth.

1019². 'To bear false witness' . . . in the inmost sense, = to falsify the truth and good of the Word . . .

1035. See DRUNK. —².

1130. See BABEL.

5 M. 3. Divine truth falsified by satans stinks in the Spiritual World like the mire of the streets.

Conv. 16. Truths do not falsify the Word, wherever it may be read . . .

Can. Trinity viii. The confirmation of a trinity of Persons . . . has falsified the whole Word.

Inv. 51. It is allowable to confirm truths by the Word, wherever we please, . . . the Word is not falsified thereby.

Falsity. Falsitas, Falsum.*

False. Falsus.

Falsely. False.

See under EVIL throughout.

See also EVIL OF FALSITY; and under AMALEK, BIRD, BLIND-caecus, BRICK, CHALDEA, CITY, FALSIFY, FERMENT, INFEST, LOCUST, PERSUADE. RAVEN, SATAN, and SWORD.

A. 18. See CUNDTY. 59. 857. 892. —². 1666².

* The occurrence of this word is distinguished throughout the article by the use of a capital F.

1668². 2889. 3696. 4623². 5725. 7519. —⁷. R. 864. D. 2323.

22. See EVENING. 7844. —⁶.

38. See DARKNESS—tenebrae. 1839. —⁴. —⁵. —⁶. —⁷. —⁸. —⁹. —¹⁰. —^e. 3993⁵. 4418. 4531. 5044¹², etc.

233². See BELIEVE. 1510². 2243².

589. See BEGINNING. 794. 1017². 1106. 1107. 1109. 1110. 1198^e. 1295. 1510. 1573. 1679³. 1936^e. 2051^e. 2243². 2385³. 2567¹⁰. —. 3986⁴. 4674². 4717^e. 4720². 4721. 4736^e. 5037. 5128². —³. 5207. 7272. N. 21. R. 436. D. Min. 4612. 4625.

653. The evil Spirits who excite man's reasonings bring out all his falsities, and endeavour to persuade him that falsities are truths; nay, they even turn truths into falsities. . . After, by means of combats, falsities have been separated and as it were dispersed, the man is prepared to be able to receive the truths of faith; for so long as falsities reign, man can never receive the truths of faith, because the principles of falsity stand in the way. . . The seeds of charity can never be sown in the ground in which falsities reign, but only where truths reign.

735. See FALLACY. 6948⁴. —⁵. 7087. 7112. 7265. 7293². —⁴. 7307. 7316. 7320. 7344². 9213². N. 220⁶. 5 M. 1.

790. 'Waters' (of the Flood) = falsities. Ill.

— For desolations and temptations are nothing but inundations of the falsities which are excited by evil Spirits.

— For all falsity is a kind of scientific thing, and appears as if it were rational and intellectual, because it is of the thought.

803^e. If man knew how much there is in a single principle of falsity, or in a single persuasion of falsity, he would be horrified: there is in it a kind of image of Hell. But if it comes from innocence or from ignorance, the falsities are easily dispersed.

845². The case is otherwise with those who have confirmed themselves in falsities, and have thence acquired such a life of falsity that they reject and spew out all truth: this life must be devastated before anything of truth and thus of good can be inseminated. And the case is worse with those who, from cupidities, have confirmed themselves in falsities, so that Falsities and cupidities have constituted one single life: these are they who sink themselves down into Hell.

865. There is here described the second state after temptation of the man who is to be regenerated. . . which state is such that Falsities constantly cause a disturbance. . . Therefore it is here signified by 'the raven' (which Noah sent out). Falsities, with the spiritual man, especially before he has been regenerated, are like dense spots of cloud. Ex.

875. The reason the truth of faith cannot take root, is that Falsities still abound. . . and so long as Falsities abound, the truths of faith cannot be inrooted, however much they may be inseminated. . . nor can the ground be fitted to receive them until the Falsities have been so dispersed that they do not appear. 877. Sig.

887. As to Falsities not being so great as before. . . in this second state, the case is this: that all the Falsities which a man has acquired remain, so that not one is abolished. . . But, when a man is being regenerated, there are truths which are inseminated to which the falsities are bent by the Lord; and so appear as if they were dispersed. This is done by means of the goods which are conferred upon him.

895. That Falsities were separated from the voluntary things of the man of this Church. Sig.

896. The light of the Truth² of faith which he acknowledged and had faith in, on the removal of falsities. Sig.

898. 'The faces of the ground' are said to be 'dried' when Falsities no longer appear.

988. (The dominion of the internal man) over the Falsities which are of reasoning. Sig. 989. Ex.

1043. See CLOUD. —³. 3221. 6609. 8197. 8814. 8816. H. 549. W. 147. R. 24². 642². E. 355¹⁸. 419²².

1047. The voluntary proprium of man. . . continually infuses what is obscure or false into his intellectual part. . . All Falsity is thence. . . (For) as the loves of self and of the world are so contrary to heavenly love, there cannot but continually flow from them such thing as are contrary to mutual love, all of which in the intellectual part are Falsities; hence comes all the obscurity and darkness therein. Falsity beclouds truth, just as a dark cloud does the light of the sun; and as falsity and truth cannot be together. . . one must retire as the other approaches.

1106. There are many who, during their abode in the world, through simplicity and ignorance have imbued falsities as to faith, and have had a kind of conscience according to the principles of their faith, and have not lived in hatred, revenge, and adulteries. In the other life, so long as they are in falsity, they cannot be admitted into the heavenly Societies; for they would contaminate them; and they are therefore kept for some time in the Lower Earth, in order that they may there put off their principles of falsity. The time they remain there is longer or shorter according to the nature of the falsity. . .

1107. There are some who eagerly desire to be devastated, and thus put off the principles of falsity which they had brought with them from the world, (but) no one can ever put off false principles in the other life, except after some delay, and by means provided by the Lord.

1188. Falsities of this kind exist from three origins. The first is from the fallacies of the senses, in the obscurity of an understanding which is not enlightened, and from ignorance; hence comes the Falsity which is 'Nineveh.' The second origin is from the same cause, but attended with a predominant lust, as that of innovation, or of being pre-eminent; and the falsities which originate thence are 'Rehoboth.' The third origin is that of the will, thus of cupidities, where men will not acknowledge anything to be true except what favours their cupidities; hence come the falsities which are called 'Calah.' All these falsities come forth by means of 'Asshur,' that is, reasonings concerning the truths and goods of faith. Ill. 1189.

[A.] 1190. In the former verse it treated of falsities of doctrine; but here of falsities of life . . . which are signified by 'Resen' . . . (for) Resen was built between Nineveh and Calah; that is, between falsities from reasonings, and falsity from cupidities; which produces falsity of life. It is (also) called 'a great city' from its signifying falsities of both the understanding and the will.

1191^e. Because all falsity of doctrine and of worship thence is derived into Falsity of life.

1212. There are in general two origins of Falsities; one is the cupidities of the love of self and of the world; the other is through reasonings from Knowledges and scientifics. The falsities from these sources, when they want to domineer over truths, are signified by 'Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboim.' That falsities and the consequent evils are the termini of external worship which is devoid of internal, may be evident to everyone. In such worship there is nothing but what is dead, so that whichever way the man who is in it turns himself, he falls into Falsities . . .

1295. In this verse, it treats of the third state of the Church, when falsities began to reign; and, in fact, falsities from cupidities. There are two beginnings of Falsities; one is ignorance of truth; the other is cupidities. Falsity from ignorance of truth is not so hurtful as falsity from cupidities; for the falsity of ignorance comes either from being so instructed from infancy, from being so engrossed by various matters of business that no inquiry has been made as to whether it is true, or from not having excelled in the capacity of judging concerning truth and falsity. The falsities from this source do not do much harm, provided the man has not confirmed himself by many things, and thus persuaded himself, under the incitement of some cupidity, to favour those falsities; for thus he intensifies the cloud of ignorance, and so turns it into darkness, that he cannot see truth.

—². But there is the falsity of cupidities, when the origin of the falsity is cupidity, or the love of self and of the world; as when a man seizes on some doctrinal matter, and makes profession of it, in order to captivate minds, and lead them . . .

—^e. The case is otherwise with those who have been born and educated in such worship, and are unaware that it is false; and who live in charity . . .

1321². The life of falsity is to them as light . . .

1551⁵. 'Silver,' in the opposite sense, = falsity; for they who are in falsity suppose it to be truth. III.

1666². 'This is the sea of salt' = the foul things of Falsities thence . . . Therefore 'the sea of salt' = the Falsities which break forth from cupidities; for there never exists any cupidity which does not produce Falsities; the life of cupidities may be likened to a coal fire, and Falsities to the obscure lumen thence; and as there can never be fire without lumen, so there can never be cupidity without Falsity . . .

1679². Falsity from evil is one thing, and falsity and consequent evil is another. Falsities spring either from the cupidities which are of the will, or from adopted principles which are of the understanding. The falsities from cupidities . . . are filthy, and do not suffer themselves to be so easily extirpated, because they cohere with the very life of man . . . When he confirms in himself this life or cupidity, all the confirmatory things are falsities, and are implanted in his life. Such were the antediluvians.

—³. But falsities from adopted principles cannot be so rooted in the voluntary part of man. Such are false or heretical doctrinal things . . . Still, being falsities, they cannot but produce evils of life. Examps.

—^e. It is such falsities and the consequent evils, which are treated of in this verse.

1688. The uncleanness of Falsities and cupidities. Sig.

—'. 'Pits' = Falsities . . . from the unclean water.

1695. That (they were deprived of) the power of thinking falsity. Sig.

1832². Some (of the things in the literal sense of the Word) are falsities; which, however, are able to serve as vessels and recipients.

1834. 'A flying thing' . . . in the opposite sense, = falsity.

1860. See DARKNESS=caligo. —³. —^e. 3340. 3643. 6948^e. 7711. 10061². H.4SS. 584. R.110. T.209². E.239¹¹. 386¹². 410².

1861. 'A furnace of smoke' = the densest falsity.

1867. The Kenite, and the Kenizzite, and the Kadmonite' = falsities which are to be expelled from the Lord's Kingdom.

1949². He whose Rational is in truth alone . . . regards everyone as being in falsity.

2045. Whatever favours anyone's love . . . is believed to be good; and thus the Rational consents, and suggests falsities which confirm . . .

2056². Falsity conjoined with impurity of life. Sig.

2057. Those within the Church who are in falsity and at the same time in the love of self, especially profane holy things . . .

2120². 'Kingdom against kingdom' = falsities against falsities. 3353^e.

2239. See CHY. 2243². 2351. 4779². 5011. 5323^e. 10456. R 884. 885. E.400¹⁰.

2240². 'An inundating stream' = falsity (desolating faith).

2243. There are two kinds of falsity; namely, the falsity which is from evil, and the falsity which produces evil. The falsity which is from evil is all that a man thinks while he is in evil; namely, that which favours the evil. Examp. . . But the falsity which produces evil exists when a man takes up any principle from his religion, and thus believes that it is good or holy, when yet in itself it is evil. Examp. 2351, Ex.

2269². Goods can never be insinuated into falsities as their recipient vessels . . .

2280⁶. The Intellectual (of those in the good of ignorance) is not infected with principles of falsity . . . And the life of charity is attended with this: that the falsity and evil of ignorance can be easily bent to truth and good; but not so with those who have confirmed themselves in things contrary to truth . . .

2336⁶. When there is falsity in place of truth. Sig.

2346. 'The men of the city' = those who are in falsities; and 'the men of Sodom' = those who are in evils.

2348². 'The street of Jerusalem' = the falsities which reign in the Church.

2353. See NIGHT.

—³. All the night of falsity is from evil.

2449. So that they had nothing but falsities. Sig.

2477. That they can be persuaded of falsity rather than of truth . . .

2492. With those who have filled the memory with falsities, it appears hairy . . .

2682². Persuasive light is such that it illuminates equally falsities and truths, and induces a faith of falsity by means of truths, and a faith of truth by means of falsities.

2813⁴. 'Things that offend' = falsities.

2851⁶. 'Smoke from the north' = falsity from Hell.

—⁷. 'A cry over the wine in the streets' = a state of falsity.

—⁸. 'All the gates desolate' = all the approaches occupied by falsities.

—¹². 'The door of the inner gate looking towards the north' = the place where there are interior falsities.

2863³. With those who have been in good in the world, falsities do not conjoin themselves with good, but only apply themselves; and so that they can be separated therefrom. Those which are conjoined remain; but those which are only applied are separated; and they are separated when the truths of faith are learned and imbued; for every truth of faith removes and separates falsity . . .

2913². After they had declined from charity (the Hittites) = the falsity of the Church.

2967⁴. 'Strangers' = falsities.

2986³. The reason a New Church is established . . . with the gentiles, is that they have no principles of falsity against the truths of faith . . . The principles of falsity which have been imbued from infancy, and afterwards confirmed, must be dispersed before a man can be regenerated, and become of the Church.

3108^e. The falsity which is conjoined with evil . . . closes the Rational, and makes the man irrational.

3219². As they were in falsity, they fell down thence.

3242². 'Midian,' in the opposite sense, = those who are in falsity from not having the good of life.

—⁴. 'The kings' whom they slew = falsities; and so does 'the male.'

— (Thus) each and all things here are representative of the punishment and destruction of falsity by means of truths.

3310². 'A hard way' = falsity.

3322⁵. 'The king of the north' = falsities, or those who are in falsities.

3325¹². 'The gods of Egypt' = falsities.

3330^e. When he is in charity . . . those truths which do not agree with that good, he calls falsities, and rejects.

3436². When charity and innocence are present, the falsities which have also infused themselves in the shade of his ignorance do no harm; for they are not adjoined to the good, but are kept away therefrom as it were in the circumferences, and so can be easily expelled. But the case is otherwise with those who are not in the good of life; for with them, the falsities which by wrong interpretation they have hatched from the Word, hold the middle or centre; and truths the circumferences; and therefore it is falsities which are adjoined to the evil of their life; and truths are dissipated.

3448. See ARMY. —⁹. 3614². 4581⁸. 7898. 8138. 8275. 10225⁹. R.447². S33. E.573². —⁸. —¹³. —¹⁴. —¹⁵. 659²⁴.

—⁴. 'The combats of falsity with truth. Sig.

3463². See CONFIRM. 4768. —. 5008⁶. —^e. 5033. 5038. 5096. —². 5128². 5135⁴. 5432². 6222². 6359. 6500. 7437². 7680². 7788². 8013². 8148². 8521². 8780². 8904. 8908. 8924. 9300². 9330². 9340⁶. 9394². 9688⁵. 10124². 10227⁸. 10624². 10640². H.352^e. 513^e. S.60. 91. 92^e. 93. F.11. W.262. 267. —². 268. 350². P.87^e. 98⁵. 168⁵. 231². 318². —³. —⁵. —⁹. R.99². 224². 339. —². —^e. 411. 421. 549. 598^e. 715. M.233². —^e. 491. B.55. T.80^e. 258^e. 320. 345^e. 565. 758². 759^e. 799. E.417¹⁰.

3464^e. Persuasive faith is such that he cares nothing whether it is true or false, provided he can captivate minds.

3487. The first state of the perversion of the Church, which was that they began not to know any longer what is good and what is true, and to dispute with each other about them, from which came Falsities. Tr. 3488.

3488⁴. See ENMITY.

3584. 'They that curse' = falsities, which separate themselves from truths.

3614². See ANGER. —⁵.

—⁴. 'To make drunken' is predicated of falsity.

3701⁴. These are the lowest goods and truths . . . by which the falsities can be extirpated which he before had believed to be truths.

3708²¹. 'The north,' in the opposite sense, = the falsity from which is evil, and the falsity which is from evil. As the falsity from which is evil originates from reasonings about Divine things and against Divine things from the scientifics which are of the natural man, it is called 'the people of the north out of Egypt' . . . The falsity which is from evil, as it originates from external worship which is apparently holy, but the interiors of which are profane, is called 'the nation of the north out of Babel' . . . Both the falsity from which is evil, and the falsity which is from evil, are said from Gog . . .

—²². From the obscurity of the natural man, there originates both truth and falsity. Ex.

3863¹⁴. Faith from self . . . causes him to see falsities as truths, and truths as falsities.

3901⁷. 'An eagle,' in the opposite sense, = rational things not true, thus falsities. —⁸.

[A.] 4171². 'What is torn' = the evil which is from falsity, which is introduced by the evil.

—³. 'Torn' is predicated of the good into which falsity is insinuated; the effect of which is that the good is no longer alive.

4197. Therefore they enter into Heaven without such instruction, if in their truths there have not been falsities which must first be dispersed.

4214³. The light of Heaven . . . is reflected . . . with those who are in principles of falsity.

4245^e. If a man were to think from the goods of charity . . . he would perceive how falsities had intermingled themselves, and had put on the appearance of being truths.

4256². When truth was in the first place . . . falsities intermingled themselves. For . . . where there are falsities, there is fear when good approaches. Moreover, all who are in good begin to be afraid when falsities appear in the light from good; for they fear falsities, and want them to be extirpated; but this cannot be done if they inhere, except by Divine means; and hence it is, that they who are to be regenerated, after fear and distress, come also into temptations; for temptations are the Divine means for the removal of those falsities.

4269. In an abode where there are falsities, (singulars) are either rejected, suffocated, or perverted.

4303. That those things are not appropriated in which there are falsities. Sig.

— . When truths are distorted . . . they accede to falsities; and hence it is that by 'the sinew of what is put out,' is signified falsity.

4330⁴. When external sensuous Spirits are in their fallacies, phantasies, and hypotheses, and consequently in falsities, they have tranquillity . . .

4335². 'Youths led off to grind' = to hatch falsities by applying truths, and thus persuading.

—³. 'The first-born of Egypt' = the truths of faith separated from the good of charity; which truths become falsities.

— . 'The first-born of the maid-servant who is behind the mills' = the affection of such truth, whence come falsities.

4402^e. See God. 9283. 10399.

4434³. To conjoin one's self with falsity. Sig.

4489⁴. They who see in obscurity . . . the things which they see are mingled with the shades of night; that is, with falsities . . .

4503⁹. 'The thrust through' = those who are in falsities of doctrine.

4544. That falsities should be rejected. Sig. 4550.

4545³. Purification from falsities. Sig.

4551. Actual things are here predicated of the falsities which were to be rejected. As to the rejection of falsities even of actual things, which is here treated of . . . before, by means of regeneration . . . a man comes to good, and from good does truth, he has very many falsities mixed with truths; for he is introduced by means of the truths of faith, concerning which he had no other ideas in his first age than those of infancy and childhood; and as these ideas come forth from the external things of the world, and from the sensuous things of the body, they must be among fallacies, and consequently among falsities: these also become actual; for a man does the things he believes. It is these falsities which are here meant; and they remain with the man until he is regenerated; that is, until he acts from good; and then good, that is, the Lord by means of good, reduces into order the truths which he had heretofore imbibed; when this is done, the falsities are separated from the truths, and are removed. The man is quite ignorant of these things, but still there is such a removal and rejection of falsities from his first childhood up to his last age; and this with every man, but especially with him who is being regenerated: and even with him who is not being regenerated, the like takes place; for when he becomes an adult . . . he regards the judgments of his childhood as inane and ludicrous. . . (But) the latter for the most part regards truths as falsities, and falsities as truths.

4552². When falsities are removed in a regenerate man, they are rejected to the lowest of the Natural; and therefore, when seen by the interior sight . . . they appear further removed; for . . . falsities are rejected to the outermost circumstances. These remain with man for ever, but they are in the above order when the man suffers himself to be led by the Lord . . .

—³. 'An oak' = the lowest falsities of the Natural. —⁴, III.

4581⁷. 'Under every green tree' = from the faith of all falsities.

4599⁶. The interiors of those who are in the love of self and of the world, thus the falsities from which they combat, and by which they confirm their religiosity, are expressed, in the opposite sense, by 'towers.' . . . (Here) interior falsities are signified by 'a tower.'

4650². 'Who smote Midian in the field of Moab' = purification from falsity.

4658². To impose on falsities the appearance of truth . . .

4720². 'Dothan,' here, = the special things of false principles. 4721.

—^e. All these are the special things of false principles . . . Hence it is evident that when the general principle is false, all things savour of falsity.

4721. That they were in the special things of false principles. Sig. —². Examp.

4726. For to such, falsities appear as truths, and truths as falsities . . . 4783⁶.

4728. 'Let us cast him into one of the pits' = among falsities. . . The reason 'pits' = falsities, is that men who have been in principles of falsity, after death are kept for some time under the Lower Earth, until falsities have been removed from them, and have been as it were rejected to the sides.

4729. What goes before; namely, that they had rejected Divine truth among falsities, which was a lie from the life of cupidities. For there are three origins of falsity; one, the doctrine of the Church; the second, the fallacies of the senses; the third, the life of cupidities ties. That which is from the doctrine of the Church takes hold only of the intellectual part of a man ; for he is persuaded from infancy that it is so, and confirmatory things afterwards corroborate it. But that which is from the fallacy of the senses, does not so much affect the intellectual part ; for they who are in falsity from the fallacy of the senses have but little mental view from the understanding, but think from lower and sensuous things. But the falsity which is from the life of cupidities springs from the will itself . . . for that which a man wills from the heart he desires : this falsity is the worst of all, because it inheres, and is not eradicated, except by a new life from the Lord. . . The things which confirm evil by the thought are what are called falsities from the life of cupidities. These falsities appear to the man as truths ; and when he has confirmed them with himself, truths appear to him as falsities . . . But if he has not confirmed these falsities with himself, the truths which his understanding had previously imbed, stand in the way, and do not allow them to be confirmed. 4770^c.

4730. 'Dreams' = preachings concerning Divine truth which, in their opinion, were false ; and that they were also seen by them as falsities, is signified by their saying, 'We shall see what will become of them.'

—². A further reason why falsities are confirmed from the life of cupidities . . .

4736. 'Cast him into that pit which is in the wilderness' = that they should meanwhile hide it among their falsities ; that is, that they should consider it to be false, but still retain it as being of advantage to the Church.

—³. This truth is not vital, because it has in it a principle of falsity ; consequently, with him in whom there is such truth, from the principle which dominates therein it is nothing but falsity . . . On the other hand, there are falsities which are received as truths, when there is good in them, especially if there is the good of innocence . . .

4757. 'They drew . . . Joseph . . . out of the pit' = aid from them, that (Divine truth) may not be among falsities. Ex.

4777. (Joseph) 'torn to pieces' = dissipated by falsities. . . . It is falsities from evils or from cupidities which are here meant.

4781. 'All (Jacob's) sons' = those who are in falsities.

4821. That thence is the falsity of the Church. Sig.

4822. The quality of the falsity of the Church. Sig. . . . It is said the quality of the falsity, because falsities differ from each other as truths do ; inasmuch that it is scarcely possible to enumerate their genera ; and each genus of falsity has its own quality, by which it is distinguished from every other. General falsities are those which reign with the depraved in every Church, and this falsity is varied with everyone in the Church according to his life : the falsity which existed in the Jewish Church, and which is here treated of, was the falsity from the evil of the love of self and the consequent love of the world.

4861. What is intermediate to the truths of the Church and to falsities. Sig.

—². Unless (external truths) are enlightened by internal ones . . . they present falsities with those who are in evil.

4868. The lust of conjunction with falsity. Sig. and Ex.

4886. (A marriage pledge) by falsity. Sig.

4891. Whether it was falsity which appeared as truth. Sig.

4895. That this cannot be disclosed by falsity. Sig.

4926^d. See BREAK—rumpere. —⁵. —⁶. 10545⁷. E.400¹¹.

4956^e. See BIND—vincire. 5037⁶. 5038. 5045. 5096. 5145⁶. 6757^e. 9341^d. R.99². E.239¹⁶, etc.

5023. Falsity persuading good that it is truth. Sig. For good natural not spiritual is easily persuaded that falsity is truth and truth falsity. 5032², Tr.

5032. The communication of falsity, that it appeared as truth. Sig.

5037. 'The prison house' = the place . . . where they are kept who are in vastation ; that is, they who have been in principles of falsity and in a life of evil from falsity, and yet in good as to the intentions. Such cannot be received into Heaven until they have put off the principles of falsity, and also the delight of life thence derived. They who are there, are let into temptations ; for principles of falsity and the delights of life thence derived can be cast out only by means of temptations.

5044⁵. 'Asshur' = reasoning concerning Divine truths, whence come Falsities.

—⁶. 'The princes in Zoan' = falsified truths, thus falsities.

—⁷. 'The cormorant, the bittern, the owl, the raven' = kinds of falsity which come forth when the Divine truths of the Word become of no account.

—⁸. The falsities which are their primary truths, are signified by 'princes.'

5096². They who are such do not even know that they are in . . . prison ; for they are affected with their own falsity, and love it for the sake of the evil from which it comes.

5117⁷. 'To bring back the captivity of the people' = to deliver from falsities.

—¹⁰. 'Their vine being of the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah' = that the intellectual part was obsessed by falsities from infernal love.

5120⁸. 'A cup,' in the opposite sense, = the falsity from which is evil, and also the falsity which is from evil. Ill.

—⁸. The reason falsity from evil is signified, is that as wine inebriates and makes insane, so does falsity . . .

—¹¹. 'A cup,' in these places, = insanity from falsities and the consequent evils.

—¹². 'A cup' also = temptation, because this comes forth by means of evils fighting by means of falsities against goods and truths.

5128². (A sign of a man's being merely sensuous is this:—) if he is in principles of falsity, and does not suffer himself to be enlightened, but entirely rejects truths, and without reason obstinately defends falsities . . . Still more sensuous are those who are in the persuasion of falsity ; for the persuasion completely closes the Rational. It is one thing to be in principles of falsity, and another to be in the persuasion of falsity. They who are in the persuasion of falsity, have some light in their Natural, but it is like the light of winter ; in the other life this light appears snowy ; but as soon as heavenly light falls upon it, it is darkened . . . This, too, is evident from them (here) ; for they cannot see any truth ; and in fact, from the darkening . . . character of their falsity, truths are of no account to them . . . To the simple, such persons sometimes appear as if they were rational ; for by means of that snowy wintry light they can, by means of reasonings, dexterously confirm falsities so that they appear as if they were truths. In such persuasion are many of the learned ; for they have confirmed falsities with themselves by logical and philosophical things, and finally by many scientific.

[A.5128]⁵. Profanation is what commingles falsities with truths, and evils with goods.

—⁶. When the Rational is subject to sensuous things, the contrary happens ; for then falsities are in the centre, and truths in the circumferences : the things which are in the centre are in a certain deceptive lumen . . .

5135⁵. 'The cloak of Shinar,' 'the shekels of silver,' and 'the tongue of gold' = species of falsity.

—⁹. 'A people great and mighty' = falsities fighting against truths.

—¹⁰. 'To run with a thief' = to alienate truth from one's self by falsity.

5149². Falsity is of a twofold origin ; namely, falsity of doctrine, and falsity of evil. The falsity of doctrine does not consume goods, for a man can be in falsity of doctrine, and yet in good . . . But the falsity of evil does consume goods ; evil itself is opposite to good ; yet by itself it does not consume goods, but by means of falsity ; for falsity attacks the truths which are of good ; for truths are as it were the out-works within which is good ; and the out-works are assaulted by means of falsity . . .

5202. 'Seven other kine coming up after them out of the river' = the falsities which are of the Natural in the boundary.

5205. That falsities stood in the boundaries where there are truths. Sig.

5206. That these falsities which are not of faith or of charity, would exterminate (the truths of the Natural). Sig.

5207. As to truths being exterminated out of the Natural by falsities in the boundaries . . . this happens at the beginning of all regeneration ; for truths . . . are not truths with him until good is adjoined to them . . . and therefore at the beginning falsities are near truths ; that is, falsities are in the boundaries where truths are ; but in proportion as good is conjoined with the truths, the falsities flee away. This, too, is actually the case in the other life ; there, the sphere of falsity applies itself to truths according to the influx of good into the truths : when but little good flows in, the sphere of falsity is near ; when more good flows in, the sphere of falsity removes itself ; and when good is completely adjoined to truths, the sphere of falsity is completely dissipated. When the sphere of falsity is close at hand, as is the case at the beginning . . . truths are as it were exterminated ; but are meanwhile stored up in the interior, and are there filled with good, and are successively brought out thence.

5217². This, also, is the case in the Spiritual World : where there are falsities, truths cannot subsist ; and, on the other hand, where there are truths, falsities cannot subsist : the one exterminates the other ; for they are opposites : the reason is, that falsities are from Hell, and truths are from Heaven. It sometimes appears as if falsities and truths were in one subject ; but in such a case the falsities are not those which are opposite to truths, but those which are associated by applications. A subject in which there subsist at the same time truths, and falsities which are opposite, is called lukewarm ; and a subject in which falsities and truths are commingled together, is called profane.

5219⁶. Such obscurity can be enlightened in a general manner ; whereas an obscurity from falsities cannot be enlightened at all ; for falsities are so many darknesses which extinguish the light of Heaven ; and thereby produce an obscurity which cannot be enlightened until the falsities have been removed.

5268. The states of the multiplication of the falsity which infests the interior Natural. Sig.

5269. The states of the multiplication of the falsity which infests the exterior Natural. Sig.

5313¹⁶. 'A throne,' in the opposite sense, = the kingdom of falsity.

5563. (Pains and nuclei in the skull) come forth from falsities which are from cupidities ; and, what is wonderful, the genera and species of the falsities have their stated places in the skull. With those who are being reformed, such nuclei, which are indurations, are broken and are reduced to softness, and this by various means . . . For the falsities from cupidities are of such a nature that they become indurated ; for they are contrary to truths ; and as truths are determined according to the form of Heaven, they flow as it were spontaneously, freely, gently, and softly ; whereas falsities, as they tend to the contrary, have opposite determinations . . . Examps.

5566. When wandering stars appear in the other life, they signify falsities.

5700². When scientifics are in inverted order, they are disposed in the form of Hell ; and then the falsest are in the middle . . .

5826⁴. 'They who are born of the will of man' = those who are in persuasions of falsity. 9454.

5954⁷. 'Not to pollute the garments' = not to defile truths with falsities.

6000⁸. Vastations are said to take place 'in the night,' because truth is then obscured, and falsity enters.

—⁹. 'The arrow which flies by day' = the falsity which is taught openly. 9642⁶.

6023. A scientific is only a vessel, which can be filled with both truths and falsities. Examps.

6084°. But falsities and the scientifics which agree with them come directly under the sight, that is, are in the inmost, with those who are affected and delighted by the evils of the love of self and of the world.

6110°. Noon, in Hell, is the itch of Falsities.

6355. That neither does the truth of spiritual good want to know the falsities of their thought thence derived. Sig.

6401°. 'Dan' = those who hate falsities from fallacies and spread them about : their falsities are called 'horses.'

6419°. The assault on truth by falsities, and the protection of truth against falsity. Tr.

6420. Resistance by falsities. Sig.

6421. 'To shoot' = to combat from falsities.

6443°. They who are elevated into Heaven are at first in obscurity. . . for there is need of a space of time in order that the obscurity induced by falsities may be dissipated.

6534°. 'Horses,' and 'horsemen,' in the opposite sense, = a perverted understanding, and the falsities thence derived. Ill.

6639. The establishment of the Church is here treated of, and how it is continually infested by scientifics and falsities. (Sig. by the Egyptians afflicting the sons of Israel).

—°. In order that the man of the Church (newly arrived in the other life) may be purified, he is kept in such a state that he may be assaulted by . . . falsities . . . This rarely happens to a man while he lives in the body . . .

6659. The falsities which would compel them to serve. Sig.

—°. 'Princes,' here, = primary falsities.

6681. 'The king of Egypt called the midwives' = that those in falsities formed a design against those in scientific truths in the Natural.

6679. See EGYPT. 6729°. 6799. 6854. 6865. 6901. 6907. 6910. 6914. 6917. 6920. 6976. 7021. 7103. 7203. 7220. 7235. 7258. 7240. 7276. 7280. 7385. 7387. 7441°. 7442. 7465. 7505°. 7522. 7569. 7674. 7705. 7732. 8096. 8161. 8166. 8174. 9292. 9348°. E.141°. 355°. 410°. 433¹². 448¹³. 502°. 540°. 585°. 627¹². 654. —°. —°. etc.

6693. 'Every son that is born ye shall cast into the river' = that they should immerse in falsities all the truths that appear.

—°. 'The river of Egypt' = what is contrary to intelligence ; thus falsity. Ill.

6726. They who are being initiated into truth Divine are first put among falsities. Sig.

6730. 'To wash at the river' = worship from falsity.

6731. 'Her girls walked by the river's side' = the ministries of that religiosity which is from falsity.

6753. 'I drew him out of the waters' = deliverance from falsities.

6757. 'Saw their burdens' = apperception that they were being infested by falsities.

—°. How the case is with infestations by falsities, which are burdens to those who are in truths, cannot be known by man while he is living in the world, because he is then not so infested ; for his mind then either cleaves to falsities, or shakes them off, and this without any sensible infestation. Whereas in the other life, when they who are in truths are being infested by falsities, they are held in them by evil Spirits as if they were bound, but the interiors of the mind are kept by the Lord in truths, by means of which the falsities are shaken off.

6758. Falsities cannot destroy truths.

6762. 'He hid him in the sand' = that he discarded it to where falsities are. Ex.

6765°. When a man is being regenerated, he is let into combats against falsities . . .

6772. 'Moses fled from before Pharaoh' = that (truth Divine) was separated from falsities.

6784°. It is evil which is opposite to Heaven, not falsity from ignorance ; in fact, if there is anything of innocence in the ignorance, that falsity is accepted by the Lord as truth ; for they who are in such, receive truth.

6803°. 'Groaning' = grief on account of the endeavour made by falsities to subjugate.

6851. 'I have seen the affliction of My people' = mercy towards those of the Spiritual Church after infestations by falsities.

6853. 'I know their sorrows' = foresight how much they had been immersed in falsities.

—°. For when they who are in good are immersed in falsities, they come into tortures and anxieties . . . for they love truths and are averse to falsities, and constantly think about . . . the unhappiness that would ensue, if falsities were to have dominion with them. But they who are not in good, care not whether they are in falsities or in truths . . . These are perpetually immersed in falsities. Immersion in falsities in the other life appears like one who is immersed in waves, which, according to the abundance of the falsities, rise ever higher, until at last they rise over the head ; the waves appear thinner or denser according to the quality of the falsities.

6854. It here treats of (the Spiritual Church) ; how they are infested by falsities. 7087.

—°. Before the Lord's advent . . . they were kept in the Lower Earth . . . which Earth was beset around by the Hells in which are falsities . . . 7090.

6855. That they should be elevated from the place and state in which they are being infested by falsities. Sig.

6864. The Holy proceeding from the Lord's Human, by which the infesting falsities would be dissipated. Sig. and Ex.

6907°. In the world, they who are in falsity do not openly oppose those who are in truth ; for they are restrained by external bonds . . . But they oppose themselves inwardly . . . and when they come into the other life . . . they openly oppose themselves to those who are in truths . . . and when they are admonished not to do such things, since, if they do not desist, they will be . . . thrust down into Hell, they pay not the slightest attention, but constantly persist in the infestation ; to such a degree are they in the delight of life from falsity . . . Sig.

[A.6907]³. The glory of the world . . . kindles this light, (in which) truths appear exactly like falsities, and falsities exactly like truths . . . Hence such persons are in a strong persuasion of falsities against truths. . . But with those who are in truths from good . . . the light of Heaven is bright ; (and therefore) in it truths appear as truths, and falsities as falsities ; for when this light falls upon falsities . . . it completely extinguishes them.

6952. 'The serpent's tail'=falsity itself ; for this is the ultimate or lowest ; and he who is in falsity, and thus in the ultimate and lowest, looks altogether downwards or outwards . . .

6977. There is a total inversion of state in the Natural when it is occupied by nothing but falsities ; this rarely takes place with a man while he is living in the world ; but in the other life it is the case with all who are cast into Hell. Ex.

6978°. The defence of the falsity which is from fallacies. Sig.

—^e. 'The multitude of the pierced through'=that hence come innumerable falsities, and those who are in falsities.

7031. The media of power from the Spiritual . . . against the infesting falsities. Sig.

7097°. Lest they should abuse the truths of faith (the infesters) are deprived of them, and when they are deprived of them they seize on falsities which are completely contrary to the truths of faith, and then, by means of the falsities, they infest those who are in truths ; this is then their delight of life . . . 7317^e.

7122. 'The words of a lie,' when said by those who are in falsities, = truths ; for they who are in falsities call truths falsities . . . and falsities truths.

—². This infestation is permitted to the end that falsities may be removed, and truths insinuated ; which cannot possibly be done without infestation. Ex.

7129. The injection of falsities without diminution. Sig.

7133. That they should serve falsities so called in every state. Sig. . . It is said falsities so called, because the evil do not acknowledge the things which they speak to be falsities . . .

7136. That those who proximately received and communicated the infestations were injured by the injected falsities. Sig.

—¹. 'To be beaten'=to be injured by falsities.

7147. At this time truths are withdrawn from them, and it is permitted that mere falsities infest, and this even to despair. Ex.

7159. See PHARAOH. 7167. 7225³. 7268. 7272. 7275. 7295. 7341. 7355. 7396. 8188. 8332. 8653. 8668.

7164^e. Complaint . . . that those who are in falsities have such dominion over those who are in truths. Sig.

7168. That they . . . seemed to be injured by the injected falsities. Sig. . . (It is said) that they seemed to be injured, because they who are in infestation and in temptation cannot be injured by the injected falsities ; for the Lord protects them.

7218. 'Hard service'=infestations by mere falsities. Ex.

—². When Spirits are in a state of evening and night, their thought is in a forced state when they are compelled to think about the falsities which are injected.

7225². When these loves have fortified themselves with falsity as with a wall.

7244^e. That the law Divine is impure with those who are in falsities. Sig. 7245.

7265. The first three degrees of vastation. Tr. First : that mere fallacies, whence came falsities, began to reign with them . . . Second : that the truths themselves with them became falsities, and falsities truths . . . Third : that they reasoned from falsities against the truths and goods of the Church. 7293. 7295.

7273. They thus saw that they were in falsities.

7290². At last, when the ideas derived from miracles are dissipated, there is a conjunction of falsity and truth ; thus profanation.

7297. See ENCHANT. 7298. R.462. —². —³. 892. T.324.

7306^e. They who are in falsities cannot be enlightened. Ex.

7308. 'The bank of the river'=the state of that falsity.

7313^e. Those of the Spiritual Church at this day who are being vastated as to falsities (are also here represented).

7322. Power against the falsities with the infesters. Sig. 7323.

7325. See WATER. 9050¹⁰.

7343. Search for truth which they might apply to falsities. Sig. and Ex.

7352. (Examps. of reasoning from mere falsities.)

7356. Among the more delightful things with the evil is to scatter falsities ; to confirm them . . .

7357. Reasonings from falsities in each and all things. Sig. . . They who are in Hell . . . cannot do otherwise than speak falsities. Hence when such a one speaks . . . in the World of Spirits, it is known at once that it is false. Sig.

7378. (Ex.viii.) continues to treat of the vastation of those who are in falsities . . .

7391^e. Weariness of reasoning from mere falsities. Sig. 7392.

7392. By reasonings from mere falsities they cannot do harm ; for those of the Spiritual Church laugh at mere falsities ; but they could do harm by the falsities which are from fallacies and appearances . . . Sig. 7699, Sig.

7398². After falsities are removed, they have places allotted elsewhere in the Natural ; and, with the falsities, the endeavour and the cupidity to reason. Sig. and Ex. 7408.

7443. That they could not infest those of the Spiritual Church by the falsities of malevolence. Sig. and Ex.

7448. That malevolent falsities broke forth on all sides among (the infesters). Sig.

7474³. (It is those who are in the good of faith) who are infested in the other life by those who are in falsities; for they who are in the good of charity cannot be so infested . . . In the other life these freely reject falsities . . .

—³. See INFEST.

7574. 'Hail' = such falsities as destroy the truths and goods of the Church . . . For there are very many genera and species of falsities, as there are of the evils from which they come . . .

7646. The falsities signified by 'the hail' are falsities in the exterior Natural; but the falsities signified by 'the locusts' are the falsities in its extremes: these latter falsities are those which consume the most general truths and goods . . .

7648. That falsity will reign in each and all things in the Natural . . . Sig.

7649. That from ancient time there had not been such falsity in the Church as there was then. Sig. 7686, Ex.

7853. See UNLEAVENED. 8060. 9287. 9289.

7887². When falsities flow into good, which is the case when a man lives according to them from ignorance in which there is innocence; and when the end is to do what is good; they are regarded by the Lord, and in Heaven, as not being falsities, but as resemblances of truth; and are accepted as truths, according to the quality of the innocence.

7889. That he who has falsity in good shall be damned. Sig. and Ex.

7902². As to truth purified from all falsity . . . with man there can never exist pure truth, both because falsity is continually flowing forth from the evil in which he is . . . and because truths have a connection with each other; and therefore if there is a single falsity . . . all the other truths are defiled thereby, and derive something from falsity. But truth is said to be purified from falsity, when the man can be kept by the Lord in the good of innocence . . . When a man is in this state, falsity can be removed from him and truth insinuated by the Lord. Sig.

7909. The reason falsity is to be most carefully guarded against, is that man may be in good. Falsity does not agree with good, but destroys it; for falsity is of evil, and truth is of good. If falsity is appropriated, that is, firmly believed, there is no reception of the good of innocence, consequently no deliverance from damnation. It is one thing to appropriate falsity, and another to adjoin it: they who adjoin it, if they are in good, reject falsity when truth appears to them; but they who appropriate falsity to themselves, retain it, and resist the truth itself when it appears. Hence it is so frequently said that what is leavened is not to be eaten.

8051. Falsity and what is falsified cannot (as such) be appropriated to anyone that is in good . . . because he thinks well concerning God, His Kingdom, and spiritual life, and consequently applies falsity so as not to be contrary to these things . . . Unless this were the case, scarcely anyone could be saved; for falsities are more prevalent than truths. . . They who are in good are also in the love of truth, and therefore, when, in the other life, they are instructed by the Angels, they reject falsities, and accept truths; and this according to the degree of the love of truth which they had had in the world.

8063^e. That in good there is not anything false. Sig. For falsities are outside the sphere; as they begin where truths cease; whereas if they enter the sphere, they are appropriated.

8137. See DIVINE HUMAN.

8168. (In infestations and temptations) two forces are acting: one from the falsities injected by the Hells into the external man, the other from the truths insinuated by the Lord into the internal . . . The falsities have their power from the love of self and of the world which is in man . . .

8185. See DRY.

8201. 'Jehovah caused the sea to depart by a strong east wind' = a means of the dissipation of falsity. 8203. 8206.

8215. That the power of injecting falsities was taken away. Sig.

—⁵. 'The thrones cast down' = falsities.

8286. Falsities gathered into one by the presence of Heaven. Sig.

8299. The pouring round of a vast quantity of falsities. Sig.

8311. Those are in falsities and at the same time in good . . . who are in heresies and in a life of good; also all outside the Church who are in good; but the falsities with these do not condemn, unless they are such falsities as are contrary to good, and destroy the very life of good. The falsities which are not contrary to good are indeed in themselves falsities, but, relatively to the good of life to which they are not contrary, they almost put off the quality of falsity, which is effected by their application to good; for such falsities can be applied either to good or to evil; if they are applied to good, they become mild, but if to evil, they become hard; for falsities can be applied to good equally as truths can be applied to evil. Examp.

8315. They who are in the life of falsity from the love (of self). Sig.

— . For they who are in natural good . . . suffer themselves to be led to believe falsities of every kind, thus to live according to them: they are led away from truths to falsities chiefly by those things which favour their loves. These are they who are meant by 'Moab.'

8408³. A people possessed by falsities. Sig.

8540¹. 'A stone,' in the opposite sense, = falsity. Refs. 8932⁷.

8579. The Divine power by which falsities are dissipated. Sig.

8604^e. That when faith looked downwards . . . to self and the world, falsity conquered. Sig. 8607.

8764². An Intellectual from falsities . . . is not an Intellectual . . .

—^e. 'Wings,' in the opposite sense, = falsities.

8810^e. 'Smoke' = the thick darkness of falsity. Ill. 9144².

[A.] 8877. Falsities conjoined in a long series. Sig.

8882. 'To take the name of God in vain' = . . . to turn good into falsity ; that is, to live holily and yet not believe.

8885². This is effected by . . . new falsities . . . with the evil.

8906². The desolation of the Church when falsities break in, and destroy truths. Tr.

—³. That falsity will then possess the whole man, both his Voluntary and his Intellectual, and will thus take away all truth and good. Sig.

8946. The idea of thought concerning them thus full of falsities . . . Sig.

—^e. Mists are falsities.

9007. 'To smite' = to injure by means of falsity.

9011. (Those who unintentionally injure others by reasoning from falsity against the truth and good of faith.) Rep.

9024². A contention for falsities against truths. (and) the Lord's contention for truths against falsities. Sig.

—³.

—⁴. 'A great storm' = falsity dominating.

9049⁶. They who by falsities want to destroy the truths of faith . . . Sig.

9051². 'The right eye' = falsity of faith concerning the Lord.

9052². 'Teeth,' in the opposite sense, = falsity destroying truth. Ill.

9081. 'To strike with the horn' is said of the destruction of falsity by the power of truth ; and, in the opposite sense, of the destruction of truth by the power of falsity. Ill.

9084. 'When a man has opened a pit' = if anyone has received falsity from another. 9089.

9141². The love of falsity and the faith of falsity constitute the lumen of life with (an evil man and a Spirit of Hell).

9144⁴. See CONCUPISCENCE. —⁵. —⁶. —⁷.

—². When falsity is presented to view, it appears pointed.

9164. When a man is in truth from good . . . falsities are in the boundaries, but are not in a series with the truths, nor do they stand erect to Heaven as the truths of good do ; but they are bent downwards, and, in so far as they go forth from evil, look to Hell. But when falsity usurps the place of truth, the order is inverted . . . and the falsities of evil occupy the middle.

9166⁷. 'To make a hair black' = to say that falsity is falsity which is from themselves.

9188⁴. The origin of falsity, that it is from the evil of the love of self. Sig.

9192². They who are in falsities are often saved.

—⁷. They who are in good, and . . . are in falsities from ignorance . . . do indeed regard their falsities as truths ; but as these falsities go forth from good, they bend them to good ; and therefore there is nothing malignant in them, as there is in the falsities which are from evil. And as the falsities thence derived are mild and flexible, they are in the capacity of receiving truths

. . . These falsities may be compared to meats which are unclean to the sight, but still are savoury ; whereas falsities from evil may be compared to unclean meats, which are inwardly putrid. 9253.

9228². The destruction of falsity. Tr.

9248. 'Thou shalt not bring a report of vanity' = no hearkening to Falsities.

—². 'Vanity' = falsity of doctrine ; 'a lie' = falsity of life.

9253. That the falsities in which are they who are in ignorance of truth are not to be favoured. Sig.

9256². With such the internal man cannot be opened towards Heaven, unless the . . . affirmatives of falsity . . . are dispersed ; and they must be dispersed in the world ; and this can be done only by a total inversion of the life, thus in the course of years ; for falsities dispose themselves into series, and make a continual connection with each other, and form the natural mind itself . . . (Thus) to destroy the falsities with such, is to destroy the life itself ; and if they are to have a new life, falsities must be successively extirpated . . .

9257. See ASS.

9258. There are falsities which agree with the good of the Church, and there are falsities which do not agree with it ; the falsities which agree are those in which good lies hidden, and which thus, through good, can be bent to truths ; but the falsities which do not agree with the good of the Church, are those in which evil lies hidden, and which therefore cannot be bent to truths. Ex. —⁴. 10109, Refs. 10302.

9259. The falsities which do not agree with the good of the Church, are all those which are against the Lord, the good of love to Him, and the good of charity.

9272⁷. 'The breach of the people' = the falsity of doctrine from the badness of the teachers.

9286. 'The feast of unleavened things' = purification from falsities . . . For the man who is being regenerated is first purified from falsities . . . 9294², Ex.

9297⁴. The truths or falsities which had made one with the use (of their life) remain, and more are adopted . . . which complete the use.

9321. 'Thou shalt break in pieces their statues' = that the falsities of worship are to be removed.

9328. The consternation of all falsities. Sig. and Ex.

9335. 'And the wild beast of the field be multiplied upon thee' = the afflux of falsities from the delights of the love of self and of the world.

9341². See EUPHRATES.

9348². 'Pit' = falsity induced by reasonings from the fallacies of the senses to favour the delights of the loves of self and of the world.

—⁴. 'The voice of the roaring of a lion' = falsity.

9382². These loves receive and imbibe falsities like sponges.

9406⁷. See CUAU-aryilla. E. 176². —. 237⁰.

9424⁸. See GRAVEN. 10405².

—¹⁰. There is falsity in the internal form when people do not think rightly concerning truths ; for . . .

truth . . . is thought about falsely by all who are in evil; for . . . with those who are in evil a single truth consists of infinite falsities.

9425. See DOCTRINE. 10503.

9642⁶. The power of falsity (from faith alone) against truths. Sig.

9670⁸. The purification of truth from falsities in the external man. Sig.

9755⁴. See ZIIM.

—⁷. Falsity from scientifics. Sig. —⁸. —⁹.

9807⁸. 'Son,' in the opposite sense, = falsity.

9809⁷. 'Smitten kings' = the destruction of falsities.

—¹¹. Truth is such that falsity can be adjoined to it; but not falsity in which is evil, but in which is good . . .

9852^e. That the falsities may cohere, is sig. by 'casting chains of silver.'

10036. 'Its skin' = falsity in ultimates.

10201⁴. In proportion as a man has kindled a natural lumen by the loves of self and of the world, he rushes into falsities . . .

10456. Suspense of combat between falsity and truth, and no decision. Sig.

10582. See CLEAVE-findere. E.410³. —⁶.

10638³. To see from self is to see falsities instead of truths; and if they see truths they falsify them by principles or loves from self . . . Hence come falsities of evil.

10648. The falsities which are not from evil are indeed falsities in the external form, but not in the internal; for falsities exist with those who are in the good of life, but there is good within them, which causes the evil of the falsity to be removed; and thus before the Angels this falsity does not appear as falsity, but as a kind of truth . . .

H. 352. They who do not see truth from truth . . . can believe falsity equally as truth . . .

— . In this light, falsities can shine like truths . . .

377. (Thus) they who are in falsities are not in marriage love; and not at all they who are in falsities from evil . . .

464⁴. They seize on all falsities which are cried up as truths by those who call themselves learned . . .

—⁵. For truths cannot be seen from falsities, but falsities can be seen from truths.

479⁵. Evil love wills to be nourished by falsities. . . When they came to their own, they seized with much pleasure the falsities agreeing with their love.

482². At last they are insane from falsities. Therefore . . . all truths are taken away . . . and in their stead they are imbued with every falsity which agrees with the evil of their life . . . P.17².

575. 'The gnashing of teeth,' is the continual disputing and combat of falsities with each other . . . E. 556¹⁸.

—^e. All falsities there make a grating noise.

589. See EQUILIBRIUM.

N. 18^e. But falsity not of evil can be conjoined with good.

21. (Refs. to passages on the subject of falsity.) 171.

S. 15². That those who are in falsities from ignorance, and do not suffer themselves to be seduced by the evil, will approach the Lord . . . Sig.

F. 29. Knowledges of falsity (do not at all make faith); for . . . Falsity, being opposite to truth, destroys faith: nor can charity come forth where there are mere Falsities . . .

71. For they who are in falsities see no otherwise than that falsities are truths . . .

W. 188². The Angels . . . see . . . that men multiply Falsities upon Falsities . . .

420^e. All the defilement of a man is effected through falsities opposite to truths of wisdom.

P. 17². But if his life has been of the love of good, all the falsity he had gathered in the world . . . but which he did not confirm, is removed.

144. For as truths open the understanding, so do falsities close it; they close it above, and open it below . . .

318². As all falsity shines in the natural man from its appearances and fallacies; and truth shines only in the spiritual man; it is evident that falsity can be confirmed better than truth. Ex.

—⁵. All falsity is in darkness.

R. 52. The dispersion of falsities through the Word and through doctrine thence, by the Lord. Sig. 827; Sig. E.73.

91. They who are in goods as to life, but in falsities as to doctrine. Sig. 97. 181. E.120.

95. That they are in falsities, and thence not in goods. Sig. 97; Ex.

98. That those who are in goods as to life, and in falsities as to doctrine (must be infested by evils and assaulted by falsities; but should not despair). Sig. 100; Sig. 101; Sig.

101³. For falsities can never be taken away from a man who is unwilling . . .

102. The reception of Truths, until falsities have been removed and as it were abolished. Sig.

112. When all truth has been extinguished by falsities in the Church. Sig.

139. That all truths from the Word with them are turned into falsities. Sig.

153². They are explored as to whether they are affected with . . . falsities . . .

—⁹. As all who have confirmed themselves in falsities of faith, cannot do works of good use . . .

183. That those who are in falsities as to doctrine, provided they are not in falsities from evil, will receive the truths of the New Church. Sig.

379. All who have fought against evils, and have believed in the Lord . . . are withdrawn from the falsities of their religion . . .

399. Falsity from infernal love destroying good and truth, and falsifying the Word. Sig.

409^e. Temptations are inundations of falsities.

[R.] 410. The infernal falsity from which comes their own intelligence, and by which all the truths of the Word have been falsified. Sig. 681.

421. For conceit glues falsities together . . .

425. The power of persuading that their falsities are truths. Sig.

459. That thus they are in worship from mere falsities. Sig.

483. For no falsity is abolished until it is disclosed.

547². For the truths which are received and implanted before falsities have been removed, are not permanent . . .

548. The falsities of the former Church fighting against the truths of the New Church. Sig.

592. That he who destroys the soul of another through falsities, is destroyed and perishes through falsities. Sig.

599. Attestations that their falsities are truths of Heaven . . . Sig.

625. If falsity (proceeds from good) it is apparent falsity; and this is regarded by the Lord as like truth . . . For there is falsity from evil, and also falsity from good; and both may appear alike in the external form; but yet they are utterly unlike; because that which is within constitutes its essence, and produces its quality.

714. Direful and atrocious falsities by which all the truth of the Word . . . has been destroyed. Sig.

940. That in the New Jerusalem there will not be any falsity of faith. Sig.

M. 242. Thus with the married partner who is in falsities of religion, cold ensues . . .

243. That the fourth of the internal causes (of cold) is Falsity of religion. The reason is, that Falsity in spiritual things either takes away religion, or defiles it: it takes it away with those with whom genuine Truths have been falsified; and it defiles it with those with whom there exist Falsities, but no genuine Truths, which, therefore, could not be falsified: with the latter there may exist goods with which, by means of applications, those falsities can be conjoined by the Lord; for these falsities are like various discordant tones, which, by skillful adductions and insinuations, are drawn into harmony . . .

B. 96. See DOGMA.

T. 42². There are others who are not . . . able to perceive truth, but only falsity; because they are in delusive light, in which falsity appears as truth . . .

209². If anyone who is in falsities looks at the Word . . . thick darkness rises before his eyes . . . and if he touches the Word, there is an explosion . . . If something from the Word is written on paper by anyone who is in falsities, and the paper is thrown up towards Heaven . . . there comes a like explosion . . . (Thus) they who are in falsities of doctrine have no communication with Heaven by means of the Word . . .

254. Heresies themselves do not condemn men, but confirmations of the Falsities which are in the heresies . . .

258. Therefore, when a man is in falsities, and applies the sense of the letter to them, falsities are therein; and when falsities enter, truths are dissipated; which takes place in the way from man to Heaven.

—². It is the same with the reading of the Word by a man who is in falsities, and who applies to his falsities some things of the sense of the letter; it is then rejected on the way to Heaven . . . For when falsity touches truth, it is like the point of a needle touching . . . the eye . . .

320. They who teach false and heretical things . . . and yet read the Word, and are able to know from it what is false and what is true; and also they who confirm falsities of religion by fallacies . . . may be compared to impostors . . .

321. Thou shalt not answer false witness against thy neighbour. Gen.art. E.1019². 1020.

581. From the received faith of the present Church . . . have sprung phalanxes of horrible Falsities . . .

754. A Church is consummated . . . especially by such things as cause falsity to appear as truth; (for) then . . . spiritual good exists no longer . . .

Ad. 938. Their opposites are called lies and Falsities . . .

D. 1024. Falsities harden such shells.

1994. (Three general causes) of truth being turned into falsity. Enmm.

2597. The reason (they fall from Heaven) is that they are in some falsity. 2823. 2825.

2787. Falsities . . . deeply impressed . . . can scarcely be extirpated in the other life . . .

2909. Therefore, let men beware of . . . Falsities . . .

3128. If he simulates, he is at once charged with Falsity.

3592. There are indefinite contrary objects which induce Falsities . . .

3910. They who are in Falsities are amendable there, provided they have had conscience . . .

3934. They openly write and publish Falsities, which they all know to be Falsities . . .

4114^{1e}. Therefore it is good for a man not to be persuaded of falsities.

4149. Fixed Truths and Falsities are found in fixed places on the left side of the head. . . Where there is falsity, that part of the head is indurated, and is pained and tortured when looked at or explored by angelic Spirits.

4195. When such a sphere reigns, the falsest things appear as true.

4202^e. When (this sphere is diminished, and vanishes,) the Falsity is diminished.

4287. That innumerable Societies conspire to a single principle of falsity . . .

—^e. Hence it is evident what harm there is when a man or Spirit is in falsity.

4959. They have no power, because they have (only) falsities.

5451. Falsity of doctrine is not falsity when there is good in it.

5597. See CELESTIAL.
5672. Nor can those be enlightened who have confirmed themselves in falsities of doctrine. Ex.
5751. See URINE.
6033. (When all his falsities were taken away, he was stupid.)
6037. That falsities have no power against truths.
6039. On the impossibility of thinking truths where there are falsities. J.(Post.)36, Ex. 44.
- 6044². He grieved intensely, wanting to receive truths, and thus reject falsities; but could not; because while falsities and the evils thence are in the mind, truths cannot enter . . .
- E. 107. The things which man apprehends from himself . . . are falsities . . .
- 131². Falsities cannot be cast out except by combats from these truths. Sig.
- ³. They who are in falsities there, cannot endure truth. Sig.
- ¹⁷. That those who believe falsities will perish by falsities. Sig.
138. When he comes into spiritual temptation, he is among those Spirits who are in falsities . . . 164.
166. See SON.
177. The total dispersion of falsities. Sig.
- 235². From false principles nothing but falsities follow . . . 237⁸.
- 236². To know and think falsities is not to be intelligent and wise . . .
- 237⁵. The falsity which is assumed as a principle, and to which the Word . . . is applied to make it appear as truth. Sig.
- ⁸. That falsities follow thence in a continuous series . . . Truths destroyed are falsities, and such falsities as smell evilly.
- 242⁸. Falsities become of faith when evils are of life.
- 375¹¹. Weapons were anointed because they signified truths fighting against falsities, and truths from good are what prevail against them . . .
- 386¹³. Therefore where there . . . are falsities, there is no good.
- ²⁵. With those who are in this charity, falsities are dispersed . . .
- ²⁶. For they who are in falsities stand without . . .
- 401⁹. They who are in the light of the moon there, are in many falsities . . . But their falsities . . . are falsities in which there is no evil; and are therefore accepted by the Lord as if they were truths. 625².
- 403⁵. As the falsities in the Church are chiefly falsified truths . . .
- 406¹⁵. That truths and goods shall be given to those who are in falsities; but not in falsities of evil. Sig.
- 443². Most of those (in the First Heaven) are in falsities from ignorance; which falsities, however, are accepted by the Lord as truths, because they have the good of life as the end. 450. 455, Sig.
452. In the other life they undergo temptations, by - which the falsities of their religion are dispersed . . . 474. 475, Sig.

- ². (Refs. to passages on the subject of those who are in falsities from ignorance, but still in the good of life.)
474. Falsities, being opposite to truths . . . must first be removed . . .
- ². They who will come into Heaven are devastated as to falsities.
478. They who are in falsities from ignorance, and still in the good of life according to their religion, cannot be saved until the falsities with them have been removed . . . And therefore, when they emerge from the temptations, the falsities still remain, although they have been removed by means of truths . . . Hence it is that unless those who have been in falsities from ignorance in the world were constantly kept in truths by the Lord, they would relapse into falsities. Sig.
- 511². When truths conjoin themselves with affections merely natural, they are . . . falsities; for affection merely natural falsifies them.
- 518³⁹. See TEMPT.
- 526¹⁵. The falsities of ignorance distinguished from the falsities of evil.
- 535⁶. The falsities of the simple in the Church who believe in the Lord and live well—because from these falsities they regard good—are applied by the Lord to good, and are turned towards Heaven.
- 538². Falsities exhaled from the Hells continually press on man . . . For it is the same whether you say the Hells, or falsities from them.
587. 'Idols'=the falsities of doctrine, of religion, and of worship, which are from Own intelligence.
- . Confirmations of Falsities are effected by . . .
- ¹⁰. The reason nothing but falsity comes, is . . .
- 588². It follows that falsities have no light.
- 714¹⁰. From this origin are all . . . the Falsities in the Christian world.
- 727²². For when the proprium is consulted, it answers falsity.
- 763². For they who are in falsities . . . are not spiritual, but . . . sensuous . . .
776. Falsities spring from evils, like impure waters from an impure fountain . . .
- ². In certain places there, there are continual combats of those who are in falsities . . . and it has been seen, that the evil conquered by falsities . . . (For) falsities have power over those who are in falsities . . . But they have no power over those who are in truths; (except over those who are in truths without good). 783².
- 798². In the ultimates of Heaven are they who are in falsities from doctrine and religion, but still in the good of life; their falsities are appearances of truth from the sense of the letter, which all have life as their end.
812. That those who imbue others with falsities, are imbued with falsities from Hell. Sig.
- 817⁸. Truths which do not live, are turned into falsities . . .

[E.] 824. Propound any falsity . . . and take away the use of reason . . . and you will see it as truth . . .

825². Such cannot do otherwise than think falsities . . . 862^e.

862. Good opens the spiritual mind . . . and falsities are rejected.

866. That they are averse to think and persuade falsities. Sig.

867². They who are in the spiritual affection of truth may indeed receive falsities, but not with full consent . . . and are easily led to reject them . . .

—³. Falsities do not injure such, because there is no evil in them: falsities from evil are the very falsities which are from Hell . . .

889². That dense falsity presses on them, and flows forth from them . . . (For) man is his own truth or falsity, not only as to the thoughts from his will, but also as to his universal body . . .

—⁵. These falsities sometimes appear to the sight as smoke from conflagrations; sometimes as black clouds; sometimes as black and fetid waters; sometimes as foul smells.

950². (For) the falsities which inundated the Church could only be dispersed by genuine truth opened in the Word . . .

1007². With those who are in falsities as to doctrine, but in goods as to life, there is no conjunction of evil and falsity.

1035². There is no spiritual drunkenness from falsities which are not from evil; for these falsities do not pervert and destroy spiritual truths . . . Falsities not from evil may be compared to waters which are not pure . . . But falsities from evil may be compared to wine or strong drink which induces drunkenness.

1130. For he who is in the love of evil is also in the love of falsity; for falsity confirms evil.

J. (Post.)209. How much principles of falsity injure, and avert the mind from things to be done.

5 M. 1. The cupidity within flows into the rationality of the merely Natural, and darkens its light, so that they see nothing but falsities in the place of truths.

Conv. 15. A false principle in spiritual things falsities all things. It falsities all things of the Word . . . without man knowing it, while he is reading the Word. . . This falsity is not manifested, except when it is set in the middle of the view of the thought.

Can. Redemption i. 11. From a single falsity there flow forth falsities in a continuous series, until there is no truth left.

Inv. 16. All theologians, when preaching, know nothing of the falsities of their religion . . . But let them know that the falsities which they have imbibed in the schools are clinging to them interiorly; and that the other things are simply between their lips; and therefore these falsities ought by all means to be rooted out.

51. If Falsities are confirmed from the Word, they do not ascend into Heaven, but are rejected, and are dispersed on the way with a loud report.

Abom. 28. Falsities have to be rooted out before truths are implanted.

Coro. xl. The falsities which have desolated the Christian Church. Enum.

Falsity of Evil. Falsum mali.

Falsity from Evil. Falsum ex malo.

A. 1574. 'The Perizzite' = falsity from evil. Ill.

1867. 'The Gergashite and the Jebusite' = falsities from evils.

2240⁸. 'Vine of Sodom' = falsity from evil.

2243. See FALSITY. 3708²¹. 4729. 5120⁶. 5149². 9164. 9192⁷. 10638³. E. 406¹⁵. 526¹⁵. 867³. 1035².

2351. Falsity from evil raging against good. Sig.

—². The falsity from evil that is within the Church, is especially the falsity which favours evils of life. Examp.

2444². 'Gomorrh' = the falsity which is from the evil of the love of self . . .

3448². The power of falsity from evil. Sig.

4317. The falsity which is from hereditary evil. Sig.

4770. 'They dipped the coat in the blood' = that they defiled with falsities from evils.

4818. The affection of evil from the falsity of evil. Sig.

—³. Evil from the falsity of evil. Def.

4832. 'Er . . . evil in the eyes of Jehovah' = that he was in the falsity of evil.

5536³. 'Evil wild beasts' = falsities from evils . . . destroying the Church.

5954⁹. Truths defiled by falsities from evil. Sig.

6000. 'Night' = falsity from evil; for they who are in falsity from evil are in the obscurity of night.

6377¹⁰. 'Wine,' in the opposite sense, = falsity from evil. Ill. 8481^e.

6385⁵. 'The king of the north' = falsities from evil.

6784. See EGYPT. 7576. 7732. 7980. 8154. 8161. etc.

6907². The light of the world sparkles with those who are in falsity from evil . . .

7293³. 'The water as a flood' which the dragon cast out = falsities from evil, and the reasonings thence derived . . .

7378⁸. The fifth degree (of vastation) is, that they were in falsities from evils, by which all truth was destroyed: these are signified by 'the baneful flying things.' 7442. —². Ex.

7553. 'Hail' = falsities from evil destroying the truths and goods of faith. 7574. 7577.

7577². They then seize on falsities which agree with the evils of their cupidities; for falsities which agree with the cupidities of evil exist interiorly with those who live evilly . . . In the other life, when externals are taken away . . . the falsities break forth, both those which they had thought in the world, and those which they had not manifestly thought; for they burst forth from the evils which had been of their life; for the falsities are nothing but evils reasoning, and supporting themselves.

764³. 'The locusts'=falsity from evil in the extremes.

7711. See DARKNESS - caligo. 7712. 8197². 8211. H. 553^e. 586.

7738. There is now described the state of the infesters in mere falsity from evil . . . The more the infernals are in falsities from evil, the more they are averse to truth . . . Sig.

7852^e. 'A graven image'=the falsity of evil.

8125^e. Falsities from evils are signified by the waters which overwhelmed the Egyptians. 8223.

8137². The falsities from evils of those who had been of the Spiritual Church . . . appear as waters; but the falsities from evils of those who had been of the Celestial Church, as mists.

8138. See PHARAOH. 8159.

8146². See FAITH ALONE.

8183. The dominion of power where there is the Hell of falsity from evil. Sig.

8184. 'To divide the Red Sea'=to dissipate the falsities from evil which are in that Hell.

8187. An endeavour to inflict violence by an influx of falsity from evil. Sig.

8194. Protection lest the falsity of evil should flow into the will. Sig.

8197. The condensation of falsity from evil on the one hand. Sig.

8214. The return of the falsities from evil upon themselves. Sig. 8334.

8226. The reounding of falsities from evil to them from the presence of the Lord. Sig.

8232. Casting into Hell is nothing but a being crowded upon by the mere falsities which are from evil in which they had been in the world . . . 8334.

8279. Falsity from evil is of such a nature, that it falls down like a heavy body . . .

—². 'Abysses'=the Hells relatively to falsities from evils.

8288. That mere Falsities from the evil of the cupidities of the love of self could not possibly emerge. Sig. and Ex.

8311. 'The people heard'=all who are in falsity from evil everywhere.

8313². 'A people from the land of the north'=those who are in falsities from evil.

8315^e. The word for 'mighty ones,' here, is predicated of those who are in truth from good; and, in the opposite sense, of those who are in falsity from evil.

8343. For, by evil of life, men become forms of falsities from evil.

8481. The falsity of evil which is in good from proprium, is compared to 'a worm,' because . . . it gnaws, and thus torments.

8540⁴. 'A stone of lead'=falsity of evil closing up.

8555. See AMALEK. 8593, etc.

8616. A diminution of power with those who are in falsity from interior evil. Sig.

8624. The Lord's continual war and protection against those who are in the falsity of interior evil. Sig.

8711. 'Gain,' in general, = all falsity from evil which perverts the judgments of the mind.

8725^e. Good is not conjoined with truths, until those truths have been purified from the falsities which are from evil.

8814^e. In the other life, they who are in falsities from evil are encompassed with a cloud dense and black according to the quality and quantity of the Falsities.

8876. Prolification of the falsity from evil thence. Sig.

9012. The falsity by which evil is affirmed . . .

9024². 'The sides of the earth'=where falsities from evil break forth.

9025. 'To smite with the fist of wickedness'=with full force by falsities from evil.

9052³. 'Lions'=falsities from evil in their power.

9125. The taking away of good or truth through falsity from evil . . . Sig.

—³. 'Hell'=falsity from evil, because it reigns there.

9127⁵. 'Blood' . . . =truth Divine destroyed through falsities from evil. III.

9132^e. What is done from both (will and understanding), is done from the falsity which is from evil . . .

9141³. 'A river of sulphur'=falsities from the evils of the loves of self and of the world.

—⁴. Truths of doctrine from the Word, by which there is protection from the falsities of evil. Sig.

9144³. Falsity of evil in the Intellectual is like smoke . . .

9188. 'A witch'=those with whom anything of the Church is conjoined with the falsities of the evil of the love of self. Ex.

9192. The worship of falsities from evil. Sig.

—⁶. Falsities from evil are evils in form . . .

9331².

9193. The extirpation of falsities from evil. Sig.

9258⁴. Falsities in which there is evil are like 'the trees which bear evil fruit, which are to be rooted up and east into the fire.'

9261. 'Keep thee far from the word of a lie'=aversion for falsity from evil.

9298. See FERMENT. 9992².

9304. His Providence and protection from the falsities of evil. Sig.

9308. Turning away from Him through falsities from evil. Sig.

9313. See ENEMY - inimicus. 9330. E. 316¹. etc.

9317. That falsities from evil are not to be worshipped. Sig.

— . Falsities of evil are worshipped, when worship is performed according to doctrine which is forged from falsified truths and adulterated goods.

[A.] 9327³. It follows that falsity from evil has no power at all. 10182⁵. II. 539.

9330². In the other life, they who are in falsities from evil at first fight against those who are in truths from good. . . The latter are thus confirmed against falsities; and they who are in falsities from evil are confirmed in falsities, and thus devastate themselves; for, there, falsities are removed from those who are in good; and truths are removed from those who are in falsities from evil; and thus they who are in truths from good are elevated into Heaven, and they who are in falsities from evil sink down into Hell. . . Sig.

9331. 'I will send the hornet before thee' = the dread of those who are in falsities of evil.

9332. The flight of falsities from evils. Sig.

9348⁴. 'A lioness' = falsity from evil perverting the truths of the Church.

—'. 'The pit in which he was taken by the nations' = the falsity of evil.

9391¹⁴. 'King and princes,' and also 'silver and gold' = falsities from evil; for the things which are from proprium are evil, and consequently false, although outwardly they appear to be truths, because they have been taken from the sense of the letter of the Word.

9468⁵. They who apply the external sense of the Word to confirm falsities from the evils of the love of self and of the world. Sig.

9552². See BITTERN.

9583⁹. The fiery smoke is falsity from evils of concupiscences.

9642⁵. 'The terror by night' = falsities of evil from Hell.

10109. The falsities with those who are in evil are falsities of evil.

10194⁹. Around those who are in falsities from evil there appear marshes, privies, and many monstrosities.

10199⁹. (With such) Hell flows in with falsities from evil. . .

10284. Study from proprium is nothing but falsity from evil. . .

—². Hence, they who love evil, think falsity from the evil of the love. . .

10302. 'Holy' = devoid of falsity of evil.

—'. It is said falsity of evil, because there exists falsity without evil. . .

10464. 'To grind to powder' = the infernal falsity thence.

10488. Truth from good fighting against falsity from evil. Sig.

10623. 'Son's sons' = falsities from evils in a long series.

10624². See EVIL.

10643. 'Thou shalt break their statues' = that the falsities of evil are to be dissipated.

10648. 'To commit whoredom after the gods of the nations' = to be conjoined with falsities of evil.

10650. The enticement, reception, and appropriation of falsity from evil. Sig.

H. 151⁹. (In Hell) they who are in falsities of evil dwell from their south to their north.

538. (I have perceived) the sphere of the falsity from evil flowing forth from Hell. Des.

570⁶. 'The smoke' therefrom = falsity from evil.

P. 318⁹. Falsity not of evil can be conjoined with good, but not falsity of evil; for falsity not of evil is falsity in the understanding and not in the will; and falsity of evil is falsity in the understanding from evil in the will.

R. 26. That even those in falsities (from evil) will see the Lord. Sig. E. 38.

308. 'A great sword' = the destruction of truth through falsities of evil.

379. That they have purified their (general truths) from falsities of evil by means of truths. Sig.

382. That henceforward they will not have concupiscences to . . . falsity of evil. Sig.

—'. Evil confirmed in the understanding is falsity of evil; hence the falsity of evil is evil in its form.

413. Falsities from evils exist with those who do not account evils to be sins; and still more with those who, by reasonings from the natural man, and above all from the Word, confirm with themselves that evils are not sins: the confirmations themselves are falsities from evils; and are called falsities of evil.

422. Falsities of the concupiscences of the natural man springing from their evil loves. Sig.

447. See FAITH ALONE.

654. 'For 1600 furlongs' = mere falsities of evil.

924. 'A lie,' here, = falsities of evil, which in themselves are evils; thus falsities confirming evil, which are the same as the evils confirmed.

E. 237⁶. See THORN.

—'. Because truths cannot be together with falsities of evil. . . and therefore, when falsities from evil reign, communication with Heaven is taken away. . .

257⁷. 'The seven unclean Spirits' = all falsities of evil. . .

512. That when the love of self occupies the natural man, it turns everything scientific therein into falsity of evil. Sig.

519. 'The name of the star is wormwood' = truth mixed with falsity of evil. 520², Ex.

573. Falsities of evil. . . innumerable, conspiring against the truths of good. Sig.

645. That truths with them are turned into falsities from evil. Sig.

716³. The reason falsities from evil have power, which is signified by the ten horns of the dragon, is that falsities from evil have power over those who are in falsities from evil. . . And these falsities from evil can be expelled from a man only little by little. . . for they constitute his life; and as the state of man is such at the end of the Church, the falsities of evil have power; although they have no power whatever against truth from good. By His Divine truth, the Lord could at once cast out the falsities of evil which are with man, but this would at once cast the man into Hell . . .

734. 'War in Heaven'=combat of falsity against truth, and of truth against falsity . . . Falsity, here, means falsity from evil, and truth means truth from good.

— All those are in falsity of evil who have thought nothing about Heaven and the Lord in their life, but only about themselves and the world. Ex.

920². The production of falsity from evil. Ex. —⁴. 922. Sig.

976. That from this they are in falsities of evil. Sig. —. The reason falsified truth is falsity of evil, is that evil falsifies truth.

996. In proportion as he can see truth, falsities of evil do not stand in the way . . .

— But falsities from evil do not enter . . . in the first age of man . . .

Fame. See REPUTATION—fama.

Familiar. Familiaris.

Familiarity. Familiaritas.

A. 1637². The language which is familiar to Spirits.

1641. With all the familiarity of friendship . . .

1649. It has become familiar. 1788. D.2957. 3040.

1664^e. The way of writing customary in those times.

1880². After it became familiar, they ceased to wonder.

3469². Until it had become so familiar to them . . .

7398. The things which have become familiar . . . 7935².

H. 97. It is familiar to man to say . . . D.3465.

322. In familiar discourse . . .

338. A way familiar in the other life.

M. 274. (Used in the sense of property.) 282^e.

286. His wife knows his private life.

290. The fear of domestic ruin.

291. Rivalries now familiar.

299. The private and personal affairs of her suitor.

319. Domestic affairs.

341³. This customary thing in the world . . .

T. 796². He began to speak to me more familiarly.

D. 1761. Which are familiar in the World of Spirits. 2047.

2500. They make familiars for themselves by flattery . . .

2681^e. Kings, with whom there is no familiarity.

2787. That this was familiar to all . . .

3382. The things which were familiar at that time.

3521. This is the case with everything familiar.

3577. Occurs.

3605. When one chamber had become familiar to me . . .

3821. This deed is familiar to them.

4220. This idea remains, and becomes familiar . . .

4221. They are familiar, so that he does not know he has them.

4222. When this often recurs, it becomes familiar . . .

4486. From customary simulations . . .

4731. Friendships and familiarities there, are not procured by company, but by likenesses of minds.

D. Min. 4810. The familiarity of intercourse . . .

J. (Post.) 270. The English genius does not admit others into familiarity.

Familiar. Tritus. T.338².

Family. Familia.

A. 313^e. Thus one family . . . may be distinguished from another.

470. Distinguished into houses, families and nations. . . . A family was composed of houses fewer or more, of which one dwelt not far from another, but still not together. 1159³.

917. 'According to their families' (Gen.viii.19)=pairs. . . All things were now so reduced to order . . . as to represent families. With a regenerate man, goods and truths . . . have a mutual regard for each other . . . like families from one stock . . . 9079. 9807. 9841^e.

1159. 'According to their families' (Gen.x.19)=according to the probity of each.

—². The reason 'families' = probity, and also charity and love, is that all things of charity and love are circumstanced in the Heavens as are consanguinities and affinities, thus as are families. 3612.

1216. 'According to their families' (ver.20)=according to their morals—mores.

1251. 'According to their families' (ver.31)=according to their differences as to charity.

1254. 'These are the families of the sons of Noah' (ver.32)=the worships of the Ancient Church in particular. . . No families can be meant but those of spiritual and celestial things.

1261. 'Families'=goods, when predicated of nations; and truths, when of peoples. Ill.

1358. Cities, then, were families; and a number of families were a nation.

1424. 'In thee shall all the families of the ground be blessed' (Gen.xii.3)=that all goods and truths are from the Lord. . . 'Families' have a like signification to 'nations' and 'peoples' . . .

1758. Each Society or family of Spirits . . .

2943. In the Ancient Church . . . cities were cohabitants of separate families; the family of a single parent constituted a city. Examps. 4478.

—². They had it from the most ancients that nations and families represented the heavenly Societies, thus the things of love and charity.

3020. All things in man are as one house, that is, one family . . . 3129.

3154³. 'To my family' (Gen.xxiv.38)=the truth which is from the Divine.

[A.] 3665⁴. Knowledges are circumstanced as are nations, families, and houses . . .

3709. 'In thee shall all the families of the ground be blessed' (Gen.xxviii.13)=that all the truths of good of doctrine shall be conjoined with good. . . 'Families' =goods, and also truths of good.

4317⁴. Each family has some peculiar evil or good by which it is distinguished from other families . . . D.2426.

5598². In Heaven . . . the varieties are disposed by the Lord so as to have relation to families, in which are brothers, sisters, etc.

6690. The scientifics in the natural mind . . . are circumstanced not unlike families . . .

7833. Each family within a tribe=a special good ; thus the good of one in special as distinguished from the good of another.

7836². The consociations of the sons of Israel according to tribes, families, and houses, represented the Societies in Heaven. Ex. —².

7916. 'According to your families' (Ex.xii.21)= according to the good of each truth. 'Families,' when said of the sons of Israel, by whom is represented the Spiritual Church, = the goods of truth. . . (For) 'families' are the things which descend from good through truth, and are the goods of truth.

8380. (The inhabitants of Jupiter) care little for worldly things ; for families dwell together.

8542. If (such wrong opinions) have crept into any family, that family is taken away from the midst of them . . . by privation of their breathing . . .

8954. There are no cities (in Saturn), but they live distinguished into families . . . thus a man and wife with their children . . .

9358. See EARTH-tellus. 10813. 10836.

10814. See DOMINION.

T. 377². The generation of spiritual families . . .

D. 2463. Certain from the families of Spirits . . .

E. 340²¹. 'The families of the earth'=truths. 355²³. 555¹⁰.

988⁶. There was such a correspondence of the families on earth with the Societies in the Heavens.

Famine, Hunger. Fames.

Hungry. Famelicus.

A. 1327⁶. 'Famine,' etc. (Jer.xxix.18)=penalties of profanation.

1458². 'To draw out the soul to the hungry' (Is. lviii.10)=the goods of charity in general. (=one who longs to be instructed in the truths of faith. 9050⁷.)

1460. 'There was a famine in the Land' (Gen.xii.10) =a scarcity of Knowledges. —²,III. 1464. 3316⁴. 3353⁹. 3364. 3708⁷.

—². 'Famine' relates to vastation as to celestial things. 2799⁷. 2851⁶.

—³. 'The hungry soul' (1's.evii.9)=those who long for Knowledges. (=a longing for good. 2930⁴.)

2075⁴. 'A famine in the city' (2 Kings xxv.3)=that nothing of faith was left.

4017⁶. 'Hunger'=the appetite, longing, and thus the affection of imbuing good. Ex.

4844⁵. Some (of those who are being instructed by the Lord in truths and led to good) are called 'the hungry.'

—¹². A famine in the Land because there was no rain (1 Kings xvii.)=the vastation of truth in the Church.

5192. 'The seven years of famine' (Gen.xli.) are of the following state, when there is nothing of good in scientifics, except what is from the Divine Celestial of the Spiritual . . .

5270. 'Shall be seven years of famine' (ver.27)=the apparent failure and privation of truth.

5277. 'There shall arise seven years of famine after them' (ver.30)=the following states, when there is a failure of truth. 5279.

5281. 'A famine'=a failure of the Knowledges of good, thus a failure of truth. 5300.

5342. The seven years of famine, and the support then from the collections of food=a state of regeneration by means of truths adjoined to good which were stored up in the interiors.

—³. This takes place in the state which is signified by 'the seven years of famine.'

5349. See DESOLATE. 5360. —^e. 5362. 5369. 5372. 5376. —². 5415. 5576. 6110. 6144.

5462. 'Carry provision for the famine of your houses' (Gen.xlii.19)=that in the desolation of truth in which they were, they were at liberty to take counsel for themselves. . . 'Famine'=failure of Knowledges, and desolation. —^e. 5536².

5576. Famine in the Spiritual World is not famine for food . . . but is famine for such food as nourishes their minds . . .

5579. When this food has ceased in use, hunger again ensues. In the Spiritual World, this hunger, which is want of spiritual things, is the evening. . . They come into this evening, or spiritual hunger, in order that they may long for truths and goods ; for when these are hungered for—esuriantur, they yield better nourishment, as material food does to a hungry person.

5893. 'Famine' (Gen.xlv.6)=a failure of good. 6079.

6078. When this spiritual food is wanting to Angels, they are in . . . hunger.

6110. 'Famine'=a failure of good and of Knowledges. Refs.

6111. 'Famine'=desolation.

6829². In temptation, man is in hunger for good, and thirst for truth. 8352².

7102². In the Word are mentioned four kinds of vastations and punishments . . . 'Famine'=the vastation of good and the punishment of evil. —³,III.

8408³. 'A famine' (2 Kings iv.38)=a failure of the Knowledges of truth and good.

8413. 'To kill this whole congregation with hunger' (Ex.xvi.3)=that they would expire from the failure of delight and of good. . . 'Famine,' here,=a failure of the good of pleasures.

9198⁵. 'A great famine over all the Land' (Luke iv. 25)=the vastation of the external Church; for 'a famine'=the failure and desolation of truth and good. Refs.

9412⁵. 'Not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of Jehovah' (Amos viii.11)=scarcity and failure of the Knowledges of good and truth.

10219⁵. 'The seven years of famine' (2 Sam.xxiv.13) . . . By 'famine' is signified a failure and scarcity of the goods and truths which are of faith and love; for these are signified by the bread, food, wheat, barley, oil, and wine which fail while the famine lasts.

R. 323. 'Famine' (Rev.vi.8)=evils of life.

—². 'Famine'=the deprivation and rejection of the Knowledges of truth and good which originate from evils of life. It also=ignorance of the Knowledges of truth and good which originates from their failure in the Church. And it also=a longing to know and understand them. Ill. E.386, Ill.

—⁴. 'Famine,' when mentioned in the Word,=the destruction of spiritual life by means of evils. E.386⁷. Ill.

765. 'Famine' (Rev.xviii.8)=the deprivation of the understanding of all truth. (=when there is mere evil and falsity. E.1125.)

E. 131⁹. 'Famine within the city' (Jer.xiv.18)=the failure of all truth in doctrine.

—¹⁰. 'Famine'=a failure of the Knowledges of truth and good. 315⁶. 734²⁴.

175¹². 'Famine and pestilence'=a failure and consumption of truths.

223⁵. 'Those who are hungry and thirsty'=those who long to know good and truth. 257². 295¹¹. 730²⁵. —²⁷.

388²⁰. 'Famine'=the deprivation of the good of love . . . through falsity.

540⁵. 'Famine'=the deprivation and failure of truth.

652²⁵. 'Famine'=the deprivation, failure, ignorance, and at the same time desire of Knowledges. 654¹⁰. —⁶⁶.

750¹⁰. 'One who is hungry'=one who longs for good. —¹¹.

811⁹. 'Such as are for the famine, to the famine' (Jer.xv.2)=that those who reject truths perish through falsities.

817⁹. 'I will kill thy root with famine, and it shall kill thy remnant' (Is.xiv.30)=that all truths, from their primes to their ultimates, will perish through falsities.

Fan. Ventilabrum. T.176. 258.

E. 374¹⁴. 'A fan' (Matt.iii.12)=separation.

Fanatic. Fanaticus. A.9424². T.58^e. 628.

J.(Post.)295^e.

Fanaticism. Fanaticismus. T.94.

Fane. Fanum. R.926². M.78². —⁴. T.338^e. J.(Post.)282. 5M.14.

Far. Procul.

See under AFAR.

D. 2382. They who are far off hear and perceive more exquisitely what is thought and spoken than they who are near.

Far be it. Absit.

A. 2255. 'Far be it from thee'=the Lord's horror. 2257.

Far off, To be. Elongare.

Removal to a distance. Elongatio.

A. 2685. 'To be far off' (Gen.xxi.16)=to be absent.

7457. That they would quite remove themselves. Sig.

7461. 'Not to go far away' (Ex.viii.28)=not to be far off.

9261. 'Thou shalt set thyself far away' (Ex.xxiii.7) =aversion.

— This is from the removals to a distance which appear in the Spiritual World . . .

10546. 'By removing far from the camp' (Ex.xxxiii. 7)=remote from those externals . . .

D. 3606. Elongata. E.1024.

Farrago. Farrago. A.927².

Fascinate. Fascinare.

Fascination. Fascinatio.

Fascinator. Fascinator.

Witchcraft. Fascinium.

A. 4227^e. (The art of fascinating there.) D.1822. 3090. 4828. E.1107.

P. 130. It fascinates the external of thought.

R. 439². Can fascinate the understanding . . . E.715². 462². This was spiritual witchcraft. Des.

D. 3137. They were interior magicians, fascinators . . . 3719^e. They can thus fascinate men. 3723.

5306. They fascinate a holy external before the eyes.

D.Min. 4753. This is fascination, or the taking away of the power of another.

4754. Their fascination consists in this . . .

4759. They attack all they meet with their witchcrafts . . .

E. 544. Not by any persuasive fascination.

556. This speech fascinates and infatuates the minds of others . . .

590². See ENCHANT.

J.(Post.) 26. See PERSUADE.

De Conj. 93. The women fascinate the men, and the men the women, by diabolical arts.

Coro. 33. As if it were to fascinate their souls. Sig.

45. The Hells of the Ancient Church . . . exercise their arts . . . by means of witchcrafts, etc.

Fashion. Fabricare.

Fabric. Fabrica.

Fashioner. Fabricator.

W. 417^e. The fabric of the lungs.

D. 6071. He so fashioned the Societies . . .

E. 587⁷. 'To fashion the iron with the tongs' (Is. xlv.12)=to hatch falsities.

—⁸. 'The fashioner of a lie' (Hab.ii.18)=him who hatches falsity.

Fast. Jejunare, Jejunium.

Fasting. Jejunus.

Fasting. Jejunatio.

A. 429³. They could fast for many days . . .

4779^e. Jejunium, occurs.

9050⁷. 'A fasting soul' (Is.xxix.8)=a longing to learn the goods . . . of faith.

9182¹⁰. 'They will fast when the bridegroom is taken away from them' (Matt.ix.15)=that they are in an unhappy state when good is no longer conjoined with truths.

E. 375²⁴. 'To fast'=to mourn; because they fasted when they mourned.

730¹¹. 'Fasting' (Matt.iv.2)=affliction, such as exists in the combats of temptations.

750¹⁰. 'A fasting soul'=no understanding of good.

1189². 'To fast'=to mourn on account of the failure of truth and good.

Fasting. Inedia. D.6081.

Fat. Adeps.

A. 100r⁴. 'Fat' (Lev.iii.17)=celestial life.

394¹². 'Fat of the kidneys of wheat' (Deut.xxxii.14)=the Celestial of love and charity; and as 'fat,' or 'fat-pinguedo,'=what is celestial . . .

399³. 'The fat of lambs' (id.)=the charity of innocence.

4581¹¹. 'They did eat the fat of the sacrifices' (ver.38)=they destroyed the good of worship.

9299. 'The fat of My feast shall not pass the night even to the morning' (Ex.xxiii.18)=the good of worship not from proprium, but from the Lord always new.

—, 'Fat,' or 'fat-pinguedo'=the good of love. Refs.

10029. 'Thou shalt take all the fat' (Ex.xxix.13)=good accommodated.

10032. 'The two kidneys and the fat upon them' (id.)=the interior truth of the external man, and the good thereof.

10033. The reason all the fat was to be burned upon the altar . . . was that it=Divine good.

—⁴. That 'fat,' or 'fat-pinguedo'=Divine good. Ill.

—⁵. Therefore the Israelitish people were utterly forbidden to eat fat and blood. 10040.

10070. 'Thou shalt take the fat from the ram' (ver.22)=good in the Heavens.

10072. 'The fat covering the intestines' (id.)=good in ultimates.

E. 167⁶. 'Fat'=the good of love. 365²⁶. 374¹².

329⁹. As the fat in the sacrifices=the Divine good . . . they were forbidden to eat it. Ex. 617²⁵. 1159⁴.

357². 'The fat of the mighty' (2 Sam.i.22)=evils overcome and dissipated.

374¹¹. 'Fat'=celestial good.

617²⁴. 'Fat'=interior goods.

619¹⁰. 'The fat of wheat'=the delight of spiritual good.

730¹⁰. These were partly represented by the fats which were sacrificed from the bullock and from the second goat.

1159². 'To satisfy the soul with fat and fat-pinguedo' (Ps.lxiii.5)=to be filled with the good of love and the joy thence derived.

Fat. *Pingue.

Fat. Pinguis.

Fatness, or Fat. Pinguedo.

Fat, To make. Pinguefacere.

A. 353. 'Their fat' (Gen.iv.4)=the Celestial itself, which is of the Lord.

—, All these (celestial things) were represented by the fats in the sacrifices. Enum.

—, Therefore the Jewish people were forbidden to eat any fat from beasts.

—². That 'fatness'=celestial things, and the goods of charity. Ill.

—, 'Fatness is not meant, but celestial spiritual good.

—, 'Fatness' (Ps.xxxvi.8)=the Celestial which is of love.

—, 'My soul shall be satisfied with fat and fatness' (Ps.lxiii.5)=what is celestial.

—, Hence the firstfruits of the earth were called 'fatness.'

415. The goods of love, of which 'a fat (pasture)' is predicated (Ezek.xxxiv.14). —².

2184. See BUTTER, MILK, and OIL, here.

2341². 'Fat things,' and 'marrowy ones'=goods.

3579. 'God give thee . . . of the fatnesses of the earth' (Gen.xxvii.28)=from the Divine good.

3600. 'Of the fatnesses of the earth shall be thy dwelling' (ver.39)=life from Divine good.

3941². See FAT-adeps. 9299. 10033⁴. E.1159².

5200. 'Fat in flesh' (Gen.xli.2)=which are of charity. 'Fat,' or 'fatness'=what is celestial, and is predicated of the good which is of love and charity.

5213. 'Fat and good' (ver.5)=into which the things of faith and charity can be applied. 'Fat,' when predicated of the scientific signified by 'the ears of corn,'=things receptive of the good of faith . . .

5943. 'Ye shall eat the fat* of the land' (Gen.xlv.18)=the appropriation of good there.

—, 'Fat'=what is celestial, or good . . . not only the fat which is in an animal, but also the fat* from any other source ; as butter, oil : and the things which derive anything from fat* = good in proportion as they derive from it ; as milk, honey, gum.

—². That 'fatness' was a representative of celestial good, thus of the love which is from the Lord, is evident from the burnt-offerings and sacrifices, in that all the fat was burnt upon the altar ; and that there was from it an odour of rest to Jehovah ; and also from the fact that the sons of Israel were forbidden to eat fat. —³, Ill.

—⁵. The fat and its being burnt = the veriest Divine Celestial itself, which is the good of love from the Lord. Ill.

—⁷. 'Fatnesses' = the goods of love and of charity.

—¹⁰. As 'fatness' = good, it is adjoined to such things as are not fat in themselves, but which = goods ; thus 'fat'* and good are as it were the same thing. Ill.

6409. 'His bread fat' (Gen. xlix. 20) = delight from good. 'Fat' = delight ; for 'fatness' = what is celestial, or the good of love ; but when 'fat'* is mentioned and is joined to 'bread,' which = the good of love, then 'fat'* = the delight which is of that love. E. 438⁴.

7729⁷. 'To eat the flesh of the fat'* (Zech. xi. 16) = to turn good into evil.

9391⁵. See FATTED.

9780⁸. To make fat the head with oil' (Ps. xxiii. 5) = to endow with celestial good.

P. 231⁶. The Jews forbidden to eat fat and blood (Lev. iii. 17 ; vii. 23, 25) = lest they should profane holy things ; for 'fat' = Divine good ; and 'blood,' Divine truth.

R. 782. 'Things fat and splendid' (Rev. xviii. 14) = celestial and spiritual affections of good and truth. (= goods and truths, and happy and magnificent things. E. 1159.)

—³. That 'fat things' = celestial goods and their affections and delights of affections. Ill.

952². Fat in mind.

E. 252⁷. 'A feast of fat things' = the appropriation and communication of goods.

324¹⁷. 'To bring burnt-offerings of fat things' = worship from the good of celestial love.

376⁸. 'Fatnesses of the earth' = the celestial things which are of the good of love.

—³¹. 'The head of the valley of the fat ones' (Is. xxviii. 1) = the intelligence of the natural man.

439⁶. See EGYPT. 627¹³. 654²¹.

483¹⁰. 'Fatness' (Ps. xxxvi. 8) = the good of love.

617¹⁰. 'To be delighted in fatness' (Is. lv. 2) = to be delighted from good. (= to be in happiness and blessedness. 1159².)

644¹². 'Fat and wealthy' (Is. xxx. 23) = full of the good of love and of the truths thence derived.

1159². The reason 'fat things' = goods and the happinesses thence, is that the fatness is the best of the flesh ; and because it is like oil, which = the good of love. Ill.

—³. 'A feast of fat things, of fat things full of marrow' = good both natural and spiritual with joy of heart.

—⁴. 'Fats,'* in the opposite sense, = those who nauseate good, and who despise and reject it very much. Ill.

Fate. Fatum.

A. 6487. Spirits who impressed on themselves something of fate or absolute necessity . . . But they were shown that . . . it is not from necessity. Examp.

S478⁶. Such refer all things to fate . . .

M. 229⁶. It is said as from fate . . . and it is meant from the Divine Providence . . . 316⁶.

T. 798⁸. (Calvin said) Everyone else is written down for his . . . fate.

D. Min. 4692. On Providence, and on fate.

Father. Pater.

A. 160. 'To leave father and mother' (Gen. ii. 24) = to leave the internal man ; for it is the internal man which conceives and bears the external.

423. (Jabal and Jubal were called 'fathers,' as originators.)

1412. 'From the house of thy father' (Gen. xii. 1) = such interior things (as affections and scientifics).

1414. See HEREDITARY. 1438. 1444.

— That which a man derives from his father, remains to eternity. 1444².

1448. The Lord's first worship of His Father, from the Celestial of love. 1454.

1475². How the Lord was instructed by His Father according to all order. Tr.

1573³. The hereditary evil from the father is interior and remains to eternity ; for it can never be eradicated. Such the Lord had not, because He was born from Jehovah the Father . . .

1815. Whatever the Lord received from the Father was Jehovah in Him . . .

— Man receives from his father all that is internal : the soul itself, or life, is from the father . . . In a word, the interior man, or spirit itself, is from the father ; but the exterior man, or body itself, is from the mother : as everyone may apprehend from the fact, that the soul itself is implanted by the father . . . and whatever is added afterwards is from the mother. 4963².

1853. 'Thou shalt come to thy fathers in peace' (Gen. xv. 15) = that nothing of goods and truths shall be injured . . . 'Fathers,' here, = the same as daughters and sons together ; (that is,) goods and truths.

— 'To come to their fathers' = to pass from the life of the body into the life of the spirit. 3255.

1893. The internal man with the Lord was Jehovah Himself, for He was conceived from Jehovah ; and therefore He so often mentioned His 'Father' . . .

1921². In proportion as human offspring recede from the likeness of their father, they recede from the father . . . Hence it is that the love of a father towards his children is diminished according to their advance in age. It was otherwise with the Lord . . .

[A.] 2004. 'Thou shalt be for a father of a multitude of nations' (Gen.xvii.4)=the union of the Human essence with the Divine one. . . 'Father'=from Himself; that is, from the Lord. 2005, Ex. 2011.

—³. It is this reciprocal union which the Lord means when He attributes to the Father what belongs to Himself, and to Himself what belongs to the Father. Ill. 2025⁴, Ex. 2026.

—⁵. Hence it is evident that the Lord was not another than the Father, although He spoke of the Father as of another; and this by reason of the reciprocal union which was to be effected. Shown.

—^e. (Thus) in Heaven they know no other Father than the Lord; because the Father is in Him . . . and when they see Him, they see the Father. 2293. 2305. 7089.

2005. The soul is from the father . . . The Lord's internal was from the Father, thus was the Father Himself. Hence He says that the Father is in Him; that 'I am in the Father, and the Father in Me; he that seeth Me, seeth the Father;' that 'I and the Father are one' . . .

2329⁴. See DIVINE ITSELF. 2447⁶. 3736. —. 4207. 4235. 5110². 9818⁶. 10052². 10067². —⁵. 10823⁶. R.222². T.82^e. E.1069². De. Dom. 70.

2465². 'Our father is old' (Gen.xix.31)=that it is no longer known what good is.

2554^e. Unless it had been said that they should adore the Father, although there is no access to Him except through the Son . . . it would not have been received.

2557. 'She is the daughter of my father, but not . . . of my mother' (Gen.xx.12)=that the Rational is conceived from celestial good as a father, but not from spiritual truth as a mother. Ex.

2586. All the conception of doctrine is from good as a father, but it is born through truth as from a mother.

2649². He thus became one with the Father.

2663^e. 'Father, Son, and Holy Spirit,' in the internal sense, are not three Gods, but one.

2803. See DIVINE GOOD. —³. 3246². 3704. 4644^e. 8724. 10047². 10196². E.254³. Ath.156.

— . The reason 'the Son'=Divine truth, and 'the Father' Divine good, is that the union of the Divine essence with the Human one, and of the Human one with the Divine one, is the marriage of Divine good with truth, and of truth with good . . . Good itself is 'the Father,' and truth itself is 'the Son;' but as there is a Divine marriage of good and truth, and of truth and good, the Father is in the Son, and the Son in the Father. Ill.

—⁴. Hence the Lord so often said that He went to the Father . . . Ill.

3036^e. 'The house of my father' (Gen.xxiv.7)=the maternal Hereditary as to evil.

3061. The communication of the Divine Itself which is the Father with the Divine Human which is the Son, Sig. 3285, Sig.

3128. Internal good is called 'the father's house' . . . All good and truth is born through the influx of internal good as a father, into external good as a mother.

3154³. 'Thou shalt go unto my father's house' (Gen.xxiv.38)=good which is from the Divine.

3255. Fathers, with them, =goods.

3299. Whatever is born derives its being from the father, and its manifesting from the mother . . . The Natural as to good is conceived from rational good as a father; and as to truth, is conceived from rational truth as a mother. 3677.

3441. The conjunction of man with the Divine Itself which is called 'the Father,' is through the Divine Human which is called 'the Son;' thus through the Lord . . .

3518. Every man receives domestic good from his father and from his mother, which goods are distinct from each other; that which he receives from the father is interior; and that from the mother is exterior. With the Lord, these goods were perfectly distinct, for the good which He had from the Father was Divine, but that from the mother was contaminated with hereditary evil. That good in the Natural which the Lord had from the Father was His proprium . . .

—². (So) the good which a man receives from the Lord as a new Father is interior . . .

3528. 'Perhaps my father will feel me' (Gen.xxvii.12) =the inmost degree of perception. . . 'Father'=good; here, Divine.

3599². The natural good of the Lord's infancy, which was Divine from the Father, but human from the mother . . .

3670. 'Abraham'=the Divine called 'the Father.' 3673.

3690². When being regenerated, they receive another Father . . .

3703. The reason 'father'=good, is that it is good from which are each and all things . . . Ill.

—². (Thus) good is as a father, and truth is as a mother; and therefore 'father'=good; and 'mother,' truth; and, in fact, the good and truth from which come lower or derived goods and truths . . . Ill.

—⁷. In all these passages, 'father and mother'=good and truth; and, in the supreme sense, the Lord as to Divine good and Divine truth.

— . To be 'called father on earth' is not forbidden, but to acknowledge at heart any other father than the Lord.

—⁸. The like is involved by what the Lord said to (him) who said, 'Suffer me to go and bury my father' (Matt.viii.21). For a father on earth relatively to the Father in Heaven . . . is as a dead to a living one.

—¹¹. 'My father and my mother have forsaken me' (Ps.xxvii.10)= . . . when man observes that of himself he cannot do anything good or know anything true.

—¹². 'Instead of thy fathers shall be thy sons' (Ps.xlv.16)=that Divine truths shall be as Divine goods.

—¹³. 'Fathers,' here, (Deut.x.15)=the Ancient and Most Ancient Churches, which are so called from the love of good and truth in which they were . . .

—¹⁹. (Thus) 'father,' in the genuine sense, =good; and in the supreme sense, the Lord.

—²⁰. 'Father,' in the opposite sense, =evil; and 'mother,' falsity. Ill. 6306³.

3704⁵. As priests represented the Lord as to Divine good, they were called 'fathers.' Ill.

—⁸. That the Lord is one with the Father. Ill.

—⁹. 'The Father,' here, =Divine good; and 'the Son,' Divine truth; both in the Lord. (3705³). From the Divine good, which is 'the Father,' nothing can . . . go forth but . . . Divine truth, which is 'the Son.'

—⁹. 'The Father sending Him' =that He proceeds from the Father.

—¹¹. They who are in Divine good are they who love; hence it is said that 'he shall be loved by the Father' . . .

3705³. 'The Father having given' =that it was from the Divine good which was His, thus from His Own. —^e.

3736. 'I shall return in peace to the house of my father' (Gen.xxviii.21)=even to perfect union. 'The father's house,' when predicated of the Lord, =the Divine itself in which the Lord was from His very conception; and 'to return to that house' =to the Divine good itself, which is called 'the Father.'

—¹¹. That 'He came forth from the Father' =that the Divine Itself assumed the Human; that 'He came into the world' =that He was as a man; and that 'He went to the Father' =that He united the Human essence to the Divine essence. Ill.

3794. 'Which was her father's' (Gen.xxix.9)=from good as to origin. 3803.

3857⁶. The disciples could not but think that . . . God the Father was supreme in His kingdom, and the Son next to Him.

3863¹¹. 'No one having seen the Father but He who is with the Father' (John vi.46)=that Divine good can be acknowledged only by Divine truth. . . Hence the internal sense is, that no one can have celestial good unless he acknowledges the Lord.

3952². (Thus) the Divine marriage itself of the Lord is not between good Divine and truth Divine in His Divine Human, but between the good of the Divine Human and the Divine Itself; that is, between the Son and the Father; for the good of the Divine Human is what is called 'the Son of God,' and the Divine Itself, 'the Father.' 3960².

3960. See DIVINE HUMAN. 6849⁵. 10267². 10738⁴. L.29. —². 32⁶. —⁷. 34². 35. P.262⁴. —⁷. R.613. 618². —^e. T.73³. 98. —². 112⁴. 154⁶. 538². D.5244². etc.

4069. 'Return to the Land of thy fathers' (Gen.xxxi.3) =that now He should betake Himself nearer to good Divine.

4075. 'The God of my father hath been with me' (ver.5)=that all things which He had were from the Divine.

4077. 'Father,' here Laban, =mediate good. 4111. 4159.

4121. Goods and truths acknowledge no Father but the Lord.

4145. See DESIRE—desiderare.

4180. 'The God of my father,' when predicated of the Lord, =the Divine as to good.

4207. 'The God of their father' (ver.53)=from the supreme Divine. . . For 'father' =good; and the Lord's Father, or 'the Father' when mentioned by the Lord, =the Divine good which is in Him. The Divine good is the supreme Divine . . .

4317⁴. The hereditary evil from the father is interior . . . and cannot be easily eradicated. 4644².

4334². 'But My father only' (Matt.xxiv.36)=that the Lord alone knows the state of the Church as to good and truth in special . . .

4447. The good of the Church is the father; and the truth thence derived is the son: hence 'father' =good; and 'son,' truth. 4973⁷.

4674. 'Joseph brought to their father their evil report' . . . 'Father,' here, =the good of the Ancient Church. 4680. —^e.

4844⁶. The Lord is called their Father, because He leads them like a father; and this through truth into good . . .

5041. See BE. 10738⁵.

5117³. See ANCIENT CHURCH. 6304. 6428. 6846.

5147⁶. 'To do the will of the Father, and to perfect His work' (John iv.34)=the Divine good in act . . .

5353. 'All the house of my father' (Gen.xli.51)=the removal of hereditary evils.

5506. 'To Jacob their father' (Gen.xlii.29)=the good of natural truth.

5581. See CHURCH.

5616. 'Israel their father said to them' (Gen.xliii.11) =perception from spiritual good. . . He is called 'their father,' because the truths which his sons represent are from this good as a father. 5680.

5680. 'Thy servant our father hath peace' (ver.28) =that it is well with the good a quo.

5689³. That which gives essence is as a father . . . and that which gives clothing is as a mother . . .

5902. 'He hath set me for a father to Pharaoh' (Gen. xlv.8) = . . . that from him, as from good, is the Natural.

5906. 'Go up to my father' (ver.9) =to spiritual good (6084. 6102. 6499. 6514.) . . . How spiritual good is the father of the Celestial Internal. Ex.

5998. Each of the fathers of the Israelitish nation worshipped his own god. Ill.

6041. '(Joseph said) to his father's house' (Gen.xlvi. 31) =the perception of the goods there.

6050. 'Both we, and also our fathers' (ver.34) =that it was so from the first goods.

—¹¹. In many places, 'fathers' do not mean Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, but those who were of the Ancient Church who were in good. 6075, Ill. 6182.

6138². 'Whoever loveth father and mother more than Me, is not worthy of Me' (Matt.x.37) =the things which are proper to man from heredity.

6197⁶. No one in Hell acknowledges the Lord . . . but they are not unwilling to hear of the Father the Creator of the universe.

[A.] 6492. My father appeared to me in a dream. I said that after a son has become his own master, he ought not to acknowledge his father as his father, as before : for the reason he is to be acknowledged during education is that he is then in the place of the Lord . . . But when he becomes his own master . . . the Lord is his Father . . . D.2821.

6674³. See ASK-peterc.

6690. The things of the mind were called a house ; the good reigning therein, the father ; the truth adjoined to that good, the mother . . .

6716². The inmost of life of every man, called the soul, is from the father ; but that which clothes that inmost, called the body, is from the mother : the inmost of life, which is from the father, continually inflows and operates into the external which is from the mother, and endeavours to make it like itself, even in the womb . . . (So with the Lord.)

6756². As (spiritual relationships) derive their origin from one Father, the Lord . . . they who come into Heaven acknowledge no longer any brother, nor even mother and father, except from good and truth . . .

6806. The Lord Knows all in the universe, but not as a Father His sons, except those who are in the good of love and charity.

6876. 'The God of your fathers'=the Divine of the Ancient Church. 6884. 6957. 7649. 8055. 8270. 8652.

6993². The reason 'the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit' were spoken of, was that they might acknowledge the Lord, and also the Divine in Him . . .

7499. The Divine truth proceeds from the Divine good as a Son from a Father. When the Lord was in the world, He made His Human Divine truth, and then called the Divine good, which is Jehovah, His 'Father' . . . 8573². 8705³. 8724.

7833. 'House of fathers' (Ex.xii.3)=the good of one family distinct from the good of another.

8055. 'Fathers' (Ex.xiii.11)=those who are in good and truth.

8328. 'The Father in the Heavens'=the Divine in Heaven, thus the good from which Heaven is. Regarded in itself, the Divine is above the Heavens ; but the Divine in the Heavens is the good which is in the truth that proceeds from the Divine. This is meant by 'the Father in the Heavens.' Ill. 9950².

8652. 'Father'=the Church as to good.

8876. 'Visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the sons'=the proliferation of falsity from evil thence.

—². In the proximate sense (these words mean) that evil increases with the fathers, and is thus transmitted hereditarily into the children . . . But in the spiritual sense 'fathers'=evils. 8908².

8897. 'Honour thy father and thy mother'=love for good and truth : in the supreme sense, for the Lord and His Kingdom. . . The reason the Lord in the supreme sense is 'the Father,' is that He gives new life to man . . .

9015. 'He that smiteth his father and his mother' (Ex.xxi.15) is to blaspheme the Lord and His Kingdom . . . In the relative sense, it is to blaspheme the good and truth of the Church.

9021. 'He that curseth his father and his mother' (ver.17)=the complete denial of the Lord and His Kingdom by those who are of the Church ; and thus the profanation of the good and truth of the Church.

9185. 'If her father refuse to give her to him' (Ex. xxii.16)=if interior good does not admit conjunction . . . 'Father'=interior good, because from interior good as a father and from interior truth as a mother are conceived and born exterior truths and goods, called 'sons and daughters.' 9199.

9960³. 'To uncover their father's nakednesses' (Ezek. xxii.10)=to reveal these evils from the Hereditary and from the Voluntary.

9971. The invisible God is called the Father.

10053². 'The Father'=the Divine Itself which was in Him ; and 'the Son'=the Divine Human.

10490². 'Father'=the evil which is from the proprium of man.

10623. 'Visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the sons, and upon the sons' sons' (Ex.xxxiv.7)=the rejection and damnation of evils and of the falsities thence in a long series.

—². For good is the father of truth, and evil is the father of falsity.

10736². He had thought only of the Father . . .

10814. He who is the father of the nation rules ; under him the fathers of families ; and under these the fathers of each house . . . The father of the nation acts from a more interior love . . .

10819. As the Father is in the Lord, and the Father and the Lord are one . . . it is evident that the Lord is God. Ill. 10822.

10822. See TRINITY. L.46².

H. 3. They who have acknowledged the Father alone, and have confirmed themselves in such a faith, are outside of Heaven . . . 6.

4. All infants . . . are initiated into the acknowledgment and faith that the Lord is their Father . . .

382. 'Mother and father'=the truth conjoined with good which procreates.

427. I saw a father speaking to six sons . . .

N. 83². Everyone has interior evils from the father, and exterior ones from the mother. Ref.

J. 9². 'The Father' and 'the Lord' (John xiv.23)= Heaven.

L. 20. That He 'was sent by the Father' means that He was conceived by Jehovah the Father. Ill.

32². In these passages, and in all others where 'the Father' is mentioned, is meant the Divine which was in the Lord from conception . . .

35². When in the state of humiliation, He prayed to the Father as another than Himself ; but in the state of glorification, He spoke to the Father as to Himself. Ill.

S. 67. In the commandment 'Honour thy father and thy mother,' a man by 'father and mother' understands his father and mother on earth, and all who are in the place of father and mother . . . But a spiritual Angel by 'father' understands the Lord, and by 'mother' the Church . . . And a celestial Angel by 'father' understands the Lord's Divine love, and by 'mother' His Divine wisdom. (Compare E.1083³.)

W. 6. See CONCEIVE.

269. Man derives evil from his father, from whom he has his soul . . . For the seed, which is from the father, is the first receptacle of life; but such a receptacle as it had been with the father; for it is in the form of his love . . .

P. 122. If a man looks to God the Father only, he cannot be purified; nor if he looks to the Father for the sake of the Son. 231⁶.

262⁴. As He was conceived from God the Father . . . are not the Father and Himself one, as the soul and body are one?

—⁵. The Divine Itself a quo is what is called 'the Father'; the Divine Human is what is called 'the Son'; and the proceeding Divine is what is called 'the Holy Spirit.' T.172³. E.183¹³.

277³. The soul of everyone is from the father, and it is only clothed with a body from the mother. (Shown by the case of black children of a black father and a white mother; and vice versa.) M.206, Gen.art. T.92.

— The seed is the first form of the love in which the father is; it is the form of his reigning love, with its nearest derivations . . . Hence, as a child grows . . . he comes . . . at last to his father's reigning love . . .

330. As every man is formed by the Lord in the womb in the image of God according to the likeness of God . . . it follows that the Lord is the heavenly Father of all men . . . and therefore He says, 'Call no man your father upon the earth, for One is your Father who is in the Heavens' (Matt.xxiii.9); which means that He alone is the Father as to life, and that the earthly father is the father only as to the covering of life, which is the body; and therefore in Heaven no other Father is mentioned than the Lord.

R. 21. 'To God and His Father' (Rev.i.6)=thus images of His Divine wisdom, and of His Divine love. (=the Divine truth, and the Divine good. E.32.)

150. 'As I have received from My Father' (Rev.ii.27) =that they will have this from the Lord, who acquired all power over the Hells, while He was in the world, from the Divine which was in Himself. E.178.

170. 'I will confess his name before the Father, and before His Angels' (Rev.iii.5)=that those will be received who are in Divine good and in Divine truths from the Lord; thus who have the life of Heaven in them. . . 'The Father'=Divine good . . . from the Lord. E.200.

— In the (Gospels) 'the Father' is very often mentioned by the Lord, and everywhere is meant Jehovah, from whom and in whom He was, and who was in Him. . . The Lord spoke of 'the Father,' because by 'father,' in the spiritual sense, is signified good; and by 'God the Father,' the Divine good of the Divine love. The Angels never understand anything else by 'the Father' when that name is read in the Word; nor can they understand anything else, because no one in the Heavens knows anyone as his father, from whom they are said to be born, and whose sons and heirs they are called, but the Lord. (M.250^e.) This is meant by the Lord's words in Matt.xxiii.9. (Thus) 'to confess his name before the Father'=that they will be received among those who are in Divine good from Him. E.200.

222. 'As I sit with the Father in His throne' (ver. 21)=as He and the Father are one, and are Heaven. . . For the union of the Lord with the Father, that is, with His own Divine in Himself, had for its end that man might be conjoined with the Divine which is called the Father in the Lord; because it is impossible for man to be conjoined with the Divine of the Father immediately, but mediately through His Divine Human. Sig.

—³. It is otherwise with the Divine of the Father. This is not adjoined, but united, to the Lord's Human, as the soul is to its body. Sig.

484². (The notion that God the Father had fallen from grace towards mankind, refuted.)

—³. It is presumption to climb up to God the Father. . .

500. The two things which are antagonistic to (the two essentials of the New Church): First, that not the Lord, but God the Father is to be approached.

504². From this it is evident why the men of the Church approach God the Father immediately.

566. (The futility of praying to God the Father, shown by experiment.) T.162.

613. 'Having His Father's name written in their foreheads' (Rev.xiv.1)=the acknowledgment of the Divine and of the Divine Human of the Lord from love and faith with them. 'The name of the Father'=the Lord as to the Divine a quo which is called 'the Father,' and at the same time as to the Divine Human which is called 'the Son;' because they are one Person, united like soul and body. Therefore, in Heaven, by God the Father is meant no other than the Lord; and, in the New Heaven, the Lord is also called the Father. The reason the name of the Father is here said to be in their foreheads, is also that the Divine good of the Lord's Divine love is meant by 'the Father' . . .

743². Hence His Human is the Human of God the Father. . .

839⁵. They answered, The words (of the Lord's prayer) are clear, that we must pray to God the Father. . .

—⁶. (The Angels said) We in Heaven read that Prayer daily . . . and we do not think of God the Father, because He is invisible; but we think of Him in His Divine Human . . . and thus to us the Lord is the Father in Heaven. Ill. T.112⁶.

— His Divine Human is 'the name of the Father.' And 'the Kingdom of the Father comes,' when the Lord is immediately approached, and not at all when God the Father is immediately approached.

962⁵. Only when the Lord as to the Divine Human is approached . . . can the Divine which is called 'the Father' be approached. Ill.

M. 118. That the Lord is called 'Father,' and the Church, 'mother.' Ill.

194². 'The father and mother' whom a man is to leave=his proprium of will and proprium of understanding, (which are) to love himself and his own wisdom.

206. A father returns in likeness; if not in his sons, in his grandsons and great-grandsons.

284. The love of children, with the mother, is as the heart there; and the love towards them, with the father, is as the lungs there.

[M.] 393. That this sphere affects . . . the mothers; and the . . . fathers from them.

407. Fathers who regarded little children with hatred; but who loved them to excess the moment they were made to believe that they were their own.)

T. 82^e. Therefore the Lord so often called Jehovah God His 'Father,' and Jehovah God called Him His 'Son.'

97. That by these acts the Lord united Himself to the Father, and the Father united Himself to Him. Gen. art. 105. 110⁴.

98. That the Father and the Son; that is, the Divine and the Human, are united in the Lord like soul and body . . . 110.

103. After death every man lays aside the Natural which he took from his mother, and retains the Spiritual which he had from the father, together with a certain limbus from the purest things of nature around it . . .

—². As a man's soul is the man himself . . . it is evident whence it is that the mind, animus, disposition, inclination, and affection of the father's love dwell in offspring after offspring . . . Hence many families, and even nations, are recognized from their first father . . . For in the seed . . . there is a graft or offset from the father's soul . . . which may be made either to the likeness of the father, or to the likeness of the mother, the father's image still remaining within it, which constantly endeavours to put itself forth . . . The reason the image of the father is in its fulness in the seed, is that the soul is spiritual . . .

105. Hence the Lord prayed to the Father . . . 110³, Ex.

112⁴. What then is the Father but the Son, and what the Son but the Father? Sig.

—⁴. That the Divine of the Father is of the Human of the Son, and the Human of the Son of the Divine of the Father. Sig.

—⁵. (Thus) the Divine of the Father is the soul of the Son, and the Human of the Son is the body of the Father. Whence is the soul of a son but from the father? and whence is his body, but from the mother? It is said the Divine of the Father, and the Father Himself is meant . . .

135⁴. God the Father can never be approached, nor can He approach any man . . .

153. That the Lord operates from Himself from the Father, and not the reverse. Gen.art.

159². Spirits maintaining that God the Father, because He is invisible, is to be approached. (Their arguments.)

166. That the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit are the three essentials of one God, which make one, as the soul, body, and operation with man. Gen.art. 167.

305. 'Honour thy father and thy mother . . .' Gen. art.

306. In the spiritual sense, 'to honour the father and the mother' = to reverence and love God and the Church. Ex.

307. In the celestial sense, by 'Father' is meant our Lord Jesus Christ; and by 'mother,' the communion of saints . . .

308. Hence the Lord created the sun, to be in the natural world as a father, the earth being as a mother. For the sun is as a common father, and the earth as a common mother . . .

337. Therefore they who approach Him, also approach the Father at the same time. 538^e.

370. That there cannot be conjunction with God the Father, but with the Lord, and through Him with God the Father. Gen.art.

379. See FATH.

—⁴. God the Father in a Human form . . .

536². They first approach three gods; afterwards, the Father only; and at last no one.

538. That man is 'not to climb up some other way' = not to God the Father, because He is invisible . . .

700². In the New Church, God the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit are acknowledged as one . . .

D. 408. (Lot of those who acknowledge only God the Father.) 575.

3790^e. A bed in which lay my father and I.

4182. My father was often absent from home, and always returned in a state of delight . . .

4191. I dreamed that my father fell into the water . . . The Word with me was represented by my father when in life.

4340. 'The Father' = good; 'the Son,' truth; and 'the Holy Spirit,' the good and truth proceeding from Him.

4713. They acknowledge one God, but only the Father . . . The only idea they have of the Father is as of a universal infinite . . .

4847². In three successive essentials, which are the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit . . .

4876. In their prayers they make supplication to the Father . . . and speak to the Father, although they know that no one can come to the Father except through the Lord . . . and that the Father does not hear anyone except mediately through the Lord . . . 5378.

4880. An old man . . . whom some believe to be God the Father.

5934^e. They said that the Father has all Power . . . not acknowledging the Divine of the Lord except in so far as He receives from the Father . . . It was shown that they acknowledged nature for the Father.

5941¹. That they who acknowledge the Father only, and pass by the Lord, are determined to the loves of the body and the world.

5976. That all the evil are against the Lord . . . but are not against the Father. 5988^e.

6025⁴. They believe that the Father is the only God . . . and they see the Father on high; but they receive answers from a certain Spirit . . . who says he is God the Father.

6096. xxv. They who worship the Father only, and think nothing of the Divine of the Lord, are in adultery as of a brother with a sister.

D. Min. 4793. One who had impressed on himself . . . to imitate my father.

E. 32. Therefore, when the Lord mentioned 'the Father,' He meant His own Divine in Himself. Ill.

114. They pray to the Father . . . when yet no man or Angel can ever approach the Father . . . for He is the invisible Divine, with Whom no one can be conjoined in faith and love . . . Ill.

—². (Thus) the Lord is rejected by those in the Church who approach the Father immediately . . .

151. They who have thought only of the Father . . . make a god for themselves of nature in its least parts . . .

175⁹. 'Fathers' = goods; 'sons' = the truths thence.

200². The reason 'Father,' when mentioned by the Lord, means the Divine good which is in the Lord and from the Lord, is that the Lord called His 'Father' the Divine which was in Himself from conception, and which was the being of His life . . . Ill.

—³. As the Lord is one with the Father, He says . . .

—⁴. One reason among many why the Lord so often mentioned 'the Father' as another, is that by 'the Father' in the internal sense is meant the Divine good . . . Therefore 'the Father' is mentioned in order that the Lord's Divine good may be perceived by the Angels . . .

— That 'father' = good. Refs.

— That 'father' = the Church as to good, thus the good of the Church; and 'mother,' the Church as to truth, thus the truth of the Church. Refs.

254. 'I sit with My Father in His throne' = the Divine good united to the Divine truth in Heaven . . .

—². Why the Lord spoke of His conjunction with men as of His conjunction with the Father.

—³. The heat which proceeds from Him as a Sun is the Divine good; this is meant by 'the Father in the Heavens.' Ill. 297.

—⁴. That the Divine good is meant by 'the Father.' Ill. 267². 295³. 419³. 907².

297. 'The Father judgeth no man' . . . 'The Father' = the Lord as to Divine good . . .

—². The Divine which the Lord called 'the Father' was His own Divine . . . 309².

328³. There is the Father; for the Father is in Him and He in the Father . . . Therefore they who pray to the Father . . . turn aside from the way . . .

349⁷. 'The Father,' here means the Divine Itself of the Lord which assumed the Human; for this Divine was in Him from conception; and because He was conceived from it, He called it 'the Father.'

372⁵. 'Father and mother' = the Church as to good and truth.

375³. 'Father' = the Lord; and 'mother' His Kingdom.

403¹⁴. 'Fathers' = those who were of the Ancient Church. 504²⁵.

411¹⁴. 'The Father in the Heavens' = the Divine in the Lord.

422¹⁵. Before the Lord's advent, the Divine proceeded from His Divine which He called 'the Father' . . .

433¹⁵. 'The land which I have caused your fathers to inherit' (Jer. iii. 18) = the Church which is in Knowledge and in the light of truth.

—³². 'Father' (John viii. 44) = both those who are from Hell and those of that generation who had lived before, even from the earliest times. 589².

444⁹. 'Father and mother' = the Israelitish Church. . . . The Church is called 'father' from good, and 'mother' from truth. 624¹⁹.

449³. The reigning affection with man is from his father . . . but with the Lord, the affection or soul from the Father was the Divine Itself, which is the Divine good of the Divine love.

504³¹. 'The father against the son, and the son against the father' (Luke xii. 53) = evil against truth, and truth against evil. (Compare 532¹¹.)

555¹⁶. 'To bewail her father and mother a month of days' = that the evils and falsities of her religion are to be buried in oblivion.

—¹⁷. 'Fathers' = those who are in the goods of the Church; here, those who are in evils. 617²⁹.

600⁵. Therefore they are called 'the blessed of My Father.' 'Father' = the Divine good, from which are all things of Heaven. —².

631. 'Call no man your father' . . . Because 'father' means the Lord, who creates and generates us anew . . . and therefore when a man is in a spiritual idea, he must think of the Lord alone as His Father and Master. It is otherwise when he is in a natural idea.

644²³. 'The Father in the Heavens' = the proceeding Divine; for all who receive it are called 'the sons of their Father;' that is, of the Lord.

659¹⁷. 'Gathered to their fathers,' etc. = to those who are like themselves.

710²⁶. 'To leave father and mother . . . ' = to leave that evil and falsity which a man has from his religion, and which defiles his understanding; thus from his father and mother.

714¹². All who constitute the dragon adore God the Father . . .

724⁴. The procreating goods and truths . . . which are in the spiritual man, are as father and mother . . .

—³. The love of self and the consequent love of the world are 'their father and mother' (which they are to 'hate').

—⁶. 'The father shall be divided against the son, and the son against the father' = that evil will fight against truth, and truth against evil: 'the father,' here, = the evil which is proper to man.

—²⁹. 'The fathers shall eat up the sons, and the sons the fathers' (Ezek. v. 10) = that evils will destroy truths, and falsities goods.

725⁹. Occurs.

746¹³. As 'father' = good, and 'the Father in the Heavens' = the Divine good . . . for the sake of the spiritual sense in all things of the Word, it is said, that they were not to call their father on earth Father . . .

In the natural sense they may be called fathers, but representatively, namely . . . that the fathers of the world are indeed good, and lead their children to good; but not from themselves, but from the Lord. Hence it follows, that although they are called . . . fathers, still they are not . . . fathers, but the Lord alone.

[E.] 805¹. It is never granted to any man of the Church to approach God the Father immediately . . .

—¹⁰. Sight directed to the Father conjoins no one.

Sig.

—¹². They who look to the Father, even if they acknowledge the Divine of the Lord, do not approach the latter . . .

807². The writings of the fathers.

852². 'The Father' means the Lord as to the Divine Itself, which was His soul from the Father; 'the Son' means the Divine Human; and 'the Holy Spirit' means the proceeding Divine . . .

—³. That when the Lord mentioned 'the Father' He meant the Divine in Himself, thus Himself. (Thus) when the Lord mentioned the Father and Himself as two, He meant Himself by both; for the soul and the body are one . . . That the Divine which is called 'the Father' was the Divine Itself of the Lord, from which His Human came forth, and from which it was made Divine. III.

—⁵. 'The Father,' here, means the Divine in the Lord, which was His life, as is the soul of the father in every man . . . consequently, the Father and the Son are one . . . as the soul and the body.

—⁷. Here the Lord speaks of His Father as if He were another . . . Yet, lest they should believe that the Father and He are two, He says, 'the Father and I are one;' and lest they should believe that they are one only by love, He adds, 'that ye may Know and believe that the Father is in Me, and I in the Father,' (Thus) by 'the Father,' the Lord meant Himself, or the Divine in Himself from conception; and by the Son whom the Father sent, He meant His Human; for this was sent into the world by being conceived from God the Father, and born from a virgin.

—⁹. As the Father and He were one, and the Lord's Divine Human was from the Divine in Himself, all things of the Father were His, which is meant by the Father having given all things into His hands . . . By 'going out from the Father,' and 'returning to the Father,' is meant to be conceived and thus to come forth from Himself, and to be united to Himself, as the soul to the body.

—¹⁰. It is here manifestly said that 'the Father and He are one;' and that the union is like the union of the soul and the body; thus that it is such a union, that he who sees Him sees the Father. . . And as the union was of this character, and no one can approach a man's soul, but the man himself, He says that they were to go to Him, and were to ask the Father in His name . . .

—¹¹. As the Father and He were one, He says, 'All things which the Father hath are Mine' . . . just as all things of the soul are of the man.

899^e. 'To ascend to his Father' (John xx. 17) = the union of His Human with His Divine, when the human from the mother had been fully rejected.

911¹. 'The father of the family—paterfamilias' = the Lord as to truth from good; 'father,' Himself as to good; and 'of the family,' Himself as to truths.

966². 'Father,' in the celestial sense, or the Heavenly Father, = the Lord.

— That 'Father' = the Lord as to Divine good. Refs.

995². They have not marriage love who approach the Father as a Person by Himself . . .

1025³. The Divine Itself from eternity is meant by 'the Father;' the Divine Human born in time is meant by 'the Son of God;' and the Divine which proceeds from both is meant by 'the Holy Spirit.'

1071^e. When He 'went to the Father,' that is, when He became one with the Father . . .

1104³. Every man is rational from the soul which is from the father.

De Dom. 21. The affection itself which is of love is from the father; which, also, is the very life or soul of man; but the clothing is from the mother.

27. They who acknowledge the Father as separate and as the only one, worship nature.

52. For the sake of the internal sense, He named Divine good 'the Father.'

66. Those within the Church who . . . acknowledge . . . only the Divine of the Father cannot be saved . . .

Ath. 4. 'The Father' = the Divine Itself; 'the Son,' the Divine Human; and 'the Holy Spirit' the proceeding Divine.

18. The Father and the Son are the Lord alone. He is so called because He was in the world in a state of union.

30². What does it matter, therefore, whether I think that the Divine of the Lord assumed (the Human), or that the Divine of the Father did so . . . 141.

—³. Was the Lord not from the Father (as well as from the mother)? Are not life and the first of life from the father, and its additions from the mother? To believe that the Lord was perfect Man from the mother alone, is entirely contrary to all order . . . Is not the image of the father in his children as much as that of the mother? The love itself or dominant affection of a father comes forth clearly in grandchildren and in families. In a word, there must be a father and a mother, for man to be a perfect man.

40. The Father never hears you . . . and by this faith no one is saved. They pass the Lord by and pray to the Father, which is altogether contrary to the Lord's commandment . . .

49. (Hence) the Lord so often said that the Father in Him doeth the works; but in other places, that He Himself doeth them.

66. (The papists) are accepted because they rarely worship the Father, or separate the Lord from the Father . . .

67. Hence they go to the Father . . . by which their thoughts ascend above the Lord . . .

75. There was a trial made, to see what kind of an idea they have when they are . . . asking the Father . . . They think of the Father, and of the Son as a common man . . . and wholly separate the Son from the Father, and place Him below . . . Quite contrary to the doctrine of Athanasius, that the Divine and the Human are one Person; thus that the Human also is with the Father, and one with the Father . . .

82. Many who think of God the Father have an indeterminate idea, and easily acknowledge nature as God; (therefore) in the other life, it is granted them to see some one on high . . . who calls himself God the Father . . .

85. The Divine which the Lord called 'the Father' . . . He thus spake from His Human . . .

94. When they are thinking of God the Father, it is some Spirit . . . that makes answer, and flows into their thoughts.

106. He put on a Human from the Father. 162.

109. Worshipping the Father only, induces a severe pain in the arm and shoulder-blade.

117. See ETERNITY.

118. That the Lord is the Father, III. The Father can be in no other Human than that which is from Himself.

121. The Lord means His own Divine by 'the Father,' this, therefore, assumed the Human; and therefore it is as His soul in the body; for 'the Father' cannot be understood to have been a first Person; because so there would have been two Fathers.

152. They who look to the Father, turn in various directions . . .

160. They who separate from the Lord the Divine which is called the Father, and set the Divine of the Father outside the Human of the Lord, should be called Philippians, from Philip . . .

167. Mohammedans . . . have acknowledged the Father alone . . . Socinians do the same . . . Many others tacitly acknowledge the Father only . . . The greater part are there found to worship the Father only, or the Holy Spirit, and not the Lord.

175. The reason the Lord so often mentioned 'the Father,' was that before His advent the Lord was Himself what is called 'the Father' . . . But afterwards the Lord became the Father as to the Divine Human also.

176. Good proceeding is called by the Lord 'the Father in the Heavens' . . .

195. When it is said that God the Father assumed the Human, it is perceived . . . as too exalted . . . Yet it is according to the faith . . . that the Lord's Divine is quite equal to the Divine of the Father . . .

196. That the Lord's Divine is what He calls 'the Father' . . .

201. The Hells bitterly hate the Lord; not so the Father . . .

205. The reason the Lord so often said that the works which He does He does from the Father, was that they might believe in His Divine Itself, or that His Human was Divine . . .

215. Every man is called from his father . . . because the life of every man is from his father; and only the clothing is supplied in the mother . . . Why, therefore, is the Lord called the son of Mary, when it is known that His Father was His Divine?

216. What a man has from the father is the love itself, because this is the very life of man, and the body lives from it; thus the very life of a man is from his father, and nothing of life is from his mother. As, therefore, the very life was Divine, or Divine Love, and the body is only obedience, it clearly follows that the Lord as Man, is God.

220. The affection of every man, into which he is born, is from the father, because it is his soul . . . With the Lord alone there was good affection from birth, because His soul from the Father was the Divine Itself . . .

D. Wis. iii. 2. These first receptacles, which are the initiations of man, are from the father; but their formation to the full is from the mother. Ex.

Can. Redeemer ix. 2. Hence the image of the father is implanted in the body, at first obscurely, but afterwards more and more evidently, as the child applies himself to the studies and offices of his father.

10. The reason why in this state He prayed to the Father, was that He was then as it were absent from Him.

Holy Spirit i. 7. As the Father is the soul and life of the Son; and the Son is the human body of the Father; and the Holy Spirit is the preceding Divine; it follows that they are consubstantial . . .

Trinity ii. 9. He who knows the intercourse of the soul and body, may comprehend . . . that the Father and He are one; that all things of the Father are His, and all His the Father's; that all things of the Father come to Him; that the Father has given all things into the hand of the Son; that as the Father works, so the Son works; that he who sees and knows the Son also sees and knows the Father; that they who are one in the Son, are one in the Father; that no one has seen the Father except the Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, and who has declared Him; that the Father is in the Son, and the Son in the Father; that no one comes to the Father except through the Son; that as the Father has life in Himself, so has He given to the Son to have life in Himself; and that in Jesus Christ dwells all the fulness of the Divinity bodily. 'The Son,' here, means the Human of the Father. iv. 6.

v. 3. (The doctrine of the Apostles'), Nicene, and Athanasian creeds concerning the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, compared together.)

Cor. liv. For the sake of conjunction with the Lord, and, through Him, with God the Father.

35³. All good is conceived from the Lord as a Father; and is born from saving faith in Him as a mother.

Inv. 42. If, therefore, anyone approaches the Father immediately, the Lord as it were stands at one side; and hence is unable to grant . . . redemption . . .

Father-in-law. Socer.

A. 4843³. 'The daughter-in-law against her father-in-law' (Micah vii.6)=the affection of falsity against good.

[A.] 4857. 'Thy father-in-law goeth up to Timnath to shear his flock' (Gen. xxxviii. 13)=that the Jewish Church wanted to take counsel for itself. . . Judah is here called 'father-in-law,' because there was something of communication with the Church which was representative of spiritual and celestial things, and which, here, is the daughter-in-law.

6827. 'Moses was feeding the flock of Jethro his father-in-law' (Ex.iii.1). . . 'Father-in-law'=the good from which as a father comes forth that good which is conjoined with truth. 7015.

8643. When the son-in-law represents truth, the father-in-law represents good in a higher degree, for he is the father of his wife.

8644. 'The father-in-law of Moses' (Ex.xviii.1)= (the Divine good) from which comes the good that is conjoined with truth Divine. . . The reason 'a father-in-law'=the good from which comes the good that is conjoined with truth, is that a wife=good when a man =truth. 8668. 8688. 8724. 8731.

Fatherland. See COUNTRY.

Fatherless. See under ORPHAN.

Fatigue. Fatigare, Fatigatio.

A. 1884^c. No fatigue is perceived. H.441.

4182. 'Misery and weariness of the palms' (Gen. xxxi.42)=temptations.

6621^e. They utterly fatigued me. D.3361.

E. 3861. 'Until he has no strength,' and 'until he is fatigued' (Is. xlv. 12)=until nothing of good and nothing of truth remains.

Fatted. Saginaris, Saginatus.

A. 9391^b. 'Calves out of the midst of the fatted ones' (Amos vi.4)=the goods of exterior innocence. . . 'Fatted,' and 'fat'=the good of interior love. As also in Mal. iv. 2.

—⁶. 'The fatted calf' (Luke iii. 20)=general goods.

E. 279^b. 'Fatted,' and 'fat'=good.

650^r. 'Fatlings of Bashan' (Ezek. xxxix. 18)=goods of the natural man from a spiritual origin.

780^e. 'The fatling,' or ox (Is. xi. 6)=the affection of the natural man.

Fatuous. See under FOOL.

Fauces. Fauces. D.2653. 4359. 4573^c. Can. Redemption vii. 9.

Fault. Culpa.

Culpable. Culpabilis.

A. 1032^e. It is not their fault. H. 318. 342^b.

4171. Evil with that good not by its fault. Sig.

— . What a man receives from others without his own fault, is what is signified by 'what is torn;' but what he receives from himself, thus by his own fault, is signified by 'a carcass.'

4172. See EVIL. 10225^c. P. 289^e. 294^e. —⁴.

5382. See KIDNEY.

5650. To present him in fault. Sig.

5764. That the rest shall be at their own disposal, because not joined in the fault. Sig.

— . It was a custom when one sinned to make his companions also guilty of the fault. . . Which is a law derived from Hell . . .

9069. 'Guiltless'=that he is without fault.

9171. If there is injury not of fault. Sig.

9262^b. That such a crime is without fault; because from ignorance in which there is innocence. Rep.

H. 329^e. A man himself is in fault if he goes to Hell; but little children can as yet be in no fault.

P. 327. That man himself is in fault, if he is not saved. Gen.art.

M. 490. Thus he cannot know anything whatever of the blame of sin.

T. 1541. If evil acted through man, he would not be . . . culpable . . .

D. 3688^e. On him they throw the blame.

4326. All who were in fault were found out; but those who were not in fault, although in the midst of punishment, were unaffected by it.

Fault. Vitium.

Faulty, Corrupt. Vitosus.

Vitiate. Vitiare.

A. 4225. Correspond to . . . blemishes and diseases . . .

4227^b. Correspond to corruptions of the purer blood . . . which the corruptions enter without order . . .

4657. They observe the faults and blemishes of others . . .

4674. 'Evil report'=blemishes and faults . . .

5719. They relate to corruptions of the blood . . .

5726. Hence comes the first and inmost vitiation of the blood . . .

M. 252. The first cause of lawful separation is vitiation of mind. Def.

253. The second cause . . . is vitiation of body. Def.

299^e. By which, marriage love is vitiated in its first heat.

405^e. They shut their eyes to their faults.

T. 300^e. Convitium. —

D. 1696^e. The penalty evolves itself from the fault . . . 2913.

2157^b. The faultiness received by inheritance . . .

2458. See DRANK.

3547. Little children (there), are faulty . . .

4592. The intemperance of various vices . . .

D. Min. 4590. Occurs. 4676. 4804. E. 1062^e.

Favour. Favere, Favor.

Approval. Faventia.

A. 1079^e. Hate all who do not favour them. 2045^c. 2057^c. 4225. 5721. H. 220. 290^a.

2425⁴. Acknowledge as neighbour only those who favour and serve them. 5028^e.

2434^e. Whatever favours this good he calls true; and whatever does not favour it he calls false . . .

4459⁵. If he loves others, it is because they favour him. 6667.

5164^e. Are angry if the Divine does not favour them. 9348^f. R.692².

5695^e. Never willed well to the neighbour, except in so far as he favoured them.

5807^e. The moment one does not favour the other, there is disjunction.

6201^e. Not to live for others, except in so far as they favour him and his pleasures.

6705^e. Everyone explains the laws of doctrine in his own favour.

6959². If he explains it in his own favour . . . he profanes truth.

7280^e. Desire . . . to destroy those who do not favour them; for in proportion as anyone loves himself, he hates those who do not favour him. 7370.

7332. Apply the things of intelligence in favour of evil.

8694³. It is a kind of consent and approval from within . . . When there is approval, the mind is at rest . . .

8868. Are explained in favour of his own dominion . . .

9253. See FALSITY.

9298³. If truths are falsified to favour evil . . .

9425^e. They call that truth which favours the fallacies of the senses, and that good which favours concupiscences.

9434³. In enmities against all who do not favour them . . . H.587².

10187². Apply in favour of their cupidities.

10367². Truths are what favour these goods.

H. 563. They wished to act according to favour . . .

W. 411. Love calls all those things its goods which favour it . . .

P. 278a⁴. On those who favour sins . . .

M. 287. They are for the sake of various favours . . .

290. If favour does not cease with the wife . . .

— . If she perseveres in chaste favour towards him . . .

300². These pledges are first favours . . .

489. As the understanding afterwards either favours or does not favour them.

— . In proportion as the understanding favours evils, the man appropriates them . . . Favour is consent . . .

D. 3431. Occurs. 4887.

Fear. Timere, Timor.

Fearful. Timidus.

Timidity. Timiditas.

See under BIND-vincire.

A. 50. Then the Angels inspire horror and fear of evils and falsities.

390^e. (The evil) have more fear in them than anybody, because no one protects them. D.2400.

986. 'Your fear and your terror' (Gen.ix.2)=the dominion of the internal man; 'fear' relates to evils, and 'terror' to falsities. . . For when the internal man has dominion, the man has fear of evils, and terror of falsities . . . But the internal man does not fear evils, and is not terrified at falsities, but the external; and therefore it is here said 'Your fear and your terror shall be upon every beast of the earth' . . . This fear and this terror appear to be the man's; but the case is . . . that when evil Spirits tempt man to do anything evil, or to speak anything false . . . they are at once in a certain infernal fear and terror; and it is this fear and terror which are perceived in the man in relation to those things which are against conscience . . .

—³. That 'fear' is predicated of evils, and 'terror' of falsities. (Ex. under EVIL, here.)

2215. 'Sarah . . . was afraid' (Gen.xviii.15). Ex.

2395². They who are in no love are kept in fear . . .

2462. 'He feared to dwell in Zoar' (Gen.xix.30)=that from the affection of truth he could no longer look to good. . . For in this case there is fear of every truth . . .

2543. 'The men feared exceedingly' (Gen.xx.8)=even to their being averse. . . Fear involves many things . . . In worldly things, the loss of life, reputation, honour, and gain; but in heavenly things, the loss of good and truth, and of the life thence; and as it involves these things, it involves also aversion for those things which endeavour to destroy these heavenly things . . .

2553. 'There is no fear of God in this place' (Gen.xx.11)=that they had no regard for spiritual truth.

2694. 'Fear not, because God hath heard the voice of the boy' (Gen.xxi.17)=the hope of aid. 'Not to fear'=not to despair; for when fear is taken away there is hope.

2826. 'Now I know that thou fearest God' (Gen.xxii.12)=glorification from love Divine. . . 'The fear of God,' here, =love Divine.

—². i. 'The fear of God,' in general, =worship. III.

—³. ii. 'The fear of God'=worship from fear, when it treats of the regenerate. III.

— . For they who are in merely external worship are led by fear to the observance of the law; but they do not come into internal worship or into holy fear, unless they are in the good of life . . .

—⁴. iii. 'To fear God or Jehovah'=worship from the good of faith, where it treats of the spiritual regenerate. III.

—⁵. 'Fear,' here, =holy fear, such as exists with those who, by means of the truth of faith, are being initiated into the good of love.

—⁷. iv. 'To fear God or Jehovah'=worship from the good of love, where it treats of the celestial regenerate. III.

— . 'Fear,' here, =the good of Divine love.

—⁸. 'The spirit of knowledge and of the fear of Jehovah' (Is.xi.2)=the Divine love of truth: 'His quick sent in the fear of Jehovah'=the Divine love of good.

[A.2826.] 'The fear of Jehovah clean' (Ps. xix. 9) = love. —¹³. (Thus) 'the fear of God' = worship either from fear, from the good of faith, or from the good of love. But the more fear there is in worship, the less faith there is, and still less love; and, on the other hand, the more faith there is in worship, and still more the more love there is, the less fear there is. There is indeed fear in all worship; but under a different appearance and condition it is holy fear; but holy fear is not so much fear of Hell and damnation, but is aversion to doing or thinking anything against the Lord and against the neighbour; thus it is an aversion to doing or thinking anything contrary to the good of love and the truth of faith; and this aversion is the boundary of holy faith and holy love on the one hand.

—¹⁴. And as there is no fear of Hell and damnation with those who are in the good of faith, and still less with those who are in the good of love . . . therefore, v. 'To fear' = also to disbelieve, or not to have faith and love. III. As in, 'Fear not, O Israel' . . . 'Fear not, little flock' . . . 'Fear not, only believe' . . . 'Why are ye so fearful?'

3519⁴. A state of no fear of evil (in His Kingdom). Tr.

3718. 'He feared' (Gen. xxviii. 17) = a holy alteration.

— Fear, in general, is twofold; fear in what is not holy, and fear in what is holy; fear in what is not holy is that in which the evil are, and fear in what is holy is that in which the good are. The latter fear is called holy fear, belonging to admiration for the Divine, and also to love. Love without holy fear is an insipid affair, or like food in which there is no salt . . . but love with fear is like salted meat which does not taste of the salt. The fear of love is lest the Lord should be injured in any way, or the neighbour; thus lest good and truth should be . . . but this fear is various, being unlike in one person to what it is in another. In general, in proportion to the love of good and truth . . . so is the fear lest they should be injured; but still in the same proportion it does not appear as fear. But in proportion as there is less of the love of good and truth . . . so is there less fear on their account; and in the same proportion it does not appear as love, but as fear; and hence these have fear of Hell. And where there is no love of good and truth, there is no holy fear; but only fear of the loss of honour, gain, reputation on their account, and also of punishments and death; which fear is external, and chiefly affects the body and the natural man and its thoughts; whereas holy fear chiefly affects the spirit or internal man and its conscience.

3816². Those not yet . . . fully regenerated . . . do what is good . . . from the fear of Hell.

3928². Those who fear nothing of evil, because in truths and goods. Sig.

4180. Divine truth is accompanied with fear, dread, and terror, with those who are not in good; but not Divine good.

—⁴. These are the things which cause fear, dread, and terror in living creatures; and by this comparison it may in some measure be comprehended how the ease is with the fear, dread, and terror that exist with the evil; namely, that these are not from Divine good, but from Divine truth; and that they exist when they do not receive Divine good, and yet do receive Divine truth.

4249. 'Jacob feared exceedingly . . .' (Gen. xxxii. 7) = the state when it is being changed; (for) fear and distress are the first of temptations; and precede while the state is being inverted.

— Hence come the fear and distress which precede spiritual temptation . . . —².

4256². Where falsities are, there is fear when good approaches.

4293². Above all others (the Jews) fear loss . . . and are timid.

4352². See CONFIDENCE. 9242.

4459². Think and do what is true and good . . . on account of the fear of the law and of the loss of life.

4942. The Spirits are kept in such fear (of robbers) . . . because, with some, fear is a means of amendment.

4951². They can strike fear . . .

5002². (Fears operate in Hell.) 7788². D.4660.

5066. If they had seen the Lord, they would have done these things . . . from fear . . . for the sake of self. Sig.

5323. Holy fear, and the consequent humiliation . . . have gestures corresponding to them . . .

5459. 'I fear God' (Gen. xlii. 18) = from the Divine. . . 'To fear,' in the supreme sense . . . does not signify fear, but love. 'The fear of God' in the Word passion = love to God; for love to God . . . becomes fear with those who are in (merely) external worship; and becomes holy fear with those who are in spiritual worship; but becomes love in which there is holy reverence with those who are in celestial worship. In the Lord, however, there was not fear, but love. (Thus) 'I fear God.' when predicated of the Lord, = the Divine love, thus the Divine.

5501. See HEART.

5534. 'They were afraid' (ver. 35) = what is holy. (For) when things happen of the Divine Providence . . . the holy which then flows in induces something of fear, with holy reverence.

5566. (Robber Spirits excite fear.)

5647. 'The men feared' (Gen. xliii. 18) = a drawing back . . . Fear arises from various causes . . . There is likewise a fear of being brought into slavery . . . This is here treated of. Ex.

5660². There is nothing of the love of the world, consequently, nothing of . . . fear.

5662. 'Fear not' (ver. 23) = let them not despair . . . For fear originates from various causes, and therefore signifies various things. 8171. 8924.

5990². Unless restrained by fear of the loss of honour, gain, etc.

6071². This truth: that all worship of God must begin from holy fear . . . according to the Lord's words, 'Rather fear Him who can destroy both soul and body in Hell.' When, at first, from fear, they dare not do evil, love with good is successively insinuated . . .

—⁷. Add to this, that they who are in evil, and they also who are in (mere) external worship . . . ought by all means to be in fear of God . . . for they can do what is good from fear of God, but never from love.

6207². The more they fear the loss . . .

6569. 'Joseph said unto them, Fear not' (Gen.1.19)=recreation by the Internal. . . (For) 'Fear not'=that they should not be solicitous.

6655^e. They fear that anything they think and will should appear . . .

6678. 'The midwives feared God' (Ex.i.17)=that scientific truths, being from the Divine, were protected. (For) 'to fear God'=to protect or keep what the Divine has commanded; for they who fear God keep the commandments. But as all holy fear, and the consequent obedience and keeping of the commandments, are from the Divine . . . by 'they feared God' is signified that they were kept or protected by the Divine.

6769. 'Moses feared . . .' (Ex.ii.14)=that being among estranged scientifics he was not safe.

6804⁸. Conjunction through love is signified by 'I will give My fear in their heart, that they shall not depart from Me' (Jer.xxxii.40).

6849. 'He feared to look upon God' (Ex.iii.6)=lest they should be injured by the presence of the Divine Itself.

6914. The fear felt by those who are in falsities, of those who are of the Spiritual Church, on account of the plagues. Sig. 7964, Ex.

6977^e. This (amendment) is effected through fear of penalties . . .

6997². This is said that they may learn to fear God . . . for fear must precede love, that in the love there may be holy fear; for when fear is insinuated into love, it becomes holy from the holy of the love, and then it is not fear of the Lord's being angry . . . but lest they should act against good itself, because this would torture the conscience.

7280. That (the infesters) should have fear of the Divine. Sig. (7315. 7695.) . . . This fear is the only means which restrains the infernals . . . Fear is indeed the common bond of both the upright and the evil; but with the upright it is internal fear, which is on account of salvation . . . and therefore lest they should do anything contrary to conscience . . . they have consequently fear lest they should do anything contrary to what is just and fair . . . but this becomes a holy fear in proportion as it is conjoined with the affection of charity, and still more as it is conjoined with love to the Lord. The fear then becomes such as that of little children towards parents whom they love; and then in proportion as they are in the good of love, it does not appear as fear; but in proportion as they are not in good, it does so appear, and becomes anxiety. Such is 'the fear of God' so frequently mentioned in the Word.

—². But with those who are evil, there is not any internal fear . . . for they have utterly rejected such fear in the world by their life, and also by principles of falsity which favoured their life: but instead of internal fear they have external fear, that is, lest they should be deprived of honours, gain, reputation . . . lest they should be punished according to law, and lest they should be bereaved of their life. They who are in evil have fear of these while they are in the world. When they come into the other life, as they cannot be restrained . . . by internal fear . . . they are by external fear, which is impressed on them by punishments. From these they have the fear of doing evil; and at last they have fear of the Divine, but external fear, which is devoid of any will to desist from doing evil from an affection of good . . .

7364^e. (Most) do what is good from fear of the law, of loss . . .

7437^e. So far as he is in the fear of the loss of reputation . . .

7463. When this takes place, the evil are in fear, and consequently in humiliation . . .

7562. 'He that feared the word of Jehovah among the servants of Pharaoh' (Ex.ix.20)=those things in the natural mind which were of the Lord. Ex.

7564. Truths and goods not of the Lord, are what man does in a state of . . . fear.

7640². Such is the humiliation of fear. Ex.

7772. Respect from fear. Sig. For the evil in Hell have no respect for the Divine but that of fear. 7788.

8162. 'Fear,' when predicated of temptation, (as in Ex.xiv.10)=horror. Ex.

8171. Spiritual fear is the fear of damnation.

8239. 'The people feared Jehovah' (ver. 31)=adoration.

8293. These fears cause them to abstain from evils in externals . . .

8381. They feel a natural fear of horses. Ex.

8392. (Repentance, in all states of fear, is of no avail.)

8455. He is then in peace, for he fears nothing.

8710. 'Men . . . fearing God' (Ex.xviii.21)=those who are in good from the Divine; for 'the fear of God'=worship from the good of faith and from the good of love.

8925. 'That His fear may be before your faces, and ye sin not' (Ex.xx.17)=a holy fear thence of the Divine, and the consequent preservation of spiritual life.

—². As to the holy fear which is signified by 'the fear of God' . . . this fear is love, but such love as little children have towards their parents, parents towards their children, and married partners towards each other, who fear to do anything which displeases, thus which in any way injures the love. Such a fear is insinuated into the love during regeneration; and as this fear is in agreement with love, and can be in it and actually is in or united to it, it is called holy fear, and is the fear of sinning, or acting contrary to the commandments, thus against the Lord. But this fear differs with everyone, according to the quality and quantity of the love. Refs.

9242. For what is from fear is not from the heart.

9306. Holy fear. Sig.

9348². See DREAD. E.696²⁴. —²⁵.

10694. 'They feared' (Ex.xxxiv.30)=not to endure.

H. 543². All in the Hells are ruled by fears; some by those implanted from the world; but as these fears are not sufficient, and gradually recede, they are ruled by fears of penalties. . . . The fear of penalty is the only means of restraining the violence and fury of those in the Hells. . . . 509². 581.

N. 164. He must examine his thoughts. . . to see what he would do. . . if he did not fear the laws and loss of reputation. . . .

J. 69². They do not fear God, but men.

P. 136^e. See COMPEL. E.1150⁴.

139. That no one is reformed in a state of fear. Gen. art. 282. E.1155². Ex.

— . Because fear takes away freedom and reason. . . . For love opens the interiors of the mind, but fear closes them. . . . Fear can never invade the internal of thought; this is always in freedom. . . . but it can invade the external of thought; and when it does so, the internal of thought is closed; and (then) the man cannot be reformed. —⁵. Ex. —⁶. —⁸.

—³. The fear which invades the external of thought and closes the internal, is chiefly the fear of the loss of honour or gain; but the fear of civil penalties and of external ecclesiastical penalties, does not close it, because. . . .

—⁴. The fear of infernal penalties does indeed invade the external of thought, but only (temporarily).

140. It is otherwise with those who in a free state had feared God before. By fearing God is meant the fear of offending Him. . . . and this is not of fear, but of love. . . . Without this fear, love is insipid and superficial; of the thought only. . . .

282. The Lord could heal. . . . by various fears, but. . . .

283. By these three the Lord heals the love of man's will; and indeed first by fears. . . .

R. 56. 'Fear not' (Rev.i.17) = resurrection, and adoration. . . . A holy fear, which is sometimes conjoined with a holy tremor of the interiors of the mind, and sometimes with horripilation, supervenes, when life from the Lord enters in place of one's own life. . . . In this holy fear was Daniel. etc. Ill. (=recreation. E.80.)

164^e. That which is from fear does not remain.

511. 'Great fear fell upon those who saw them' (Rev. xi.11) = commotion of the lower mind and consternation at Divine truths. (=anxiety. E.667.)

— . 'Fear' = various things, according to the subject it affects.

527. 'To fear the name of the Lord' (ver.18) = to love those things which are the Lord's. . . . The reason 'to fear' = to love, is that everyone who loves, also fears to do evil to him whom he loves. Genuine love does not exist without this fear. Consequently, he who loves the Lord, fears to do evil. . . . 628. 665.

—². That 'to fear God' = to love those things which are of God, by doing them, and not wanting to do those things which are contrary to Him. Ill.

628. 'Saying with a great voice, fear God' (Rev.xiv. 7) = a warning not to do evils, because this is contrary to the Lord. (=to revere and worship the Lord. E.874.)

809. 'All who fear Him' (Rev.xix.5) = those who are in the goods of love.

884. That the Lord will take away from them. . . . all fear of damnation, of evils and falsities from Hell, and of temptations therefrom. Sig.

891. 'The fearful' (Rev.xxi.8) = those who are in no faith. Ill.

M. 153². Abstain from fear of the civil law. . . .

267². It is granted to them in the Spiritual World to think from fear of the loss of reputation. . . .

292. They said they had contracted a terrible fear of their wives. . . .

—³. From innate timidity. . . .

368. Jealousy. . . . is a horrible fear of the loss of that love.

371. In all love there are fear and grief; fear lest it should perish. . . .

Ad. 3/707. This fear (of God) is described from experience in myself.

D. 764. Fear is predicated of Truth, for Truth is what is feared.

1153. At the slightest danger they are the most fearful. . . .

1883. (Punishment of those who rule by fear.)

2899. That fear effects nothing. From experience. 2919.

2972. They strike with fear wherever they go.

3141. Those devoid of fear, reverence, or shame. 4546. 4629⁹. 4633. 5465.

3149. That fear is of shame, and also of reverence.

— . (One who was devoid of all fear of danger would have become the most filthy excrement, unless he had felt intense fear of the loss of reputation.) 3150.

3174. What is the fear of love.

4314. On a state of fear. (Some infernals, when in a state of fear do not know but that they are good.)

4756^e. At last they dare not do it any more, not from conscience, but from fear. Des.

4946. He had much power to strike with fear and horror. . . .

6110⁵⁵. Fear of a wife, and fear for a wife. Def.

D. Min. 4751. On fear and the consequent misfortunes. Fear is attended with this: that it disperses itself into the souls of those who are near and who are conjoined by some affection, and then those who want to inflict evil are at once at hand. . . . This is the source of many misfortunes. . . .

E. 121. 'Fear not' (Rev.ii.10) = that they should not grieve; because it is said of those who will suffer persecutions.

193⁵. From fear of Hell; and whatever man does from fear does not remain with him.

282⁶. 'Fear and trembling' = this straitness.

325⁴. Merely from fear of the law. . . .

340¹³. 'They who fear Jehovah' = those who love to do His commandments; and therefore it is said, 'Blessed is he who fears Jehovah, who walks in His ways' (Ps.cxxviii.1). 386¹⁸. —¹⁹.

411⁹. 'The fear of God' is said of truth.

444¹². 'Fear,' which is predicated even of Him, = love. 677⁸. See TREMOR.

696³. 'To fear God' = to worship. —⁴, Ex. —⁶, Ex. —⁴. This fear, with respect, is in all love, and in all friendship, (and without it) they are like food without salt.

—⁶. 'To fear' = worship through truths: (for) 'to fear' is of the understanding. . . Divine truth makes fear. . . Hence there is the fear of God in proportion as a man is in the good of love; and dread and terror vanish, and become holy fear, with reverence, in proportion as a man is in the good of love and in truths thence. Hence it follows, that fear in worship is various with everyone, according to the state of his life; and also that the sanctity together with reverence which is in fear with those who are in good, is also various according to the reception of good in the will, and according to the reception of truth in the understanding. . . Ill.

—¹². 'To fear Jehovah' = to think reverently and holily about God. Ill. —²², Ill.

—²¹. 'The fear of Jehovah' = worship in which there is holiness through truths. Ill.

—²³. 'Fear Him who is able to destroy both soul and body in Hell.' 'To fear,' here, = to have fear lest they should die spiritually, thus natural fear, which is fearfulness—formido—and dread; but spiritual fear is holy fear, which is in all spiritual love variously, according to the quality and the quantity of the love. The spiritual man is in this fear; he knows that the Lord does not do evil to anyone. . . therefore his fear is holy fear, lest by evil of life and falsity of doctrine, he should turn away that Divine love in Himself, and thus injure it. . . But natural fear is fearfulness, dread, and terror of dangers, of penalties, and thus of Hell: which fear is in all corporeal love, also variously, according to the quality and the quantity of the love. A natural man, who has this fear, knows no otherwise than that the Lord does evil to the evil. . . In this fear were most of the Israelites, because they were natural men. Ill.

—⁶. Lest the spiritual man should be in such fear as the natural man, it is said, 'fear not.' Ill.

—⁶. Moreover, 'fear,' 'terror,' 'consternation,' and the like, = various commotions of the lower mind, and changes of state of the mind.

734¹³. 'The fearful and soft in heart were to return home' (Deut.xx.8) = those who were not yet in the truths and goods of the Church, and thereby in confidence in the Lord; for these fear the evil, and also cause others to fear them.

790⁷. He who does not shun adultery from that holy fear, but from fear for his reputation. . .

942. 'Who does not fear Thee, O Lord' (Rev.xv.4) = the worship of the Lord from the good of love. . . Good fears the Lord, and truths glorify Him.

1133. 'From fear of her torment' (Rev.xviii.10) = fearfulness on account of infernal penalties.

—². The principal cause of an evil man coming from internals into externals is fear. . .

1171. Fear causes a man to be as it were absent from them, when he sees such persons being punished. Sig.

Feast. Convivium, Convivari.

A. 2187. These feasts took place in the holy place. . . and signified the communication, conjunction and appropriation of celestial goods. . .

2341. 'He made them a feast' (Gen.xix.3) = dwelling together. 'Feasts,' mentioned in the Word, = dwelling together. Ill. 3456.

—². 'A feast of fat things' = dwelling with the Lord in good and truth.

—³. The feasts from the sanctified things. . . represented the dwelling together of the Lord with man in the holy things of love represented by the sacrifices. The like was afterwards represented by the Holy Supper, which, in the Primitive Church, was called a feast.

—⁶. Feasts take place among a number who are together in love and charity. . .

2371⁴. 'Dinner,' 'supper,' 'feast' = the good of charity, in which is the dwelling together of the Lord with man.

2648. 'Abraham made a great feast' (Gen.xxi.8) = dwelling together and union. . . It = union also, because it treats of the Lord. 2649.

3596⁶. Feasts with the ancients were nothing else.

3832. 'He made a feast' (Gen.xxix.22) = initiation. (For) 'a feast' = appropriation and conjunction: here, initiation, because this precedes conjunction. . . The feasts of ancient times. . . signified initiation into mutual love. . . The nuptial feasts signified initiation into marriage love; and the holy feasts, initiation into spiritual and celestial love; and this because to feast, or eat and drink, signified appropriation and conjunction. Ill.

3833. See EVENING.

4211. See EAT UP.

—⁶. That there might be represented the heavenly feast; that is, conjunction through the good of love and of charity. This is signified by the Holy Supper, which succeeded in place of the sacrifices and of the feasts from the sanctified things.

5161. 'He made a feast for all his servants' (Gen.xl.20) = initiation and conjunction with the exterior Natural. 'A feast' = initiation to conjunction.

—². Feasts formerly took place for various reasons; and there was signified by them initiation into mutual love, and thus conjunction. They also took place on birthdays; and there was then represented by them birth anew or regeneration, which is the conjunction of the interiors with the exteriors in a man through love, consequently the conjunction of Heaven with the world in him. . .

5698. Eatings and feasts = conjunction; in special, initiation to conjunction. Refs.

5943⁷. 'A feast of fat things; a feast of lees' (Is.xv.6). . . 'A feast' = Heaven and conjunction there with the Angels through love and charity. Refs.

[A.] 6791. By 'to eat' is here meant the eating which in the Word is called 'a feast.' Eatings or feasts took place with the ancients within the Church for the sake of conjunction and of confirmation in good. Refs.

7779⁷. When they made ready calves in their feasts of charity . . .

7996². In general, feasts, both dinners and suppers, took place in ancient times within the Church, in order that they might be consociated and conjoined as to love, and that they might instruct each other in the things of love and faith . . . Such, at that time, were the delights attending meals; and they were the end for the sake of which the dinners and suppers were held. Both mind and body were thus unanimously and correspondently nourished. From this they had health and long life; also intelligence and wisdom; and also communication with Heaven; with some, open communication with Angels. But as in course of time all internal things vanish, and pass into external things, so did the ends of feasts and meals, which at this day are not for the sake of any spiritual conjunction, but for the sake of worldly conjunctions; that is, gains, honours, and pleasures. Hence there is nourishment of the body; but none of the mind.

9412. Eatings, feasts, dinners, and suppers were instituted among the ancients, in order that they might be consociated by such things as are of wisdom and intelligence. (Refs.) Hence 'feasts,' 'dinners,' and 'suppers,' in the Word, = consociations as to faith and love. III.

M. 6⁵. In Heaven . . . there are feasts.

T. 433. In the Primitive Church . . . there were dinners and suppers . . . which were called feasts, being instituted that they might be glad from the heart together, and be conjoined with one another. (See DINNER, here.)

727. The feasts in the Ancient Churches were feasts of charity, in like manner as in the Primitive Christian Church; in which they strengthened one another to abide in the worship of the Lord from a sincere heart.

D. 3357. The Lord . . . likened Heaven to feasts, because they made heavenly joy to consist in feasts.

E. 252⁷. 'A feast of fat things' = the appropriation and communication of goods; and 'a feast of lees' or of the best wine, = the appropriation of truths. 1159².

481³. 'Their feasts' (Jcr.li.39) = adulterations of good and truth. (Compare 601¹¹.)

C. 189. (Feasts, etc. as a recreation.)

Feast. Daps. P.254⁴. M.6⁵. J.(Post.) 58.

Feast. Epulari, Epulum.

Feasting. Epulatio.

H. 359. (Man is allowed to feast, etc.)

M. 3³. Feastings with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. 6. 256. Epulus. E.617².

D. Wis. xi.4. He is withheld from the delight of mere feasting . . .

Feast, To make a. Feriarum.

A. 7884. 'To make a feast' (Ex.xii.14) = the worship of the Lord. 7882.

9286. 'Three times ye shall make a feast to Me in the year' (Ex.xxiii.14) = permanent worship of the Lord and thanksgiving on account of deliverance from damnation. 'To make a feast' or to hold a feast-festum agere, = the worship of the Lord from a glad mind on account of deliverance from damnation.

9296. Occurs. —⁴.

Feast. Festum.

Festal. Festalis.

A. 414^e. Therefore the feast of tabernacles was instituted. 3312^e. 4391^e. 10545². R.585^e. E.724¹⁶.

2352³. Therefore the feast of seven Sabbaths was on the fiftieth day.

6537^e. The feast of tabernacles = holy worship, thus worship from good and truth.

7093. 'And hold a feast to Me in the wilderness' (Ex.v.1) = that from a glad mind they may worship the Lord in the obscurity of faith in which they are. 'To hold a feast' = worship from a glad mind . . . because the feast was to be held at 'a way of three days' from Egypt, thus in a state of no infestation by falsities: that is, in a state of freedom . . . Moreover the feasts which were instituted among that people, which were three in the year, are said to have been instituted in memory of deliverance from slavery in Egypt; that is, in a spiritual sense, in memory of deliverance from infestation by falsities by the advent of the Lord into the world. III. 7882.

7664. 'Because it is a feast of Jehovah to us' (Ex.x.9) = the worship of the Lord in each and all things.

7893. The reason no work was to be done on the feasts and Sabbaths . . .

—^e. But afterwards the same feasts were retained for the sake of heavenly life on those occasions, and for the sake of doctrine, that they might then learn what faith and charity are.

8050. 'On the seventh day a feast to Jehovah' (Ex.xiii.6) = the holy worship of the Lord.

8633. They have no feast-festos-days.

9286. See FEAST-feriarum.

—^e. The feast of uncleaned things = purification from falsities; the feast of harvest, the implantation of truth in good; and the feast of ingathering, the implantation of the good thence derived . . . 9287. 9294. —². 9295. 9296. —⁴. —⁵. 10670. 10671.

—². Therefore the three feasts in the year also = worship of the Lord and thanksgiving on account of regeneration. 9294².

9294⁴. These three feasts are also called the feast of the passover, the feast of weeks, and the feast of tabernacles. III.

—^e. Like things to those represented by these three feasts, are represented by . . .

—⁵. As by this second feast, which is called the feast of the first-fruits of works, and also the feast of weeks . . .

—⁶. As by the third feast, which was called the feast of the ingathering of the fruits of the earth, and of the ingathering from the threshing-floor and the wine-press; and also the feast of tabernacles . . .

—^e. (Thus) the three feasts were instituted on account of the bringing forth of the human race, who are willing to receive new life from the Lord, out of Hell, and their introduction into Heaven; and this by the Lord through His advent into the world.

9299. 'Feast'=worship.

10037^d. 'The dung of feasts' (Mal.ii.3)=the defilement of the holy things of worship.

10160^o. Afterwards was instituted the feast of tents . . .

10412. 'A feast of Jehovah to-morrow' (Ex.xxxiii.5) . . . 'A feast'=the worship of the Church as to celebration; for on feast days a celebration took place.

10655. 'Thou shalt keep the feast of unleavened things' (Ex.xxxiv.18)=worship of the Lord and thanksgiving on account of deliverance from evil and falsities of evil.

—². As to this feast, it properly=the glorification of the Lord's Human, thus the remembrance thereof, and thanksgiving on that account . . .

P. 254². The Lord has provided that in every religion . . . a festival is to be observed.

M. 3^e. (Heaven supposed to be a continuous festival.)

D. 1909. On Spirits who were celebrating a feast of tabernacles.

E. 109^e. The feast of tabernacles=the implantation of the good of celestial love, or of love.

391¹⁸. 'To bind the feast to the horns of the altar' (Ps.cxviii.27)=to conjoin together all things of worship. . . . 'Feast,' and 'altar'=worship.

403⁵. 'Feast'=worship. 433¹¹. 601^e. 706²¹. 863².

458^d. As the feast of tabernacles=the implantation of good through truths . . .

504²⁰. That they had completely destroyed all things of Divine worship, is signified by their having 'burnt all the festal places of God' (Ps.lxxiv.8).

725⁵. The three feasts=the whole of regeneration, from first to last . . .

911¹⁸. As such things are signified by 'harvest,' there were two feasts instituted among the Israelites; one called 'the feast of weeks,' which was that of the first-fruits of the harvest; and the other 'the feast of tabernacles,' which was that of the ingathering of the fruits of the earth; and of which the former=the implantation of truth in good, and the latter, the production of good, thus regeneration: but the feast of unleavened things, or of the Passover, which preceded them,=deliverance from falsities of evil, which is the first of regeneration.

1153. Therefore they were glad in the feasts . . .

Feather. Penna.

A. 8764^e. 'With great wings and long feathers' (Ezek.xvii.7)=the truths of faith. (=an abundance of knowledges of truth and good. E.281².)

D. 2248². When I press my pen.

5008. A knife for pens.

E. 283^d. 'Feathers with yellow of gold' (Ps.lxviii.13) =spiritual good from which are these truths.

Feather. Pluma.

A. 4018. Stick like a feather to a wall.

7761^e. Like feathers in the wind.

D. 2295^e. I represented feathers in their hands.

3680. I saw something feathered—plumatum.

4748^e. Occurs. 6110⁶⁹. E.281².

Feculent. See LEES.

Feeble. Laxilis. D.4265.

Feed. See SHEPHERD.

Feed. Alere.

R. 547. 'To feed' (Rev.xii.6)=to provide that it may grow; for thus the Church is fed. 562. E.732. 761.

S37. That infernal Genii are as it were fed on their concupiscences of evil. Sig.

Feed. Compascere. D.154.

Feed. Vesci. A.6078. S956.

Feel. Palpare.

A. 3528. 'Perhaps my father will feel me' (Gen.xxvii.12)=the inmost degree of perception. 'To feel at,' and thus to feel—scutire=the inmost and the whole of perception . . . because everything sensitive relates to the sense of touch . . . 3559. 3562.

E. 781¹⁸. Occurs. 5M.7. A.7712.

Feel. Sentire.

A. 194^e. Unless they saw and felt . . .

322^e. Even when they lived in the body, it was the spirit which felt . . . 447^e.

1881^e. The Spirits said . . . that they feel much better and more excellently than men.

5078^d. See SENSE.

5119^e. From no other source is the faculty of feeling . . .

5779^e. It is the internal which feels through the external . . . Therefore the internal inflows into the external, in order that it may feel . . .

7111². A Spirit or man feels no otherwise . . .

7122^e. Temptation is felt no otherwise than as if it were in him.

7319. Each is perceived from its opposite.

7442². Then the affection of truth is felt by him . . .

8452. Goods . . . are called delights because they are felt. —³.

10188². That they do not feel the influx.

10219. Cannot perceive, that is, feel in himself, before he begins to love it to be so.

H. 400². They feel Hell rather than Heaven.

433. Everything which . . . feels in the body, is of the spirit . . .

- [H.] 435. Beasts feel like men. Ex.
 462. (The Angels) feel far more exquisitely . . .
 N. 507. The body does not feel . . .
 W. 115. He perceives and feels it as his own.
 238. Communication by correspondences is not felt.
 262. He feels delight in evils of all kinds . . .
 P. 175. That man should not perceive and feel anything of the operation of the Divine Providence . . .
 —². Nor is sensible of it from the sight of the eye.
 304. The general delight in Hell is felt as . . .
 314. The cuticle does not feel of itself . . .
 336. How the eye, ear, nose, tongue, and skin feel.
 R. 908. Good is only felt . . . and rarely does anyone . . . attend to the things he feels . . . Therefore all he feels with delight he calls good ; and he feels evil with delight . . .
 M. 168. Love reaches no farther than to what it feels . . . (For) the things which are of heat are felt.
 173. She thence perceives, sees, and feels his affections.
 475². Spiritual love is not felt from itself, but through natural love ; and it is felt as delight in which there is bliss from Heaven ; whereas natural love, by itself, is felt only as delight.
 T. 105. Because he does not feel the . . . operation of God.
 362². It has been provided . . . that man should feel in himself as his own the things which flow in from without. 461⁴. 473. 504⁵.
 410². A spiritual sphere . . . which is felt in various ways.
 568. When he feels that he is still alive.
 571. He then feels the good of charity, and perceives the truth of faith.
-
- D. 4202. I could perceive no otherwise than that falsity was truth, and evil good . . .
 E. 152². It is the interior life of man which . . . feels through the organs of the body . . .
 1147². I am more alive than they, because I feel the influx of good and truth . . .

Feign. Fingere.

Figment. Figmentum.

Fictitious, Invented. Fictitius.

Feigner. Finga.

A. 565. 'Every figment of the thoughts of his heart.' D. 3353.

586. 'The figment of the thoughts of the heart' (Gen. vi. 5) = no perception of good and truth. . . This deadly persuasion is here signified by 'the figment of the thoughts of the heart.' But 'the figment of the heart,' without the expression 'thoughts,' = the evil of the love of self, or of cupidities. III.

—². That is 'a figment,' which a man invents for himself, and of which he persuades himself. III.

—³. 'The image-maker-factor' = him who persuades himself. III.

—⁴. In general, 'a figment' is that which a man invents from his heart or will, and from his thought or persuasion.

928. 'The figment of the heart of man is evil from his childhood' (Gen. viii. 22) = that the Voluntary of man is altogether evil.

1195. They thence invent a worship for themselves.

1198. They thus invent doctrinal things for themselves.

1298². Artificial and thus fictitious things of worship ; that is, which are from proprium, or from the figment of the thought and of the heart of man. Sig.

1304. That they invented a doctrine and a worship. Sig. 1313.

2329. External confession . . . may exist in feigned humiliation, and in feigned affection of good . . .

2576². 'Webs' = fictitious or invented truths.

4327. Hence a counterfeit, simulated, lying . . . principle reigns inwardly.

7046. For man feigns what is honest ; he feigns what is just . . .

8942. 'A tool' = truth invented ; thus from proprium.

9085. If a man has invented (what is false). Sig.

R. 454. Fictitious zeal.

T. 568⁴. He is then like cunning feigners, who feign acts like human ones.

D. 1622. Spirits relate things very fictitious-ficta.

3865. Influxes . . . fictitious, and thus simulated . . .

4214. Representatives fictitious-ficta ; and not fictitious-ficta. 4215.

E. 540⁵. A doctrine . . . from falsified truths and figments.

923⁵. The adulteration of the Word by figments . . .

1019². Confirming by fallacies, appearances, figments . . .

Fellow-citizen. Concivis. H. 390. 557. 564. T. 406.

Fellow-servant. Conservus. R. 818. 946.

Female. Foemella.

A. 4005². The male = truth ; and the female, good.

H. 108. Their queen (bee) lays eggs.

E. 725⁵. Occurs. 863².

Female, Woman. Foemina.

Female, Feminine. Foemininus.

See MALE and MASCULINE.

A. 475. 'Male and female' (Gen. v. 2) = the marriage between faith and love. 476.

476. 'A female' = the will, or the things of the will ; thus which are of love . . . and therefore 'a female' = the Church.

553. (Agod ones of the female sex in Heaven.)

568². The female sex is such, and so formed, that will or cupidity reigns more than understanding ; such is all the disposition of their fibres; such is their nature.

669. 'Male' = truth; 'female,' good. 725. 749. E.294¹⁵. 725². —³.

944. Women, who from a low condition have become rich . . .

956^e. Malignant women from the province of the bladder.

1470. 'Thou art a woman beautiful in look' (Gen.xii. 11)=that truth from a celestial origin is delightful.

1480. See EGYPT.

1484. 'Woman' = truth; here, (Gen.xii.15) the truth which is in knowledges, with the delights of which the Lord was captivated in His childhood.

1515. The stinking sphere of a certain female . . .

2130². Eight Societies of the female sex . . .

2302. Societies of Angels which have the care of little children, and which are chiefly of the female sex . . . H.332.

2468². Like (attractive) women who are inwardly diseased. 4802^e.

3974. 'Give me my women' (Gen.xxx.26)=that the affections of truth were his. 'Women,' or women-mulieres=affections of truth. 4270. 4357.

4046². Spirits of the exterior plate of the dura mater . . . were heard by me as of the female sex. Des.

4104. 'Women'=affections of truth, of Knowledges, and of knowledges.

4161. 'The way of women' (Gen.xxxi.35)=unclean-ness.

4200. 'Women' = affections of truth which is not genuine; thus affections which are not of the Church . . .

4227². They said that they could conceive many designs from the women, because they are quicker and more skilful in seeing such things . . . D.1821.

4510. 'Their women' (Gen.xxxiv.29)=charity. (For 'women,' 'women-mulieres,' and 'wives'=affections of truth and affections of good; affections of truth when their married partner is mentioned, and he is called 'husband,' affections of good when their married partner is not mentioned, and when a man-vir-is mentioned. Refs.)

4627². They who constitute the province of the internal nostrils are of the female sex; their perspicacity of perception . . .

5570. Many, chiefly women, who have made everything to consist in things becoming. Des. D.1226.

7175. (A woman of the planet Mercurij.) Des.

8994². They who are in the affection of truth and good, and who . . . are 'maid servants,' or 'women,' are not affected with knowledge, but with truths and goods themselves when they hear and perceive them with others: such an affection is general with good women. . . Hence it is that those who are in spiritual perception love women who are affected with truths, but do not love women who are in knowledges; for it is according to Divine order that men should be in knowledges, but women only in affections; and thus that they should not love themselves from knowledges, but men, whence comes the marriage principle. This is why the ancients said that women should be silent in the Church; and on this account knowledges and Knowledges are represented by men, and affections by women . . . This is the case in the Spiritual Kingdom; but . . . with those who are in the Celestial Kingdom the husbands are in affection, and the wives in the Knowledges of good and truth; and hence is the marriage principle with them.

9790. (Women of various Earths.) Des. 9792. 10163. 10754. D.3262.

H. 414. (Old women renewing their youth and beauty in Heaven.)

W. 361. Hence some can think and speak well, but cannot write well; this is common with the female sex.

M. 6². Women there. 44. D.4250.

44². Perhaps you have seen some women.

— . See MAX vir. 50. 55². 197.

55¹. Can love stop at the face of a woman!

—⁶. The love of a woman for a woman is like the love of an affection of the understanding of men for another such affection; for a woman was created and born to become a love of the understanding of man. . . Hence two women by their concupiscences sometimes combat like two prize-fighters.

—⁷. They do not admit the influx of love from the body of any other woman.

— . As the beauty of a woman, from an implanted inclination, at the same time enters into the mind . . .

56². What has wisdom to do with a woman? Ex.

—³. The cause of beauty in the female sex. (Fully ex. under BEAUTY, here.) 381^e.

61^e. The good of truth . . . is in the woman, and is the feminine principle itself.

91. The woman is born to be voluntary from the Intellectual of the man; or, what is the same, to be the love of the man's wisdom; because she was formed through his wisdom. (This fully shown from the woman's affection, application, manners, and form.)

122^e. As the female was created through the truth of the male, and is formed into its love more and more after marriage, it follows that she also receives the truth of the husband into herself, and conjoins it with her own good.

160. Women are born loves . . . and men are receptions. 161. (Shown by experiment.)

165. Women are not in this light, which is the reason women do not speak from that wisdom . . . but only listen.

168. The feminine principle consists in perceiving from love . . . and love reaches no further than to what it feels: when it reaches further, it is in consequence of conjunction with the understanding of the man . . .

—^e. Nor is the moral wisdom of the man possible with women, so far as it partakes of his rational wisdom.

169. Affection does not separate itself from the thoughts with women, as it does with men.

[M.] 188. That . . . with women there is an elevation of the mind into superior heat ; and the woman feels the deliciousnesses of her heat in the man's light. Ex. 189.

—². By the heat into which women are elevated, is meant marriage love ; because spiritual heat . . . in its essence is love, and with women it is love conjoining itself with the intelligence and wisdom in men . . .

—². The elevation into higher heat with women is elevation into a marriage love more chaste and pure, and constantly to the marriage principle, which from creation is hidden in their inmost principles.

—³. Into like regions is the mind elevated as it is opened ; with men by wisdom, and with women by love truly conjugal.

193. See WIFE.

—². (Thus) the woman was created out of the man by a transcription of his own proper wisdom, which is to be created from natural truth ; and the love thereof was transferred from the man into the woman . . .

194. The woman's being created while the man slept. Ex.

199^e. We are not females, but wives. . . The men said, If you are not females, you are women-mulieres. They replied, In the first states of marriage we were women-mulieres ; but now we are wives.

218. (The intelligence of women contrasted with that of men.) Gen.art.

—². How from their very birth the genius of men differs from that of women . . .

—³. (Thus) the man is born understanding, and the woman love . . .

—⁴. What would be the quality of man's understanding without conjunction with feminine love . . .

220^b. How is the feminine principle propagated from a man's soul ?

223. That the marriage sphere is received by the female sex, and through it is transferred into the male sex. 393.

—². Marriage love exists solely with the female sex . . .

—³. The female form is the voluntary form . . .

—². It is from the transfer of this sphere from the female sex into the male sex that the mind is inflamed from mere thought about the sex . . .

274. The similitude of the internal affections is not seen in the woman ; for by a native gift she withdraws them into the secret recesses of her mind.

291. Implanted by artful women before marriage.

292². The woman acts from the will, and the will can persist.

296. The reason choice does not belong to the woman, is that she is born to be love ; and also because . . . with women there is the love of one of the sex . . . Nevertheless, women have the right of choosing one of their suitors. . . Women are born for love, and therefore do not possess the clear-sightedness of this light ; consequently, their determinations to marriage would exist merely from the inclinations of their love. If they know how to discriminate between one man and another, still their love is carried away to appearances.

—². Almost all women . . . will reject polygamical marriages ; from which it follows that women have the love of one of the sex, thus marriage love.

298. That a woman ought to consult her parents, or those who are in the place of parents, and then deliberate with herself, before she consents.

325. See WIDOW.

330. See BEAUTY. —³. —⁴.

331². We women are born into the love of the intelligence of men . . .

393. That the sphere of the love of little children chiefly affects the female sex . . . and the male sex from them.

—². Upon the marriage love into which women are born is inscribed the love of little children . . .

409. In every woman marriage love is implanted from creation, and together with it the love of procreating, which . . . from women is introduced into men.

460². Marriage love with women acts as one with their virginity . . .

T. 80. A satan ascended with his woman . . .

D. 592. On the punishments of women who lead a delicate and lazy life. 1746. A.944.

878. See CHAMBER-conclude.

1061. The female sex belongs to the classes of celestial things.

2025. See CUPIDITY.

3307. On a (bad) woman.

3670². A common idea which greatly attracts the eyes is that of women . . .

3713. See SIREN. 4594.

3852^e. When they perceive that paradisaical things exist in the other life, girls and women are more allured to the Knowledges of faith than in any other way . . .

3856. They represented . . . those who care nothing for natural . . . but only for spiritual things . . . by a beautiful naked woman . . .

3899. (Females, who, having been lascivious girls, nauseate marriage ; and if they contract it have no pleasure in it, marriage love being destroyed with them ; they rarely have offspring, and if they do they do not love them, many of them being the most filthy prostitutes of all.)

3952^e. The woman was not a Spirit, but was the representation of a woman.

4092. He nauseated the whole female sex.

4424. On a female Spirit who supposed herself to be completely in the body.

4438. One beautiful appearance may arise from a number of lascivious women together.

4470. They had as their Subject a filthy woman overhead.

4530. See SARAH HESSELIA.

4697. Women who have not paid attention to Knowledges of truth and good . . .

4745². She was obsessed by diabolical women, who had subjugated their own husbands . . .

4940. Women can enunciate with affection . . . but not teach. But such are rarely interiorly devout. Examp.

5466. Lasciviousness with women so appears there.
5467- 5477.

— The women treated them cruelly.

5479. The hinder gulf was for women.

5936. On women who preach. . . They lose the feminine nature . . . and become material . . .

5981. Women who are obsessed act as if they were insane : this was seen in one woman . . .

6106⁴. In a separate chamber (in Hell) are those who had been women . . .

6110. A woman becomes the affection of truth when she wills to marry.

—⁶⁷. Evil Spirits cannot endure the idea and consequent spiritual sphere of what is feminine . . .

D. Min. 4675. Societies of the female sex.

4751. Timid Spirits of the female sex.

E. 555⁴. 'A woman shall compass a man' (Jer. xxxi. 22) = that a new Church will be established in which truth will be conjoined with its own affection. . . 'A woman' = the Church as to the affection of truth.

—¹¹. 'Women' = those who are in good from the affection of truth. . . Here, (Matt. xxiv. 41) 'women' = those also who are in evils from the affection of falsity : because it is said that 'one shall be taken and the other left.'

—¹⁵. 'A woman not conjoined with a man' (Num. xxxi. 18) = the Church as to affection towards truth, or as to conjunction with truth.

983³. The woman was created to be the affection of good . . .

1004². As one man cannot be intimately united to two women.

1120². The woman is born to be the affection of love. Thus a woman is born to be good . . . and a man to be truth. 1121. D. Wis. iii. 3².

De Conj. 9. See ADULTERY.

10. (On lascivious women, who appear as great mice.) 55.

58. On the Dutch women.

Fence, Hedge. Sepes.

A. 1664³. Occurs.

E. 632⁷. 'To remove the hedge' (Is. v. 5) = to falsify and thus destroy the truths which protect the Church. The hedge round the vineyard has a similar signification to the wall round Jerusalem.

734²⁰. Its 'hedge' (Ezek. xiii. 5) = that which defends from a breaking in of falsity, and thus amends.

922⁷. 'The hedge' (Matt. xxi. 33) = protection from the falsities of evil which are from Hell.

Fenced. See under FORTIFY.

Ferine. See under WILD BEAST.

Ferment. Fermentare.

Ferment, Leaven. Fermentum.

Fermented, Leavened. Fermentatus.

Fermentation. Fermentatio.

See UNLEAVENED.

A. 1001⁵. That what is celestial . . . is not to be mixed with what is proper to man, which is profane, was represented by their not sacrificing or slaying the blood of the sacrifice upon 'what is leavened' (Ex. xliii. 18 ; xxxiv. 25). 'What is leavened' = what is corrupt and filthy.

1327². Such persons could not be but a kind of ferment in the Church.

2342. 'Leaven' = evil and falsity, by which celestial and spiritual things are rendered impure and profane. III.

7853. 'Leaven' = falsity.

7887. 'Even the first day ye shall make leaven to cease from your houses' (Ex. xii. 15) = that no falsity whatever must be in good. 7906.

7888. 'Everyone that eateth what is leavened' (id.) = him who appropriates to himself falsity.

7906. That 'leaven' = falsity. III.

— In (Matt. xvi. 6, 12) 'leaven' manifestly = false doctrine.

—². As to what further relates to what is fermented and unfermented, it is to be known that the purification of truth from falsity with man can never take place without fermentation so called ; that is, without the combat of falsity with truth, and of truth with falsity. But after the combat has taken place, and the truth has conquered, the falsity falls down like lees, and the truth comes forth purified ; like wine, which, after fermentation, becomes clear, the lees falling down to the bottom. This fermentation, or combat, takes place especially when the state with a man is being changed ; namely, when he begins to act from the good which is of charity ; and not, as before, from the truth which is of faith ; for when a man acts from the truth of faith the state is not yet purified ; but it is purified when he acts from the good which is of charity ; because he then acts from the will, but before, only from the understanding.

—³. Spiritual combats or temptations are fermentations in the spiritual sense ; for falsities then want to conjoin themselves with truths ; but the truths reject them, and at last cast them down as it were to the bottom, and thus defecate. In this sense is to be understood what the Lord teaches concerning leaven in Matthew : 'The kingdom of the heavens is like unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, until the whole was leavened' (xliii. 33). 'Meal' = the truth from which comes good. Also in Hosea : 'They are all adulterers, as an oven heated by the baker, he ceaseth to be a raiser from kneading the dough even to the fermentation thereof' (vii. 4). Because . . . such combats as are signified by fermentations take place with man in the state which precedes newness of life, it was appointed, that when the new meat-offering at the feast of first-fruits, the wave bread, was brought, it was to be baked leavened; and that it was the first-fruits to Jehovah (Lev. xxiii. 16, 17).

[A.] 7907. 'Everyone that eateth what is leavened' (Ex. xii. 19)=him who adjoins falsity to his good.

7909. 'Ye shall eat nothing leavened' (ver. 20)=that every care is to be taken lest what is false should be appropriated. . . It is one thing to appropriate falsity, and another to adjoin it: they who adjoin it, if they are in good, reject falsity when truth appears to them; but they who appropriate falsity to themselves, retain it, and resist the truth itself when it appears. Hence it is that it is so frequently said, that what is leavened is not to be eaten.

7966. See DOUGH. D. 5202. J. (Post. 140).

7979. 'Because it was not leavened' (Ex. xii. 39)=because in the truth from good there was nothing of falsity.

8051. 'What is leavened shall not be eaten' (Ex. xiii. 3)=that nothing falsified shall be appropriated. . . 'Leaven'=falsity; and therefore 'what is leavened'=what is falsified. 8058^e. E. 329¹².

8061. 'What is leavened shall not be seen by thee' (ver. 7)=that what is falsified shall not be at all admitted. 8062.

8062. See FALSIFY.

9295². The 'leavened bread' which was then offered (Lev. xxiii. 17)=good then not as yet fully purified.

9298. Thou shalt not sacrifice upon what is leavened the blood of my sacrifice' (Ex. xxiii. 18)=that the worship of the Lord from the truths of the Church must not be commingled with falsities of evil. . . 'What is leavened'=what is falsified, and falsity from evil. Refs.

9992². The reason 'leaven'=falsity from evil, is that this falsity defiles good and also truth; and also because it excites a combat; for on the approach of this falsity to good, heat is excited; and on its approach to truth, a collision takes place. Hence a meat-offering from unleavened bread was prescribed in the burnt-offerings and sacrifices. III. . . The reason why he was to be cut off from Israel who ate what was leavened on the feast of the passover, was that that feast=deliverance from damnation; and, in special, deliverance from the falsities of evil with those who suffer themselves to be regenerated. . . Hence that feast is called 'the feast of unleavened things.'

10137¹². The reason there were to be no leaven and honey in the meat-offering, was that leaven, in the spiritual sense, is falsity from evil; and 'honey,' external delight thus commingled with the delight of the love of the world, by means of which celestial goods and truths ferment, and so are dissipated.

C. J. 58^e. Guarded from the Babylonish leaven.

P. 25. See PURIFY.

— Spiritual fermentations take place in many ways both in the Heavens and on earth. . . For there are evils, and, simultaneously, falsities, which, on being let into Societies, act in a similar way to ferments which are put into meal and must, by which heterogeneous things are separated, and homogeneous ones are conjoined, and pureness and clearness are the result. It is these which are meant by the Lord's words (in Matt. xiii. 33; Luke xiii. 21). E. 677².

284. This combat (between good and evil) if grievous, is called temptation; but if not grievous, it takes place as wine or strong drink ferments. If good then conquers, evil with its falsity is removed to the sides, comparatively as the lees fall to the bottom of the vessel; and the good is like generous wine after fermentation, and like clear strong drink: whereas if evil conquers, then the good with its truth is removed to the sides, and becomes turbid and foul, like unfermented wine and unfermented strong drink. A comparison is made with a ferment, because 'leaven' in the Word=the falsity of evil, as in Hos. vii. 4; Luke xii. 1.

D. 1054^e. The evil Spirits are like a ferment, which excites evils into commotion. . .

1218. After they have become Angels. . . there are still many natural defilements, which rebel, and as it were ferment. . .

2132. There appeared in Heaven as it were a certain ferment, when evil Spirits were permitted to insinuate themselves. . .

3224^e. Things not obedient. . . are called forth, and are adjoined to the natural things of the Angels; and hence arises a fermentation. . .

5222. The Lord compares the Kingdom of God to leaven. . . (This is) presented and seen in the other life. As to the leaven, an evil Spirit is sent into the Societies which are upon the mountains, rocks, or hills, who inspires lusts. The consequence is, that the whole multitude as it were ferments. Some of them act as one with him; some do not so act; some dissent. Those who act as one with him turn their faces in that direction; those who do not act as one turn their faces away. Then all those who have turned their faces to him are gathered into one company, and are cast out. . . into Hell.

5838. The purifications took place in various ways; especially by means of the presence of evils, thus by means of a kind of fermentation; from which it appeared who were in the delight of that evil; and then they were separated from the others, and cast down. . . 6020^e.

E. 512². The love of self is a merely corporeal love, which springs from the boiling up and fermentation of the obsolete parts. . .

540⁴. 'Fermentation' (Hos. vii. 4)=separation; here, that there is no separation, because it is said 'he ceases from kneading the dough to fermentation.' The like is signified by Ephraim being 'a cake not turned'. . .

619¹⁷. 'Leaven' (Lev. ii. 11)=the falsity of the natural man; and 'honey'=the delight of. . . his evil, which is also like a ferment when it is mixed with such things as signify holy interior things, because natural delight derives all it possesses from the delights of the loves of self and of the world. . .

Docu. 245. L. Its effect is like that of fermentation in the preparation of wine, by which it is cleared of impurities.

Ferocious. Ferox. A.5393. D.4634.
Ferocity. Ferocia, Ferocitas. A.1690^e. T.309.
Ferocious. Trux, Truculentus. M.79². 264⁴.
 T.568⁵.

Fersen. D.6029.

Fertility. Fertilitas.

A. 2584. 'They brought forth' = fertility.
 8416. Produces fertility of the earth. H.289^e.

Festival. See FEAST—festum.

Festivity. Festivitas.

A. 9296⁶. Festivity and joy on account of good having been implanted. Sig.

10416. Festivity of their interiors. Sig.
 —. All festivity and gladness is from the delights of the loves in which the man is . . . All festivity has consent interiorly in it; for if anything dissents and opposes, the festivity perishes. Interior festivity exists in man's freedom; and all freedom is from love to which there is nothing contrary.

M. 3. The festivities of Heaven. 17.
 309. Weddings are to be celebrated with festivity. Ex.

D. 6100³³. There are festivities when marriages take place, but with a difference in the Societies.

Fetter. Pedica. A.1757. 9348². Coro.33².

Fever. Febris.

Feverish. Febrilis.

A. 5715. See DISEASE. D.4590.
 5716. Spirits who infuse colds, like those of ague-bris gelidae. D.4572.

8364⁴. 'A burning fever' (Lev.xxvi.16) = the cupidity of evil.

H. 572. Like those who are seized with ague . . .

C. J. 62. In this Hell . . . they have a delirium like that of those in a malignant fever . . .

M. 263. His face was full of pustules like those of a burning fever.

T. 184. Of those sick with fever—fabricantium.

D. 4571. On those who induce fevers and the like.
 —. There are intermediate Spirits . . . directly beneath the spinal marrow; and when . . . that Hell is somewhat opened, they infuse a feverish heat. (From experience.) This heat is purely corporeal, yet is from a vital origin; but it is separated from the interior vital heat; and . . . with men who are in fevers, such Spirits are present; for the sick man summons those who infuse the heat; such Spirits rush where their sphere is. . . The moment such Spirits are driven away, the fever ceases; but as everything takes place according to order . . . the fevers of many have stated alternations . . . Medical aids are also mediate causes . . .

Few. Paucus.

Fewness. Paucitas.

A. 468. The Church decreases, and at last remains with a few. The few with whom it remained at the time of the Flood are called 'Noah.' Ex. 788. 1126.
 VOL. II.

946. Perchance few will believe . . . 1886, Pref.
 1238². This first Ancient Church . . . was not among a few . . .

1984. Few are able to believe that . . . 2310.

2094². Few believe in the Lord . . . 2343.

2117. Few know what the Last Judgment is. 2119.

2590². See CHRISTIAN. 3489^e. D.4401.

2682³. Few are regenerated at this day. (See BELIEVE, here.) 3761. 3787. 3995². 4366². 5280².

2694². Few at this day are reformed.

2727. Few at this day know what genuine marriage love is . . . because few are in it. 2732.

2870. Few know what freedom is . . .

2960^e. Few arrive at this (angelic) state in the bodily life . . .

3596. Few are in this light, because few are regenerated.

3787. Nevertheless, instruction thence for a few. Sig.

3898^e. See CHOOSE, ELECT.

4151⁴. Few, nay, extremely few, believe (that life flows in).

4245. At this day there are few who are being regenerated, and still fewer who reflect.

4274². Few know what temptation is, because at this day few undergo any temptation. —^e. 7090^e.

4319. Few believe this.

4330. See EARTH—tellus.

4459⁶. As few at this day know . . . 6392.

4518. See MORTAL.

4805. Supposed that Heaven was from those few.

5006². Because few want to know . . .

—⁴. Few believe that they will live after death.

5354. What it is to be born anew is known to few, because few know what good and evil are . . .

6587². Those in the internal of the Church are few . . .

7364². There are few who do not want to domineer and possess all things of others; for there are few who do what is just and fair for the sake of what is just and fair . . .

7439². Few of the Israelites are in Heaven.

8472^e. 'The numerous and the few' (Ex.xvi.17) = the difference of power. 8474.

8717^e. To these He gives to be glad with a few things.

9186³. Of those who are enlightened concerning truths, there are few who are in the doctrine and at the same time in the life of truth.

9439^e. Let these things be . . . for those few who are in faith.

9441². The Angels have a like idea of the relative fewness of mankind . . .

J. 27^e. The things described (in the Heaven and Hell) are very few—perpauca.

S. 104. See CHURCH.

P. 250⁴. As they are so few who are loves of God . . .
—⁵. Sig.

R. 546. The New Church at first among a few. Sig.
E. 730. 732.

547. The reason it is of the Divine Providence that the Church should at first be among a few, is . . .

561. The protection of that Church while it is still among a few. Sig.

T. 535². Inquiry was made in the Spiritual World as to who could (desist from evil because it is sin), and there were found as few as there are doves in a wide desert.

—^c. All will assent to this . . . but few will practise it.

D. 2611. On the interior delights of certain Spirits who are content with a few things.

5745. As those (who had lived well) were few . . .

E. 817². On account of the fewness of those who are in truths from good. Sig.

Fibre. Fibra.

Fibrous. Fibrosus.

Fibril. Fibrilla.

A. 545^e. Joy . . . diffusing itself through the inmost fibres, and thence into the congregated fibres . . . so that the fibre is as it were nothing but joy and delight
. . . H. 413².

568². Such is the disposition of the fibres (of the female sex) . . . Such is the disposition of the fibres (of the male sex).

607². In the lips at the present day there are innumerable series of muscular fibres which are not free . . . (But were then.)

2487. The exterior memory is . . . formed . . . in the substances which are the beginnings of the fibres.

3347. All these (organs) are woven out of vessels and fibres, in fact, from vessels and fibres within vessels and fibres, from which originate the ducts and lesser forms . . .

—². They compared the faculty of thinking to that which the viscera possess of acting according to the form of the fibres, saying that this faculty does not belong to the fibres, but to the life in the fibres . . .

3470². Into this good are insinuated the truths of faith, which are like new fibres in a man's heart, through which new fibres new juice is introduced, until there is a new heart . . . Genuine good is as it were the . . . juice in the fibres.

3570⁴. Truths are like the fibres in the body, for truths are formed from good.

3579. Almost as the life builds up the fibres in man, and disposes them into forms according to uses . . .

3982. The fruits ripen by means of other fibres, and at last by the fibres of genuine juice.

4040. See BRAIN. 4051. 4325. 4326^e. 5189^e. 9914.
H. 212. W. 316². 365. 367. 400. 412². P. 180^e. 279^e.
T. 60^e. D. 830. 1027. 1035. 1730. 1733. 1734. 1738.
1970. 3471. 3607. 3861. 5781. D. Min. 4714. E. 776².

4052. See BEGINNING.

4149². Truths may be compared to the fibres which compose some organ of the body; the organ is according to the form of the fibres, and so, consequently, is its operation . . .

4326². See CEREBELLUM. —³. 8593. D. 3868.

4926. Truths are nothing but goods formed, or the forms of good; for, relatively to good, truths are as the viscera and fibres in the body are to uses.

5189². The isthmus in the brain . . . through which the fibres pass . . .

—^c. Ends are represented by the beginnings from which the fibres originate . . . The thoughts thence derived are represented by the fibres from these beginnings; and the actions thence derived are represented by the nerves which are from the fibres.

5435^e. Truth then becomes good . . . for they together constitute as it were one body, the soul of which is good, and the truths in this good are as it were the spiritual fibres which form the body. Therefore by the fibres are signified the inmost forms which proceed from good; and by the nerves are signified truths. Refs.

5951². With those who live according to them, truths appeared like fibres from the brain, full of spirit, and soft.

5954². Truths clothe good almost as the . . . fibres do the (animal) spirit. 8530.

6622. See ACTION.

8247. The cheerfulness and smiles in the faces of those who are not good is only in the external skin, and not in the fibres from within.

—^c. The series of fibres round about the lips are manifold, complicated, and interwoven, having been created not only for chewing the food and for speech by words, but also to express the ideas of the animus.

8603². Interior things do not cohere with exterior ones by continuity, but . . . are conjoined by means of exertions like fibres, through which there are communications. Ex.

—³. The communication of the interiors with the exteriors is effected in a wonderful way by as it were fibrous passages over . . .

9144². As a fibre contracts and closes when touched with the point of a needle . . . 10492².

9154². So far as truths have good in them, and also around them, they live. (So) with a fibre or a vessel in a living animal; so far as a fibre has spirit in it, and a vessel, blood, they live; and in the same way so far as a blood-vessel has around it fibres containing spirit.
. . . Truth without good is like a fibre without spirit, and like a vein or artery without blood.

—^c. (So) the (animal) spirit receives its determinations, and thus its form, by means of the fibres; and in like manner the blood by means of the vessels.

9258². (The uses and correspondence of the fibres in fruit. See FRUIT, here.)

9394⁵. (The arrangement and correspondence of the fibres in a muscle. See MUSCLE, here.)

9670. See MEDULLA OBLONGATA.

H. 95. The lungs reign in the body by means of the nervous and motor fibres.

212. How incomprehensible the form of Heaven is, is evident . . . from the nervous fibres, by means of which each and all things are joined together. The nature of these fibres, and how they go and flow in the brain, does not appear to the eye, for innumerable ones there are so folded together that taken together they appear as a soft continuous mass, when yet each and all things of the will and understanding flow into acts according to them in the most distinct manner. How, again, they interweave themselves in the body, is evident from the various plexuses . . . and from the knots which are called ganglions, into which a number of fibres enter from every province, and therein mingle themselves together; and, having been otherwise conjoined, go forth to their functions; and this again and again . . . D.2561. 2562. 5779.

—². Whatever a man thinks, goes through the fibres from their beginnings to their ends; this is the source of the senses.

405^o. As the uses of every vessel and fibre in each member, organ, and viscus . . .

U. 52^o. See BEAUTY.

S. 66. From the food, when it is made into chyle . . . the nervous fibres draw their juice; and the substances which are the origins of the fibres, their animal spirit. E.1084³.

W. 190. Every muscle . . . consists of least fibres; and these put together in fascicles present larger fibres, which are called motor fibres . . . It is the same with the nerves; in them from least fibres larger fibres are formed, which appear as filaments . . . It is the same with the . . . organs and viscera, (which) are compositions of fibres and vessels variously put together by means of the like (discrete) degrees.

192. The motor fibres of the muscles, —least, larger, and largest, are homogeneous.

207. The motor fibres in every muscle, the fibres in every nerve, and also the fibres and little vessels in every viscus and organ, are in simultaneous order.

215. The man is unconscious that a thousand motor fibres concur to every motion; and that to the thousand motor fibres thousands of things of thought and affection correspond, and excite the motor fibres . . .

219. The living forces in man are the things which interiorly constitute his body; in all of which there are motor fibres woven together in various ways.

260. If the membrane investing the motor fibres of a muscle did not react against the forces of these fibres in action . . .

277. The acts appear simple . . . yet in internals . . . there are the forces of the motor fibres of the whole body in concurrence. D.2668.

304. Things progress from their prime to their ultimates . . . So the fibres pass from their first forms until at last they become tendons; also the fibres which accompany the vessels pass from their first forms until they become cartilages and bones . . . As there is such a progression of the fibres and vessels in man from primes to ultimates, there is a like progression of their states: their states are sensations, thoughts, and affections.

316¹. The fibres going forth from these forms or substances (in the brain) are comparatively like the atmospheres from the spiritual Sun, which are containants of heat and light.

365⁷. Where the fibres are in their beginnings and primes, there the life is in its beginnings and primes.

366. The medullary substance consists of innumerable quasi fibres. Now as the glands (of the cortical substance) are the heads of the fibrils, they are also their beginnings; for the fibres begin from them, and then proceed, and successively confasciate into nerves . . .

—². (Thus) the beginnings of life are in the same place as the beginnings of the fibres . . . and the fibres cannot proceed from themselves, but from those beginnings.

—³. The multitude of the glands may be compared to that of the stars . . . and the fibrils coming out of them may be compared to that of the rays going forth from the stars, and which carry their heat and light to the earth. The multitude of these glands may also be compared to that of the angelic Societies . . . and the multitude of the fibrils going out from the glands may be compared to the spiritual truths and goods which in like manner flow down as rays from the heavenly Societies.

370. The very forms of the members, organs, and viscera of man, as to their contecture itself, are from fibres which originate in their beginnings in the brains; but they are fixed by such substances and matters as there are in earths . . . This is effected by means of the blood.

P. 38. There excite unclean things, which titillate the fibres.

296. All the fibres and vessels (in the infernal human form) are inverted.

M. 328. Than a nerve can enter into one of the fibres of which it is composed, or a fibre into one of the fibrils of which it is composed.

I. 11². The Spiritual is within the Natural as a fibre is within a muscle.

16². Discrete degrees are like the . . . compositions of . . . some nerve from its fibres, and of any fibre from its fibrils.

T. 60². The sheath of every muscle enters into its several moving fibres, and clothes them from itself.

147². Every nerve consists of fibres, and every fibre of fibrils; every muscle of little bundles of fibres, and these of moving fibres. 351³.

258². If the fibril of a nerve is touched by the point of a needle, (it) instantly coils itself into a spiral, and withdraws within itself.

D. 242. In the most minute human fibres there is nothing solid . . .

530. On this (Earth), where the fibres are contracted . . .

1075. Every member and viscus is such that in each and all things there are fibres proper thereto, which spring from the blood-vessels . . .

[D.] 1734. As the fibres originate from their organic beginnings, so do spiritual things from celestial. Moreover, as in the fetus . . . the fibres are as it were not sanguineous, so is it with Genii.

1808. On those who constitute spurious spirits, and obstruct the interiors of the vessels and fibres.

1941. When anything injurious touches the fibrils . . . the fibres at once compress themselves, and put on such a form and quality that they cannot be injured . . .

2250°. The softer or more fluid a man is, the more perfect; as is evident from the fibres, which in infants are very soft, but in old men are becoming hard; moreover, in the inmost fibres there is nothing but what is fluid, because spiritual.

2479. One of the smallest fibrils . . . knows as it were the state of the universal body . . .

2782. We spoke about the influx of the things of the mind into the fibres of the body, saying that there is no thought in the beginnings in the head unless there is a certain correspondence of the purer fibres in the universal body . . .

3036°. Into all (the provinces of the body) there is a wonderful general influx through the coverings, and a most particular one through the purest fibres.

3459. See ANIMAL SPIRIT. 5575.

3607. That the celestial gyres are never intelligible . . . was shown by the flowings of the fibres in our bodies, which it is impossible to trace. Des.

—^e. The fibres represent spiritual things; the beginnings of the fibres, which are in the cortical substance, represent celestial things, in which there are forms still more indefinite.

4000. This was like saying that the innumerable applications of the lungs to the several muscles and their fibres . . . and also that the muscles and motive fibres themselves, flow into the ideas of the thought and will, and not the ideas of the thought and will into the fibres of the muscles, or the applications of the lungs; when yet to a single compound action there are disposed innumerable applications of the lungs according to ideas, and innumerable fibres of the muscles by the will alone, and this with such diversity, that one fibre seems to act quite differently from another.

4013. To know how (thought and will flow into actions) is to want to know how the case is with the fibres in their beginnings; also how they are in the brain, where they are like a jelly; and then finally how they are in their inextricable flowings into the muscles . . .

5575. The spiritual Angels correspond to the lungs . . . also to the various fibres, and to the blood and animal spirits.

5779°. In the cerebrum, cerebellum, medulla oblongata, and spinal marrow, there are cortical substances from which the fibres flow forth . . .

5780. How the case is in the ultimate Heaven, may be clearly seen from the series of fibres in the body (as distinguished from those in the brains). Des.

5781. How the case is in the Lower Earth . . . There are both good and evil Spirits there, but as it were in strata, in order that the evil may be ruled by the good. This is like what exists in the corporeal system, where fibres from the cerebrum are adjoined to fibres from the cerebellum, which go everywhere consociated together, in order that the voluntary things of man may be ruled from the involuntary things; for what is good always rules what is evil with man.

D. Min. 4568. Antony of Padua had an influx into the muscular fibres of the tongue.

E. 775°. Folly, insanity, and the knowledge of falsities . . . reside in the head, and are there in their beginnings, which is evident from the fact that there are the origins of all the fibres . . . for therein are substances infinite in number, which appear like spherules, and are called by anatomists the cortical and cineritious substance. From these proceed fibrils, of which the first are invisible. (Continued under BRAIN.)

D. Love xix°. From these cortical and cineritious substances, by fibres, as by rays, the will descends into . . . the face and body.

—^e. Thus the will . . . acts in ultimates, by means of the fibres and nerves, which in themselves are nothing but perpetual endeavours continued from their beginnings in the brains down to their ultimates in the bodily things, where the endeavours become acts.

D. Wis. ii. (These three degrees of forms) are original in the brains, and are there the beginnings and heads of the fibres, through which their endeavours and forces flow down to all things of the body . . .

—³. From these primitive forms are brought forth fibres to the sensory organs of the face . . . and to the motory organs of the body . . . and in like manner to all the organized viscera . . . The whole of these, both the former and the latter, are mere contextures of fibres and nerves which flow forth from the two brains and the spinal marrow; the blood-vessels themselves . . . are also from fibres originating in the same source. . . Round about the cerebrum, also within it, and in the cerebellum, and in the spinal marrow, there are spherules—as it were molecules—called the cortical and cineritious substances and glands; and all the fibres whatever in the brains, and all the nerves derived from them in the body, come forth and proceed from these spherules or substances: the latter are the initial forms, from which are brought forth and produced all things of the body from head to foot. —. v°. Inv. 14.

iii. 2°. As there is a continuity of the receptacles from the brains through the fibres into all things of the body, it is evident that there is a continuity of the reception of life into them . . .

3°. The union itself (of love and wisdom) stands forth to sight in the fibres extended backwards and forwards, yet interwoven together in the midst . . .

4. In the recess . . . there was no fibre.

—². See EXTEND.

—¹. Fibres vivified are rays (of light from wisdom) formed.

vii. 2°. What is spiritual accompanies . . . every fibre of the heart and lungs.

4. There is not a fibril . . . in which the human of the spirit is not together with the human of the body.

x. 4. The arteries are constricted by means of fibres actuated from the brain.

—². (The connection of the lungs with the fibres. Ex.)

C. 191. Every single fibre . . . derives its own delights.

Field. Ager.

See HUSBANDMAN, and WILD-agrestis.

A. 90. 'Ground,' and 'field' (Gen.ii.5,6) = the external man when he is becoming celestial.

246^e. 'Field' is a term which is applied to the Church, or to a regenerate man.

368. 'Field' = doctrine, thus whatever belongs to the doctrine concerning faith and charity. Ill. 382².

— . Doctrine is called 'a field' from the seed.

—^e. As 'a field' = doctrine, whoever receives any seed of faith is called 'a field;' whether man, the Church, or the world.

2240⁸. 'Fields' are predicated of goods and evils. Ill.

2454². 'The field' = the Church, being so called from the seed which it receives; thus those are 'in the field' (Luke xvii.31) = those who are in the good of doctrine.

—⁴. 'He who is in the field' (Matt. xxiv.18) = those who are in the Spiritual Church.

2936. 'At the end of the field' (Gen.xxiii.9) = where there is little of the Church. 'A field' = the Church; and also doctrine which is of the Church. 2946. 2954. 2969.

2971. 'The field and the cave which is in it' (ver.17) = as to the good and truth of faith. 'A field' = the Church, and also the good itself which is of the Church. What is celestial, that is, the good which is of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour, is compared to ground, and also to a field . . . because what is celestial, or good, is what receives the truths of faith, which are compared to seeds.

2980. 'A field' = the good of faith.

3196. 'Isaac went out to meditate in the field' (Gen. xxiv.63) = a state of the Rational in good. . . 'A field' = doctrine and the things which belong to doctrine, thus the things which are of the Church as to good. This was the origin of the ancient saying 'to meditate in the field,' signifying to think in good . . .

3310. 'A man of the field' (Gen.xxv.27) = the good of life from doctrinal things. —³, Ex.

— . See EARTH-terra.

— . As the Church is not the Church from doctrinal things, except in so far as they have the good of life as the end; or, what is the same thing, unless the doctrinal things are conjoined with the good of life; therefore, by 'a field' is principally signified the good of life.

—². That 'a field' = the good of life, in which are implanted the things which are of faith, that is, the spiritual truths which are of the Church (is evident from the parable of the sower). It here treats of four kinds of ground in the field, that is, in the Church . . . and it is evident that the 'good earth' is the good of charity; for it is the good in man which receives the Word.

3317. 'Esau came from the field' (ver.29) = the study of the good of life. . . 'To come from the field' = the study of good; for 'to meditate in the field' = to think in good.

3500. 'Go into the field' (Gen.xxvii.3) = where there is good ground. 'A field' = the good of the Church; and also the good of doctrine. Refs. 3508.

3577. 'As the smell of a field' (ver.27) = as from good ground from which comes truth. 'The smell of a field' = the perception of truth from good, like the exhalation from the harvest in a field. 'A field' = good ground.

3652⁷. 'He who is in the field, let him not turn back to take his garment' = that those who are in the good of truth must not betake themselves from the good to the doctrine of truth. 'A field,' in the Word, = that state of man as to good.

3653^e. There are three kinds of men within the Church: they who are in love to the Lord, they who are in charity towards the neighbour, and they who are in the affection of truth . . . The third class . . . are in special signified by 'He who is in the field let him not turn back to take his garment.'

3766. 'In a field' (Gen.xxix.2) = for Churches. 'A field' = the Church as to good.

— . The Church is signified by 'land,' 'ground,' and 'field,' but with a difference. The reason 'a field' = the Church, is that, like a field, the Church receives the seeds of good and truth. . . Hence whatever was in a field also, signified that which belongs to the Church; as a harvest, standing corn, wheat, barley, etc. 3941. —³. 5295.

3928^e. Those who fear nothing of evil, because they are in truths and goods, which is to be 'in the heights of the field' (Judg.v.18).

3942. 'Mandrakes in the field' (Gen.xxx.14) = the things of marriage love in the truth and good of charity and love. . . 'Field' = the Church; thus the truth of faith and the good of charity, because these make the Church. Refs.

3949. 'Jacob came from the field in the evening' (ver.16) = the good of truth in a state of good, but in obscurity. . . 'Field' = the Church as to good, thus good.

4073. 'A field' = the things which are of good, and where good is.

4241. See EDOM.

4334⁸. 'Then shall two be in the field, the one shall be taken, and the other left' (Matt.xxiv.40) = those within the Church who are in good, and those within the Church who are in evil; that those who are in good will be saved, and those who are in evil condemned. 'The field' = the Church as to good. Refs.

4397. 'He bought a portion of a field' (Gen.xxxiii.19) = the appropriation of good from that truth. . . 'A field' = the Church as to good, thus good. Refs.

4440. 'His sons were with his substance in the field' (Gen.xxxiv.5) = that his descendants were in their own religiosity. . . 'A field' = the Church. . . For such a kind of Church is to be called a religiosity. 4443.

4503^e. 'A field' = the Church. 4686. 6454. 6458. 6549. 7557. 7559. 7571. 7581. 7647. 8902⁶. —¹⁶. 9141⁴. 9277³. 9295⁵. 9325⁵.

[A.] 4507. 'A field' = the Church as to good, thus the good of the Church. 4717. 6432^b. 9139. 9142. 9146. 9230. 9262⁵. 9294.

4981^c. 'The field' (Gen. xxxix. 5) = the truth which is of doctrine. 4982.

4982. When the celestial man is treated of . . . 'field' = spiritual good . . . which is the good of charity towards the neighbour: but when the spiritual man is treated of . . . 'field' = the Spiritual with him, which is the truth of faith.

5886⁴. 'A field' (Matt. xiii. 44) = good.

6143. 'The Egyptians sold everyone his field' (Gen. xlvii. 20) = the renunciation and subjection of all things which are of service to the Church. . . 'A field' = the doctrine which is of the Church; and, in a general sense, the Church.

6158. 'For seed of the field' (ver. 24) = for the nourishment of the mind. . . 'Field,' in a general sense, = the Church; and, in particular, the Church with man, thus the man in whom is the Church, that is, who receives truth and good: when he is called 'a field' it is his mind which is meant . . .

6461. 'A field' = the Church, thus the man of the Church, for he is a Church.

6670. 'In all service in the field' (Ex. i. 14) = the intention of subjugation against the things of the Church.

7407^c. 'The fields' (Ex. viii. 10) = things still more general, thus still more exterior; for the fields are outside the houses and the courts.

7502. The reason 'field' = the Church, is that the seeds which are put into a field = the truths of faith: and also because the produce of a field, as wheat, barley, etc. = the goods of charity and the truths of faith; thus such things as are of the Church.

7565. 'Left . . . in the field' (Ex. ix. 21) = not stored up and reserved.

8505. 'This day ye shall not find it in the field' (Ex. xvi. 25) = that no longer is there acquired good through truth. . . 'The field' = man; here, the mind of man in which is implanted good through truth; for man is called 'a field' from the fact that he receives the truths of faith . . . and produces goods.

9139^b. This signification of a field and a vineyard originates in the representatives of the Spiritual World: for fields full of wheat and barley appear before Spirits when the Angels in Heaven above them are discoursing about a congregation who are in good . . .

9141. 'And shall desolate in the field of another' (Ex. xxii. 4) = the consumption of cohering goods. . . 'In the field of another' = cohering goods; for 'a field' = the Church; and the things which are in the field are goods; thus the things which are in the field of another = the near goods which cohere . . .

9228^c. 'Woods from the field' (Ezek. xxxix. 10) = the interior goods of the Church.

9230. 'Ye shall not eat flesh torn to pieces in a field' (ver. 30) = that the good of the Church, or the good of faith, falsified, must not be appropriated or conjoined.

9262^d. 'One who is pierced in the land lying in a field' (Deut. xxi. 1) = truth and good extinguished in the Church where good is.

9272. The reason is, that all things belonging to a field . . . = such things as are of the Church in general, and of the man of the Church in particular, who is a man regenerated through truth of faith and good of charity by the Lord: hence it is that 'field' and 'ground' = those in the Church who receive the truths and goods of faith, as a field does seeds . . . These are real correspondences; for when the Angels are discoursing about the regeneration of man by the Lord through the truths of faith and the goods of charity, in the World of Spirits below there appear fields, crops, fallow lands, and also harvests; and this because they correspond. He who knows this, may also know that such things in this world have been created according to correspondences . . . From this it is evident whence it is that the things which belong to a field, that is, which are sown in a field and reaped from a field, signify such things as are of the Church in general and in particular. 10669^b.

9295^b. The field, in which the harvest is, in a wide sense, = the whole human race, that is, the whole world; in a sense less wide, the Church; in a narrower sense, the man of the Church; and in a still narrower sense, the good which is in the man of the Church, for this receives the truths of faith, as a field does the seed. . . 'The field is the world.'

9296. 'In thy gathering thy works from the field' (Ex. xxiii. 16) = the enjoyment and use of all things which are implanted in good.

9372^b. It is said 'wild-agriste-honey,' because 'a field' = the Church.

9406^d. 'In the fields of the wood' (Ps. cxxxii. 6) = in the natural or literal sense of the Word. Refs.

9594^d. 'The fields of the wood' = the goods of the Church among the gentiles.

10137^b. (Thus) 'a field' = the Church as to the reception of truth; and 'land,' the Church as to the reception of good.

10770. Fields white for the harvest (seen in the Fifth Earth).

H. 489^b. As it were fields and harvests (are there presented to the view of those who have loved Divine truths and the Word from interior affection).

R. 315. 'A field' = the Church as to good and the truth thence derived.

T. 336^c. Comparison with the preparation of a field.

350^c. 'A field' = doctrine.

701. Comparison with a field in which treasure is hidden.

D. 2701. I dreamed of a field. (See EUPHRATES, here.)

E. 131^a. 'A field' = the Church. —¹⁶. 388¹². —¹⁹. 417⁵. 555¹¹. 587¹⁵. 638²¹. 701³⁰. 721³⁰. 810². 1100⁴.

163^b. 'Two in the field' = those in the Church who apply truths and goods to themselves.

223¹⁷. 'To buy fields with silver' (Jer. xxxii. 44) = to acquire for themselves the good of the Church by means of truths.

281². 'A field of sowing' (Ezek. xvii. 5) = the good from which (truth) grows.

326¹. 'A field' = the good of the Church.

372⁴. 'The trees of the field' = the Church as to the Knowledges of truth.

374¹⁵. 'The good seed which the man sowed in the field' = the truths of the Church which are from good; 'the field' = the Church where they are.

375³⁰. 'A field' = the Church, from the reception of truth; and 'the earth' = the Church from the perception of good.

—³⁷. Fields correspond to all things of the Church.

388³. 'A vineyard' = the Church as to truth; and 'a field,' the Church as to good. 730³.

—^e. 'A field' = the Church, from sowing, and from the reception of the seeds.

411²⁸. 'Fields' = all the goods and truths of the Church.

426³. 'A field' (Matt. xiii. 24) means the Spiritual World and the Church, where there are both the good and the evil. — (=the Church where the Word is. 911³.)

439⁴. 'The heights of a field' (Judg. v. 18) = the interior things of the Church, from which there is combat. 447⁴.

483⁷. 'The wild beasts of the fields' = the nations who are in the good of life.

650³⁰. 'Fields' = doctrinal things from the Word.

—⁴⁹. 'Fields' = the Church as to the implantation of the truth of doctrine.

684²⁷. 'The fields of the forest' = the Natural of the Word.

721¹². 'The field' (Micah iv. 10) = where there are truths and goods in abundance.

863^e. 'A field' = the Church where truth is first implanted, afterwards grows, and at last becomes of doctrine.

911⁶. 'The field is the world' = the Church everywhere.

Coro. 27^e. The Church is described by . . . 'a field,' from its produce, by which man is nourished.

Field. Campus, Campestris.

A. 1884. When walking through the fields—campestris.

4301^e. The field of these objects is the memory. 8516². 9035^e. 9394³.

5393². They rejoice at sight of a (bloody battle) field.

9394. Like fields of grass, flowers . . .

10770. There appeared grassy fields with flowers . . .

H. 488. It is undelightful to them to dwell in the open fields.

—². They prefer sandy places to fields—campestribus . . .

S. 96b^e. He is in a sandy plain, where there is no grass.

M. 75². A round field seen, where lambs were feeding.

T. 78. The Angel led me into a green field.

353. Comparison with a flowery field. 361².

693⁶. Which we called the Elysian Fields.

721^e. Beyond the first gate there is a plain . . .

Ad. 957. The field of the understanding in the first man was not so spacious . . .

2972. The field of the World of Spirits.

4010. Occurs. 6044. D. Min. 4655. —. J. (Post.) 12. 18. 224. D. Love xvii.

Fierce. Sævus.

Fierce, To be. Sævire.

Fierceness. Sævitia.

A. 6667. 'With rigour' = unmercifulness. 6671.

7272. Although they have lived in hatreds, revenges, rapine, in fierceness, etc.

7370. Such at last love to be fierce with the neighbour. 9434².

9348⁷. The delight of fierceness; nay, of cruelty . . .

10618². All evil has in itself enmity, hatred, revenge, and fierceness . . .

H. 220. They are fierce against those who do not favour them. 481³. 508². 573².

290². Inwardly they blaze with . . . fiercenesses, etc. 380^e. 553. D. 5645^e.

573. So great is the cupidity of being fierce against them.

574². After the infestations they begin to rage against him with penalties.

587². Their greatest delight is to exercise fierceness. 595^e.

T. 405³. The evils of those who are in the love of dominion from the love of self are . . . fierceness, cruelty, etc.

E. 401¹². 'The day of Jehovah, cruel . . .' (Is. xiii. 9).

Fifteen. Quindecim.

Fifteenth. Quintus decimus.

A. 798. 'Fifteen cubits and upwards did the waters prevail' (Gen. vii. 20) = that there was nothing left. . . 'Fifteen' = so little that there is scarcely anything; (for) 'five' = a little; and as fifteen is composed of five . . . and ten, which = remains, it regards remains, which with those people were scarcely anything. 813.

4617^e. The number 180 has its signification from twelve and fifteen . . .

8400. 'On the fifteenth day of the second month' (Ex. xvi. 1) . . . 'Fifteenth' = what is new; because 'fourteen,' or two weeks, = a whole period . . . 'Fifteen' has a like signification to 'eight' . . .

9296⁷. 'The fifteenth day of the seventh month' (Lev. xxiii. 39) = the end of the former state and the beginning of a new one.

9760. 'The hangings of the wing, of fifteen cubits' (Ex. xxvii. 14) = truths in light as much as is sufficient.

E. 374¹³. 'Fifteen' (Hos. iii. 2) = a little.

Fifty. Quinquaginta, Quinquageni.

Fiftieth. Quinquagesimus.

A. 2141. Those with whom there are truths, and these full of goods, are signified by 'fifty' (Gen. xviii. 23-26).

2252. 'Perchance there are fifty righteous in the midst of the city'=that truths may be full of goods. 'Fifty'=what is full. 2261.

—³. The reason 'fifty'=what is full, is that it follows seven times seven . . . so that it is their impletion . . . and therefore the feast of seven sabbaths was on the fiftieth day, and the Jubilee in the fiftieth year (Lev. xxiii. 15; xxv. 8, 10), from which it is evident that 'fifty'=what is full in relation to the sabbaths. Moreover, wherever 'fifty' is mentioned in the Word, it =what is full; as, the Levites being numbered . . . up to fifty years (Num. iv. 23, 35, 39, 43, 47; viii. 24, 25)=a full or last state of discharging the ministry. . . 'Fifty of silver' (Deut. xxii. 28, 29)=a full fine and full restitution. . . 'Fifty shekels of silver' (2 Sam. xxiv. 24)=a full price, and a full purchase. . . 'Fifty men running before him' (2 Sam. xv. 1; 1 Kings i. 5)=full excellence and greatness. . . 'Write fifty' (Luke xvi. 5, 6)=a full release. . . 'He came to . . . draw fifty from the winepress, there was twenty' (Hag. ii. 16)=that instead of being full there was not much.

8714. 'Princes of fifties' (Ex. xviii. 21)=primary intermediates. . . 'Fifties'=intermediates, namely, between those truths from good which are in the second degree and those which are in the third. . . The reason 'fifties'=intermediates, is that by 'fifty' is signified both much and somewhat. Refs. Hence, when 'fifty' is mentioned between 'a hundred' and 'ten,' it =intermediates.

9186. The dowry was fifty of silver given to the father of the girl (Deut. xxii. 29), thus truths initiating to a full conjunction.

9295². 'Seven sabbaths were numbered up to the feast' which consequently took place on the fiftieth day (Lev. xxiii. 15, 16; Deut. xvi. 9)=the plenary implantation of truth in good even to the first of a new state.

9608. 'Fifty loops shalt thou make in one curtain' (Ex. xxvi. 5)=plenary conjunction in the ultimates of the spheres. 'Fifty'=what is full. 9609. 9623.

9611. 'Thou shalt make fifty little handles of gold' (ver. 6)=plenary capacity of conjunction from good. 'Fifty'=what is plenary. 9624.

9756. 'The hangings of fifty cubits' (Ex. xxvii. 12)=truths as much as is sufficient for uses. . . 'Fifty'=all things of one part, and also as much as is sufficient; for 'fifty' has a like signification to 'five.'

9772. 'The breadth fifty in fifty' (Ex. xxvii. 18)=truth as much as is sufficient.

10253⁴. '500'=much; and its tenth part, or 'fifty,' =relatively somewhat, as is evident from Luke vii. 41-47.

Fig, Fig-tree. Ficus.

A. 216. 'They sewed together the leaf of a fig-tree' (Gen. iii. 7) . . . 'A fig-tree'=natural good . . . which this posterity possessed instead of innocence . . .

217. 'A fig-tree,' in the Word, =natural good. Ill. 885².

885². The Jewish Church is in special meant by the fig-tree which withered, in which Church there was no longer any natural good. 4314⁴.

1069³. 'Fig-trees' (Amos iv. 9)=natural things.

1327⁶. They would thus become like 'horrid figs' (Jer. xxix. 17).

2722⁷. See GROVE.

3941⁸. The goods of faith are 'the vine and the fig-tree' (Deut. viii. 8).

4231. 'Learn a parable from the fig-tree' (Matt. xxiv. 32)=the first of the New Church; 'the fig-tree'=the good of the Natural; 'its branch'=its affection; and 'its leaves'=truths. (Such) cannot know what this comparison of the Lord's coming with a fig-tree and its branches and leaves involves. . . Wherever 'a fig-tree' is mentioned in the Word, it =the good of the Natural. . . (Thus) this parable involves that when the New Church is being created by the Lord, there will first of all appear the good of the Natural, that is, good in the external form, with its affection and truths. By the good of the Natural is not meant the good in which a man is born, or which he derives from his parents, but good which is spiritual in its origin. No man is born into this, but is led into it by the Lord through the Knowledges of good and truth. Therefore, before a man is in this good, that is, in spiritual good, he is not a man of the Church, however much, from the good born with him, he may appear to be so.

5113¹². As 'the vine'=the good of the Intellectual, and 'the fig-tree,' the good of the Natural; or, what is the same, 'the vine'=the good of the interior man, and 'the fig-tree' the good of the exterior man, in many places in the Word where 'the vine' is mentioned 'the fig-tree' is also mentioned. Ill.

5117⁴. 'No grapes on the vine' (Jer. viii. 13)=no interior or rational good; 'no fig on the fig-tree'=no exterior or natural good. . .

—⁵. 'What is primitive in the fig-tree' (Hos. ix. 10)=natural good not yet made spiritual.

—¹². The internal goods of charity are 'grapes;' and the external ones are 'figs' (Luke vi. 44).

5144³. See BASKET—corbis.

7553⁵. 'Sycamores' and 'fig-trees' (Ps. lxxviii. 47; cv. 33)=the truths and goods of the external Church.

8377^c. (In Jupiter) they sit on the leaves of . . . the fig-tree.

9052^e. 'The fig-tree' (Joel i. 7)=natural good.

9277³. 'The fig-tree' (Hab. iii. 17)=natural good. E. 375³⁷.

—⁴. 'The fig-tree' (Judg. ix. 10, 11)=the external good of the Celestial Church.

9337^e. (Sig. of the fig-tree which withers and is cut down.)

9960²⁰. 'The leaves of the fig-tree of which they made themselves aprons . . . =the truths . . . of the external man. . . 'The fig-tree'=natural good, or the good of the external man. Refs.

10137⁴. 'The fig-tree' (Joel i. 12)=exterior good.

10261⁸. 'The fig-tree'=the good of the external Church.

10402⁷. 'The fig-tree'=the external good of the Spiritual Church. Refs.

P. 313⁹. The 'leaves of the fig-tree' with which they covered their nakedness=moral truths by which were veiled the things of their love and conceit.

R. 334. 'As a fig-tree casteth its unripe figs-grossos-when shaken by a great wind' (Rev. vi. 13)=through the reasonings of the natural man separated from the spiritual. . . A fig-tree, from its correspondence,=the natural good of man conjoined with his spiritual good; but here, in the opposite sense, the natural good of man separated from his spiritual good, which is not good. And as the natural man separated from the spiritual perverts by reasonings the Knowledges of good and truth, which are signified by 'the stars,' it follows that this is signified by 'the fig-tree shaken by a great wind.' E. 403.

—². That 'a fig-tree'=the natural good of man. Ill.

875⁹. I saw some sitting under a certain laurel eating figs. . . I asked for some of their figs, and the figs in my hand became grapes. . . The angelic Spirit said, The figs have become grapes in your hand, because figs, from correspondence,=the goods of charity and of the derivative faith in the natural or external man, but grapes the goods of charity in the spiritual or internal man; and because you love spiritual things, it so happened to you. T. 461.

936^e. The leaves of the fig-tree=rational truths from natural light.

M. 155a^e. There appeared a swan standing on the branch of a fig-tree.

T. 377^e. Charity without truths is like a dried-up fig.

609^e. A fig-tree=natural good, which is that of the ultimate Heaven.

638. The leaves of the fig-tree=the truths of the natural man, which have been successively falsified.

D. 1960. The leaf of the fig-tree with which Adam girdled himself=the natural Knowledges, or rational or intellectual faith, under which were their nakedness or filthy loves.

2187. (The inside of a fig and its representations.)

E. 175⁸. 'A fig-tree'=the external Church, thus the external things of the Church.

374⁷. 'The vine and the fig-tree' (Dent. viii. 8)=good and truth from a spiritual origin.

386⁹. The fig-tree (which withered)=the Church as to natural good, in special, the Jewish Church, in which there was no natural good, because nothing spiritual, but only some truths from the sense of the letter of the Word. . . It is said that 'it was not the time of figs,' and by this is meant that the Church had not as yet commenced. That the beginning of a new Church is meant by a fig-tree. Ill. E. 403²¹.

388⁹. 'The fig-tree' (Hos. ii. 12)=the external Church which is of the natural man.

403². A fig-tree=the Natural which is derived from the Spiritual or from the Celestial; (therefore) the fig-tree=the natural Church, which is the external Church corresponding to the internal Church; (thus) the fig-tree=the natural man, that is, the Natural with man. Ill.

—⁴. 'No fig on the fig-tree'=no natural good; for the fig tree=the natural man, and the fig fruit his good. 918³.

—⁹. 'The fig-tree' (Hag. ii. 19)=natural good and truth.

—¹⁶. 'Of thorns men do not gather figs' (Luke vi. 44) . . . 'a fig,' here,=the good of the external or natural man.

—¹⁷. 'A fig'=the natural man as to good and truth; the fig itself as a tree, the natural man; the fig as a fruit, the good of the natural man; and its leaf, the truth of this good.

—¹⁸. In the opposite sense, 'a fig'=the natural man as to evil and falsity; the fig as a tree, this natural man; its fig as a fruit, the evil of this natural man; and its leaf, the falsity of this evil. Ill.

—¹⁹. They who are interiorly good, from whom a new Heaven is to be formed, are meant by 'the basket of good figs' (Jer. xxiv.) and they who are interiorly evil, who are to be cast down into Hell, are meant by 'the basket of bad figs' . . . For 'the fig,' as a fruit, =the good of life in the internal and at the same time in the external form; and, in the opposite sense, it=the good of life merely in the external form, which is evil of life . . .

—²⁰. That 'the fig,' as a tree, in the opposite sense, =the merely natural man, and a Church from the like, or those with whom there is no natural good, because there is no good within, is evident from Luke xii. 6-9. 'The vineyard in which the fig-tree was planted=the Church, in which also are those who are in externals . . . 'The vineyard'=the internal of the Church; and 'the fig-tree,' its external. In the Jewish Church there was only the external of the Church . . . therefore 'the fig-tree'=the Church with that nation. . . For three years no fruit on the fig-tree=that from beginning to end there was no natural good with that nation; (for) the fruit of the fig-tree=natural good. By natural good is meant good spiritual natural, or good in the Natural from the Spiritual . . .

458⁷. 'The vine' (Joel i. 12)=the spiritual good and truth of the Church; 'the fig-tree,' the natural good and truth thence derived; and 'the pomegranate,' sensuous truth and good, which is the ultimate of what is natural.

503⁵. 'Their vine' (Ps. cv. 33)=spiritual truth; and 'their fig-tree'=natural truth, both of the Church. 556⁴.

638⁹. There are three trees which principally=the Church; namely, the olive, the vine, and the fig; the olive=the Celestial Church; the vine, the Spiritual Church; and the fig, the external Celestial and Spiritual Church. —⁵.

—⁶. In the inmost Heaven . . . olive and fig-trees constitute their paradises and groves.

[E.638]²⁰. 'Fig-trees' (Amos iv. 9)= exterior goods and truths, which are also called moral ones.

—²¹. Neither did they want moral good, which is external celestial and spiritual good, and which here is 'the fig-tree' (Judg. ix.) to reign over them.

717¹³. 'The vine and the fig-tree under which they will come' (Zech. iii. 10)= the Church and doctrine from internal truths and from external truths . . .

724²⁷. 'The vine and the fig-tree' (Jer. v. 17)= the Spiritual internal and external from them. (= the internal spiritual Church, and the external natural Church, 911¹⁴.)

739¹¹. That they then clothed themselves with natural truths, lest they should appear to be deprived of celestial truths, is signified by their sewing together the leaf of the fig-tree . . . The fig-tree= the natural man; and its leaf, scientific truth.

Inv. 60. (De Miraculis.) The cause of the withering of the fig-tree was that it no longer had any influx of spiritual aliment to nourish it from its root. Docu. 302. A².

Fight. See COMBAT, and SOLDIER.

Fight. Dimicare, Dimicatio.

A. 2309. See CHILD. D. 3620.

H. 380^e. After death they fight like enemies.

312. See ANGEL.

Figment. See FEIGN.

Figure. Figura, Figuratio, Figurare.

A. 9340^e. For the sake of this figure-figuratio.

9457³. In which they are figured.

W. 71^e. Nothing in common with the figure and form which derive anything from the length, breadth, and height of space; but from the state of a thing . . .

M. 76. Carved in the figures of men, etc.

T. 291². Divine things were set forth under various figures and sculptures . . .

671. These washings figured, that is represented . . .

674. Which figured the internal Church.

D. 715. (Such) are at once turned into the figures of animals.

E. 724¹¹. See DAUGHTER.

Filament. Filamentum, Filamentosus. A. 671². 5951². W. 190^e.

File. Lima. D. 2640.

Filings. Ramenta. R. 839^e. T. 110⁸.

Fill. Confercire, Confarctus, Confarctio.

W. 315^e. Filled with the matters of that world.

M. 283^e. Occurs. D. 2121. 2122. 2129. 2177. D. Min. 4814. —^o.

Fill. Imptere.

Filling. Impletio.

A. 55². The earth is 'replenished' when there are many truths and goods. 984.

2905². Decision, consummation, fulfilment.

5487. 'They filled their vessels' (Gen. xlii. 25) . . . 'To fill,' being gratis, = to be endowed.

6505. 'Forty days were fulfilled to him' (Gen. 1. 3) = a state of preparation by means of temptations. 6506.

6649. 'The land was filled with them' (Ex. i. 7) = even to a fulness-plenum-of the Church.

7112. Unless these scientifics are filled with truths less general . . .

7442. 'The houses of the Egyptians were filled . . .' (Ex. viii. 21) . . . 'To fill' = to take possession of.

7648². That is said to be universally regnant which fills the whole mind.

7836. The impletion of good. Sig.

7933². (How the Lord fulfilled the Law.)

7984². Everyone, whether he is damned or saved, has a certain measure, which can be filled . . .

8293. 'My soul shall be filled' (Ex. xv. 9) = delight.

8525. 'Fill an omer with it' (Ex. xvi. 32) = the highest degree of power.

9326. 'I will fill the number of thy days' (Ex. xxiii. 26) = even to a full state.

10019. 'Thou shalt fill the hand of Aaron . . .' (Ex. xxix. 9) . . . By the filling of the hands there took place the inauguration to represent the Lord as to Divine truth from Divine good, and thus power. 10076. —⁶. —⁷.

—². The process of the filling of the hands. Des.

10076⁸. As the influx and communication of Divine truth from the Lord, and its reception in the Heavens, is signified by the filling of the hands, therefore by it is also signified purification from evils and falsities . . . Ill.

—¹. 'To fill after Jehovah' (Num. xiv. 24; xxxii. 11, 12; Deut. i. 36) = to do according to the Divine truth; and thus there is signified what is receptive of it.

10101. 'The filling of the hands' = inauguration to represent the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good, and what is communicative and receptive of it in the Heavens. 10106.

10110. 'To fill their hand' (ver. 33) = to receive Divine truth. 'To fill the hand' = to represent the Lord as to the Divine truth, and what is communicative and receptive of it there.

10118. The filling of the hand was a representative of His influx thence into the Heavens and the Church.

10120. 'Seven days thou shalt fill their hand' (ver. 35) = a representative of the Lord's plenary power in the Heavens by means of influx from the Divine good of the Divine love of His Divine Human. . . 'To fill the hand' = a representative of the Lord's Divine power in the Heavens, and of what is communicative and receptive there; and this is effected by means of influx from the Divine good of His Divine love from His Divine Human.

10239⁴. 'To fulfil all the righteousness' of God (Matt. iii. 15) = to subjugate the Hells, and to reduce them and the Heavens into order, from His Own power; and at the same time to glorify His Human . . . The like is signified by 'there were fulfilled all things which were written concerning the Lord in the Law and the Prophets' (Luke xviii.31; xxii.37; xxiv.44); and by 'the Lord came to fulfil all things of the Law' (Matt.v. 17,18). Ex.

10330. 'I have filled him with the spirit of God' (Ex. xxxi.3)=influx and enlightenment from the Divine truth which is from the Lord's Divine good. . . For 'to fill,' when said of Jehovah,=influx; and, with man, enlightenment. Ex.

10333. 'In the engraving of a stone for filling' (ver.5) . . . 'To fill'=to be of service to the good of love; for the fillings were made in the gold therein . . .

H. 254. Whom the Lord filled with His aspect.

312^e. Filled their minds.

323. They could fill it with pleasant representations . . .

349. After death . . . this is increased and filled.

469². This is afterwards perfected by impletion . . . For there is nothing which cannot be infilled to eternity . . .

J. 11. Heaven cannot be filled to eternity.

L. S. That the Lord fulfilled all things of the Law, means that He fulfilled all things of the Word. Gen. art. 18². S.98, Ill. W.221². T.73³. 85³. 261. 262, Ill.

W. 344². He said that if that bird were infilled with matter . . .

P. 96^e. Sometimes the Lord fills an Angel with His Divine . . . R.465.

R. 478. 'To consummate'=to fulfil . . .

—^e. That now will be fulfilled that which has not been fulfilled before. Sig.

I. 5¹. That the Divine fills all things, and by such impletion preserves them in the state in which they were created . . .

T. 154. The Lord fills all with His spirit . . .

263². The Lord . . . fulfilled all the good and all the truth that is in the Word. Ex.

779. Whom He has filled with His spirit . . .

D. 1825. That all things of faith are filled from inmost things.

1826. Ideas are more filled by the Lord while the man does not attend, or want himself to fill them . . .

E. 386¹⁶. 'Those who are filled' (Luke vi.25)=those who have the Word, which contains all the Knowledges of good and truth.

—¹⁷. That those who are in ignorance of Knowledges shall be enriched, is signified by 'He hath filled the hungry with good things' (Luke i.53.)

401¹¹. 'The days of thy mourning shall be fulfilled' (Is.lx.20) . . . =that they shall be ended; and thus that they will be in truths from good.

412¹⁶. He fills an Angel with His sight, and thus with His presence from afar . . .

774^e. That without the fulfilling of the Law there is no salvation. Ex.

Fill. Opplere.

Filling. Oppletura.

A. 2121². These Worlds of Spirits are very full . . .

7442⁴. The Sensuous . . . is filled with material ideas . . .

9863. 'Thou shalt fill it with a filling of stone' (Ex. xxviii.17)=truths themselves in their order from one good. Ex.

9874. 'They shall be enclosed in gold in their fillings' (ver.20)=that each and all things in general and in particular must proceed from the good which is of love from the Lord to the Lord. Ex.

10283⁴. To fill with evil and the falsity of evil. Sig.

Filled. Differtus. T. 42^e.

Filled. See SATISFY.

Fillet. See under GIRD.

Filth. See DIRT—sordes.

Filthy. Foedus.

Filthiness. Foeditas.

Filthy, To make. Foedare.

A. 956. Their bodies and faces are made filthy.

1675⁷. These persuasions which are from the love of self, are most filthy; whereas persuasions from the love of the world are not so filthy.

3469¹. From this good they are prone to filthy pleasures . . .

3938^e. (In Heaven, such) feel the filthiness of their affections, thus infernal torment.

4776. Will not (these truths) be made filthy . . .

5981^e. The filthy things of infernal Spirits are blunted and made mild with the Angels.

7297^e. Present beautiful things as filthy, and filthy ones as beautiful.

10284³. When the internal form is from the proprium, it is filthy.

D. 2409. That the filthy things of man are only hidden . . .

2627. Bread cut into little cubes=filthy delights.

3677. Sins are not remitted except from . . . an acknowledgment of filthiness . . . (Otherwise) he returns to his former filthiness.

3899². They love only their filthy cupidities . . .

De Conj. 11. They are delighted with these foul and filthy—spurcis—things.

Filthy. Spurcus.

Filth. Spurcitas.

See under CIRCUMCISE.

A. 724. In man there is nothing but what is filthy. 1864.

940². The filthy Jerusalem. Des.

1304^e. The love of self . . . is what is most filthy of all things . . . 2057.

1594¹. Mutual love . . . consists in . . . acknowledging and believing that itself is . . . a somewhat vile and filthy . . .

1644. These evil and subtle Spirits attach their ideas to filthy objects and things; and therein represent to themselves filthy things . . .

[A.] 1999. In humiliation of heart there is the acknowledgment that self is nothing but what is filthy . . .

2122. See CHRISTIAN.

2748^e. Their thoughts were so filthy and obscene . . .

3224². Their phantasies are attached to filthy and obscene objects . . .

3938⁴. These delights are then seen to be relatively vile; nay, filthy.

4759². With (such) what is holy is not holy, but . . . is either filthy or profane.

5055. The uses of the organs of generation are hidden . . . lest they should be injured by filthy thoughts, which are those of lasciviousness, whoredom, and adultery; and which thoughts are excited in most people when these organs are merely mentioned.

5145³. Good then flows through . . . into the Sensuous, and is there . . . changed into what is filthy . . .

5390. Spirits of this character came to me, and brought with them filthy thoughts, from which flowed filthy discourse . . .

5721³. Inwardly they are filthy, because they are in the love of self . . .

5722. There are others who in the life of the body have been most filthy . . . By their presence and influx into the solid parts of the body they induce weariness of life, and such a torpor of the members and joints, that the man can scarcely rise from his bed.

6310. I observed that whenever I sank down into this sensuous lumen . . . filthy and defiled things presented themselves. The reason is that this lumen dominates in the Hells, and through it the Hells chiefly flow into man. . . Hence it is that misers, adulterers, pleasure seekers, and idlers think filthy things. D.4627⁵.

6313. When a man is elevated towards interior things, he comes . . . into a milder lumen, and is then withdrawn from the influx of scandalous and filthy things.

6832⁹. 'Fire,' and 'flame'=filthy loves; as the loves of revenge, of cruelty, of hatred, of adultery.

7045. See FORESKIN.

7122. Defiled and filthy things . . . from the life in world, adhere to man after death . . .

7454. That infernal filthiness would flow in (if infernal Spirits were near those who are in Divine worship). Sig. 7456, Ex.

7479. (In Mars) they believe that there is nothing in them but what is filthy and infernal.

7519³. That the filthy and defiled things of cupidities . . . should be excited (in the infesters). Sig. These things are excited when the Divine truth flows in, and Heaven approaches nearer.

7524. 'A sore'=the filthy things which are from evils.

8481. 'It bred worms'=that what is filthy came from it.

—^e. The filth of falsity is compared to 'a worm' in Deut. xxviii. 39.

9960. Lest the interior things of love, which are filthy and infernal, should appear. Sig.

Life 74. 'To commit adultery' means to think filthy things . . .

D. 2307. They who have accustomed themselves to speak filthy and obscene things . . . 3125.

2660. Filthy delights . . .

3125. They turn everything into what is filthy.

3435². He supposes that the Lord alone is filthy, because He has taken away all the filthiness from the human race . . .

3453. The quality of these filthy loves was shown me; how they confirm such things by filthy reasonings . . .

3491. (They professed) that there is nothing in them but what is filthy.

3606. How filthy ideas punish those who entertain them.

4235. They are among the most filthy . . . 4367.

D. Min. 4643. Filthy ideas are at once suggested to them . . .

E. 244. Lest filthy loves should appear. Sig.

—^e. These loves are filthy loves because all evils flow from them . . .

902⁴. They had accounted filthy thoughts as wicked.

De Conj. 10S. (Thus) filthy affections and thoughts completely close both Heavens.

Final. Finalis.

Finally. Finaliter.

W. 170^e. Created finally for man's sake.

R. 477. The final exploration and manifestation of the state of the Church. Sig.

801. Trade is their final love . . .

—². The final love resides in the highest and inmost things of the mind.

Find. Invenire.

Invention. Inventio.

A. 2407. 'Found' (Gen. xix. 15)=separated. Ex.

4162. 'To search and not find' (Gen. xxxi. 35)=that they were not his.

4895. 'Not to find' (Gen. xxxviii. 22)=not to disclose.

5756. 'We have found' (Gen. xlv. 8)=what is given gratis.

8505. See FIELD.

9133. 'To be found by finding' (Ex. xxii. 3)=to remain over and above.

H. 260³. Before letters were invented.

R. 791. 'It shall be found no more' (Rev. xviii. 21)=that it will no longer appear to the Angels.

D. 610^e. Everybody can find his friends there. 2771. 2909.

2305. (They try) to find something evil.

2577. The innumerable inventions (of evil Spirits).

3784. They turned away by means of various inventions.

E. 550. 'Not to find death' (Rev.ix.6)=not to be able to destroy.

1160. 'Not to find them' (Rev.xviii.14)=that they were destroyed to eternity.

Find out. Comperire. H.480. 525. 529. T.518^c. E.105².

Find out. Expiscari.

A. 5180². They study to find out the thoughts of others.

M. 299. She cannot find out about her suitor.

T. 566^e. Find out one or other evil in yourself . . .

Fine. Mulctare, Mulcta.

A. 829². In the other life they are miserably fined. Des. D.3110. 4224. D.Min.4775.

957. They are expelled with a fine. 8250².

9045. 'By fining he shall be fined' (Ex.xxi.22)=amendment; for a fine is for the sake of amendment.

M. 514². Seducers there are grievously fined. Des.

Fine brass. Chalcolibanus. A.2162^a.

R. 49. 'Fine brass' (Rev.i.15)=the natural good of truth.

E. 69. 'Fine brass,' or polished brass=natural good. 70. 153.

Fine flour. Simila, Similago.

A. 2177. 'The farina of fine flour' (Gen.xviii.6)=the Spiritual and the Celestial then with the Lord. 2183.

—⁴. 'The fine flour' (in the meat-offering)=the Spiritual of it.

—⁷. Fine flour made into cakes represented the same as bread . . .

— Fine flour (in the bread of faces)=the same as the farina of fine flour; namely, the Celestial and its Spiritual.

—^e. The affections of truth and good of the Ancient Church are signified by 'fine flour, honey and oil' (Ezek.xvi.13).

3880⁸. 'Fine flour soaked' (Lev.vii.12)=the celestial things of faith.

4581⁴. Fine flour (in the meat-offering)=charity towards the neighbour.

5620⁴. 'Fine flour' (Ezek.xvi.)=what is spiritual. (=truth. E.617⁷. 619¹¹.)

9781^e. Wheat=good; and fine flour, its truth.

9995. 'With fine flour of wheat shalt thou make them' (Ex.xxix.2)=the truth which is from Divine good. 'Fine flour'=truth.

—⁴. That 'fine flour—simila seu similago,' and also 'meal'=the truth which is from good. Ill. 10136. 10540³. 1182. —.

R. 778. 'Fine flour' (Rev.xviii.13)=celestial truth.

E. 324¹⁴. 'Fine flour' (in the meat-offering)=genuine truth.

1153. 'Fine flour'=truth from spiritual good, because it is from wheat, by which is signified spiritual good. Ill.

Fine gold. Obryzum. T.16.

E. 242¹⁴. 'The fine gold changed' (Lam.iv.1)=the goods of the Church.

619¹⁴. 'Gold' (1's.xix.10)=celestial good; 'fine gold,' spiritual good.

Fine linen. Byssus, Byssinus.

A. 1232. 'Fine linen,' etc. (Ezek.xxvii.16)=Knowledges of good.

1462⁴. See EMBROIDER. 5319³. 5620⁴. 5954⁶. 9688².

2576¹⁰. Its lower spiritual things, and doctrinal things, are 'garments of brodered work, of fine linen, of silk' (Ezek.xvi.10).

2760^e. 'Clothed in fine linen, white and clean' (Rev.xix.14)=the same in love and faith thence. (=the same in truth from good. W.H.1².)

5319. 'Clothed him in garments of fine linen' (Gen.xli.42)=an external significative of the Celestial of the Spiritual. 'Garments of fine linen'=truths from the Divine . . . For a garment of fine linen was bright white and at the same time resplendent; and truth from the Divine is represented by garments of such shining whiteness and brilliance; the reason being that the shining whiteness and brilliance of Heaven are from the light which is from the Lord. Ill.

—². 'Fine linen' and 'garments of fine linen,' in other parts of the Word, also=truth from the Divine. Ill.

— 'Fine linen' (Ezek.xvi.10)=natural truths; and 'silk,' spiritual truths.

—⁵. The reason why 'fine linen is the righteousness of the saints' (Rev.xix.8), is that all those who are in truth from the Divine put on the Lord's righteousness; for their garments are shining white and brilliant by virtue of the light which is from the Lord.

—⁶. That truth from the Divine might be represented in the Jewish Church, it was commanded that there should be fine linen in the garments of Aaron, and also in the curtains about the ark. Ill.

—⁷. That the Angels who are in truth from the Divine appear clothed as in fine linen, that is, in brilliant shining whiteness, is evident from Rev.xix.13, 14; from which it is very evident that fine linen is an external significative of truth from the Divine . . .

5954². 'Fine linen and silk' (Ezek.xvi.10)=truths from good; (because) in the light of Heaven these are most resplendent and are transparent.

9231². 'Purple and fine linen' (Luke xvi.19)=the Knowledges of good and truth from the Word. (The fine linen=the Knowledges of truth . . . from a celestial origin, because from the Divine. 9467². E.1042⁴.) (=genuine truth. 10227²⁰.) (=the truth of the Word, S.40³.)

9469. 'Fine linen thread' (Ex.xxv.4)=the truth thence derived. . . 'Fine linen'=truth from the Divine; both=truth in the natural man. 'Fine linen thread'=truth from a celestial origin on account of its whiteness and softness.

9596. 'Fine linen woven together' (Ex.xxvi.1)=truth from a celestial origin. . . In the Second Heaven this truth is first. . . But in the veil the fine linen woven together is mentioned last. Ex. 9671.

[A. 9596³]. But by 'fine linen woven together' is properly signified the Intellectual as it is with the spiritual . . . and therefore spiritual truth is also signified.

9687. See BLUE-hyacinthus.

9744. 'Of fine linen woven together' (Ex.xxvii.9)=from the Intellectual. (For 'fine linen'=truth from a celestial origin; and therefore 'fine linen woven together'=the Intellectual; because this consists and is as it were woven of truths from a celestial origin. . . So far, therefore, as the understanding is formed from genuine truths, it excels, and is 'fine linen woven together;' for 'fine linen'=truth from the Divine.

9873³. 'Fine linen'=the truth of spiritual love. (Therefore it was woven into the ephod.)

9919. The reason fine linen was not interwoven (in the robe) as in the ephod, is that the coat, which was the inmost garment, was of fine linen, and this because fine linen=truth from a celestial origin, which is spiritual good itself proceeding from the Celestial.

9942. See COAT. M.20². 266.

9943. 'Thou shalt make the mitre of fine linen' (Ex. xxviii.39)=wisdom there. . . 'Fine linen'=truth from a celestial origin; for from this truth comes the wisdom here signified by the mitre. . .

10540³. 'Fine linen'=intellectual truth which is from the Divine. Refs.

W. 380^c. In the Heavens where wisdom reigns the light is shining white, and the Angels there are clothed in white garments of fine linen.

R. 224. Three Angels in fine linen were seen . . .

773. 'Fine linen,' etc. (Rev.xviii.12)=in general, celestial goods and truths.

814. 'It was given her to be arrayed in fine linen clean and bright' (Rev.xix.8)=that those who will be of the Lord's New Church are instructed by the Lord in genuine and pure truths through the Word. . . 'Fine linen clean and bright'=shining from good and pure from truths; and as pure truth is given only through the Word from the Lord, this, too, is signified. It is called 'clean and bright,' because 'clean'=that which is free from evil, thus which shines from good; and 'bright'=that which is free from falsity, thus which is pure from truth. E.1222.

— By 'fine linen-byssum seu byssinum-' is signified genuine truth. III.

815. 'Fine linen is the righteousness of the saints' (id.)=that by truths from the Word there are goods of life with those who are of the Lord's Church. E.1223.

826. 'The armies in Heaven followed Him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen white and clean' (Rev.xix.14)=the Angels in the New Christian Heaven, who were conjoined with the Lord in the interior understanding of the Word, and thus in pure and genuine truths. . . 'Fine linen white and clean'=pure and genuine truth through the Word from the Lord. (As this was before said of the New Church, so it is here said of the New Heaven.)

M. 14. Garments of fine linen in Heaven. 75⁴.

T. 686. They who have been regenerated by means of the Divine truth of faith, in Heaven go in white garments of fine linen; and are called spiritual Angels.

E. 118⁴. 'Fine linen'=genuine truth. Refs. 236⁶. 242¹⁵.

1957. 'Fine linen and silk'=truths from a celestial origin.

619¹. 'Fine linen'=truth from a celestial origin; 'silk,' truth from a spiritual origin; and 'embroidery,' truth from a natural origin.

654²¹. 'Fine linen' (Ezek.xxvii.7)=spiritual truth.

S31⁶. The spiritual Angels are clothed in garments of fine linen and silk; in general, resplendent ones.

951. The Angels who are wise from Divine truth appear in white garments of satin, fine linen, or linen-lino, because these three correspond to the truths in which they are. III.

1143. 'Of fine linen and of crimson' (Rev.xviii.12)=truths and goods from a celestial origin profaned. —², III. 1166.

—³. The reason 'fine linen'=truth from a celestial origin, is that fine linen was a kind of very bright linen, of which garments were made. . .

1222. As truth from a celestial origin is truth Divine, which is all from the Lord, and is the Word, by 'fine linen'-'byssum et byssinum' is signified truth from the Word. . . 1223.

Fine linen. Xylinum.

A. 2576⁴. The 'fine linen interwoven,' etc. (in the veil) describe the appearances in which are the Angels of the Third Heaven. . .

4677⁴. 'The coat of fine linen' (Ex.xxviii.39)=the Divine Spiritual in special. —⁷.

4922³. 'Scarlet double-dyed and fine linen interwoven' (Ex.xxvii.16; xxviii.5,15)=spiritual goods and truths.

5319⁶. Fine linen is byssinum.

S. 46^e. 'Fine linen'-'xylinum seu byssinum'=truth from a spiritual origin. T.220⁶.

S14². Byssinum is called also 'xylinum.' III.

E. 1143³. As 'byssus,' which is also 'xylinum'=truths from a celestial origin. . .

Finger. Digitus.

A. 5714². He inflicted pain on . . . the toes of the left foot. D.3371.

7430. 'This is the finger of God' (Ex.viii.19)=that the power was from the Divine. . . That 'a finger'=power. III. —². 10062⁵, III. E.329²⁷.

10027. 'Thou shalt put it upon the horns of the altar with thy finger' (Ex.xxix.12)=the Divine power of the Lord from proprium. . . 'Finger'=power.

10044³. As ultimates=the whole . . . so do the toes and the fingers.

10164. They wind them with their toes.

10376. 'Tables of stone written with the finger of God' (Ex.xxxi.18)=Divine truth there from the Lord Himself.

H. 400^e. A Spirit in Hell dare not put forth a finger. R.339².

463. The Angels begin (the examination) at the fingers.

T. 504³. God perpetually holds with His finger . . .

D. 2748. Their fingers were intensely black and devoid of flesh, like the claws of a scorpion.

3363. As when the digits of the foot or hand are congealed by cold . . .

Inv. 60. (De Miraenlis.) The Divine omnipotence which is meant by 'the finger of God' . . .

Finish. See under ABSOLUTION, and CONSUMMATE.

Finite. Finitus.

Finite, To. Finire.

Finiteness. Finitio.

See under INFINITE.

A. 2572⁴. The wisdom . . . of the Angels is finite; relatively to the Divine, most finite; (for) there is no proportion between the infinite and the finite. 4295³. 4642².

3365^e. The Rational can never apprehend Divine things, for it is finite; and this cannot apprehend the things which are of the infinite; therefore truths Divine are presented by the Lord before the Rational by means of appearances . . . 3404².

3938. Divine or infinite things can be comprehended from finite things . . .

4075³. They are not in love to God unless they make that infinite finite by some idea, or present to themselves the hidden God as visible by means of finite intellectual ideas . . .

7211². For the Angels are finite; and the finite cannot have any idea of the infinite.

7270². The truth which proceeds immediately from the Lord . . . cannot be received by any living substance which is finite . . .

8760². The infinite cannot be conjoined with finites . . . except by the putting on of something finite . . .

H. 266³. The thoughts of the Angels are not limited . . . by ideas from space and time . . .

W. 44^e. That which is created is finite; and the finite can only exist from the infinite.

53. See CREATE.

P. 46². Space and time cannot but limit ideas.

— . Man is a finite substance because . . .

52. By finites are meant all things created by Him; especially men, Spirits, and Angels.

57^e. As the finite has not anything of the Divine in it . . .

T. 27. (Space and time) cause all things in the natural world to be finite. . . These finite it.

29³. (Thus) spaces and times finite each and all things in both worlds; and therefore men are finite, not only as to their bodies, but also as to their souls.

— . (Thus) God is infinite, that is, not finite, because He . . . has finited all things; and He finited them by means of His Sun . . . There and thence is the first of finiteness. 33, Ex.

33. That every created thing is finite; and the infinite is in finites as in receptacles . . . Gen. art. Can. God iii. 8.

—^e. God first finited His infinity by means of substances emitted from Himself, from which existed His proximate encompassing sphere, which constitutes the Sun . . . Thus, by means of degrees, He finited the world more and more.

470². The spirit of man is also created from finite things, (which are) spiritual substances.

D. 3484. That I might not be kept in . . . very finite things . . . there was given me a notion of forms which transcend geometrical forms . . . Still, all these forms are finite . . .

D. Min. 4609². Time and space are what finite human ideas . . .

— . Man can have a finite idea of the Lord's Divine Human, from . . .

E. 629⁵. Quantity and quality are properties of the finite; for they determine the finite, and terminate it.

1131⁴. How the finite receives the infinite, may be illustrated by . . .

D. Love iv². How the proceeding Divine can be in . . . finites. Ex.

Fir. Abies.

A. 2162¹¹. 'The fir, box,' etc. = celestial natural things.

2708⁴. 'The fir' (Is. xli. 19) = the truths and goods of the exterior man.

4014^e. 'The firs,' and 'the planes' (Ezek. xxxi. 8) = natural things; 'firs,' natural things as to good; 'planes,' as to truth.

9406². 'The fir, the pine, and the box' (Is. lx. 13) = the corresponding natural goods and truths.

R. 936^e. The leaves of the fir, poplar, oak, and pine = rational truths from sensuous light.

E. 375³³. 'The fir, pine, and box' = the good and truth thence derived in the Natural. . . Those things of the Church which are in the natural man, are signified by 'the fir, pine, and box.'

405²⁰. 'The firs' (Is. xxxvii. 24) = the external truths of the Spiritual Church, also from good.

654¹³. 'The firs' (Ezek. xxxi. 8) = the Perceptive of the natural man.

—¹⁴. 'The height of the cedars and the choice of the firs . . .' (2 Kings xix. 23) = rational and natural truths as to perception.

730²⁴. 'The fir' = higher natural truth; 'the pine,' lower natural truth; and 'the box,' the understanding of good and truth there.

Fire. Ignis.

Fiery. Ignis, Ignitus.

See BURN-ignitus; and under CHARCOAL, and INFLAME.

A. 308^e. They were therefore left to their insane cupidities, which are here signified by 'the fire which is scattered over the city' (Ezek.x.2).

[A.] 574³. 'Fire' (Is.lxvi.16) = the punishment of cupidities.

739³. 'Fire and flame' (Is.xliii.2) = evils and cupidities.

814². They first sank down into a fire which appeared, then into a fiery smoke like that of a furnace . . . While they sank through the fire, they lamented much. D.1288.

825. There appears (in the Hell called Gehenna) as it were a kind of fieriness, like that which shows itself in the air from a great conflagration.

925. The burnt-offerings are called 'an offering made by fire—ignitum—for an odour of rest to Jehovah,' by which is signified that which is from love and charity. 'Fire,' and 'an offering made by fire,' when predicated of the Lord, and of the worship of Him, = love. 2177⁴.

934². 'Fire' (Ezek.i.13) = love. 3021⁶.

—². 'A flaming fire' (Ps.civ.4) = the Celestial Spiritual.

—³. As 'fire' = love, it became a representative of the Lord, as is evident from the fire on the altar of burnt-offering, which was never to be put out (Lev.vi.12,13), representing the mercy of the Lord. Therefore, before Aaron entered into the propitiatory, he had to offer incense, taking the fire from the altar of burnt-offering (Lev.xvi.12–14); and therefore also, in order to signify that the worship was accepted by the Lord, fire was sent down from heaven, and consumed the burnt-offerings (Lev.xii.24, and elsewhere.)

—⁴. 'Fire' also = the proper love and its cupidity, with which celestial love cannot agree; and therefore the two sons of Aaron were consumed by fire, because they burnt incense with strange fire (Lev.x.1.2). 'Strange fire' = all the love of self and of the world, and all the cupidity of these loves.

—⁵. Moreover celestial love appears to the wicked as a burning and consuming fire; and therefore, in the Word, 'a consuming fire' is predicated of the Lord; as the fire on Mount Sinai, which represented the love or mercy of the Lord, and was perceived before the people as a consuming fire . . . So does the Lord's love or mercy appear to those who are in the fire of the loves of self and of the world. 1861¹⁵. 6365².

1042². 'The sparkling coal according to the appearance of fire from his loins upward' (Ezek.i.27) = the Celestial of love; 'the brightness of fire round about from the loins downward as the bow in the cloud' (id.) = the Celestial Spiritual.

1296². 'Fire' (Nahum iii.15) = the penalty of cupidities.

1527. See EVIL SPIRIT. 1528. 3195².

1861. See CUPIDITY.

—². 'Fire' = hatred. Ill. —¹³. Ill.

—⁹. In these passages 'fire' = cupidities.

—¹. Hence it is evident what infernal fire is, and that it is nothing but hatred, revenge, and enmity; or, what is the same, the love of self . . . Ill.

—¹³. 'Fire' = the infernal punishment of those who do not do these things; that is, who pass their time in the falsity of hatred. Ill.

—⁵. (Thus) 'a torch of fire' (Gen.xv.17) = the most filthy evil, which, in the last times, will take possession of the Church.

2177. The Gentiles derived their perpetual fires from the Ancient Church. 10177¹⁰.

—⁴. The (perpetual) fire on the altar represented the perpetual and eternal love, that is, mercy of the Lord. 4489².

2332. The Holy Divine flowing into the profane with man, is of such efficacy, that it is like a devouring and consuming fire . . .

2441⁶. The love of self and its cupidities are signified by 'men being burned by the fire, and being scorched with great heat' (Rev.xvi.8,9).

2444. 'Brimstone' (Gen.xix.24) = the Hell of the evils of the love of self; and 'fire' = that of the falsities thence derived. 2446, Ex. and Ill.

2446³. 'Fire' = cupidities, and at the same time the Hells; and then the smoke from the fire = the falsity thence derived. Ill.

2762². See CHARLOT. —⁴.

2799. 'He took in his hand fire and a knife' (Gen.xvii.6) = the good of love and the truth of faith.

2804. 'Behold the fire and the wood' (ver.7) = that love and justice are present.

3300². As all good is of love, and love itself is celestial and spiritual fire, it is also compared to fire, and is also called 'fire.' (See REP, here.)

3301⁶. Truth is of light; and good is the fire from which is the light. 5219.

—⁷. 'Burnt with fire' (Ezek.v.2) = destroyed by concupiscences.

3704. See SUN. 5079^e. 8812.

3969¹⁶. Light is not in fire, but proceeds from fire. The Divine good itself is compared to 'fire' . . .

4175. Spiritual fire and heat are love . . . All the vital fire and heat which are in the body are thence.

—². In the other life, when (such a man) is among the infernals, he is in the fire or heat of cupidities; but if he approaches Heaven, that fire and heat are turned into cold . . .

4906. Fire and flame, in the spiritual sense, are good; consequently, heat is the affection of good. In the opposite sense, fire and flame are evil; consequently, heat is the affection of evil. Good, moreover, is actually spiritual fire, from which comes the spiritual heat which vivifies; and evil is the fire and consequent heat which consumes. That the good of love is spiritual fire, and that the affection of this good is spiritual heat, may be very evident to him who attends and reflects; for if he reflects whence come the vital fire and heat of man, he will find out that it is from love; for the moment love ceases, the man grows cold; and the more he is in love, the hotter he grows . . . But this spiritual fire or heat, which makes the life, becomes burning and consuming fire with the evil . . . 5071².

5071. 'The eternal fire' into which they were to depart (Matt.xxv.41) is not elementary fire; nor is it the torment of conscience; but it is the concupiscence of evil; for the concupiscences with man are spiritual fires which in the life of the body consume him, and in the other life torture him; by these infernal fires they torture each other in direful ways. Ex.

5313¹³. 'A flame of fire,' and 'a stream of fire' (Dan. vii.9,10) represents the good of Divine love.

5704². The sun is nothing but fire; and light is not in it, but proceeds from it. . . The sun represents the Lord; the fire therein His Divine love; the heat thence, the good which flows from that Love; and the light, the truth of faith. Therefore . . . 'fire'=love. Refs.

6314. See HEAT.

6832. See BRAMBLE-rubus. 6833.

—³. The reason 'a flame'=the Divine love, is that love in its first origin is nothing but fire and flame from the Lord as a Sun. The fire or flame of this Sun is that which gives the being of life to every man; and is the vital fire itself. . . Hence when the Lord appeared in vision, He appeared as fire and flame. Ill.

—⁵. The Divine good of the Lord's Divine love was here (Dan.vii.9) seen as 'a flame of fire.'

—⁴. 'A flame of fire' (Rev.xix.12)=the Divine truth which is in the Word, which is from the Lord's Divine good.

—⁶. That 'a flame of fire'=the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord. Ill.

—⁷. In order that the Divine good itself might be represented, it was commanded that the fire should be perpetual upon the altar.

—⁸. That fire is a representative of the Divine love, was very well known to the ancients, (as is evident from the perpetual fires of the Gentiles).

—⁸. That 'fire' and 'flame,' in the opposite sense, =filthy loves; as the loves of revenge, of cruelty, of hatred, of adultery; and, in general, the concupiscences which come from the loves of self and of the world. Ill.

—⁹. 'Fire,' and 'flame' (Ezek.xx.47)=the cupidities of evil and falsity, which extinguish all the good and truth of the Church, and thus cause its vastation.

—⁹. They who do not know that the vital fire in man is from a different origin than elementary fire, cannot possibly know otherwise than that by the fire of Hell is meant such fire as there is in the world; when yet, in the Word, no such fire is meant, but the fire which is of love, thus which is of the life of man, proceeding from the Lord as a Sun; and which fire, when it enters into those who are in things contrary, is turned into the fire of cupidities, which are . . . of revenge, hatred, cruelty, springing from the love of self and of the world. It is this fire which torments those who are in the Hells; for when the reins are given to their cupidities, the one rushes at the other, and they torment one another in direful and unspeakable ways. . .

6834. See DIVINE LOVE.

6849. The Lord 'a consuming fire.' Ex. 8838.

7324⁸. 'Fire and brimstone' (Rev.xix.20; xx.10,14,15; xxi.8)=the love of self and the cupidities thence derived; for the love of self and its cupidities are nothing but fire, not elementary fire, but fire from spiritual fire, which spiritual fire gives man his life. That loves are the vital fires is evident to him who reflects. It is these fires which are meant by the holy fires in the Heavens, and by the fires of Hell; elementary fire does not exist there.
VOL. II.

7356². That 'fire'=the cupidity of evil. Refs.

7486. [In Mars] they know how to make fluid fires, by which they get light during the evening and night.

7519⁸. 'A furnace of fire'=the evils of cupidities; for the fire of cupidities is what is meant in the Word by the fire of Hell; moreover, loves are nothing but the fire of life. . .

7553⁶. 'Fire mingled with blood' (Rev.viii.7)=the evil of cupidities with falsified truths.

7575. 'The fire walked on the earth' (Ex.ix.23)=the evils of cupidities. . . taking possession of the natural mind down to its lowest parts. 7577.

7812. When (these evil Spirits) approach, there appears as it were a flying fire, which falls down near the face.

7852. 'Roasted with fire' (Ex.xii.8)=the good of love. . . For 'fire'=love. (See ROAST.)

—^c. That 'fire,' in the opposite sense, =the evil of the love of self and of the world, or of the cupidities which are of these loves. Refs.

7861. 'The residue . . . ye shall burn with fire' (ver. 10)= . . . to undergo temptations. The reason temptations are signified by 'burning with fire,' is that purifications are effected by means of fire; and also that when a man is in temptations, he is let into his cupidities, which are fires.

8108. See COLUMN.

—^c. 'Fire'=the good of love. Refs. 8813².

8148⁴. Evil, then, is as fire; and falsities are as the lumen thence.

8159². 'A refiner's fire' (Mal.iii.2)=temptation, by which there is purification.

8215⁵. 'Burning fire' (Dan.vii.9)=the things of love and charity.

8232^e. The fire of Hell is nothing but the concupiscence which is of the love of self, which inflames and torments. Refs.

8244. (The inhabitants of Jupiter) believe that after death they will perceive a fire, which will warm their faces. The origin of this idea is that the wiser of them know that the fire of the Spiritual World is love, and that this fire is the fire of life, and that the Angels have heat from this fire. . .

8328^e. In the sun there is fire. . . but the fire itself of the sun does not pass to the Earth. . . but light in which there is heat from the fire of the sun.

8481. The torment in Hell from falsity is compared to 'a worm;' and the torment from evil there, is compared to 'fire.' Ill.

8495⁵. It was therefore forbidden 'to kindle a fire on the Sabbath day' (Ex.xxxv.3), because by 'a fire' is signified everything that is of life; and by 'kindling a fire,' that which is of life from the proprium.

8496. See COOK.

8644. Fire is in the sun, and light is from the sun; 3 D in the latter there is not fire, but heat. . . In the Sun there . . . there is Divine fire, which is the Divine good of the Divine love. . .

[A.] 8705². Divine good cannot be approached, because it is like the fire of the sun. . .

8739. The faces (of those who call themselves saints) shine as it were from fire . . . but although their faces appear fiery, they are cold. . . (Thus) the fire from which they shine is like an ignis fatuus.

8820. 'Because Jehovah descended upon it in fire' (Ex.xix.18)=the Divine there in celestial love. (For) the fire in which is Jehovah=Divine celestial love. That 'fire'=love. Refs.

8906². 'The fire which devours before Him' (Joel ii.3)=the lust of evil; 'the flame which blazes after Him'=the lust of the falsity thence derived.

9141². The cupidities in man are fires which consume; for there exists in man the fire of life and the light of life; the fire of life is his love, and the light of life is his faith; the love of good, that is, love to the Lord and love towards the neighbour, make the fire of life with a good man and an Angel of Heaven. . . but the love of evil, that is, the love of self and the love of the world, make the fire of life with an evil man and a Spirit of Hell. . . But the love of evil is called in the Word 'the burning of fire,' because it burns and consumes the things which are of the love of good and truth. Refs. and Ill.

9143. 'When fire shall go forth' (Ex.xxii.5)=anger from the affection of evil; (for) 'fire'=love; here, the love of evil and its affection; (and) when what a man loves is attacked, what is fiery bursts forth, and as it were burns. Hence anger is described by 'fire,' and it is said 'to burn.' Ill. 9147.

—². Anger is a fire bursting forth from the affection of evil; but zeal is a fire bursting forth from the affection of good. Ill.

9144. The loves in man are the fires of his life; evil loves . . . are consuming fires, for they consume the goods and truths which are of the life itself; these fires constitute the life of man's will, and the light from these fires constitutes the life of his understanding. So long as the fires of evil are kept shut up in the will, the understanding is in light. . . but when these fires pour their light into the understanding, the former light is dissipated. (Continued under Anger.)

—⁴. The fire of wickedness and anger. . .

—⁷. 'A fire of thorns' (Ps.exviii.12)=the concupiscence of evil.

9188⁴. 'Fire' and 'flame' (Is.xlvii.14)=the love of self.

9193². 'The fire with which the spoil and the city shall be burnt' (Deut.xiii.16)=the evil of the love of self.

9207². 'To be salted with fire' (Mark ix.49)=the longing of good for truth.

—⁷. There is a fiery principle in salt.

9228². 'To kindle a fire with them seven years' (Ezek.xxxix.9)=plenary destruction by the loves of self and of the world.

9277⁴. 'Fire out of (the bramble)' (Judg.ix.15)=the evil of concupiscence. E.638^e.

9348⁹. 'Fire and brimstone' (Ps.xi.6)=the evils of the love of self and of the world. Refs.

9366. So far as they are in the fires of the loves of self and of the world. . .

9375². 'Strange fire in the censer' (Lev.x.)=doctrine from some other source than the Word; 'fire'=the good of love. . .

—^e. That 'fire'=the good of celestial love. Refs.

9391¹². 'The fire' with which the golden calf was burned (Deut.ix.21)=the evil of the love of self and of the world.

9434. 'The aspect of the glory of Jehovah was as a devouring fire. . .' (Ex.xxiv.17)=Divine truth in Heaven resplendent from the good of love, but inflicting injury and vastation on those who are in its external separated from its internal. . . 'Fire'=love in both senses; here, the Divine love itself.

—². From love everyone has the heat and fire of his life. It is evident that without vital heat and fire there is no life. . . Love is as a fire or flame in man, and is also the vital fire or flame; and faith is as the light from this fire or flame. . .

—³. With those who are in heavenly love, the Divine fire or love is continually creating and renovating the interiors of the understanding; but with those who are in infernal love, the Divine fire or love is continually inflicting injury and vastation. The reason is that with the latter the Divine love falls into opposite things, by which it is destroyed; for it is turned into the fire or love of self and of the world, thus into contempt for others, into enmities. . . hatred, revenge, and fierceness. Hence it is that the fire of Jehovah appeared before their eyes as a devouring or consuming one. . . Ill.

—⁴. 'Devouring fire'=vastation. Ill.

—⁵. In these passages 'a devouring fire'=the fire of the cupidities which are from the loves of self and of the world, because this is the fire which consumes man, and which vastates the Church.

—'. 'To put strange fire in their censers'=to institute worship from some other love than heavenly love. That such fire=the love of self and of the world, and all the cupidity thence derived. Refs. E.504²¹.

9466^e. 'Fire' (Rev.ix.17)=the infernal love of evil.

9475². The fire of the altar=the good of Divine love. Refs. Therefore. . . 'strange fire'=love not Divine.

9714². The fire of the altar (which was to be constantly burning)=the Divine good of the Lord's Divine love.

9755¹². 'A great mountain burning with fire' (Rev.viii.8)=the love of self.

9798. As the internal man is opened to the Lord. . . so it is in the fire of Heaven. . . The fire of Heaven is the Divine love proceeding from the Lord; from this is kindled the will of good.

9801^e. The fire of the life of the world extinguishes the fire of the life of Heaven.

9818⁷. 'Fire' (Is.xxxiii.11)=concupiscence, which, being from evil, destroys.

—²³. 'To make them a flaming fire' (Ps.civ.4)=receptions of Divine good or of Divine love.

—²³. 'To baptize with fire' (Matt.iii.11)=to regenerate from the Divine good of the Divine love. L.51a. T.144^e. 684. 686. E.374⁴. 475²⁰. 504⁷.

9905³. See URIM.

9965. 'The fire of the altar' represented the Divine love, thus love from the Lord; but 'strange fire,' love from Hell: the annihilation of worship is signified by offering incense with this fire.

10038. 'Thou shalt burn with fire outside the camp' (Ex.xxix.14)=that these things are to be committed to Hell and consumed by the evils of the love of self. Ex.

—². There are two fires of life with man; one is the love of self, and the other is love to God . . .

10115. 'Thou shalt burn the rest with fire' (ver.34)=their dissipation . . . by the loves which are proper to man, thus by the evils of these loves.

10283⁶. 'The fool of fire' (Is.ix.19)=the appropriation of the evils or cupidities of the love of self and of the world.

10362. 'To kindle a fire' (on the Sabbath day)=to do what is good from our Own loves. 10732.

10413^e. Hence come intestine hatreds, fiercenesses, and cruelties, which are what are signified by infernal fires.

10463. 'He burnt (the calf) with fire' (Ex.xxxii.20)=entirely from the loves of self and of the world, which are condemned to Hell. 'Fire'=celestial love, which is love to the Lord and love towards the neighbour; and in the opposite sense, infernal love, which is the love of self and the love of the world. Refs. Hence 'to be burnt with fire'=to be entirely filled with the loves of self and of the world, thus to be condemned to Hell . . . From this it is evident what is signified by the infernal fire mentioned in the Word passim.

10478. 'I cast it into the fire' (ver.24)=into the loves of self and of the world . . .

10747. Heavenly fire is love to the Lord and love towards the neighbour; and infernal fire is the love of self and the love of the world, and thus the concupiscence of all the evils which spring from these loves. H.134. 568.

10809. Divine love is the fieriness appearing around the Lord in that Sun.

H. 13. Love is like the fire of the sun.

118². This is because the good of love corresponds to fire; and therefore 'fire,' in the spiritual sense, is love; and the good of faith corresponds to light.

122. The fieriness of the world corresponds to the love of self . . .

354^e. Their infernal fire is the cupidity of glory and of name, by which the one is carried against the other . . .

401. The delights of the love of self and of the world are then turned into painful and direful things, because into such things as are called infernal fire . . . P.83³.

566. What infernal fire is. Gen.art.

569. Infernal fire or love comes forth from the same origin as heavenly fire or love; namely, from the Sun of Heaven, but it is made infernal by those who receive it. Ex.

570. Infernal fire, therefore, is the cupidity and delight which spring from these two loves.

—². These are the things which are meant by 'fire' in the Word. Enum. and III.

—^e. In these and many other places, by 'fire' is meant the cupidity which is of the love of self and of the world; and by 'the smoke' thence is meant the cupidity of evil.

571. Therefore, when the Hells are opened, there is an appearance as of fire with smoke, such as is seen in conflagrations; a dense fieriness from the Hells where the love of self reigns; and a flaminess from those where the love of the world reigns. But when they are closed, this fieriness is not seen . . . Yet it still rages within . . .

—^e. But those who are in the Hells are not in fire, but the fire is an appearance . . . for love corresponds to fire.

572. This fire or infernal heat is turned into intense cold when heat from Heaven flows in . . .

573. As infernal fire means every cupidity . . . by the same fire is meant torment. Des. 574^e, Des.

585^e. Fire corresponds to hatred and revenge.

C. J. 19^e. Those who were in the insane love of exercising command over all, appeared fiery.

S. 95². The sun is a fiery ocean.

W. S7. The Sun (of Heaven) appears fiery, because love and fire correspond to each other . . . Divine love is also felt as fire by spiritual beings. Hence, where 'fire' is mentioned in the Word, it=love . . .

89^e. A sun which is pure fire . . . fire is dead, and the solar fire is death itself . . .

93. The acme of spiritual heat is spiritual fire, which is the Divine love and the Divine wisdom in their first correspondence. Hence it is that that Sun appears fiery, and also that it is fiery to the Angels, but not to men. The fire which is fire to men is not spiritual, but natural; and the difference between the two fires is like that between living and dead. 97.

94. This spiritual fire . . . becomes spiritual heat and light . . .

98. 'The sun' means the Lord as to the Divine love and Divine wisdom together; 'fire' means Him as to Divine love; and 'light,' as to Divine wisdom.

157. That the sun of the natural world is pure fire, and thence dead . . . P.3². R.468.

—². The angelic idea concerning the fire of the (natural) sun, and the fire of the (spiritual) Sun, is that the Divine life is internally in the fire of the (spiritual) Sun, but externally in the fire of the (natural) sun.

174. Thus the fire of the sun becomes heat. (See ATMOSPHERE here, and at 175.)

380. Dusky fieriness is the opposite to red.

P. 112². See CONCUPISCENCE.

250³. The evil perform uses from a stronger fire . . .

R. 211. 'Gold tried in the fire' (Rev.iii.18)=the good of celestial love. (=genuine good. E.242.)

[R.] 282°. No one in Hell is in flame, but the flame is the appearance of the love of falsity; and the fire, of the love of evil.

395. 'The Angel filled the censer with the fire of the altar' (Rev. viii. 5) = spiritual love in which is celestial love. E. 496.

—^e. The fire of the altar of burnt-offering = Divine celestial love; (for) 'fire,' in the highest sense, = the Divine love. Spiritual love derives its essence from celestial love . . . This was represented by their taking fire for the censers solely from the altar of burnt-offering . . . (And) the fire on it was to burn continually . . . because it = the Lord's Divine love, and hence love to the Lord. E. 496°. —¹.

399. 'Hail and fire' (ver. 7) = falsity from infernal love. Ill. E. 503, Ill.

422°. Every love, when excited, there appears at a distance as fire . . .

450. 'Fiery breastplates' (Rev. ix. 17) = their argumentations imaginary and visionary from infernal love.

452. 'Out of their mouths issued fire . . .' (id.) = that in their thoughts and discourses, viewed interiorly, there is nothing else, and from them proceeds nothing else, than the love of self and of the world . . .

—². 'Fire' = infernal love; and 'brimstone,' the concupiscences flowing from this love through the conceit of Own intelligence. Ill.

466. 'The fire of his loins' (Ezek. i. 27) = celestial love. (= His Divine love. S36°.)

468. 'His feet as pillars of fire' (Rev. x. 1) = the Lord's Divine Natural as to Divine love, which sustains all things.

—^e. The reason fire = love, is that spiritual fire is nothing else . . .

—². That 'fire' = Divine love. Ill.

494. 'Fire shall proceed out of their mouth' (Rev. xi. 5) = infernal love (which is really not from the two witnesses, but from those who are in infernal love). Ill. E. 642.

566°. Fire and smoke then came out of the Word.

599. 'He maketh fire to come down from heaven . . .' (Rev. xiii. 13) = proofs that their falsities are the truths of Heaven. Ex. and Ill. E. S25.

—^e. Moreover, 'fire' = celestial love, and thence zeal for truth; and in the opposite sense, infernal love, and thence zeal for falsity.

636. 'Shall be tormented with fire and brimstone . . .' (Rev. xiv. 10) = the love of self and the love of the world and the cupidities therefrom . . . E. SSS.

648. 'Having Power over fire' (ver. 18) = . . . that the Angels guard the Divine love in themselves. E. 916.

655°. There appeared as it were fire from Heaven which consumed them; but the fire from Heaven was an appearance of their anger from hatred . . . 714°.

659. 'Mingled with fire' (Rev. xv. 2) = religion and worship, but no good of life. . . 'Fire,' here, = the love of evil, and from it evil of life. (= the good of love. E. 931.)

674. The fire of the altar of burnt-offering = celestial love; and the fire of the altar of incense, spiritual love. Refs.

763°. Hatred against the Lord, and against all things of Heaven and the Church, is meant by the fire in Hell.

766. 'She shall be utterly burnt with fire' (Rev. xviii. 8) = that they will be hatreds against the Lord, and against His Heaven and Church.

—². Infernal fire is hatred, because the love of self hates . . .

—^e. To be burned with fire is the penalty of the profanation of what is holy.

S35. 'The lake of fire burning with brimstone' (Rev. xix. 20) = the Hell where are they who are in the loves of this falsity, and at the same time in the cupidities of evil. S64. S93.

S63. 'Fire came down from God out of Heaven and consumed them' (Rev. xx. 9) = that they perished by the concupiscences of infernal love. Ex.

915°. The fire of the (spiritual) Sun is in its essence the Lord's Divine love, thus the good of love.

M. 34°. The fire of the angelic Sun, which is pure love, is the cause (of man's vital heat).

So. There appeared as it were a lake of fire and brimstone. I asked the Angel why the Hells so appear. He replied, They appear like lakes from falsifications of truth . . . and there appears as it were fire around and in them from the love of evil; and as it were brimstone, from the love of falsity.

316°. There again appeared those two lightnings . . . and the left hand lightning derived its shining whiteness from the red-shining fire of that on the right . . . because fierness in Heaven is good . . .

360. In the will, love is as fire; and in the understanding as flame.

380°. The fire of the (natural) sun comes from the Sun of Heaven, which is not fire, but the Divine love proximately proceeding from God. . . (For) love in its essence is spiritual fire; hence 'fire,' in the Word, = love . . . (Thus) the fire of the natural sun has come forth from no other source than the fire of the spiritual Sun, which is Divine love. I. 6. T. 35°. 12.

I. 6°. Infernal fire is nothing but love which is opposite to heavenly love.

9°. The sun of nature . . . is pure fire . . . and the nature of its heat is like the heat from elementary fire . . . (Thus) the sun . . . is mere fire; and is, moreover, fire in its purity itself.

10. Love is alive, and the appearance of its fire is life; but . . . elementary fire, regarded in itself, is relatively dead . . .

T. 39. Divine love forms life as fire forms light. There are two things in fire; that of burning, and that of shining; from its burning property proceeds heat, and from its shining property light. So there are two things in love; one to which the burning property of fire corresponds, which is something that most interiorly affects the will; and the other to which the shining property of fire corresponds, which is something that most interiorly affects the understanding; and hence man has love and intelligence.

41. This may be illustrated by the (natural) sun, which is pure fire; for heat proceeds from its fieriness, and light from the brightness of its fieriness; and thus both, in their origin, are one. 75². 76². 77³.

159. I saw a great smoke, and fire occasionally bursting out of it . . . Smoke seen in the Hells arises from falsities confirmed by reasonings; and fire is anger blazing up against those who contradict. (Continued under FLAME.)

—^e. They were so enraged that smoke and fire came out of their nostrils.

178². (From such a faith it follows) that fire is life from God.

309. Like fire in wood under the ash. Infernal fire is nothing else . . .

312. Hatred shows like dusky fires, and revenge like bright fires.

383². Evil is like fire—infernal fire is nothing but the love of evil—and it consumes faith like stubble.

472². The sun of this world consists of created substances, the activity of which produces fire.

D. 179^e. This is the fire by which the world will perish, if it does not repent. Ex.

1979. Punishment by fire, which as it were burns their lascivious members. 1980.

2641. That (David) made them pass through the fire . . . is denied; for . . . the infernals are intensely horrified at the phantasy of fire.

2676. On the appearances to Spirits as of little fires—ipmiculi.

3206. See GEHENNA. 3468.

3207. They can become both fire and ice . . .

3410. They are nocturnal fiery lights . . .

4452. They are then surrounded with sulphur and with fire therefrom.

4627¹⁰. Heavenly and infernal fire. Ex.

4657. Appearance as of an ocean of fire.

4768. See CHARLES XII.

5629^e. Evil Italians retain a fire within themselves . . .

5631. Around them appears a fieriness . . .

5669². There sometimes appears a flaming fieriness wandering about them in the streets where they are walking, but it is a consuming fire . . .

D. Min. 4551. On the cruelty of some by means of fire and tow.

4800. On a rain of fire and brimstone.

E. 69. 'Fiery,' when said of the Lord, = that which is from the Divine love.

130^e. 'Fire' = His Divine good. 183¹².

— 'A flaming fire' = the Divine love and the Divine good thence. (= the good of love. 155².) (= the good of love and the truth thence. 419¹¹.)

239¹⁴. 'Fire' = the love of self. 455¹⁶. 730¹⁴.

240⁴. 'Fire' = infernal loves.

274. 'Fire' = the good of love.

295². Love, there, appears as fire.

315⁸. 'Fire' = love, in both senses. 539¹⁴. 825. 888.

324⁴. The fire of the altar = celestial good. (= Divine celestial love. —⁶.) (= the Divine good of His Divine love. 391⁸.)

336⁹. 'A stream of fire going forth' (Dan. vii. 10) = the Divine good of love.

355²³. 'Into the fire' (Ps. lxxi. 12) = into the evils which are from the love of self.

364². The fire in Hell is like a coal fire.

386². 'Fire' = the love of evil. 638¹⁷.

—⁴. 'A fire of coal' = the evil of our Own love.

400⁷. 'Fire' = the love of self and the love of the world. 405⁴². 540⁶. 811⁸.

401³⁰. 'Torch of fire' (Gen. xv. 17) = the hideous love of self.

405⁴⁵. Infernal love in man is such a fire . . .

411²⁴. The Word is said to be 'as a fire' (Jer. xxiii. 29), because 'fire' = the good of love.

419¹⁵. 'Fire and hail' (Ps. cxlviii. 8) = the delights of the loves of the natural man.

455²². 'Fire' = the love of truth.

503². The rain of hail and fire. Ex.

504. (Gen. art. on the signification of fire.)

— 'Fire,' in the Word, = the good of celestial love; and 'flame,' the good of spiritual love; and in the opposite sense, 'fire' = evil originating in the love of self; and 'flame,' evil originating in the love of the world. Ill.

—⁷. 'Fire' = the Lord's Divine love. Ill. 595⁴. 597.

—¹⁵. Where 'fire' is said of the evil and of the Hells, it = the love of self and of the world, and every evil affection and cupidity thence derived which torments the wicked after death in the Hells. The reason 'fire' = these opposite things, is that when the Divine love descends from Heaven, and falls into the Societies where the evil are, it is turned into love contrary to the Divine love, and thus into various ardours of cupidities and concupiscences . . . and as evils carry their own penalties with them, it is turned into torments . . . —¹⁶, Ill. —²⁰.

—¹⁸. The Divine influx with the good appears in the Heavens as a fire vivifying, recreating, and conjoining; but with the evil below, as a fire consuming and devastating. —¹⁹, Ill.

—²³. As 'fire' = the love of self . . . 'fire' = every evil; as enmity, hatred, revenge . . . Consequently, 'fire' also = the destruction of man as to spiritual life, and thus damnation and Hell. Ill.

—²⁴. 'To go through the fire and not be burnt' (Is. xliiii. 2) = that evils shall not hurt.

510. 'A great mountain burning with fire' (Rev. viii. 8) = the love of self and Own intelligence thence.

532⁹. 'To prove by fire' (Zech. xiii. 9) = by the affection of love; for if truth does not agree with this, it is not genuine.

[E.] 539^s. 'Fire' (Joel iii. 3) = the good of the Word adulterated.

—¹⁰. 'Fire' = evils. 540^s. 543¹⁰.

555¹⁷. They are said 'to kindle a fire' (Jer. vii. 18) when they approve and excite from the love of evil.

578⁶. 'Fire and brimstone' = evils of falsity and falsities of evil. —⁷. —⁸, III.

594¹⁸. 'Fire' = His presence by Divine good, which is called the good of faith, being last in order. III.

638¹⁰. The fire kindled in the lamps = spiritual love, which is love towards the neighbour.

650²⁸. 'Fire' = natural love.

652²². 'Fire' = the penalty of the love of evil, and the destruction this love causes. 653¹¹.

654³⁹. 'Fire' = the cupidities of evil.

—⁴⁰. 'Fire' = evils from the love of self.

—⁷⁰. 'Fire' = earthly loves.

717⁹. 'Stones of fire' (Ezek. xxviii. 14) = truths from the good of love.

724³¹. To destroy truths by the evils of the love of self, and by cupidities from proprium, is signified by 'to lead sons through the fire' (Ezek. xx. 26).

727⁶. 'Fire' = conceit from the love of self.

SSS. Therefore 'fire' = the love of all things of good; and in the opposite sense, the love of all things of evil.

916. 'Fire' = celestial and spiritual love. Ex.

944². In the sun there is pure fire; this fire outside the sun is heat . . . Therefore 'fire' = Love; 'heat,' Divine good . . . 1093⁴.

982. 'To afflict men with scorching by fire' (Rev. xvi. 8) = the cupidity or concupiscence for falsities from evils of every kind, consequently, for evil also, or for doing injury to others.

991⁴. In externals there is fieriness; in internals, iciness; therefore after a short time the fieriness is extinguished . . .

1015². Infernal fire is nothing but hatred; therefore the Hells appear to be in fire hideously reddening according to the . . . hatred, and in fire hideously flaming according to . . . the revenge from the hatred.

1016^e. Hatred has fire in it, which is the endeavour to kill man; this fire is manifested by anger.

1017^e. For the fire of Heaven, which is spiritual love, cannot flow in, so long as the fire of Hell, which is hatred, stands in the way.

1055^e. They appear as it were fiery, and their Hell like a conflagration; for infernal fire is nothing but the cupidity of domineering from the love of self.

1076². Hence, in the Word, heavenly fire means love. 1124². 1143⁵.

1126. 'She shall be burned in fire' (Rev. xviii. 8) = that as this is from diabolical love, they will perish.

1147⁴. Over the Hells there appear as it were fires and smokes; the evils are fires, and the falsities smokes.

1224^e. I have seen three kinds of (infernals); fiery ones, black ones, and pale ones . . .

J. (Post.) 313. The sun, which is pure fire. De

Verbo 3⁶. 5M. 17. D. Love xiv. 2. Can. God iv. 4. Coro. 17².

D. Love xx². It is from correspondence that the Sun of Heaven . . . appears as if it were fiery . . . It is from this correspondence that the holy of the Lord's love was represented by the fire of the altar, and by the fire in the lamps, etc.

5M. 11. The notion that the world will be destroyed by fire. Ex.

23. Hail mingled with fire seen falling . . .

De Conj. 93. The women were cast into a place which as it were burned with sulphur and fire.

97. When they are in heat they take fire-ignescunt.

Firebrand. Titio.

A. 695². 'Smoking firebrands' (Is. vii. 4) = wrath. (= the concupiscence of falsity, and wrath thence against the truths and goods of the Church. E. 559³.)

T. 159. Occurs.

E. 740¹⁶. 'A brand plucked from the fire' (Zech. iii. 2) = that there is a little of truth left.

Firebrand. Torris. A. 1327². 3224². T. 348². 455^a. 504^s. D. 4563.

Fireplace. Focus.

A. 381². 'A hearth of bones' (Ezek. xxiv. 5) = the affection of truth.

785². 'A fire of coals' (John xx. 9) = good.

10515. A fireplace in which there was no fire burning, but luminous wood.

P. 206^e. There it makes its hearth . . .

M. 77². Adulterers are cast out into the fireplaces of the west. . . The fireplaces of the west are the loves of evil.

231². In the middle of the amphitheatre appeared a fireplace . . .

I. 9². The concentration of its rays into a focus . . .

T. 159. Smoke rising from the wood in the fireplace . . .

D. 3923. Occurs. 4047.

E. 177⁷. 'The hearth' (Is. xxx. 14) = the Word as to good.

504^s. 'His hearth is in Zion, and his oven in Jerusalem' (Is. xxxi. 9) . . . Celestial love is relatively 'a hearth;' and the truth of doctrine is as an oven, in which bread is prepared. 540¹¹.

513¹⁶. 'A hearth,' or 'fire' (John xx. 9) = good. . . 'A hearth,' and 'a fire' = the good of love.

Fire-serpent. Prester.

A. 251². 'A flying fire-serpent' (Is. xiv. 29) = the cupidity which is of the love of self. 1197².

F. 53^e. 'Whose fruit is a flying fire-serpent' (Is. xiv. 29) = reasonings from the falsities of evil against the truths and goods of the Church.

P. 340. That instantaneous salvation from immediate mercy is the flying fire-serpent in the Church. R. 451². B. 65^e.

— By a flying fire-serpent is meant evil shining from infernal fire, like that which is meant in Is. xix.

R. 601³. They who are (evil) and yet have confirmed the doctrinal things of the Church, appear like flying fire-serpents.

M. 79⁴. We saw fire-serpents fly out.

T. 487⁴. Its fruit, which is a flying fire-serpent, means no imputation of good and evil, but immediate mercy whether a man has lived well or ill.

504⁸. I saw on a certain tree a flying serpent, which is called a fire-serpent, which held out fruit from the tree to some one. Ex.

E. 386³. 'A flying fire-serpent' = ratiocination from falsities. . . In the Spiritual World they appear like basilisks, and their ratiocinations like flying fire-serpents. 581⁸. 727²¹.

654⁴¹. 'A viper and a flying fire-serpent' (Is. xxx. 6) = the Sensuous reasoning cunningly and subtly.

730³⁴. 'Fire-serpents' (Deut. viii. 15) = falsities from the Sensuous.

817⁹. 'Whose fruit is a flying fire-serpent' = that from what is sensuous is born faith separated from charity. This is meant by a 'flying fire-serpent' because, by means of reasonings and confirmations from things revealed which are not understood, it flies upwards, and thus kills living things.

Coro. 30². Like a fire-serpent flying to the side of a bird of paradise.

Fire-vomiting. Ignivomus. T. 155². 5M. 11.

Firm, To make. Firmare.

Firmness. Firmatio.

Firmness. Firmitudo.

Firm. Firmus.

Firmly. Firme.

Firmament, Support. Firmamentum.

A. 638³. They thus fortify their affirmative.

666³. Not only are truths and goods strengthened . . .

666⁴. That truths are strengthened. Sig.

810⁶. A pillar = a support. . . Because the Natural is like a support or basis to the Spiritual . . .

861⁴. 'His hands were firm' (Ex. xvii. 12) = the strength of power.

949⁴. 'The corners' = firmness. Ill. 953⁷.

953⁸. The reason firmness exists in the natural sphere . . . Hence it is that the Natural is the foundation, consequently the support . . .

977⁷. All things conjoining and strengthening both Heavens. Sig.

981⁸. 'A steadfast spirit' (Ps. li. 10) = the understanding and faith of truth.

S. 27. See BASE. —. 34.

T. 79³. Thence came the firmament of the universe.

80⁴. The ethereal firmament.

769. The notion that the universal firmament . . . will perish.

D. 456². They had thought nothing firmly, or steadily.

562⁹. There is a certain firmness in the Natural (of the Dutch). J. (Post.) 5. 14.

E. 219⁴. 'To make firm its pillars' (Ps. lxxv. 3) = to support the truths upon which the Church is founded.

294⁴. 'To renew a steadfast spirit in the midst of me' (Ps. li. 10) = to reform as to the truth of faith.

600¹². 'To strengthen the stakes' (Is. liv. 2) = confirmation from the Word.

783. Firmatio et corroboratio. Sig.

799⁹. 'Stakes' = firmatio.

1002⁶. Chaste marriages are . . . the supports of Heaven. . . They are its supports by means of power against the Hells.

D. Love v³. Serves as a . . . support to the larynx.

First. Primus.

See PRIMARY, and under ALPHA.

A. 6. The first state (of regeneration) is that which precedes . . .

2027³. They are among those who want to be first, but become last (Matt. xix. 30).

3183. Thus the first state and the last are united.

3382². All things regard Him as the First ex quo, and as the Last ad quem.

3600². There, truth is in the first place . . . but here, good is in the first place . . .

3603³. Truth no longer put in the first place.

3627². See CONNECT. 3739². 5413⁶. H. 9. 303. —². E. 349⁵.

4044⁶. Nothing can subsist from itself, but from something else . . . and finally from the First. . . The Lord is the First. 4523². 6040. 9128³. H. 9. 106⁶.

4116. See BOUNDARY.

4801. He had believed that he would be among the first in Heaven.

4901. 'Three' = the last and the first together . . .

—^c. As the last is thus continued into the first, it is said that He is 'the Last and the First.'

4977⁶. Truth is apparently in the first place . . . while man is being regenerated; but good is manifestly in the first place when man is regenerate. Refs.

5280³. This state is the first, and is called the state of reformation.

5365². In the first times, when man is being regenerated . . .

5440⁶. The first and last must join together for there to be conjunction; the first must be the good a quo, and the last the good ad quod.

6044. See END. 6936⁶. Can. God vii. 3. 5.

7295². When they first arrive there . . .

7779. The falsified truths which are in the first place. Sig.

[A.] 782S. 'The first,' when said of the months—thus internally of the states of life—signifies the beginning. 7887. 7891. 7900.

9416. The things which are first signify the rest in order.

9568². (Thus) the first is everything in the products and derivatives, inasmuch that if the first is removed, its successives perish. The Divine is the first of all things. E.725¹. 866².

10044⁵. As the first and the last = each and all things, or the whole with its parts, the omnipotence and omniscience of the Lord are described by His being 'the First and the Last . . .' Ill. 10329^e. H.304 (b).

J. 20^e. To confer on him all things of Divine order, from primes to ultimates. Sig.

L. 36. Thus God became man, as in primes, so in ultimates. Ex.

—². Hence the Lord is called 'the First and the Last . . .' S.98^e. P.124^e. T.84^e.

S. 27. In every Divine work there is a first, a middle, and an ultimate; and the first goes through the middle to the ultimate, and thus comes into existence and subsists. Also, the first is in the middle, and, through the middle, in the ultimate. Ex. 38².

98^e. Before (His advent) the Lord was indeed the Word, but in primes. Sig.

W. 65². Primes are each and all things of the animal kingdom . . . man being the first in order.

208. Every ultimate consists of prior things, and these of their primes.

221². He is Divine love and wisdom itself, in both primes and ultimates.

226. There is a connection (of the greatest and least things) from primes to ultimates. Ex.

303. There are perpetual mediations from the First to ultimates; and nothing can come into existence except from what is prior to itself, and at last from the First. The First is the Sun of the Spiritual World; and the First of that Sun is . . . the Lord.

304. As there is such a progression of the fibres and vessels from primes to ultimates, there is a like progression of their states . . .

310². Progression from primes to ultimates, and from ultimates to primes . . . 314. —. 316. —². —³, Ex.

P. 220². Therefore all the Lord's operation is from primes and ultimates together.

277a^e. All reformation takes place in fulness, that is, in primes and in ultimates together, and the ultimates are reformed in the world so as to agree with the primes . . .

R. 17. What is first in time, and what is first in end. Ex.

31. Who rules all things from primes through ultimates. Sig. E.66.

47. The Divine love of the Divine wisdom in primes and in ultimates. Sig.

92. 'The First and the Last' (Rev.ii.8)=the Lord, that He is the only God. (=the Lord, who, from His Divine Human, rules all things from primes through ultimates. E.113.) E.41. 81.

350. The tribe mentioned in the first place is the all in the rest.

M. 68. From primes to ultimates. 293⁴.

311². All order proceeds from primes to ultimates, and the ultimates become the primes of some following order; moreover, all things of the middle order are the ultimates of the prior and the primes of the following one. (Therefore) such as is the order of this love from its first heat to its first toreh, such it is . . . in its progression . . .

T. 63. That God is omnipresent from the primes to the ultimates of His order.

336². Faith (or) truth is the first in time; but charity (or) good is the first in end; and that which is the first in end is actually the first, because it is primary, and thus the first-born; whereas that which is first in time is not actually the first, but apparently. (Ex. by comparisons.)

D. 1398. On those who want to be the first in whatever they do.

2591. That the Lord has led mankind ever since the creation of the first man.

— . How could the first man have come into existence before the Grand Man was formed? The first man, and those who were born first, were led by the Lord alone.

4605. The direction of the Lord is in primes and in ultimates; from this mediates flow in their order. Ultimates are as much directed as primes.

E. 62. In the Word it is usual to mention those things in the first place which take place in the last, because the intermediate things are included in them; for, in the spiritual sense, the first is the end propter quem, because the end is the first and the last . . .

66. From these, as from their primes or beginnings, all the rest flow.

328⁴. For the Divine operates from primes through ultimates . . . 806².

405². That thus He might rule and dispose ultimates from primes, and all intermediates from primes through ultimates . . .

726². That . . . hence the Lord has infinite power from primes through ultimates. . . Primes are those things which are in the Lord, and which proximately proceed from Him.

865². See FIRST-FRUITS.

939². The ten commandments were the first of the Word. Ex.

1086². The Lord does not operate from primes through mediates into ultimates, but from primes through ultimates, and thus into mediates; hence He is called 'the First and the Last.' 1087².

1087⁴. This the Lord could do from the Divine in Himself, which was in primes, through His Human, which was in ultimates.

1146^o. (Thus) everything comes forth, subsists, acts, and is moved from the First which is not from another . . .

1209^o. The force of creating . . . proceeds from the First through intermediates to the ultimate; the First is the Sun of Heaven . . .

1226^o. The universe was so created by Him that He is in primes and in ultimates. Ex.

Ath. 49. All Divine operation passes through the whole of order, from primes to ultimates.

112. He became the Last, that so the First might act through ultimates . . . that is, from primes through ultimates; for when He acted from primes through ultimates, He acted through all things . . .

120^o. Of the Divine from which is the universe, an idea is to be perceived no otherwise than as of a Divine Man in first principles . . .

D. Love iv. The Divine which proceeds from the Lord is Divine from primes down to ultimates; the ultimates are what are called 'bones' . . .

ix. From the primes of uses to their ultimates . . .

xix. In its primes it is in the brains; these primes (are) the cortical and cineritious substances.

xx^o. He has prepared for Himself all mediates, from primes down to ultimates . . .

xxi^o. Thus life comes into full effect from primes to ultimates.

D. Wis. viii^o. All Divine influx is from primes into ultimates, and, through connection with ultimates, into mediates . . . Therefore He is called 'the First and the Last.'

Can. God viii. 12. God acts from primes through ultimates, and thus keeps all things together.

Redemp. viii. 10. All the operation of God takes place from primes through ultimates, thus from His Divine through His Human. Hence it is that God is the First and the Last . . .

Coro. 17. A primus infulus.

First Heaven. Coelum primum.

Ultimate Heaven. Coelum ultimum.

A. 544. Some were admitted into the Heaven of ultimates, and of the First Heaven. (They said) that such is the state of joy and gladness, that no idea can ever be obtained of it.

953. I was taken through certain abodes of the First Heaven . . .

1525^o. All the good Spirits who are in the First Heaven . . . 1752^o. 1799^o.

1802. The Angels who are in the First Heaven are subordinate to the Angels who are in the Second; and these are subordinate to the Angels who are in the Third . . . For the Lord's life flows in through the Third Heaven into the Second, and through this into the First.

—³. No one can ever be carried from the First or external Heaven into the Second or interior one, until he has been instructed in the goods of love and truths of faith. In proportion as he is instructed, he can come among angelic Spirits; and in like manner the latter can come into the Third Heaven, that is, among Angels.

2041^o. Their externals are put to sleep, and so they are carried into the First Heaven . . .

2187^o. Those still lower, which are celestial natural things, such as are in the First Heaven, are meant by 'Jacob.'

2576^o. The hanging of the court represented appearances of good and truth still more exterior, and which are the lowest ones of the Rational, in which are the Angels of the First Heaven.

3344^o. See SPEAK. 3346.

3475. There are three Heavens. In the First Heaven these representatives appear in an external form, with a perception of what they signify . . . The representatives which appear in the First Heaven are the general ones of those things which appear in the Second . . . They who are in the First Heaven, in their representatives see such things as come forth in the interior sphere of the Lord's Kingdom . . .

3476. The literal sense unites man with the First Heaven.

3691^o. They who are in charity merely from the affection of truth, so as not to have a perception of charity itself, except from the truth with which they are affected, are in . . . the exterior or First Heaven, and . . . are called good Spirits.

3739. The Ultimate Heaven, which succeeds this again, is similarly circumstanced, for the particulars . . . of the Heaven next above inflow into this Heaven, and are there presented in general, in a corresponding form. 5313^o, Examp.

4240. The Ultimate or First Heaven is celestial and spiritual natural, because in simple good, which is the ultimate of order there.

4279. The lowest Heaven is called the First Heaven; and therefore the Word . . . in the First Heaven is celestial and spiritual natural, for this Heaven is so named. —².

—². The lower sense of the Word, in which the internal sense is determined to that nation which is there named, is for the lowest or First Heaven.

—^e. This sense is wont to be represented to the life . . . in the First Heaven.

4286^o. The Ultimate or First Heaven is also celestial and spiritual, but not in the same degree as the others; for what is natural adheres to them; and therefore they are called celestial and spiritual natural. They also are in mutual love, but they do not love others more than themselves, but as themselves. They are in the affection of good and in the Knowledge of truth; and they, too, are distinguished into internal and external.

—⁴. By Jacob is represented . . . the Lord's Kingdom such as it is in the Ultimate or First Heaven.

4411. When the light which proceeds from the Lord flows into . . . the Ultimate or First Heaven, mediately and immediately, it is received substantially, and appears there as a paradise, and in some places as a city containing palaces.

[A.] 444³. The First Heaven, which is the ultimate of the three, is in such representatives and significatives (as those of the Ancient Church).

452⁸. These paradisiacal things are in the First Heaven, on the very threshold of the interiors of this Heaven, and are representatives which descend from the higher Heaven . . . This Heaven is distinguished into many Heavens, to which correspond all the things which exist in the . . . eye; there is a Heaven containing paradisiacal gardens; there is a Heaven containing variously coloured atmospheres . . . there is a rainbow Heaven . . .

460⁵. Gad=the good of the Natural, such as it is in the First Heaven.

514⁵. The interior Natural constitutes the third degree, in which are good Spirits, or the Ultimate or First Heaven.

531³⁴. Such things (as are described in the Prophets) are presented to view before those who are in the Ultimate Heaven, from which, as from images, they see Divine arcana.

532⁸. The Ultimate or First Heaven relates to the feet, because it is natural. 6436⁶.

565⁸. When they are conversing in a higher Heaven . . . there are (corresponding) appearances with those in the First or Ultimate Heaven below them (6048) . . . Likewise with those Angels of the First or Ultimate Heaven who are in good from good, there appear tables, etc. of gold; but with those who are in truth from truth, there appear such things of silver.

6013. The Ultimate or First Heaven is the Heaven of truth in which there is charity from the Second Heaven, and, in this, innocence from the Third.

6396. See DAN.

6617. A good Spirit was carried up into the First Heaven, and then saw infinite things in what I was reading from the Word . . .

6832². In the Ultimate or First Heaven the Lord appears neither as a Sun nor as a Moon, but only as light, which far surpasses the light of the world.

7270². Such is the successive order . . . down to the Ultimate Heaven, and from the Ultimate Heaven down to the Sensuous . . . of man.

8030. This angelic Heaven, to which (the Spirits of Jupiter) are carried, is the Heaven which is First or Ultimate of the three. This Heaven appears to the right of their Earth, and is quite separate from the First or Ultimate Heaven of the Angels of our Earth. They who are in that Heaven appear clothed in cerulean blue, spotted with little golden stars . . .

8443². Truth Divine in the fifth degree is such as exists in the Ultimate or First Heaven; this can for a while be perceived by an enlightened man . . .

8827. See THIRD HEAVEN. 10181². H.227.

9216³. The middle or Second Heaven inflows into the First or Ultimate Heaven; and this, again, inflows with man.

9407. Divine truth in the First or Ultimate Heaven is spiritual natural.

9457². In the Ultimate Heaven are represented the things which are being thought and spoken of and which are coming forth in the middle and inmost Heavens. (The representatives enum.) These appear before the eyes of the angelic Spirits there more clearly than like things do in noon-day light on the Earth; and what they signify is apperceived. Such things appeared to the prophets . . . —³. 10126, Ex.

9485⁶. See COURT. 9741². R.487². E.630. —³. —¹².

9543. These things scarcely fall into the idea of thought of the angelic Spirits who are in the Ultimate Heaven.

9577. The angelic Spirits who are in the Ultimate or First Heaven, continually see forms of things like such as are in the world. (Enum.) All these things are representatives of the heavenly things which are in the higher Heavens . . .

9594. See DEGREE. 9773. H.31⁶. 33. 208. 267. 270. 280. W.67. 202. R.49². L.16. T.34. 76². 608. E.314³. 342². 375². 449². 627². 739⁴. 832⁶. —⁷. 1125². 1147. 1185. De Verbo 11.

9622. The communication of all things of this Heaven with the extremes there, and influx thence into the Ultimate Heaven. Sig.

9686. The hanging=the medium uniting the Second Heaven with the First or Ultimate Heaven. Ex.

9687⁶. In the Ultimate Heaven there reigns the good of faith.

9711. Afterwards (in Ex.xxvii.) it treats of the Ultimate Heaven, which is represented and described by 'the court.'

9741. The Ultimate Heaven is called 'a court' because in it are those who are in the good of faith, and not yet in the good of charity . . . Those who are in the Ultimate Heaven which is called 'the court' are called angelic Spirits.

—². There are three goods which follow in order; the good of faith, the good of charity, and the good of love . . . The good of faith constitutes the Ultimate or First Heaven . . . 10270².

—³. In the external of the Celestial Kingdom are those who are in the good of mutual love . . . and in the external of the Spiritual Kingdom are those who are in the good of faith . . . It is the external of both Heavens which is called the Ultimate or First Heaven, and is represented by the court. Hence the court was twofold . . . —⁴.

—⁵. 'The place of the soles of His feet'=the Ultimate Heaven.

9743. 'The hangings for the court'=the truth of the Ultimate Heaven.

9747. The goods of truth are predicated of the Ultimate Heaven, which is supported by the good of faith . . .

9755. The state of the Ultimate Heaven as to scientific truths. Sig.

9758. The state of the truth of the Ultimate Heaven, where goods are. Sig.

9763. 'The hanging for the gate of the court' = introduction into the Ultimate Heaven.

9771. The good of the Ultimate Heaven to the full. Sig.

9811. Eleazar and Ithamar = the Divine Natural, which is the Divine received in the Ultimate Heaven.

9812². The Divine good natural, which constitutes the First or Ultimate Heaven, is the good of faith and of obedience.

9826. The Ultimate Heaven accedes to what is natural. . . In the Ultimate Heaven reigns the good of faith.

9933². In the First or Ultimate Heaven there is the good of natural love from love spiritual and celestial, which is the good of faith and of obedience.

9992. In the First or Ultimate Heaven there is . . . what is spiritual natural.

10005². What is natural thence, which is the good of faith, constitutes the Ultimate or First Heaven.

—³. The court represented the Third or Last Heaven.

—⁴. The feet correspond to the Ultimate or First Heaven, where there is natural good. 10062.

10062. The great toe of the right foot = the Intellectual in the Ultimate Heaven.

10130³. They who are in the obedience of faith, that is, they who do truth for the sake of truth, are associated together in the Ultimate Heaven.

10276⁵. All things instituted with the Israelites were like those which are in the First Heaven, but in less perfection. Enum.

10335². In the Ultimate Heaven are those who are in the truth of faith from good. Ex.

H. 29. There are three Heavens . . . The Ultimate or First Heaven is as the feet with man, and as the lowest part of a house.

31. The Divine which flows in from the Lord, and is received in the Ultimate or First Heaven, is called natural. But as the Natural of this Heaven is not like the Natural of the world, but has in it what is spiritual and celestial, this Heaven is called spiritual and celestial natural . . . Those Angels in it are called spiritual natural who receive influx from the Second Heaven . . . and those are called celestial natural who receive influx from the Third Heaven. The spiritual natural and celestial natural Angels are distinct from each other, but still constitute one Heaven, because they are in one degree.

33^e. They who live morally, and believe in the Divine, and do not much care to be instructed, are in the Ultimate or First Heaven.

34^e. In like manner the perfection of the Angels of the Middle Heaven surpasses that of those of the Ultimate Heaven.

35. There were some from the Ultimate Heaven, not yet instructed . . . who were permitted (to ascend to a higher Heaven. They saw no one, and were seized with anguish.)

65^e. The Ultimate or First Heaven forms the feet down to the soles, and also the arms down to the fingers . . .

100. The Third Heaven corresponds to the Second, and the Second to the First Heaven; and this corresponds to the corporeal forms in man, which are called his members, organs, and viscera.

207. The First or Ultimate Heaven is still lower (than the Second).

210. The thoughts and affections in the Middle Heaven appear in the Ultimate Heaven as something lucid, and sometimes as a bright and variously coloured cloud . . .

261. The writings in the lower Heavens are . . . like those in the world, with similar letters; but are not intelligible to man . . .

270². The Angels of the First or Ultimate Heaven have not Divine truths thus inscribed on their interiors, because in them only the first degree of life is opened; they therefore reason about them . . .

271. The Angels of the Ultimate Heaven first store up Divine truths in the memory . . . and take them out thence, and by them perfect their understanding; and, without any interior perception whether they are true, will them, and commit them to life. Hence their comparative obscurity.

295. In childhood, Spirits are present who are in the affection of knowing, thus who communicate with the Ultimate or First Heaven.

382. See ANGEL.

400². As they desire it, they are carried to some Society of the Ultimate Heaven; but . . . begin to be tortured . . . 518².

459^e. The faces of the Angels of the Ultimate Heaven may, in some measure, be adequately depicted.

515. They who die adult are for the most part instructed by Angels of the Ultimate Heaven.

J. 2². This Heaven is meant by the 'First Heaven' which was to perish.

46^e. The Last Judgment was performed upon all who had been in the 'First Heaven' since the Lord's time.

56⁸. Hence it is that (the papists) communicate, by their holy external, with some Societies of the Ultimate Heaven; and, by their profane internal, with the Hells. 70.

66. The 'First Heaven' does not mean the (ancient Heaven) . . . But the 'First Heaven' means that composed of others than Angels, and for the most part of those who could not become Angels. Ex. 67, Ex. C.J. 10.

69. Composition of the 'First Heaven.' Gen.art. C.J. 18. R. 330.

71. On the quality of the 'First Heaven.'

72. How the 'First Heaven' passed away.

C.J. 10. All those who had gathered together beneath Heaven, and in various places had formed as it were Heavens . . . were conjoined with the Angels of the Ultimate Heaven, but only as to externals . . . R. 330.

— . To have separated them before the Last Judgment would have been to inflict injury on those who were in the Ultimate Heaven . . . Sig. R.948.

W. 85^e. The Angels of the First or Ultimate Heaven (see the Sun) sometimes.

110. An Angel of the Ultimate Heaven cannot ascend to the Angels of the Third Heaven . . . 179^e.

—^e. The Lord is equally present with those who are in the Ultimate Heaven as He is with those who are in the Third . . .

202². The thoughts of the Angels of the lowest or First Heaven are thoughts of effects. . . To think from effects belongs to knowledge.

429. They who are in spiritual natural love have neither wisdom nor intelligence inscribed on their life, but they have somewhat of faith from the Word, in so far as this somewhat is conjoined with charity. They do not know what charity is, nor whether faith is Truth . . . Yet those of them who have shunned evils as sins are in the Ultimate Heaven, and are there in a light like that of the moon by night.

R. 49². The First or Ultimate Heaven is in the Divine Natural.

260. The Ultimate Heavens are as it were under the earths. Ex.

290. Confession and glorification of the Lord by the Angels of the lowest Heavens. Sig. E.342.

335. By this faculty of understanding, the evil . . . could be in consociation with the Angels of the Ultimate Heaven; but when the latter were separated from them, their Heaven departed like a scroll rolled together.

363. 'A great multitude which no one could number' = all the rest who . . . are in the New Heaven and New Church, and are they who constitute the Ultimate Heaven and the external Church, whose quality no one knows except the Lord.

565¹. John's state was now spiritual natural, like that of those who are in the First or Ultimate Heaven. Sig.

I. 16². They who are in the Ultimate Heaven are in the love of knowing truths and goods.

T. 119. The Second and the Ultimate Heaven constitute the breast and the middle region of the body; and the Church on earth, the loins and feet. . . The gastric region (is) the Ultimate Heaven.

121. At the time of the first Advent, the Hells had . . . not only confused the Ultimate Heaven . . .

212. The Lowest Heaven constitutes the Lord's Natural Kingdom.

569¹. I saw a devil . . . who a few days before was seen among the Angels of the Ultimate Heaven . . .

580². Those come into the Ultimate Heaven who practise only external charity, and at the same time acknowledge the Lord as God the Redeemer and Saviour.

608. The Ultimate Heaven constitutes the feet.

614. I once heard a certain person in the Ultimate Heaven saying that he was free from sins . . . He was let into his own peculiar sins . . .

D. 255. The Ultimate Heaven in which I was before, was beneath me . . .

256. The Angels there do not know what is going on in the Ultimate Heaven, unless . . .

260. Not knowing that he was only in the Ultimate Heaven, where evil Spirits still dwell.

4640^e. In the Ultimate or First Heaven are simple Spirits, who correspond to the cuticles.

4879. (Dragonist Spirits elevating themselves into the Ultimate Heaven.) 4884. 4886.

5172. On the state of the Ultimate Heaven.

5775. The First Heaven forms the knees and feet.

5780. From the series of fibres in the body it may be clearly seen how the case is in the Ultimate Heaven . . .

E. 65³. As the Ultimate or First Heaven corresponds to the feet . . . 212.

304². The Angels in the First or Ultimate Heaven dwell beneath the former in the plains and valleys . . . The Angels who are in the Ultimate Heaven call that Heaven where the Angels of the Third Heaven dwell, because it is high above them, and where they themselves dwell they call the earth.

322. The First or Ultimate Heaven is where there are Angels who are in spiritual natural love . . . Those in the Second Heaven, together with those in the First or Ultimate Heaven, constitute the lower Heavens.

342¹. Upon the earth, and under the earth, and in the seas, dwell those who are in the First or Ultimate Heaven . . .

—¹⁰. The Societies which are in the Ultimate Heaven appear encompassed with an atmosphere as it were watery.

369². Thus are the arcana of Divine wisdom promulgated before the Angels of the Ultimate Heaven; and the intelligent of them perceive these arcana from the correspondences: but the lowest of them do not perceive them, but merely know that there are arcana in them, and make no further inquiry. John was with the latter when he was in the spirit.

375². They who remain in the sense of the letter, and thence make for themselves doctrine, and live according to it, are . . . spiritual natural, and are in the Ultimate Heaven.

438². The next three tribes (Simeon, Levi, and Issachar) mean those who are received into the Ultimate or First Heaven, where are those who are in the obedience which is called that of faith. 443. 445³.

443². They who belong to the First or Ultimate Heaven are all in the obedience of doing the truths and goods which are commanded in the Word, or in the doctrine of the Church in which they were born . . . The greater part of them are not in truths themselves, but in falsities from ignorance, which, however, are accepted by the Lord as truths, because they have the good of life as their end . . . 450.

445². In the Ultimate or First Heaven are those who are in good works from obedience; these are also said to be in faith, for they believe . . . the things they hear from the sense of the letter and from the preacher, and do not see and perceive whether they are true . . .

449. See BENJAMIN. —². —⁶.

— . In the Ultimate Heaven are they who are in natural good and truth from what is spiritual and celestial. They who are in the Ultimate Heaven are either spiritual natural or celestial natural; the spiritual natural therein belong to the Spiritual Kingdom, and the celestial natural to the Celestial Kingdom; and therefore the spiritual natural communicate with the Second Heaven . . . and the celestial natural with the Third Heaven. Hence it is evident what the brothers Joseph and Benjamin signify.

—⁵. A plain = good and truth in the natural man, because in the plains, or beneath the mountains and hills, dwell those who are in the Ultimate Heaven, who are called celestial natural and spiritual natural.

462. 'The Angels' = those who are in the First or Ultimate Heaven.

465. The reception of Divine truth in the Ultimate or First Heaven is called 'blessing.'

529^e. 'To be carried upon the wings of the wind' = to enlighten the Ultimate Heaven; (for) 'the wind' = the Spiritual of that Heaven.

600. The feet correspond to the Ultimate or First Heaven, the Angels of which are celestial natural and spiritual natural.

624². There are two kinds of men upon whom the Judgment is effected, the upright and the wicked; the upright are the Angels in the Ultimate Heaven, of whom most are simple, because they have not cultivated their understanding by interior truths, but only by exterior ones from the sense of the letter, and according to which they have lived; hence it is that their spiritual mind . . . has not indeed been closed, but neither has it been opened as it is with those who have received interior truths in doctrine and life; and hence it is that as to spiritual things they have become simple, and are to be called the upright. The wicked . . . have appeared as Angels in the external form . . . and when they come into the other life, they are for the most part consociated with the . . . simple good who are in the Ultimate Heaven . . .

638⁶. In the Ultimate Heaven the trees are not so noble.

669. The simple good constitute the Ultimate Heaven; therefore unless they had been separated they might have inflicted injury on those who are in this Heaven by conjunction with their externals.

684. So long as the evil were conjoined with the good, the interiors of the Angels in the lower Heavens could not be opened, but only the exteriors . . . Therefore, before the interiors—which are spiritual and celestial—of the Angels of the Ultimate Heaven were opened, this Heaven could not become the Lord's Kingdom as it could after the separation of the evil from them. Sig.

700³. The court (of the tabernacle and of the temple) represented the First Heaven.

702⁴. As thereby the Ultimate Heaven . . . began to be shaken . . .

726⁴. The Ultimate Heaven is in an aura still less pure.

817¹². The natural goods and derivative truths in which are the Angels who are in the Ultimate Heaven, are signified by goats.

834. The spiritual natural love in which are the Angels of the First or Ultimate Heaven . . . is what is properly called charity towards the neighbour. As these Angels, in respect to understanding, are almost like men in the world, and as they are also natural, they have the understanding only a little elevated above what it is in the world, and therefore they do not see truths in light, like the Angels of the Second Heaven, but receive, acknowledge, and believe them from the doctrine in which they are instructed before they are admitted into Heaven; hence it is that only the more intelligent of them know what charity towards the neighbour is; the simple there believe that every man is the neighbour . . .

1074. The Angels of the First Heaven, who are in the faith of charity, are called 'the faithful.'

De Verbo 3. In the Ultimate Heaven they are natural, but their Natural derives something either from the Spiritual, which is of the Middle Heaven, or from the Celestial, which is of the Third Heaven.

D. Wis. xii. 5². See ATMOSPHERE.

De Conj. 67. In the Ultimate Heaven there is something of cold in their marriages, but not such cold as there is on earth.

First-born. Primogenitus.

Primogeniture. Primogenitura.

A. 350. 'The first-born of the flock' (Gen. iv. 4) = what is holy, which is of the Lord alone. 352.

352. For, in the representative Church, all first-born things were holy, because they regarded the Lord, who alone is the First-born. Love and the derivative faith is what is first-born. All love is of the Lord . . . and therefore the Lord alone is the First-born; and this was represented in the Ancient Churches by the first-born of man and beast being holy to Jehovah (Ex. xiii. 2, 12, 15); and by the tribe of Levi, which = love . . . being accepted in the place of all the first-born, and being made the priesthood (Num. iii. 40-46; viii. 14-20). (3325⁶.) That the Lord, as to His Human essence, was the First-born of all (Ps. lxxxix. 27; Rev. i. 5). (3325⁵.) Observe that the first-born things of worship = the Lord; whereas the first-born things of the Church = faith.

367. The dispute about the primogeniture in the case of Esau and Jacob . . . Pharez and Zarah . . . and Ephraim and Manasseh, Ex.

897⁶. The first-born of Jacob, Reuben . . . = faith.

1063. 'The first-born of Egypt' (Ps. lxxviii. 51) = faith without charity. That faith is called the first-born of the Church. Refs.

1201. Zidon is called 'the first-born of Canaan' (Gen. x. 15); for the first-born of every Church = faith; but here, where there is no faith.

2435. A controversy from most ancient times as to what is the first-born of the Church, whether charity or faith . . . They who made faith the first-born all fell into heresies . . . as in the case of Cain . . . of Reuben who defiled his father's bed . . . and therefore the primogeniture was given to Joseph (Gen.xlviii.5; 1 Chron.v.1). Hence all the disputes, and the laws, in the Word, about primogeniture . . . Thus, charity is really the first-born of the Church . . .

[A.] 3296. The combat for precedence and dominion between good and truth is described by Jacob taking away the primogeniture from Esau . . . but only for a time.

3325. 'Sell as to-day thy primogeniture (or birth-right) to me' (Gen.xxv.31)=that as to time the doctrine of truth is apparently prior. The priority which is 'the primogeniture,' is a priority not only of time but also of degree, as to which should have the dominion, good or truth . . .

—⁴. But that good is the first-born appears . . . Therefore all are called 'first-born' who are in love to the Lord and charity . . . and these are represented by the first-born in the Jewish Church, that is, they are meant in the relative sense, for the Lord is the First-born . . .

—⁵. In order that the things written concerning Him might be fulfilled, the Lord was by birth the first-born (Luke ii.7,22,23).

—⁶. That, from the Lord, those are called 'first-born' who are in love to Him and in charity . . . is evident from . . . 'these were . . . the first-fruits (the first-born) to God and the Lamb' (Rev.xiv.4).

—⁷. (Thus) the Lord as to the Divine Human was represented in the Jewish Church by the first-born things; and also they who are in love to Him . . .

—⁸. But, in the Word, first-born things have a two-fold representation; they represent the Lord as to Divine celestial love, and as to Divine spiritual love . . . (Both representations ill. —⁸. —¹⁰).

—¹⁰. 'Ephraim'=spiritual truth, which is called 'the first-born' (Jer.xxxi.9), because it treats of a Church to be planted, in which the Intellectual which is of truth is apparently the first-born; for Ephraim succeeded in the place of Reuben, and became the first-born (Gen.xlviii.5,20: 1 Chron.v.1); and this because Joseph . . . represented the Lord as to Divine spiritual love. But that Israel is essentially the first-born, is evident from . . . 'Israel is my first-born son . . .' (Ex. iv.22). Here, 'Israel'=the Lord as to Divine spiritual love; and (also) those who are in spiritual love . . .

—¹¹. In the Spiritual Church, at first . . . the doctrine of truth is, with the external Church, the first-born, and the truth of doctrine with the internal Church . . . But after the Church has been planted . . . the good of charity is the first-born with the external Church, and charity itself with the internal Church . . .

—¹². This is what is represented by the first-born and the first-born things of Egypt being slain . . . 'The first-born of Egypt'=what is doctrinal of faith and charity, perverted by means of scientifics. Ill.

—¹⁴. As all the first-born were slain, and as the first-born represented the Lord as to Divine spiritual love, and at the same time those who are in this love, it was commanded, at the instant of their departure, that everything first-born should be sanctified (Ex.xiii.2, 12-15).

3330. 'And he sold his birthright to Jacob' (Gen. xxv.33)=that priority was meanwhile conceded. 3597³.

3494. That the affection of good and the derivative good of life is the elder son, that is, the first-born . . . (for) infants are first in a state of innocence and charity . . . so that good is the first-born with every man. This good remains . . .

3519⁵. The first-born of Egypt=the good of love and of charity extinct.

3550. See ESAU.

3843. '(Not) to give the younger (daughter) before the first-born' (Gen.xxix.26)=that the affection of interior truth should (not) precede that of external truth. Ex.

3863². (The ancient controversy) as to which was the first-born of the Church,—the truth of faith or the good of love. They who said that truth is the first-born, so concluded from the external appearance, and maintained that it is the first-born because it is and ought to be first learned, and because by it man is introduced to good. But they did not know that good is essentially the first-born . . . (Thus) it is according to the external appearance, during regeneration, that truth is in the first place, and is as it were the first-born; although good is essentially in the first place and the first-born, and so becomes when man is regenerate. 4605. 5351³.

4110³. 'Not to shear the first-born of the flock' (Deut. xv.19)=not to perform domestic use therewith.

4335³. 'The first-born of Egypt' (Ex.xi.5)=the truths of faith separated from the good of charity, which truths become falsities: 'the first-born of the maid-servant who is behind the mills'=the affection of such truth, whence come falsities.

4601. On this account Reuben was deprived of the primogeniture . . . That the primogeniture=the faith of the Church. Refs.

4605. 'The first-born of Jacob, Reuben' (Gen.xxxv. 23)=the good of faith. . . 'The first-born'=faith.

4812. The birth of Pharez and Zarah represents that love is actually the first-born of the Church, and that faith is only apparently so.

4821. The reason this son (Er)=the falsity of the Church, is, that he was the first-born, and, in the ancient Churches, the first-born=the truth of faith, thus, in the opposite sense, falsity; as also did the first-born of men and the first-born of beasts of Egypt. 4830. 4832.

4923. 'To come forth first,' or to be the first-born, = priority and superiority. From this point to the end of the chapter (Gen. xxxviii.) it treats of primogeniture . . .

4925. It has been a subject of dispute from the most ancient times which is the first-born,—the good of charity or the truth of faith; and as during the process of man's being re-born . . . good does not appear . . . whereas truth manifests itself . . . many have fallen into the error of supposing that truth is the first-born . . .

From this one error many others have been derived . . . 9224².

—³. (Thus) the primogeniture belongs to good actually, and to truth apparently. Tr.

—⁵. As, in the supreme sense, the Lord is the First-born; and, from this, love to Him and charity towards the neighbour, in the representative Church the law was delivered that first-born things were to be Jehovah's. Ill.

—⁶. As that is first-born which opens the womb . . . the first-born is called also the opening of the womb, denoting that it is good which is signified . . .

—⁷. As the Lord is the only First-born, being Good Itself . . . therefore, in order that Jacob, who was not the first-born, might represent Him, he was permitted to buy the primogeniture from Esau . . .

4929. Acknowledgment . . . that it was good which opened the womb, or was the first-born. Sig.

5351². The first-born, who was named Manasseh, = spiritual good in the Natural, or the new Voluntary there, because good is actually the first-born in the Church, or with the man who is made the Church; whereas truth is not the first-born, and yet appears to be so. Refs. Ex.

6272. Not according to order. Sig. For he thus makes the younger the first-born, and . . . consequently, the truth of faith prior and superior . . . for the primogeniture = priority and superiority.

—^e. That the good of charity is actually the first-born, that is, in the first place; and that the truth of faith is apparently so. Refs.

6273. 'Because Manasseh was the first-born' (Gen. xlviii.14) = if indeed good is in the prior place. . . Primogeniture = priority and superiority; thus the first-born = the one who is in the prior place. That good is in the prior place. Ex.

6342. 'Reuben, my first-born' (Gen. xlix.3) = faith, which is apparently in the first place. . . The first-born = to be in the prior place; and that faith is only apparently in the prior place. Refs.

6344². When the faith of truth is first born through good, there appears power in truth. . . As also elsewhere in the Word, where primogeniture is treated of. Ill.

—³. As by 'the first-born,' in the genuine sense, is signified the good of charity, but, in the sense which is according to the appearance, the truth of faith; and as these two things are the fundamentals of the Church, the first-born was called by the ancients 'the father's strength,' and 'the beginning of his forces.' That these things are signified by the first-born, is very evident from the fact, that every first-born thing was for Jehovah, and that there was accepted in place of all the first-born the tribe of Levi, and that the priesthood was given to it.

7035. 'My son, My first-born, Israel' (Ex. iv.22) = that those who are in spiritual truth and good are adopted. . . 'First-born' = the faith of charity, which belongs to the Spiritual Church . . . and these the Lord saved by His advent . . .

7039. 'I will slay thy son, thy first-born' (ver.23) = the extinction of faith without charity. . . As the Egypt-tians turned these scientifics into magic, and consequently their works were . . . devoid of charity, their first-born = such things as are of the knowledge of faith; thus faith without charity. (This) is evident from the signification of the first-born of Israel, which is the faith of charity.

—². This extinction, and this devastation of truth, is what is signified by the first-born in Egypt being slain.

7763. In (Ex.xi.) it treats of the damnation of faith separated from charity, which is signified by the first-born things of Egypt which were given up to death at midnight. 7778. 7871. 7948. 8086.

7778. 'The first-born' = the faith of the Church by which comes charity. But the first-born in Egypt = faith without charity.

7779. See FALSIFY. 7780.

7950². The reason the first-born in Egypt = the truth of faith falsified, is that the first-born of Egypt = faith separated from charity . . .

7951. 'The first-born of beast' (ver.29) = the good of faith adulterated.

8038. Faith in the Lord is signified by the sanctification of the first-born. Tr.

8042. 'Sanctify to Me everything first-born' (Ex.xiii.1) = that faith is from the Lord. . . 'The first-born' = faith . . . by which is meant all truth which pertains to the Spiritual Church . . . and thus the Spiritual Church itself. . . Good is indeed essential to the Church, and is actually the first-born . . . but the good belonging to those of the Spiritual Church is, in itself, truth . . .

—². It is these truths of good . . . which are meant by the first-born things. . . The first or immediate generation or birth (of truths from good) . . . is what is signified by what is first-born . . . the reason they are sanctified to Jehovah is that all derivative truths and goods derive their essence from their primitives. In this . . . is founded the law of the first-born things which is treated of in the Word.

8080⁴. The law concerning the redemption of the first-born of man was delivered to prevent them from sacrificing their sons . . . (For) it was a statute of the Ancient Church that the first-born were to be sanctified to God; by sanctification, however, they began to mean sacrificing. . . Sanctification was afterwards understood to mean that they should give or present the first-born to Jehovah, and offer a sacrifice for him; as in Luke ii. 22-24.

8087. 'From the first-born of man and even to the first-born of beast' (ver.15) = the interior and exterior falsity of separated faith . . .

8089. 'Every first-born of my sons I redeem' (id.) = that the truths of faith are not to be ascribed to the Lord, but the goods thereof.

9223². All first-born things were offered to the Lord, from which were redeemed the first-born of men; also the first-born of the beasts which were not offered in sacrifice . . .

9224. 'The first-born of thy sons thou shalt give to Me' (Ex.xxii.28) = that all the things of faith . . . are to be ascribed to the Lord, and not to self. . . All the things of faith which are signified by the first-born of sons, are those which are from the good of charity. . .

R. 17. 'The First-born from the dead' (Rev.i.5)= that He is the Divine good itself. . . It was known to the ancients that by the first-born is signified the First and Primary from which is everything of the Church; and it was believed by many, that it was truth in doctrine and in faith; but by a few, that it was truth in act and in work, which is the good of life. This latter . . . in the proper sense, is what is meant by the first-born . . . They believed that truth in doctrine and in faith is the . . . first-born, because truth is learned first . . .

—². As many of the ancients made that which is first in time the first in end . . . they said that the first-born signified truth in doctrine and in faith, not knowing that this is the first-born apparently, but not actually . . . Therefore Cain, who was the first-born of Adam and Eve, was condemned. . . Also Reuben, who was the first-born of Jacob . . . By the first-born things of Egypt, which were all smitten, because condemned, is meant . . . truth in doctrine and in faith separated from the good of life.

—⁴. (Thus) truth in doctrine and in faith is not the first-born of the Church, but truth in act or in work, which is the good of life.

—⁵. In short, the first-born is what truth from good, thus understanding from will, first produces . . .

—⁶. As to the Lord, He is the First-born from the dead, because, even as to His Human, He is truth itself united to Divine good. Ill. Hence Israel is called the 'first-born' . . .

—⁷. On account of this representation of the first-born, all the first-born and all first-born things were sanctified to Jehovah (Ex.xiii.2,12; xxii.28,29). (And) the Levites were taken in place of all the first-born in the Israelitish Church . . . For Levi=truth in act . . . Therefore, also, a double portion of the inheritance was given to the first-born, and he was called 'the beginning of the strength' (Deut.xxi.15-17).

—⁸. The reason 'the first-born'=the primary thing of the Church, is that by natural births are signified spiritual births; and then what first constitutes these in a man is meant by his first-born; for the Church is not in him until the truth of doctrine conceived in the internal man is born in the external.

T. 336. Some of the ancients said that truth (was the first-born), and some said that charity was . . . They who thus comprehended the subject supposed that the truth of faith is the first-born . . . on which account they attributed to faith the eminence and prerogative of primogeniture . . .

—². But . . . charity is first in end: and that which is first in end is . . . the first-born. (Shown by comparisons.)

—³. (Thus) the good of charity, because it is primary, is actually the first-born in the mind.

E. 28. 'The First-born from the dead'=from Whom is all good in Heaven. 'The First-born,' when predicated of the Lord, =the Divine good in Heaven, thus all the good there. . . (Thus) by the first-born is meant the good of Heaven and the Church, because this is in the first place. Now as all the good in Heaven is from the Lord, He is called 'the First-born.' The reason He is called 'the First-born from the dead,' is that when He rose from the dead, He made His Human Divine good by union with the Divine that was in Him from conception. Hence it is said of Him . . . 'I will make Him the First-born, higher than the kings of the earth' (Ps.lxxxix.27). As the Lord in respect to His Divine Human is called 'the First-born,' because all good proceeds from Him, all first-born things in the Israelitish Church were holy to Jehovah; and therefore the Levites were received in place of all the first-born in Israel . . . and a double portion of the inheritance was allotted to the first-born; all because the first-born=the good which is from the Lord; and, in the highest sense, the Lord Himself as to the Divine Human, from which is all good. Ill.

229³. As the Word in the letter is written according to appearances, (faith) is there called 'the first,' 'the beginning,' and 'the first-born.'

434⁴. By primogeniture, in the Word, is signified truth from good, or, what is the same, truth in light . . . for the truth appears first to man . . . Good is actually the first-born or the first of the Church, because truth comes into existence from good . . . and this, therefore, is the first-born in the spiritual sense of the Word. Moreover, with little children, there is the good of innocence . . . (but) as good has no quality until it has been formed in truths, and without quality nothing is perceived, it is not known that good is the first-born; for good is conceived first from the Lord with man, and is born by means of truths, in which good exists in its own form and effigy.

—¹⁷. Therefore the primogeniture was taken away from Reuben, and was given to Joseph and his sons. (Fully ill.)

710³². By 'the opening of the womb,' or 'the first-born male,' is signified that which is first born from celestial love and the perception of good and truth; and that this is the truth from good, which occupies the place of a beginning to all the rest, is evident. This, in its essence, is spiritual good, for, in its form, this good is truth from good . . . and this is signified by 'the opening of the womb, the first-born male' . . . Therefore this was sanctified to Jehovah; and, by it, all the succeeding births were sanctified.

—³³. (Thus) 'the opening of the womb, the first-born male'=the good of spiritual love born from the good of celestial love.

—³⁴. This is also evident from the fact that the Levites were received in place of all the first-born; for Levi=spiritual good from celestial good.

—³⁵. As beasts=affections . . . the first-born of these also were sanctified.

—³⁵. The reason the statute concerning the first-born was given to the sons of Israel on account of all the first-born things in Egypt having been slain, was that by the first-born things are there signified falsities from evil opposite to truths from good, and when these falsities of evil have been slain in a man, that is, removed, then first truths from good, or spiritual good, flows in from the Lord, and is received by the man.

721¹⁹. 'The first-born' = the first of the Church, from which all the rest follow as from their beginning.

725⁴. Hence the truth which is born first from the marriage of truth and good is sanctified to Jehovah; the truth which is born first is also the doctrine of truth . . . But it must be carefully remembered that by the first-born is signified the truth which is of the good of charity, thus the good of charity in its form and in its quality, and thus truth, for the form of good and the quality of good is truth. The reason this is signified by the first-born, is that from the good of love . . . nothing can be born except the good of charity, and this good is not good except after it has been formed and qualified, thus except it is in a form . . . and its form is called truth; but still it is good in form.

817⁹. 'The first-born,' in the Word, = truths born from good.

865⁴. See FIRST-FRUITS.

1182². 'The first-born of the maid-servant who is behind the mill' = the primary things of faith of the natural man, which are falsified.

First-fruits. Primitiæ.

A. 3519⁷. 'The first-fruits of the earth which they brought into the house of Jehovah' (Ex.xxiii.19; xxxiv.26) = the states of innocence which exist in infancy.

5144⁴. 'The first-fruits of the fruit of the earth' (Deut.xxvi.2) = the goods thence derived.

9223. 'The first-fruits of thy corn, and the first-fruits of thy wine, thou shalt not delay' (Ex.xxii.29) = that as all goods and truths are from the Lord, they ought to be ascribed to Him, and not to self. (For 'first-fruits' = those things which must be in the first place, thus which must be the primary of all . . .

—². The first-fruits which were to be offered to the Lord were the first-fruits of harvest and the first-fruits of the vintage, also the first-fruits of shearing, and the first-fruits of the fruit. The first-fruits of harvest were ears of corn parched and green, also the sheaf which was to be waved, and afterwards what was from the corn-floor, which was cakes. The first-fruits of the vintage were the first-fruits of the wine, of the must, and of the oil . . . The first-fruits and the first-born things were offered to Jehovah, and by Jehovah were given to Aaron and his seed, because (they) represented the Lord.

—³. What the first-fruits specifically represented . . . appears from the signification of the various things from which the first-fruits were given.

— That the first-fruits were given to Jehovah, signified that it was the first of the Church to ascribe all goods and truths of faith to the Lord, and not to self. . . The reason the first-fruits had this signification, is that the first-fruits were offerings and gifts, which were thanksgivings for the produce of the earth, and an acknowledgment of blessings from Jehovah, consequently an acknowledgment that all things are from Him . . . II.

9294. 'The feast of the harvest of the first-fruits of the works which thou hast sown in the field' (Ex.xxiii.16) = the worship of the Lord and thanksgiving on account of the implantation of truth in good. . . 'The first-fruits' or the beginnings of works = the things which are the last of instruction and the first of life.

—⁵. The introduction of the sons of Israel into Canaan had a like representation to that of this second feast, which was called 'the feast of the first-fruits of works,' and also 'the feast of weeks,' namely, the implantation of truth in good. Ex.

9300. 'The first of the first-fruits of thy ground thou shalt bring into the house of thy God' (Ex.xxiii.19) = that all the truths of good and goods of truth are holy, because from the Lord alone. (For) 'the first-fruits of the ground' = that the goods and truths of the Church are to be ascribed to the Lord alone. . . It is said 'the first of the first-fruits,' because this must be the primary thing . . .

10083. 'The sheaf of the first-fruits' (Lev.xxiii.10) = the state thereof collectively.

Life 54. As these laws (of the Decalogue) were the first-fruits of the Word, and consequently the first-fruits of the Church . . . T.283. 776². E.1073².

R. 623. 'The first-fruits unto God and the Lamb' (Rev.xiv.4) = the initiation of the Christian Heaven . . . By 'the first-fruits' is meant that which is born first, also what is first gathered, thus an initiation.

— It was commanded . . . that the first-fruits of the produce of the fields, of all the corn, oil, and must, of the fruits of trees, and also of the fleece, should be given to Jehovah as holy; and by Jehovah they were given to Aaron, and after him to the high priest (Ex.xxii.29; xxiii.10; Num.xiii.20; xv.17-21; xviii.8-20; Deut.xviii.4; xxvi.1, etc.). Also, 'that they should celebrate the feast of first-fruits of the harvest and of bread' (Ex.xxiii.14-16, 19, 26; Lev.xxiii.9-15, 20-25; Num.xxviii.26-end). The reason was, that the first-fruits = that which is born first, and which afterwards grows up . . . and thus they = everything which follows until it is complete; for all that follows is in the first, as the man is in the infant . . . and as this first exists before the successions . . . the first-fruits were holy to the Lord, and the feast of first-fruits was celebrated. Like things are signified by 'first-fruits' in Jer.xxiv.1, 2; Ezek.xx.40; Micah vii.1; Deut.xxxiii.15, 21.

M. 459⁹. Impart to their wives the first-fruits of their vigour.

E. 376²¹. 'The first-fruits of oils with which they anoint themselves' (Amos vi.6) = the external things of good from which, also, there is worship.

405²¹. 'First-fruits' = genuine things.

422¹⁹. 'The first-fruits of the mountains of the east' (Deut.xxxiii.15) = the genuine goods of love to the Lord, and thence of charity towards the neighbour.

435⁸. That it is from primary things, is signified by 'he saw the first-fruits for himself' (Deut.xxxiii.21).

865. 'The first-fruits to God and the Lamb' = those who have given themselves to the Lord and been adopted by Him. That they are those of the New Church, is evident from their being called 'the first-fruits unto God and the Lamb' . . .

—². What is signified by 'first-fruits.' 'First-fruits' have a like signification to 'first-born,' but 'first-born' is predicated of animals, and 'first-fruits' of plants, thus 'first-born things' are those which are born first, and 'first-fruits' are from the first things which are produced, and both=the spiritual good which is first formed, which, in itself, is truth from the good which is from the Lord; (for) as soon as the spiritual mind is opened, good is produced and the derivative truth, and this which is first produced is meant by 'the first-born' and 'the first-fruits.' And as all things produced from the spiritual mind are . . . from the Lord alone, these things were sanctified to Jehovah . . . because they were His, and consequently were holy. And as that which is first born or produced=all things which follow in the series . . . the first-born things and the first-fruits being given to the Lord=that all the rest were also His. Further ex.

Fish. Piscis, Piscari.

Fisher, Fisherman. Piscator.

A. 11. The things he produces in the fifth state are animate, and are called 'the fishes of the sea,' and 'the birds of the heavens.'

40. 'Fishes'=scientifics. Ill. 3424.

—². 'Fishers from En-golli to En-eglaim with the spreading out of nets' (Is.xlvii.10)=those who teach the natural man about the truths of faith.

42. 'Fishes' (Gen.i.21)=scientifics, here, made alive by means of faith from the Lord.

52. See BEAST.

819. To their left there appear great fishes, monstrous whales, which swallow and then vomit forth a man.

991. 'To all the fishes of the sea' (Gen.ix.2)=scientifics. 'Fishes,' in the Word,=the scientifics which originate from sensuous things; for there are scientifics of three kinds,—intellectual, rational, and sensuous . . . The scientifics which are from sensuous things come to the sensation or perception of man while he lives in the body, for he thinks from them.

—'. 'The fishes of the sea' (Zeph.i.3)=lower rational things, or man's thought from sensuous scientifics.

—². To make a man as the fishes of the sea' (Hab.i.14)=altogether sensuous.

—^c. 'The fishers' (Is.xix.8)=those who trust only in sensuous things.

2702¹⁵. 'Much fish' (Ezek.xlvii.9)=an abundance of applicable scientifics. 9050¹⁰. E.179⁷.

3309². 'Fishers' (Jer.xvi.16)=those who teach from sensuous truths; 'hunters,' those who teach from scientific truths . . .

5620⁴. 'The honeycomb and the broiled fish' which the Lord ate after His resurrection,=the external sense of the Word; 'the fish,' as to its truth.

6394⁹. Peter's taking a fish out of the sea, and finding in its mouth a piece of money, which he gave, represented that the lowest Natural as a thing that serves would do this; for fishes=this Natural.

6693¹. 'Fishes'=the scientifics which are under a general principle.

7293. A whale, which is the largest fish of the sea, . . . =what is scientific in general, because a fish=what is scientific in particular.

7318. 'The fish which is in the river shall die' (Ex.vii.18)=that what is scientific of truth will be extinguished. 'A fish'=what is scientific . . .

7852². 'A fish'=the truth of the Natural.

9753¹⁰. 'Their fish shall be putrid' (Is.i.2)=the Scientific which is of the natural man.

10161. They eat the flesh of fishes only.

10582⁶. 'To fish them' (Jer.xvi.16)=to instruct in the external things of the Church.

H. 54^e. Like fish out of the water. M. 10^e.

J. 70^e. They are compared to fishes (in the parable, Matt.xiii.47), because by 'fishes,' in the Word, are signified natural and external men, both good and evil.

S. 23². A fish=knowledge. (See DAGON, here, and at F.52.)

W. 346². Imperfect animals, are fishes . . .

P. 56². An image of the infinite . . . in the prolification . . . of fishes . . . T. 32³.

R. 290^e. These are the things which are meant in the Word by 'the fishes of the sea,' which are sensuous affections, that is, the lowest affections of the natural man; for, in the Spiritual World, the affections of such appear at a distance as fishes, and as it were in the sea.

405³. 'The fishes,' or 'creatures of the sea,' mentioned in these passages, =the affections and derivative thoughts of those men who are in natural truths, and who thus partake more of the Natural than of the Spiritual.

—'. 'The fishes of the rivers of Egypt' (Ezek.xxix.4)=those who are in doctrinal things, and, from them, are in faith separated, which faith is only knowledge; and it was on account of this separation, that . . . their waters were turned into blood, and the fishes died in consequence.

—⁴. 'Fishes,' here, (Hab.i.14,15)=those who are in general truths, and in faith separated from charity. But 'fishes'=those who are in general truths, and in faith conjoined with charity in Ezek.xlvii. Matt.xiii. and Jer.xvi.16.

—⁵. He who knows that such people and things are signified by fishes can see why the Lord chose fishermen for His disciples, and said . . . 'I will make you fishers of men.' Also why the disciples, by the Lord's blessing, caught a vast multitude of fishes . . . why the Lord (caused the tribute to be paid from the fish); and why, after His resurrection, He gave the disciples fish and bread to eat (John xxi.13), and commanded them to . . . preach the gospel to every creature; for the nations they converted were in general truths only, and in natural truth more than in spiritual.

I. 20. I was once asked, How, from being a philosopher, I became a theologian; and I replied, In the same way that fishermen were made disciples and apostles by the Lord: and that also from early youth I had been a spiritual fisherman. On this my questioner asked, What is a spiritual fisherman? I replied, A fisherman, in the Word . . . =a man who investigates and teaches natural truths, and afterwards spiritual truths in a rational manner. Ill. —².

T. 32³. If the fishes of the sea were to multiply . . .

they would fill the ocean, so that it would consist of nothing but fishes . . . to prevent this, it has been provided by God that one fish should be food for another.

34³. If he closes the lowest natural degree . . . he becomes as to . . . the understanding of truth like a fish.

68². (Like) a fish against the ocean.

385³. I compared them to fishes under the ice . . .

635. The fishes which then died = the truths in the natural man.

850. I said, Why did the Lord choose fishermen . . . and not priests . . . Discuss this . . .

D. 1387. When this Spirit was in the Lower Earth, there suddenly appeared a table with great fishes . . . one of which swallowed him . . . signifying the natural things which he loves in preference to spiritual things.

2953. He whirled round as it were a roll in the form of a fish . . . (This) signified his natural things.

3309^e. They then let down hooks, as it were, to draw them to themselves, like fishers.

4672. Its body was like a scaly fish . . . The scaly fish = sensuous scientifics, whereby they are led into magical things.

D. Min. 4719. What is meant by trailing a net, and hauling out fishes. . . When this devil was thinking . . . that he attracted the simple good, who were so because they were natural, he seemed to have a net, and to plunge it down and bring it up, and thus to draw the upright to him.

E. 275⁷. 'Their fish shall be putrid' = that the scientifics of the natural man will be devoid of all spiritual life; which takes place when they are applied to confirm falsities in opposition to the truths of the Church.

329²¹. 'The fish' = true scientifics.

340²³. 'The fishes' (with which the Lord fed the multitude) = goods and truths in the Natural.

342¹. The inhabitants of the lowest Heaven . . . appear as in a sea . . . At this day there is a vast number there, because so many at this day are sensuous. . . . For this reason seas are so frequently mentioned in the Word, and also the fishes therein; for 'seas' = the general principles of truth . . . and 'fishes,' sensuous scientifics, which are the lowest things of the natural man, and therefore they = those who are such, that is, who are in these scientifics. III.

—⁸. 'The fishes of the sea' (Is.i.2) = those who are in the ultimates of truth, in whom there is no life from a spiritual origin.

—⁹. 'The birds of the heavens, and the fishes of the sea' (Ezek.xxxviii.20; Hos.iv.3; Zeph.i.3) = affections of truth and thoughts both spiritual and natural (which are) about to perish.

—¹⁰. The reason of this signification of the sea and of fishes, is founded on the appearance in the Spiritual World. Ex.

— The reason why they who are in . . . natural affection and thought are signified by 'fishes,' is also founded on the appearance in the Spiritual World; for there appear there . . . fishes . . . in the seas; and it is the affections and thoughts of those who are there which so appear. . . (Thus) 'seas' = general principles of truth; and 'whales' and 'fishes,' the affections and thoughts of those who are in the general principles of truth.

—¹². They think merely naturally and sensuously . . . The good among them are like . . . flying fishes.

388¹³. 'The fish of his rivers' = what is sensuous scientific.

400⁹. 'The fishes of the sea' = natural things in general, and, specifically, the scientifics therein.

405¹⁷. That the Church is to be established from those who are in natural good . . . is meant by 'I will send fishers who shall fish them' (Jer.xvi.16).

422¹⁵. 'Much fish' = an abundance of Knowledges and scientifics which will attain spiritual life with them.

430¹⁵. The loaves (with which the Lord fed the multitude) = the goods; and the fishes, the truths, of the natural man.

513². The reason 'the creatures of the sea,' or fishes, = scientifics, is that the sea = the natural man; consequently, the fishes in the sea = the scientifics themselves which are in the natural man. . . Spirits who are not in spiritual truths, but only in natural ones, which are scientifics, appear in seas, and, when looked at by those who are above, as fishes; it is their thoughts, which proceed from the scientifics with them, which so appear. For . . . the ideas of thought of those who are natural and think from scientifics only, are turned into the forms of fishes. Hence there appear in (those) seas many kinds of fish.

—³. It is from this that 'fishes,' in the Word, = scientifics. III.

—⁴. The fish dying (in the Nile) = that scientific truths perished through falsities; for scientifics live through truths, but perish through falsities . . .

—⁶. Their appetite for natural things is signified by their lusting for the fish of Egypt . . .

—⁷. That there shall be true and living scientifics of every kind, is signified by, 'the fish being according to their kind, as the fish of the great sea, exceeding many' (Ezek.xlvii.10). They who are being reformed, and who thus become intelligent, are meant by 'the fishers from En-gedi even to En-gelaim.'

—⁸. 'Beast' = the Voluntary; 'bird' = the Intellectual; and 'fish' = the Scientific. III.

—¹¹. As 'fishes' = the scientifics and Knowledges of the natural man, which are of service to the spiritual man as a means of being wise, 'fishers,' in the Word, = those who are only in Knowledges, and who acquire Knowledges for themselves; also, who teach others, and reform them by means of Knowledges. Their works are meant by the letting out and spreading out of nets. III.

—¹². 'To make men as the fishes of the sea' (Hab.i.14) = to make man so natural that his scientifics are devoid of spiritual truth . . .

—¹³. 'The fishes' (of the great draught, Luke v.) = the Knowledges of truth and good by means of which there is reformation; and also the multitude of men who are being reformed.

—¹⁶. Like things are signified by the catching of fishes by the disciples after the Lord's resurrection. The reason the Lord manifested Himself while they were fishing, was that 'to fish' = to teach the Knowledges of truth and good, and thus to reform . . . By 'the little fish-piscium—upon the hearth' was signified the Knowledge of truth from good; by 'the little fish,' the Knowledge of truth; and by 'the hearth,' or fire, good. At that time there were no spiritual men, because the Church was completely devastated, but all were natural, and the reformation of these latter was represented by that fishing-piscatura, and also by the fish upon the hearth.

[E. 513]¹⁷. The separation of the good from the evil is likened to 'a net bringing together fishes of every kind' (Matt. xiii. 47-49), because 'fishes' = natural men as to scientifics and Knowledges; and these are separated from each other at the Last Judgment: for there are good natural men and evil natural men; and the separation of these appears in the Spiritual World like a net let out into the sea and drawing fishes together into it, and bringing them to shore.

—¹⁹. The 'broiled fish' = the Natural as to truth from good. . . 'A broiled fish' = what is scientific derived from natural good.

560⁴. 'With hooks of fishing-piscationis' (Amos iv. 2) = through the fallacies of the senses.

600⁷. By 'fishing-piscationem' in the Word, is signified the instruction and conversion of men who are in external or natural good, in which good there were many at that time among the gentiles.

619¹⁵. The 'broiled fish' = the truth of good of the natural and sensuous man.

629⁸. 'Fish' = the things which are in the natural man, which are called Knowledges from the Word, and also natural knowledges by means of which spiritual things are confirmed.

650⁶. By 'the fishes of the sea' are signified the scientifics of the natural sensuous man.

—⁴¹. 'Fishes' = scientifics. 1100¹.

654⁴⁰. 'The fishers shall lament . . .' (Ezek. xix.) = that those who teach will labour in vain to reform the natural man by means of truths from the Word: 'fishers,' and 'they who spread the net' = those who teach natural men from the Word, specifically, from the sense of the letter; 'fish' = the Knowledges thence derived.

—⁵¹. 'I will make the fish of thy rivers stick to thy scales' (Ezek. xxix. 4) = false scientifics of the lowest kind which are from the fallacies of the senses.

820³. The reason these three apostles were fishermen, and that it was said to them . . . 'I will make you fishers of men,' was that 'to fish' = to instruct natural men; for at that time there were natural men both within the Church and without it, who, as they received the Lord and truths from Him, became spiritual men.

820⁵. 'A fish' = the natural man.

967. By 'the living soul in the sea' are meant fishes of various kinds, by which are signified the scientifics of the natural man; and also Knowledges of truth from the Word with natural men; for with such men Knowledges of truth from the Word are held just as are the scientifics of the world.

1000². 'The fishes killed' = the destruction of the true scientifics and of the Knowledges of the natural man.

1100¹⁰. 'Fishes of the sea' = Knowledges and scientifics.

—¹⁶. 'To consume the birds of the heavens and the fishes of the sea' (Zeph. i. 3) = to destroy the perceptions and the Knowledges of truth.

Fissure. See CLEFT and RENT—scissura.

Fit. Pignus.

A. 822^e. See BACK—tergam.

7518. 'Take to you the fulness of your fists' (Ex. ix. 8) = power given so far as it could be received. 'Fists,' or palms, = power.

9025. '(If) a man smite his companion with a stone or with his fist' (Ex. xxi. 18) = the weakening of one (truth) from some scientific or some general truth. . . 'A fist' = general truth; for by the hand is signified the power which is of truth: hence 'a fist' = full power from general truth; that truth is called general which is everywhere received. . . Hence 'to smite with a fist' = with full force and power; in the spiritual sense, by truths from good, and in the opposite sense, by falsities from evil: as in Isaiah lviii. 4, where 'to smite with the fist of wickedness' = with full force by falsities from evil.

R. 421^e. As they are not permitted to inflict any bodily injury, they threaten with mouth and fists.

Fit. Commodus.

A. 9207⁴. 'Not fit for the land nor for the dunghill' = that it does not conduce to any use whatever, neither good nor evil. . . These are they who are called 'lukewarm,' and who are not fit for any use, good or evil.

Fit. Inaptare, Inaptatio.

A. 1759. Occurs. 1900³. 2063³. —^e. 3128³. —. 5208⁸.

Fit together. Concinnare.

Finish. Concinnitas.

Neatly. Concinne.

A. 66^e. In a skilfully put together order . . .

403^e. To fit together in a historical form . . . S13². 1020. 1756². 5291⁴.

1974. Garlands . . . of such a form and skilful construction . . .

SS91⁴. They fitted together such things as fully corresponded.

S971. Composed in a more elegant style . . .

10406. To concoct a false doctrinal thing . . .

S. 13⁴. In the spiritual sense all things cohere in a continuous connection, to the adjustment of which each word in the literal sense conduces.

Life 7. When they are composing their sermons . . .

R. 454. For finish and elegance of discourse . . .

M. 175². From the elegance and finish of the composition . . .

370^e. To make various things belonging to women's work.

T. 60. The things in man fit themselves together by such a connection that the one belongs to the other.

353². The light and glory of faith from the abundance of Truths fitting into it . . .

381³. Who dress the hair.

786². The doctrine which they concocted . . .

D. 155⁴. Occurs. 1681. 1937. E. 781¹⁰.

2040. They who have constructed lexicons.

3757⁶. They construct their nests so neatly . . . (and) had they needed garments they would have made them more neatly than man.

4263. They who are in charity . . . can as from themselves . . . construct whole doctrines . . .

Fitches. Nigella.

A. 10669⁴. 'The fitches (or black cummin) and cummin' (Is.xxviii.25)=scientifics; for these are the first things which are learned in order that man may receive intelligence.

E. 374⁹. 'To make plain the faces of the earth and scatter the black cummin'=to prepare by means of the Word.

Five. Quinque.

Fifth. Quintus.

Fifth, To take a. Quintare.

A. 649. In these numbers, five dominates, which, in the Word, =something, or a little, and a few. Ill. 798. 1429.

1686. 'Five' (Gen.xiv.9) = dismissal, because it = a little.

2267. 'Peradventure there shall lack five' (Gen.xviii.28)=if there should be somewhat less. 'Five'=a little, or less.

2268. 'Wilt Thou destroy the whole city for five?' (id.)=shall man perish for the little that is lacking?

2269. 'Five'=a little . . . and also disjunction. —².

2276. 'Five'=somewhat that is little.

2575³. 'From before the rebuke of five shall ye flee' (Is.xxx.17). 'Five'=few.

2576⁶. For this hanging there were five pillars and five bases (Ex.xxvi.37), by which number is signified what is relatively little.

4638³. 'Five of them were prudent, and five were foolish'=part of them who were in truths in which there is good, and part who were in truths in which there is no good. . . 'Five,' in the internal sense, = some; here, therefore, part of them. 10253⁶. S. 17². R. 427². E. 187⁴. 375⁴. 548³. 675⁶.

5291. 'Let him take a fifth of the land' (Gen.xli.34) = which are to be preserved and afterwards stored up. 'To take a fifth' here involves the same as to tithe, which=remains. . . 'Ten'=remains, and therefore so does 'five,' which is the half of ten.

—². 'Five' has a double signification. It = a little and thus somewhat, and it = remains. It = a little from its relation to those numbers which = much, namely, a thousand and a hundred, and thus also ten . . . which, from them, also = much. . . 'Five'=remains when it has relation to ten, which = remains.

—⁴. The servant who received five talents = those who have admitted goods and truths from the Lord, thus who have received remains.

—⁵. Here, in like manner (Luke xix. 13, 18, 19), 'ten' and 'five' = remains; 'ten' more, 'five' fewer. Further ill. —⁸. —⁹. —¹⁰.

5335. Five multiplied into six = somewhat of combat; because five = somewhat . . .

5708. 'By five measures' (Gen.xliii.34) = much increased. . . 'Five' is a number which = a little, also somewhat, and likewise much; its signification flows from its relation to the number from which it originates. When it comes from ten, it involves what is similar, but in a less degree; for it is the half of ten. . . Five measures were given to Benjamin above the rest of his brethren . . . because ten could not be given, for ten would have been far too much.

5894. 'There are five years yet' (Gen.xlv.6) = the duration of this state until remains shine forth. 'Five' = remains.

5916. 'There are still five years of famine' (ver.11) = the duration of the lack of good.

5956. 'And five changes of garments' (ver.22) = much of the truth which is from the Natural. 'Five' = much.

6070. On the part of his brethren he took five men' (Gen.xlvii.2) = some of the truths of the Church . . . 'Five' = some.

6156. 'Ye shall give the fifth part to Pharaoh' (ver. 24) = remains, that they are for the general principle which is under the guidance of the Internal. 'Five,' and 'the fifth part' = remains. 6166.

8714. See FIFTY.

9102. 'He shall repay five oxen for an ox' Ex.xxii.1; = the corresponding penalty much. 'Five' = somewhat, and also much. E. 548⁷.

9487. The reason 'two and a half' = much and full, is that it has a like signification to five, ten, a hundred, a thousand; for the double of two and a half is five . . . That 'five' = much and full. Refs.

9604. See CURTAIN.

—¹. 'Five' = all things of the one part; for 'ten' = all things of the whole.

9663. 'Five (staves) for the beams of one side of the habitation' (Ex.xxvi.26) = where it looks towards the interior things of Heaven, where truth is in light: (for) 'five' = all things of that side. 9664.

9689. 'Five pillars of shittim' (Ex.xxvi.37) = support so far as is sufficient by the good of merit . . . 'Five' = some part, or something, and also as much as is sufficient.

9716. 'Five cubits the length, and five cubits the breadth' (Ex.xxvii.1) = equally from good and from truth. . . The reason the length and the breadth of the altar were of five cubits, was that 'five' also = the like with ten, a hundred, a thousand; and by these numbers is signified much, all, what is full, and, in the supreme sense, which treats of the Lord, what is infinite; so also does 'five.' 10253.

9773. 'The height five cubits' (ver.18) = degrees of good also so far as is sufficient.

[A.] 10225. The first state of man is from birth to the fifth year of his age . . . Ill.

10255. When 'ten'=all, 'five'=some; when 'ten'=what is full, 'five'=as much as is sufficient; and when 'ten'=much, 'five'=somewhat.

R. 194³. 'Ten' (in the parable of the pounds)=much, and 'five'=some. E. 223²³. 548⁴. 675⁷.

427. 'To torment them five months' (Rev. ix. 5)=to induce a stupor for a short time. 'Five'=a little. or for a short time. Ill. —². 439.

738. 'Five (kings) have fallen' (Rev. xvii. 10)=that all the Divine truths of the Word have been destroyed. . . . By 'five' is not signified five, but all the rest. Ex. (Compare E. 1064.)

E. 223¹⁴. 'Five cities in the land of Egypt speaking with the lip of Canaan' (Is. xix. 18)=truths of doctrine in abundance. . . 'Five'=many or in abundance. 391¹³. 654⁷. (Compare 548⁶.)

430². Five (as a simple number from which greater numbers derive their signification)=much and somewhat. . . From the number five arise 10, 50, 100, 1000, 10000, 100000, which numbers have a like signification to five, because they arise from it by multiplication. 532.

532⁷. 'Five' (Is. xvii. 6)=a few.

—¹⁴. 'Five,' in the Word, =all these when 'two' and 'three' follow; but when 'five' is preceded or followed by 'ten' or 'twenty,' it=some and a few.

548. 'Five months'=so long as they remain in this state. . . For 'a month'=a state; and 'five,' somewhat, and therefore so long as. . . That 'five'=somewhat, may appear from the passages in the Word where this number occurs; for the numbers 10, 1000, 10000, =much and all, and hence 'five'=somewhat; for those numbers which =much arise from the number five, which =somewhat.

—³. That 'five,' in the Word, =somewhat and some, likewise all who are such, and other similar things. Ill.

—⁵. Some, and all who are such, are signified by 'the five brethren' (in the parable of the rich man and Lazarus, Luke xvi. 28).

—⁵. 'Five yoke of oxen' (Luke xiv. 19)=all those afflictions or cupidities which lead away from Heaven.

—⁸. 'The fifth part'=as much as is sufficient. Ill.

—'. 'To the fifth rib'=as much as was sufficient for death. For the same number which=somewhat, and all that is on the one side, also=as much as is sufficient, when it is predicated of quantity; and so long as, when it is predicated of time.

—⁹. As this number=somewhat, and all that is on one side, it also=a little and a few, when it is followed or preceded by a great quantity which is also designated by numbers; for in this case the whole that is on one side is relatively a little. Ill.

—¹⁰. The reason 'five sparrows' are mentioned (Luke xii. 6), is that 'five'=what is small and of little value in comparison with man.

600². 'Ten'=all things and all men; and 'five,' one part, or one kind.

675⁸. 'Five' and 'ten' (in the parable of the talents) =somewhat and much, thus that the first servant from some Knowledges of truth and good procured for himself much wisdom.

1064. When 'five' follows 'ten,' it=some people or some things, likewise all the rest which remain, and also a few; but when it does not follow 'ten,' it=many people or many things.

Fix. Figere.

Fixation. Fixatio.

Fixedly. Fixe.

A. 1967. They keep the mind fixedly in the thought of some particular thing. . . .

4096⁵. As good is fixed (in the Knowledges a man has). . . .

4128. 'To fix a tent' (Gen. xxxi. 25)=a state of this love. 4129.

4167. Without planes, that is, without conscience, nothing celestial and spiritual. . . . can be fixed. . . .

4205². Good flows in from the Lord, but is not fixed except in truths.

6206. The influx of the Angels is into that which the man knows and believes. . . . for it can be fixed only where there is something in the man.

6368². Unless he has been in that good by faith. . . . the good which flows in. . . . cannot be fixed.

7290². Miracles drive men to believe, and fix ideas in the external man. . . .

H. 345. This plane is their memory. . . . (after death) this remains fixed. . . .

426. There is no fixed term for their continuance (in the World of Spirits).

W. 7^o. Spaces there are not fixed. . . . as on earth. . . . D. 5623¹.

160. As the lowest things of nature. . . . are immutable and fixed, there are spaces in nature. . . .

165. A dead sun was created that. . . . all things may be fixed, stated, and constant. . . .

302. See ATMOSPHERE. 315.

321^e. The things in the Spiritual World are not fixed and stated. . . .

340. It is the Spiritual which. . . . produces the forms of plants and animals, and. . . . packs them with matters from the Earth, in order that these forms may be fixed and constant.

344. See BIRD.

346. They get their fixation from nature.

370. The forms of the members, organs, and viscera. . . . are fixed by such substances and matters as there are in earths. . . .

388. That man may draw with him from the purer substances of the world a certain fixed containant of spiritual things.

P. 220². Ultimates, which in themselves are fixed and stated.

R. 566¹. Fix your look on the paper.

D. 2334^e. Spirits occupy a fixed position . . .
 4343. If, while the Word is being read, the thought is kept fixedly on any subject . . .

5552. The Sensuous of man is relatively fixed. What sort of fixity it is can be known only by this, that all things which are on earth are also in the Heavens, but there they are not fixed, but still they appear to be fixed. . . (Thus) while man lives in the world, he acquires a fixed plane, and this cannot be changed . . .

D. Min. 4733². They remain where they are, fixed . . .

E. 1211⁴. Hence are the matters in . . . our Earth fixed.

1218². Material things, in themselves, are fixed, stated, and measurable; fixed, because they are permanent, however the states of man are changed . . .

D. Wis. xii. 5². A natural origin is added, that they may be at the same time material and fixed.

Can. God iv. 12. All things are created by the Lord, and are fixed by the natural things which encompass them.

Flaccidly. Flaccide. A. 5356^e.

Flag. Alga.

A. 1691². 'The flags were bound to my head' (Jonah ii. 5). (=that false scientifics beset truth and good, 6726^e.) E. 538¹¹.

6726. 'She set it in the flag by the bank of the river' (Ex. ii. 3)=at first among false scientifics. 'The flag'=scientifics. . . The reason 'a flag'=what is scientific, is that in the Word every herb=some kind of what is scientific; a flag, which grows at the bank of a river,=a low Scientific; as in Is. xix. 6. . . 'The reed and the flag'=the lowest scientifics, which are sensuous. (Compare SEDGE.)

6732. 'She saw the coffer in the midst of the flag' (ver. 5)=the perception that truth was in a low state among a false Scientific.

Flagon. See under BOTTLE.

Flail. Fustis. T. 122^e. 331².

Flame. Flamma, Flammare.

Flaming. Flammeus.

A. 306. 'The flame of a sword turning itself' (Gen. iii. 24)=man's Own love with its insane cupidities and derivative persuasions . . . (Compare 312.)

365². Flame . . . is the essential of heat and light, for they come from it.

831². They can represent a shining white flame round the head . . . which is an angelic sign. D. 3701².

1326². 'Faces of flames' (Is. xiii. 8)=cupidities.

1524. An intense flaming appearance fell down before my eyes . . .

1525. The lucidity was beautifully varied with rays of golden flame for those who are in affections of good . . .

1594². In the love of self and its cupidities there is a certain flaming, and delight thence.

1621. There are atmospheres flaming as with gold.

1624. See COLOUR.

1764. They spoke with me by . . . flames of various colours.

2231². Man was so created that there was no other distinction between the will and the understanding than such as there is between flame and the light from it. Love and charity would be as the flame, and all perception and thought as the light from it.

—¹. Love and charity are a celestial flame, and faith is the spiritual light from it. . . There, the Celestial of the Lord manifests itself . . . by a flaming beam as of the sun, and the Spiritual of the Lord, by the light from it . . .

2973². With celestial flame and spiritual light, the case is this . . .

3222. Loves and their affections are (there) represented by flames, and this with an inexpressible variation . . . whence it is that by 'flames,' in the Word, are signified the goods which are of love . . .

3343. (In the interior Heaven) celestial things . . . are expressed by variations of flame or of celestial heat; thus they move all the affections. 3346^e.

3374. By the Celestial is meant all the flame of good from the Lord.

3798^e. Love is circumstanced as is flame . . .

3862. All celestial and spiritual heat, or love and charity, is perceived in the external form . . . as what is flaming from the Sun.

—². The universals of love and faith . . . thus the universals of flame and light . . .

3938². The Lord flows into the delights of charity with the light of truth and the flame of good . . .

4043^e. In the Heavens such things are presented to view by variations of celestial light and of celestial flame . . .

4245^e. The good of charity is like a flame which affords light . . . 5637. 5816². 6135³. 6272. 6400.

4328². The flaming lucidity represented the Intellectual (of the Celestial Church) . . . For flaming lucidity signifies truth from good. D. Min. 4712.

4414. The light in Heaven . . . differs accordingly as it is tempered with the flaming and the shining-white.

4627². The things of the affections of good they saw represented by suitable small flames-flammulas. D. 4028.

4642². The influx of Divine love is represented to the Angels by a celestial flame which affects them with Divine good.

4742². Truth does not shine from itself, because in it alone there is nothing flaming; but it shines from good, for good is like a flame from which comes light

5215². It is this heat which is meant in the Word by 'flame,' etc. 6032^e.

6601². The distance is greater or less according to the sparkling and the flaming in the object; for if it is flaming, it appears at a much greater distance . . . And as, in the world, what is flaming spreads itself to the greatest extent, so, in the Spiritual World, does good and its affection; for flame corresponds to the affection of good.

[A.] 6615. When the thought of the (higher) Angels falls down, it appears like a flaming light . . . The flaming flows into the affection of love (of the Spirits below), but does not appear to them . . . H.210.

6620^e. The flaming represented the Lord . . .

6645³. The flame of that Sun is nothing but Divine love.

6832. 'In a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush' (Ex.iii.2)=Divine love in scientific truth. 'A flame of fire'=Divine love.

—³. The reason 'flame'=Divine love, is that in its first origin love is nothing but fire and flame from the Lord as a Sun . . . Hence it is that when the Lord appeared in vision, He appeared as fire and flame. III.

—⁵. The Divine good of the Lord's Divine love was here (Dan.vii.9) seen as a flame of fire.

— . Thus 'the flame of fire' (Rev.xix.12) is the Divine truth which is in the Word, which is from the Lord's Divine good.

— . 'Eyes as a flame of fire' (Rev.i.14)=the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine good.

—⁶. That 'a flame of fire'=the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, is evident from Ps.xxix.7.

—⁸. That 'fire' and 'flame,' in the opposite sense, =filthy loves . . . III.

6922. There appeared a flame of considerable brightness blazing cheerfully . . . This flame signified the advent of Spirits of Mercury more prompt than the rest.

7620. (Description of a very beautiful flame, which was afterwards changed into a bird.) 622, Ex. D. 3246.

7622. What is flaming=celestial love and its affections. — .

8063. Good is as flame, and truth is as light.

8644². No Angel can endure the flame from the Divine love . . .

8760². The Divine good in itself is an infinite flame of ardour, that is, of love . . .

8764⁴. The Divine good is a flame . . . The flame itself does not appear in Heaven, but only light in which is the flame, which is thus perceived as heat, which is love.

8906³. 'The flame which burneth after him' (Joel ii.3) =the desire of falsity.

8914^e. 'Flames'=Divine truths proceeding from the Lord's Divine good.

9144². See ANGER.

9188⁴. 'Fire,' and 'flame' (Is.xlvii.14)=the love of self.

9467². All colours there are modifications of heavenly light and flame . . . which are variegations of truth and good, thus of intelligence and wisdom.

9468³. In the inmost Heaven Divine truth appears as flaming light . . .

9473. 'The luminary'=mutual love from its flame, which=this love; and it=charity from the heat and light therefrom. 9570^e.

9570^e. The light of the Celestial Heaven appears as flame, because in that Heaven there reigns the good of love, which is presented to view in Heaven by a flame. 9865².

9637. (Good and truth) are like flame and light; flame does not appear without light . . . and light does not come into existence without flame . . . Moreover, the flame or fire of life is love; and the light of life is faith. R.655⁶.

9695. (The inhabitants of the First Earth) have light from a certain flame . . . because they do not adore the Lord . . .

9865. The reason these stones=celestial love, is their red and flaming colour.

10786. That they were of the Celestial Kingdom was given to be seen from the flaming which was the source of their ideas.

10810. A human form seen in a flaming beam . . .

—². That flaming beam descended . . . and now appeared in a flaming verging to lucidity . . .

H. 32^e. The Voluntary is as a flame, and its Intellectual is as the light from it.

128². The light in the Celestial Kingdom appears flaming, because the Angels there receive light from the Lord as a Sun.

178. The most intelligent Angels have garments which sparkle as from flame. 179.

475. To think and will, and thence to do, is like a flame which gives heat and light all around.

571. A flaming appears from those Hells where the love of the world reigns.

585^e. Flame corresponds to the evils of the love of self.

S. 18². By 'a flame of fire' (Ps.xxix.7) is meant the affection of falsity.

42. The Word . . . from its celestial sense, is as a flame which kindles . . . From celestial flame it is like a ruby. T.216.

84². 'Fire' and 'flame' are mentioned together, because 'fire' . . . =good, and 'flame' . . . truth.

P. 309. They were so enraged that a flame appeared from their nostrils.

R. 48. 'His eyes were as a flame of fire' (Rev.i.14)=the Divine wisdom of the Divine love. . . By 'a flame of fire' is signified spiritual love, which is charity; and therefore, when predicated of the Lord, it=Divine love. E.68.

128². 'A flaming fire' (Ps.civ.4)=the good of love. E.155². 419¹¹.

224^e. Lo, a flaming together with light descended from Heaven and consociated them with the Angels.

230². 'The flame of a sword turning itself'=Divine truth in ultimates. T.260².

282^e. 'I am tormented in this flame' (Luke xvi.24)=the doctrine by the falsities of which he was tormented: for no one in Hell is in flame, but the flame there is the appearance of the love of falsity; and the fire is the appearance of the love of evil.

566². Flame burst forth and consumed the paper.

M. 42¹. In her face there was a resplendence of flaming light . . .

266². In our Society . . . the light derives its quality from the flaming of the Sun, and the flaming of the Sun corresponds to the love of uses.

359. That the blazing or flame of this love, which is zeal, is a spiritual blazing or flame, which originates from an assault upon the love.

— . At a distance, love there appears as flame . . . but this flame does not burn . . .

360. As fire breaks forth into flame . . . For in the will love is as fire, and in the understanding as flame . . .

—^e. This is the source of this spiritual flame.

365. But the zeal of the love of evil is as an infernal flame.

T. 159. Flame is nothing but smoke set on fire . . .

504². The smoke being ignited burned like a flame, which illuminated the mind below the memory . . . But with the other . . . I saw as it were a gentle flame flowing down from Heaven, which illuminated the mind above the memory . . .

D. 1680. It resembled our flame . . .

3629. On a flaming before the eyes. See 3646.

3853. Afterwards the flame appeared more intense . . . by which they said was signified natural lumen. It was nothing but a yellowish flame like that from burning wood. I said that if the fieriness from the kindled smoke were absent, the flame would be white, that is, if natural things were absent . . . then it would be inwardly white, and thus spiritual, which is signified by a shining-white flame.

4453. He was held suspended in that (infernal) flame, and said that he had never perceived anything more delightful.

4813^e. There appeared many sparkling flames above the table . . . This signified their cupidity of truth . . .

E. 68². 'Flame' = the truth from good of the inmost Heaven. Refs. 277².

131²⁰. 'The flame of a sword turning itself every way' = the terrific driving off and rejecting of all who are in falsities. (= truth from this good protecting. 277².)

403²². 'Fire of flames' (Ps. cv. 32) = the love of the world.

412²⁸. The interiors of those who are in the love of self and of the world, and thence in hatred and revenge, are meant by 'their faces being faces of flames' (Is. xiii. S); so do they appear. (= that they are in the evils of hatred and of anger. 721²⁴.)

—²⁹. The vastation and destruction of the Church by the love of falsity from evil, is signified by 'the flame of a grievous flame' (Ezek. xx. 47).

455⁷. 'The tongue' (of Dives) = the thirst and cupidity of perverting the truths which are in the Word; and 'the flame,' the penalty of this cupidity, which is varied and manifold.

504. 'Fire' = the good of celestial love, and 'flame,' the good of spiritual love; and, in the opposite sense, 'fire' = love which originates from the love of self, and 'flame,' the evil which originates from the love of the world.

—⁶. The fire of the candlestick, which was flame, = Divine spiritual love.

—²¹. 'Fire' = evils; and 'flame,' the cupidities thence derived.

730¹³. 'Fire' = the love of self; and 'flame,' the conceit of our Own intelligence. —¹⁴.

811¹¹. 'They shall fall by the sword and by flame' (Dan. xi. 33) = to perish from falsities and derivative evils.

5 M. 9. Little flames, like tongues, flowed down from Heaven upon their heads, by which they were inspired with the affection of being wise from reason . . . Among them was a priest . . . who said, What has faith to do with reason . . . then suddenly the little flame fell down from the top of his head upon his shoe, and there shone for a short time. —¹¹.

—¹⁰. As they were in enlightenment from the little flames upon their heads . . .

Flamen. Coro. 9. 17.

Flank. Armus.

A. 10075. 'The right flank' (Ex. xxix. 22) = inmost good . . . For the flank of animals has the same signification as the loins and the thighs with man, which = marriage love, and, from this, the good of celestial love, which good is the good of the inmost Heaven; and the right loin and thigh, the inmost good there. . . From this it may also be evident that the flanks are the posterior parts of the animal, where the genitals are, and not the front parts, for these are called the breast.

—². As the right flank = inmost good or celestial good, when it was uplifted from the sacrifice and given to Aaron, it was called his 'anointing' (Lev. vii. 32, 34, 35.)

10079². The fat and the flank = good equally as much as bread.

10090². The flank = Divine good in the Celestial Kingdom.

10092. 'The flank of uplifting' (Ex. xxix. 27) = the Divine Celestial which belongs to the Lord alone, perceived in Heaven and the Church. 'The flank' = the Divine Celestial in Heaven and the Church.

Flash. See under CORUSCATE, LIGHTNING, and SPARKLE.

Flat. Simus. W. 432².

Flatter. Blandiri, Adblandiri.

Blandishment. Blanditio, Adblandimentum.

Soft. Blandus.

A. 905^e. 'My yoke is easy-blandus.'

1088². See CHARITY.

1517. A vinous odour from those who, from friendship . . . flatter, so that there is truth in their blandishments. D. 1047.

9248. 'Flattering divination' (Ezek. xii. 24).

9265. Anything that pleases the natural man . . .

H. 87. These things gratify the external senses . . . These gratify the internal senses.

M. 294^e. A soft and tender love . . .

361^e. The substances of the form become gentle, pleasant . . .

365. His internal is in itself mild, pleasant . . .

380^b. We asked courteously . . .

405². Natural parents . . . fawning upon their children . . .

505¹. With a stern face instead of a courteous one.

I. 15⁷. Such things as please the senses . . .

T. 590^e. A fiery spirit may dwell beneath a bland mouth.

767. The natural sight, to which the other senses add their allurements.

D. 1045. (Flatterers) have an odour of vomit . . .

1179. Such conversation flattered their nature.

2012. Something which flattered their self-love.

2120. In the bodily life had been pleasant in countenance . . .

2973^e. The caressings of the black cow, and her reciprocal caressing.

3843. They were complaisant to every cupidity . . .

4309^e. They who flatter anyone by speaking differently from what they think . . .

5669². Being exteriorly bland and civil . . .

D. Min. 4705^e. They are silent, bland, deceitful . . .

E. 659¹. 'They flatter with their tongue' (Ps.v.9) = that exteriorly there is what is hypocritical and as it were sound.

Flattery. Assentatio.

Flatterer. Assentator.

A. 5388. Flatteries differ according to the ends . . .

H. 499. This is evident from pretenders and flatterers.

W. 393. (The cardiac and pulmonic motions) with hypocrites, flatterers, deceivers.

P. 89². Thus he acts the hypocrite and flatterer.

104². A flatterer and a hypocrite have a double thought.

T. 111. Hence come pretences, flatteries, and hypocrisies . . . 592^e.

448². I have seen such bindings . . . of many with flatterers . . .

D. 1169. Such Spirits insinuate themselves into the affections of everyone . . . flattering them . . .

2120. Flattery by external things is not tolerated there . . .

2500. They make familiars for themselves by flattery.

2503. This . . . may be called the deceit of flatterers. 2504.

5533^e. Some introduce themselves, by flatteries, into Societies of the simple good.

Flax. Linum.

Linen, Of. Linteus.

See FINE LINEN.

A. 25. 'The smoking flax shall He not quench' (Is.

xlii.3). (=that He does not destroy the Divine truth with the simple and little children which begins to live from a little good of love. E.627⁷.) E.950⁶.

3021². 'A linen girdle' (Jer.xiii.1) = truth.

5895². 'Thou shalt not wear . . . wool and linen together' (Deut.xxii.11); 'wool' = good, and 'linen' truth.

7601. 'And the flax' (Ex.ix.31) = the truth of the exterior Natural. 'Flax' = truth, but truth of the exterior Natural. 7604.

—². The reason 'flax' = truth, is from the representatives in Heaven. In Heaven, they who are in the truth of the Natural appear clothed in white, which white appears as from flax; and the truth of the Natural is itself represented as a fabric made of the purer filaments of flax, which appear like silken threads, bright, beautifully transparent, and soft; and the clothing made of them is similar if the truth so represented is from good. But the threads which are like flax . . . appear hard and brittle, and yet white, if the truth so represented is not from good. This is why Angels . . . have appeared in linen things. Ill.

—³. As 'flax' = the truth of the exterior Natural, and the exterior Natural is what invests the interiors, this truth is what was represented by the linen things in which the Angels were clothed; and also by the garments of linen in which Aaron was clothed. Ill.

—⁴. This was why the Lord, when he washed His disciples' feet, girded Himself with a linen cloth, and wiped their feet with the linen cloth . . .

—⁵. 'Linen' also = truth in the following passages. Ill.

—, 'Not to wear a garment of wool and flax together' = not to be in two states at once, namely, in good and from it look to truth, and at the same time in truth and from it look to good. Ex.

9470². 'Wool and linen' = the same, but external.

—⁵. As the garments of Aaron represented things of the Spiritual Kingdom . . . they were of linen and not of wool: for 'linen' = spiritual truth, but 'wool' celestial truth, which, relatively, is good. 10184⁶. 10669^e.

9670⁶. The coat of linen, breeches of linen, belt of linen, and mitre of linen, which he was to put on, and the washing of his flesh, = that that purification was effected by means of truths from good.

9827². 'Linen' = truth in the natural man; thus 'the mitre of linen' = natural intelligence.

9872². 'The man clothed in linen' (Dan.x.5) was an Angel; 'linen' = the truth which invests good.

9959. 'Make for them breeches of linen' (Ex.xxviii.42) = the external of conjugal love. . . 'Linen' = external truth or natural truth.

—². It is now evident why the breeches were of linen; but the breeches he wore when clothed in the garments which were for glory and ornament . . . were of linen with fine linen interwoven. Ill.

—³. But the garments of linen he wore when . . . when he was expiating . . . = the truths of faith; by which all purification from evils and falsities is effected. Further ill. and ex.

9960¹⁴. 'Wool' (Hos.ii.5)=the exterior good of the Spiritual Church; and 'flax'=its exterior truth. 10402⁷.

10243². 'The linen cloth with which the Lord was girded . . . =the Divine truth proceeding from Him. E.951².

R. 671^e. 'Flax,' in these passages, =nothing else than truth. Ill.

M. 19. A messenger (in Heaven) clothed in linen.

42². His stockings were of resplendent linen.

463². They differ as dirty linen from washed.

T. 61^e. See BAT.

331^e. Here are water, soap, and a towel.

D. 4946. Wrapped in a linen cloth—linceo.

5144. (White but spotted linen cloths—lincea—seen hanging on the inside walls of the houses of those who live in the frigid zone. They are a sign that they are in goods; for they=their truths.)

5652^e. A female saint clothed in linen like that of a monastery.

5800. Magie exercised by means of a broad linen cloth over the head.

6095. The Africans appear in striped garments of linen; their women in silk.

D. Min. 4778. They appear with a folded linen cloth bound round the head, which is a sign that they are persuasive Spirits . . .

E. 67². 'Flax,' or 'linen'=truth. 627⁷. 1143².

951. Linen clean and shining=genuine truth; for the Angels . . . who are wise from Divine truth appear in white garments of muslin, lawn, or linen, because these correspond to the truths in which they are. Therefore Aaron and his sons had garments of linen. Ill. . . The reason they put on linen garments when they ministered holy things, was that all holy administration is effected by means of Divine truth . . .

—4. They appeared clothed in linen, because they were girded for ministry.

— . As all the quality of the Church is known by means of Divine truth, a thread of flax was in his hand (Ezek.xl.3).

—5. The 'linen girdle' (Jer.xiii.)=all the truth of doctrine from the Word (here, corrupted).

—7. As there are some Societies in good, and some in truth, and man must not have communication with diverse Societies at the same time, for confusion would result (they were not allowed to wear a garment made of wool and linen together.)

Flea. Pulex.

T. 68². Like a flea against a whale.

D. 4353. Phantasy of a troop of fleas.

E. 783⁴. Their power may be compared to that of a flea against a flea.

Flee, Shun. Fugere.

A. 1689^e. 'To flee and fall' (Gen.xiv.10)=to be conquered.

1923. 'She fled from her face' (Gen.xvi.6)=indignation. Ex.

2321^e. The evil flee far away from the Holy of the Lord.

4114. 'He fled, and all that he had' (Gen.xxxi.21)=separation. 4120. 4136.

6724^e. Good and evil shun each other.

6772. 'Moses fled from before Pharaoh' (Ex.ii.15)=separation from falsities.

6784². At the presence of one who is in truth from good a thousand who are in falsity from evil flee; and unless they do flee they are tortured.

6950. 'Moses fled from before it' (Ex.iv.3)=horror at a separated Sensuous. 'To flee'=horror, for he who is horrified at anything, flees from it.

7188. That with all their force and power they shall shun them. Sig. Ex.

8142. 'The people fled' (Ex.xiv.5)=to be separated.

8218. 'I will flee before Israel' (ver.25)=separation from (them).

8227. 'To flee to meet the sea' (ver.27)=to immerse themselves in falsities from evil.

9014. Damnation although he flees to the worship of the Lord. Sig.

9333. They who are in evils and falsities there are not driven out, but flee of themselves.

9448. To shun what is evil and false . . . is repentance.

Life 18. In proportion as a man shuns evils as sins, he does goods . . . from the Lord. Gen.art.

21. In proportion as a man shuns evils as sins, he is in the Lord . . . Hence results this general law, that in proportion as anyone shuns evils, he does goods. T.330,Ex.

22. Two things are requisite,—that man should shun evils as sins . . . and that he should shun them as of himself.

24. That if a man wills and does goods, before he shuns evils as sins, his goods are not goods. Ex.

25. That if a man thinks and speaks pious things, and does not shun evils as sins, his pious things are not pious things. Ex.

27. That if a man knows and is wise about many things, and does not shun evils as sins, still he is not wise. Ex.

31^e. Every man . . . is able to shun evils as of himself by the power of the Lord if he implores it; and that which he afterwards does is good from the Lord.

32. In proportion as anyone shuns evils as sins, he loves truths. Gen.art.

42. In proportion as anyone shuns evils as sins, he has faith, and is spiritual. Gen.art.

62. Every kind of murders, adulteries, thefts, false witness, with the concupiscences to them, are the evils which are to be shunned as sins. Gen.art.

67. In proportion as anyone shuns murders of every kind as sins, he has love towards the neighbour. Gen.art.

70. It follows that if a man shuns evil as sin, he comes into the good which is opposite to the evil.

[Life] 74. In proportion as anyone shuns adulteries of every kind as sins, he loves chastity. Gen.art.

80. In proportion as anyone shuns thefts of every kind as sins, he loves sincerity. Gen.art.

86^e. See EVIL. —⁴. 92. 95. 101. 108. —^e. 111^e. F.12. W.246. 269^e. 419^e. P.278. 283. 294⁴. 296¹². 321⁷. R.272. 379. 458. 628. 634². 836. M.356^e. T.329. —⁴. 510. 535². 587². E.803,iii. 825⁴. 837⁶. 971². —. —. —⁴. —⁵.

87. In proportion as anyone shuns false witness of every kind as sin, he loves Truth. Gen.art.

F. 23. In proportion as anyone shuns evils as sins, and looks to the Lord, he is in charity, and therefore in the same proportion is in faith.

27. This faith is not formed, except in the proportion that he shuns evils as sins.

W. 237². The sum of which precepts is, to shun evils because they are infernal and diabolical . . .

242. But spiritual heat does not flow in, except in proportion as the man shuns evils as sins . . .

—^e. Man is able to receive wisdom up to the third degree, but not love, unless he shuns evils as sins . . .

258². The love . . . is elevated only by shunning evils as sins . . .

266². When they were told that they would will these things if only they shunned evils as sins, they said they could do this, but would not.

414. The love of use is given only . . . when a man shuns evils as sins.

426². But . . . he does uses for the sake of uses in proportion as he shuns evils; for in proportion as he shuns these, he does the uses . . . from the Lord.

—^e. When he shuns sins from aversion he begins to have a sensible perception of the love of uses . . .

429. Yet those of them who have shunned evils as sins are in the Ultimate Heaven . . .

P. 33². (Thus) in proportion as anyone shuns evils as diabolical . . . he is more and more closely conjoined with the Lord . . .

61. Everyone has good affection in proportion as he has shunned evils as sins; and evil affection in proportion as he has not so shunned them.

77. Man's rationality and freedom . . . appear . . . in proportion as, on this account, he shuns these evils in himself; and in proportion as he does this he regards these goods as a friend does his friends. —².

93^e. To look to God in their life, is nothing but to shun evils as sins.

99^e. Everyone can come into freedom itself and rationality itself, if he shuns evils as sins.

117. So from custom and habit they learn to shun evils as detrimental to their honour and wealth. But if they do not shun evils from a principle of religion . . . the concupiscences of evil with their delights remain with them . . .

125^e. Therefore it is not necessary for man to know more than that he must shun evils as sins, and look to the Lord.

153. Although the universal Christian world acknowledges that evils are to be shunned as sins . . . yet scarcely one in thousands knows this. Ex.

180⁵. Therefore, if a man does not shun evils as sins, the external of his thought and will is vitiated, and the internal at the same time.

210^e. This door is opened by a man's shunning evils as of himself, with the acknowledgment that he does it from the Lord. 233².

215¹². All those do uses from the Lord who shun evils as sins; and all those do uses from the devil who do not shun evils as sins.

239². It has not been shown that to shun evils as sins is the Christian religion itself.

258². (Thus) even in the Churches where the doctrine of faith alone has been received, everyone is taught that evils are to be shunned as sins.

259². Still, it has been provided that everyone . . . can be reformed and saved, provided he shuns evils as sins, and does not confirm falsities; for by shunning evils as sins the will is reformed, and through the will the understanding . . .

265. That a doubt may be suggested against the Divine Providence from the fact that hitherto men have not known that to shun evils as sins is the Christian religion itself. Ex.

274. In those who do not shun evils as sins there lies hidden the belief inwardly that man does not live after death.

278a. No one can shun that of which he knows nothing.

326⁸. That the good of life . . . is to shun evils because they are contrary to religion, thus to God.

—^e. Yet if you do not shun evils as sins against God, all these goods are not goods, but are either hypocritical or meritorious . . .

328². But they who, in the world, have not acknowledged God and shunned evils as sins, soon loathe truths.

329. The means of salvation relate to these two points:—that evils are to be shunned because they are contrary to the Divine laws . . . and the acknowledgment of the existence of God. This can be done by everyone . . . for the Lord is continually flowing into his will with power that he may be able to shun evils, and into his understanding with power that he may be able to think that there is a God; but still no one can do the one unless at the same time he does the other: the two things are conjoined like the two tables of the Decalogue . . .

—². See DECALOGUE.

338². The life of man . . . is reformed as man shuns evils as sins . . .

R. 49⁵. The natural man . . . is purified, when he shuns the evils which the spiritual man sees to be evils . . .

457. That neither did they shun as sins the things which were their Own, which are evils of every kind. Sig.

461. That faith alone induces on the heart . . . hardness, so that they do not think . . . of any sin which is to be shunned because it is . . . against God. Sig.

517^e. All those do good from themselves who do not shun evils as sins . . .

892. All those who . . . do not shun any evils . . . as sins, and therefore live in them. Sig. 952.

M. 266⁴. Everyone who believes in the Lord, and shuns evils as sins, performs uses from the Lord; but everyone who does not believe in the Lord, and does not shun evils as sins, performs uses from himself and for the sake of himself.

B. 43. Evils are to be shunned, because they are of the devil and from the devil. 117². T. 3.

59^e. My friend, make your escape from such, and shun evils as sins, and do goods, and believe in the Lord, and saving justification will be given you.

T. 330^e. Two canons for . . . the New Church: 1. No one can shun evils as sins and do goods which are goods in the sight of God, from himself; but in proportion as anyone shuns evils as sins, he does good . . . from the Lord. 2. Man ought to shun evils as sins . . . as of himself; and if anyone shuns evils from any other cause whatever than because they are sins, he does not shun them, but only causes them not to appear before the world.

484². But, my friend, shun evil, and do good, and believe in the Lord . . . and He will give the love to do and the faith to believe . . .

535². The first of charity is to shun evils . . .

D. 5793. To shun external evils . . . 5798^e.

6053. They who will be of the New Jerusalem will shun especially these three things.

6080. He who does not shun evils within himself is beset with evils . . .

E. 131⁸. 'He who fleeth for himself before the sword, his young men shall be for tribute' (Is.xxxi.8)=that the truth which is not destroyed shall be subservient to falsities.

355¹⁸. 'To flee' (Jer.iv.29)=to perish.

—²⁷. 'To flee upon the horse . . .' (Is.xxx.16)=to desire . . . the things of their own understanding . . .

405²³. 'To flee' (Zech.xiv.5)=to be rescued.

652¹⁹. 'No fleeing forth=effugiens' (Ps.cxliv.14)=no loss of any.

730. 'To flee into the wilderness' (Rev.xii.6)=to abide with those who are not in truths because not in good.

795^e. Man receives the Lord in proportion as he abstains from evils, and shuns and abhors them from the Word; for thus he shuns and abhors them from the Lord . . .

796². Every man has life as he abstains from evils, and shuns and abhors them because they are contrary to the Word . . .

798⁶. The spiritual mind is opened solely by this, that the man abstains from doing evils, and shuns, and at last abhors them, because they are contrary to the Divine precepts . . . When a man thus shuns and abhors evils, all things he thinks, wills, and does are good, because from the Lord. Ex.

803⁴. The case is otherwise with those who have abstained, from the Word, from doing evils, and have afterwards shunned and abhorred them, because they were sins . . .

825³. When a man shuns these things because they are contrary to the Word . . . he lives according to the laws of his religion, and in proportion as he does this he is led by the Lord, and in the same proportion² his works are good . . .

—⁴. How few there are who shun adulteries, fraud, etc., because they are contrary to the Word . . .

—⁵. He who shuns evils because they are contrary to the Divine laws . . . also shuns them because they are contrary to moral and civil laws . . .

837⁶. In proportion as a man shuns and abhors evils, because they are sins, and thinks about Heaven, his salvation, and eternal life, he is adopted by the Lord and conjoined with Heaven, and is gifted with spiritual affection, which consists in his not only wanting to know truths, but also to understand them, and to will and do them.

839². All these works . . . are good in proportion as the man shuns evils because they are sins against God, and they are evil works in proportion as he does not shun them. It is the same with faith . . . if a man does not shun evils because they are sins, and at the same time look to the Lord, he does not believe at all (that there is a God, that the Lord is the Saviour of the world, that there is a Heaven and a Hell, that the Word is holy, and so on) for these things are not of his life and love, but only of his memory and knowledge, and they do not become of his life and love until he fights against evils and conquers them. (From experience.)

864⁸. No one can be led by the Lord who is led by himself, and everyone is led by himself who does not shun evils because they are contrary to the Word . . . The reason is, that the evil which man has hereditarily constitutes his life . . . and before these evils are removed he does all things from them . . . Very different is the case when evils have been removed, which takes place when he shuns them because they are infernal; for then the Lord enters with truths and goods from Heaven, and leads him. The primary cause of this is that every man is his own love . . . and all evil is from his love . . . from which it follows that the love of man can be reformed only by a spiritual shunning=fuga-and abhorrence of evils, which is a shunning=fuga-and abhorrence of them because they are infernal. Hence it is evident what it is to 'follow the Lord whithersoever He goeth.'

902². There are two opposite spheres which encompass man . . . a sphere of evil and of derivative falsity from Hell, and a sphere of good and derivative truth from Heaven . . . man is set in the midst between them; therefore, in proportion as he accedes to the one he recedes from the other; and hence it is that in proportion as a man shuns evils, and hates them, he wills and loves goods and the derivative truths; for 'no man can serve two lords, for he will hate the one, and love the other.'

[E.902]ᶠ. By (the faith which now prevails) it has come to pass that no one shuns evils from religion, but only from the civil and moral law; thus not because they are sins, but because they cause loss and injury.

936². The evils which are to be shunned have been recounted from the Decalogue. But I know that many think in their hearts that no one can shun these evils of himself, because man is born in sins, and therefore has no power of himself of shunning them: but let them know that everyone who thinks in his heart that there is a God, that the Lord is the God of Heaven and earth, that the Word is from Him . . . that there is a Heaven and a Hell . . . is able to shun them; but not he who despises these things . . . For who can think that anything is a sin against God, when he does not think about God? and who can shun evils as sins when he thinks nothing about Heaven, Hell, and the life after death? Man is set in the midst between Heaven and Hell . . . and is therefore in the freedom of thinking goods and of thinking evils . . . in proportion, therefore, as a man from this freedom thinks of shunning evils because they are sins, and supplicates the Lord for help, the Lord removes them, and gives to the man to desist from them as of himself, and afterwards to shun them. Everyone is able from natural freedom to shun these same evils, on account of their being contrary to human laws . . . even an evil man, and in the external form his life appears exactly like that of him who shuns these evils on account of their being contrary to the Divine laws . . . and when a man can shun the same evils from natural freedom, why cannot he shun them from spiritual freedom . . .

—c. (Thus) everyone who believes in the Lord shuns evils as sins; and, contrariwise, everyone who shuns evils as sins, believes; and therefore to shun evils as sins is the sign of faith.

940². When the interior of man has been purified from evils, by his desisting from them, and shunning them because they are sins, the interior is opened which is above the interior, which . . . communicates with Heaven; hence the man is then intronitted into Heaven and conjoined with the Lord . . . This interior is . . . kept shut with the man who does not shun evils as sins. The reason . . . is, that before a man has been purified from sins, the interior is Hell, and so long as Hell is there, Heaven cannot be opened . . .

946². When, therefore, a man shuns and abhors evils as sins . . . he is no longer in his proprium, but is in the Lord, and therefore he thinks and wills goods . . . and therefore it follows, again, that when a man shuns and abhors evils, he does goods not from himself but from the Lord; and therefore it is that to shun evils is to do goods . . .

948¹. Still, man is not saved if he shuns these evils from (civil, moral, and natural) laws only, unless he also shuns them from spiritual law, whereby he shuns them as sins . . .

954². Thus in proportion as man shuns the evils as sins which are in the Decalogue, there flows in through Heaven from the Lord that there is a God . . . also that God is one. Ex.

955⁴. When a man shuns and abhors evils because they are sins, he not only sees from the light of Heaven that there is a God . . . but also that God is a Man; for he wants to see his God . . . The reason is, that the man who shuns and abhors evils as sins thinks from Heaven . . .

972². He who abstains from thefts . . . nay, he who shuns them, from any other reason than religion . . . is not purified from them . . .

974². When a man begins to shun and abhor evils because they are sins, all things he does are good . . . For the things which a man does before he shuns and abhors evils as sins are works from the man himself . . . and therefore are evil works; whereas the things which a man does after he shuns and abhors evils as sins, are works from the Lord, and . . . are good works.

979². When a man shuns evils as sins, he daily learns what is a good work, and the affection of doing what is good grows in him, and the affection of knowing truths for the sake of good . . .

1062³. They who wholly give themselves up to a life of piety . . . and yet do not shun fraud, adultery, hatred, revilings, and the like, as sins against God . . . are they who are the most guilty of this kind of profanation . . .

1180. Every man can be saved, in whatever religion he lives; for he knows the evils, and from the evils, the falsities which are to be shunned; and when he shuns them, he knows the goods which are to be done and the truths which are to be believed. The good which he does, and the truths which he believes, before he has shunned evils, are in themselves not goods, nor truths, because they are from the man . . . (and therefore) are not alive. The man who knows all goods and all truths . . . and does not shun evils, knows nothing; the evils absorb and cast them all out . . . Whereas the man who knows few goods and truths, and shuns evils, does know them, and adds more to them, and becomes wise, if not in this world, afterwards.

De Verbo 12. That man has enlightenment who shuns evils because they are sins . . .

D. Love xvii². The spiritual affection of use is obtained by shunning evils because they are sins, which is effected by means of a combat against them . . .

C. 1. See CHARITY. 7. 20. 158. 202.

2. That in proportion as anyone does not look to the Lord and shun evils because they are sins, he remains in them. 204, Gen. art.

23. The good done before a man shuns evils as sins is civil and moral; but in proportion as he shuns evils as sins the good becomes spiritual also . . .

41. When anyone has shunned an evil as a sin several times, then only does the good which he is doing appear to him; and yet they take place together in him. Still, one must be prior; and one is really prior and interior.

203. That man ought to shun evils as sins as of himself, but still from the Lord.

204². For if a man does not shun evils as sins, but only because they are injurious, he does not look to the Lord, but only to himself, and so remains in his perverted state. But when he shuns evils as sins, he shuns them because they are contrary to the Lord and His Divine laws, and in this case he supplicates the Lord for help . . . Nor are evils removed by merely shunning them; for thus the man looks to himself . . .

Flee Away. Aufugere.

A. 447². He fled away, crying, I am a Spirit . . . D. 2288.

1506. Other Spirits suddenly fled away.

6365. That the infernal crew shall flee away at his presence. Sig. . . For when any infernal approaches a (celestial) Angel, he flees away at his presence . . . 6369^e.

6423. Everything evil and false, thus the infernal crew, flees away to a great distance when good approaches, or an Angel who is in good. S722^e.

10758^e. At the bare idea of being reclothed with their earthly bodies they fled far away.

10813². At the first view of the city in which I dwelt he fled away.

M. 10³. (He said,) On seeing me the Angels fled away . . .

T. 124². At the bare perception of Divine truth from Divine good the infernal Genii flee away . . .

D. 1085. That when evil Spirits perceive (anything from the heavenly Societies) they flee away.

3353^e. The Spirits then fled away, crying that they could not endure so cadaverous an odour.

3365. When I awoke, they seemed to flee away . . .

3546. That the world of Spirits . . . flee away (from a single Angel).

3587. The Spirits who were before around me fled away . . .

Fleece. Veller. M. 504.

Flesh. Caro.

Fleshy, Carnal. Carnuus.

A. 147. 'Flesh in place of the rib' (Gen.ii.21)=the proprium in which there is vitality. 148. 149². 156. 157.

160. 'For one flesh' (ver.24)=that they were together; and because . . . they have now become flesh.

572. 'Because (man) is flesh' (Gen.vi.3)=because he has become corporeal.

574. That 'flesh'=that man has become corporeal, is evident from the signification of 'flesh' in the Word: where it is taken both for man in general, and for what is corporeal in special. III.

627. 'All flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth' (Gen.vi.12)=that the corporeal of man had lost all understanding of truth. 'Flesh'=in general, every man; in special, the corporeal man, or everything corporeal. 631. 661². 800^e.

631. 'The end of all flesh has come before me' (ver. 13)=that the human race cannot but perish.

661. 'To destroy all flesh, in which is the breath of lives, under the heavens' (ver.17) = that the whole posterity of the Most Ancient Church destroyed itself.

—^e. 'Flesh under the heavens'=what is merely corporeal. Ex.

670. 'All flesh' (ver. 19)=the things of the will.

—^e. 'Flesh'=in special, what is corporeal, which is of the will.

780. 'All flesh wherein is the breath of lives' (Gen. vii.15)=the new creature, or that which has received new life from the Lord. (For. as) 'flesh'=every man in general, and the corporeal man in special . . . 'flesh wherein is the breath of lives'=the regenerate man; because in his proprium there is the life of the Lord, which is the life of charity and faith. Every man is nothing but flesh, but when the life of charity and faith from the Lord is inspired into him, the flesh is vivified, and becomes spiritual and celestial, and he is called 'a new creature.'

800. 'All flesh expired that creepeth upon the ground' (ver.21)=that those who were of the last posterity of the Most Ancient Church became extinct. . . They are called 'flesh that creepeth upon the ground,' because they had become utterly sensuous and corporeal . . .

999. That 'flesh' (Gen.ix.4)=the Voluntary of man, is evident from the signification of 'flesh' in the proper sense relatively to a corrupt man. . . As 'flesh'=every man, and, in special, what is corporeal, it=that which is proper to man, thus his will. Man's will is nothing but evil, and therefore 'flesh,' as predicated of man, = all cupidity, or all concupiscence . . . And as 'flesh' has this signification, the same kind of thing was represented by the flesh which the people lusted for in the wilderness . . . (Num.xi.4); where 'flesh' is plainly called concupiscence . . . They were not plagued because they lusted for flesh, for this is natural after a long abstinence from it; but the hidden spiritual reason was that the people were of such a character that they utterly loathed that which was represented by the manna . . . and desired only such things as are represented by flesh, namely, their Own voluntary things, which are those of cupidities . . . The manna represented what is celestial, and the flesh which they lusted for, what is filthy of the will. 5215³.

1001. As 'flesh'=what is voluntary of man, it=what is profane . . .

1002. (On the eating of flesh. See EAT UP.) 1003. 4735⁵.

1003. Flesh, outside the sacrifices, = cupidities.

1050. 'Every living creature in all flesh' (Gen.ix.15) = the universal human race. —³. 1059.

1608². 'The will of the flesh' (John i.13) = that which is contrary to love and charity.

2041. 'Ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin' (Gen.xvii.11)=the removal of the love of self and of the world. . . 'Flesh'=the proprium of man, which is nothing but the love of self and of the world, thus all the cupidity thence derived, which is filthy. 2057. 2102.

2053. 'My covenant shall be in your flesh' (ver.13) = the conjunction of the Lord with man in his impurity. . . 'Flesh'=the proprium of man, which is impure.

[A.2053]^o. 'A covenant in your flesh' is significative of purification . . .

234^o. Whether you say the Divine Human, or Body, or Flesh, or Bread, or the Divine love, it is the same . . .

354^o. 'From my flesh I shall see God' (Job xix.26)= from the vivified proprium. 3813^o. E.1032^o.

3812. 'Thou art my bone and my flesh' (Gen.xxix.14)= conjunction (as to truths and as to goods). The ancients used this formula in speaking of those who were . . . in some blood-relationship. . . 'Flesh'=the voluntary proprium . . . thus the proprium as to good.

—³. Hence 'flesh,' in the Word,=good, and in the opposite sense, evil.

—⁶. The 'flesh which the Lord causes to ascend upon the bones' (Ezek.xxxvii.6)=the voluntary proprium, which is called the celestial proprium; thus it=good.

3813. (Gen.art. on the signification of flesh.)

— In the supreme sense, 'flesh'=the proprium of the Lord's Divine Human, which is Divine good; and in the relative sense, the voluntary proprium of man vivified by the proprium of the Divine Human . . . This proprium is what is called the celestial proprium, which in itself is of the Lord alone appropriated to those who are in good and thence in truth . . . But in the opposite sense, 'flesh'=the voluntary proprium of man, which in itself is nothing but evil . . . Fully ill.

—³. The same was signified by . . . the eating of the flesh of the sacrifices. 4211.

—⁴. 'I will give them a heart of flesh' (Ezek.xi.19)=the Voluntary and the proprium vivified.

—⁷. 'Ye shall eat the flesh of kings,' etc. (Ezek. xxxix.Rev.xix.)=the evils which are from falsities, and the evils from which are falsities, which are from the voluntary proprium of man. (Compare EAT UP, at 4735^o. R.832.)

—⁸. As the evil which is from the voluntary proprium is 'flesh,' the Lord says of the man who is to be regenerated . . . 'Not born of the will of the flesh.'

— Hence 'flesh,' in general,=every man, for whether you say man, or his proprium, it is the same.

—⁹. That 'flesh,' in the supreme sense=the Lord's Divine Human, is evident from . . . 'The Word was made flesh . . .' From this flesh all flesh is vivified . . . by the appropriation of His love, which is signified by 'eating the flesh of the Son of Man' . . .

3993^o. A Spirit has everything except the bones and flesh. 5079^o. D.4430.

4735. With the ancients, the flesh and blood=the human proprium, because the human consists of flesh and blood. Hence the Lord said to Simon, 'Blessed art thou, because flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee . . .' (Matt.xvi.17). Therefore the flesh and blood signified by the bread and wine in the Holy Supper=the Lord's Human proprium . . . This Divine proprium in the Human is what is signified by His flesh and blood; His 'flesh'=His Divine good; His 'blood,' the Divine truth of the Divine good. 5147^o. 5576^o. 7850^o. R.379. T.372. E.329^o. —⁵. —¹⁴.

—². Divine celestial love is represented by the flesh or bread in the Holy Supper; and Divine Spiritual love by the blood or wine. Hence it is evident what is meant by 'eating the Lord's flesh, and drinking His blood.'

—³. As by 'the flesh and blood' is signified the Divine Celestial and the Divine Spiritual which are from the Lord's Divine Human, or, what is the same, the Divine good and the Divine truth of His love, 'to eat and drink them'=to appropriate them to ourselves: this appropriation is effected by the life of love and of charity, which, also, is the life of faith.

4754. 'He is our brother, our flesh' (Gen.xxxvii.27)=that what is from them is accepted. . . 'Flesh'=the proprium in both senses; thus that it was accepted . . .

5157. See TRIN.

5200. 'Fat in flesh' (Gen.xli.2)=which are of charity. . . 'Flesh'=the Voluntary vivified by means of good from the Lord, thus, also, the good which is of love and of charity.

5204. 'Thin in flesh' (ver.3)=not of charity.

5576^o. For when the Lord had made His whole Human Divine, His flesh was nothing but Divine good, and His blood Divine truth.

5826^o. 'Of the will of the flesh'=those who are in the evils of the love of self and of the world. 9454. 10829^o. E.151^o. (=the voluntary proprium. 8409^o. L.18^o. Life 17. P.298^o.) (=the evils from the voluntary proprium. 10283^o.)

6592. The internal things of the Church are signified by flesh in which is spirit.

6963^o. 'Living flesh' appearing in the leprosy (Lev. xiii.14)=acknowledgment and faith (and consequent profanation inwardly).

6968. '(Moses' hand) was turned again as his flesh' (Ex.iv.7)=that in this case there is the good of truth. 'Flesh'=the voluntary proprium of man vivified by the proprium of the Lord's Divine Human . . . and therefore it=the good of love to the Lord and towards the neighbour; but with those of the Spiritual Church, it =the good of truth . . .

7090^o. On account of the flesh in which man is, which is infirm . . .

7729^o. See FAT-pingue.

7850. 'They shall eat the flesh' (Ex.xii.9)=the enjoyment of good. . . 'Flesh'=the proprium of man vivified by the Lord's Divine Human, thus all the celestial and spiritual good with man . . .

8004. 'Thou shalt not carry forth aught of the flesh abroad out of the house' (ver.46)=that this good shall not be commingled with the good of another. Ex.

8395. The lack of bread and flesh=the lack of good. Tr.

8408. 'When we sat by the flesh-pot' (Ex.xvi.3)=a life according to their own pleasure, or as they desired. . . 'Flesh'=the celestial proprium, thus good; and in the opposite sense, the proprium of man, thus evil. Ill.

8409. 'Flesh'=the proprium in both senses; in the supreme sense, the Divine proprium of the Lord, which is His Divine Human, thus the good of His love towards the universal human race; and therefore in a sense relatively to man 'flesh'=the proprium vivified by the Lord's proprium, that is, the proprium of the Lord with man, thus the good of love to Him; but in the opposite sense 'flesh'=the proprium of man, thus the evil of the love of self, consequently, the cupidities or concupiscences of this love. Refs. and III.

—². 'The horses of Egypt are flesh, and not spirit' (Is.xxxi.3); 'flesh'=what is dead; 'spirit,' what is alive. Hence the sons of Egypt are called 'great in flesh' (Ezek.xvi.26). What is dead is so called from evil. . .

—³. Hence 'flesh' and 'spirit,' in the Word, are opposed to each other. III.

—⁴. They who are being regenerated are all vivified from the proprium of the Lord, which is 'His flesh and blood,' and is the Divine good itself.

—⁵. As 'flesh,' in the opposite sense=the proprium of man, thus evil, it also=concupiscence; for the life of the flesh, which is proper to the body, is nothing but the pleasure of the senses, the delight of the appetites, and concupiscence. (As in Num.xi.).

8431. 'In Jehovah's giving you in the evening flesh to eat' (Ex.xvi.8)=that at the end of the state good will be appropriated through delight. . . 'Flesh'=the vivified proprium, or the celestial proprium which man has from the Lord, thus the good of love (Refs.); but here, the good of faith, because it was the flesh of a bird. . . here, the good of the natural man, or delight. 8452. Ex.

8682. When the sacrifices took place, they ate the flesh of them near the altar. The reason the flesh of the sacrifices was eaten, was that the appropriation of celestial good might be represented, and also consociation through love; for the flesh of the sacrifice which they were then eating=the good of love; and therefore that was a holy feast. Hence it is evident what the Lord meant, when He said that they should eat His flesh. . .

9003^e. Hence it is evident what is meant by the Lord's 'flesh and blood' (John vi.); and by these words there, 'My flesh is truly meat, and My blood is truly drink.' That 'flesh,' in the Word,=the good of love; and 'blood,' the good of faith. Refs.

9068. ('The stoned ox's) flesh shall not be eaten' (Ex.xxi.28)=that evil is in no wise to be appropriated, but is to be cast out. . . 'Flesh'=the good of celestial love; and in the opposite sense, the evil of the love of self. Refs.

9127^e. The spiritual life is described in the Word by . . . the flesh and blood; and as this life exists through the good of charity and the truth of faith, the good of charity is meant by 'flesh,' and the truth of faith by 'blood'. . . and in a still more interior sense, the good of love to the Lord is meant by 'flesh,' and the good of love towards the neighbour by 'blood;' but in the supreme sense. . . 'flesh'=the Lord's Divine good, thus the Lord Himself as to Divine good; and 'blood'=the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord, thus the Lord as to Divine truth. These things are understood in Heaven by 'flesh' and 'blood' when man is reading the Word. . . Ex.

—⁴. That the Lord's 'flesh'=the Divine good of His Divine love; and His 'blood,' the Divine truth proceeding from His Divine good, may be evident from the fact, that these are what nourish the spiritual life of man. Hence it is said, 'My flesh is truly meat, and My blood is truly drink;' and also that 'this is the bread which came down from Heaven' (John vi.58). And as man is conjoined with the Lord by means of love and faith, it is also said, 'he that eateth My flesh, and drinketh My blood, abideth in Me, and I in him.'

9230. See FIELD.

9258^e. The pulp of fruit rots and serves the germ for ground. . . The pulp of the fruit round the seed corresponds to external things.

9315^e. (Thus) the Lord from eternity was Jehovah. . . in a human form, but not yet in the flesh, for an Angel has not flesh; and as Jehovah willed to put on the entire Human. . . He assumed the flesh; and therefore it is said. . . 'The Word was made flesh'. . . 'A Spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see Me have'. . .

9377. A humble heart. . . is called in the Word fleshy. . .

9393^e. See BREAD.

9634^e. The beams or boards of the tabernacle correspond to the muscular or fleshy part in man, which supports the encompassing membranes and skins; by 'flesh' is also signified good.

9818¹¹. 'Flesh'=the proprium of man, in which there is nothing of spiritual life. Refs. and III.

9960. 'To cover the flesh of nakedness' (Ex.xxviii.42) =lest the interiors of love appear, which are filthy and infernal. Ex.

10033^e. The reason the Lord. . . called the Divine good proceeding from Him His 'flesh,' and the Divine truth proceeding from His Divine good His 'blood'. . .

10035. 'The flesh of the bullock' (Ex.xxix.14)=the evil of the former loves there. 'Flesh'=the good of love, and in the opposite sense the evil of love. . . The reason 'the flesh of the bullock' here=the evil of the former loves in the external man, is that by 'flesh' is signified the Voluntary of man, thus his proprium. . . and therefore by 'flesh' is signified the good of love, or the evil of love. Ex.

—². When this new will is meant by 'flesh,' then 'flesh'=the good of love.

10040. They were allowed to eat the flesh of the sacrifice, because by it was signified the proprium of man; and the proprium of that nation was to worship external things as holy, and to make no account at all of internal things. . . Moreover, the flesh was representatively nothing else, when its blood represented Divine truth, and its fat Divine good; for then the flesh represented something devoid of life and soul. . . such as is an external devoid of an internal, according to these words: 'Thou shalt not eat the blood, because the blood is the soul; thou shalt not eat the soul with the flesh' (Deut.xii.23).

10044^e. That the ultimate=the whole, is evident from many things in the Word; as that the whole man is called 'flesh,' III.

10079^e. The flesh of the sacrifice and burnt-offering specifically = spiritual good ; whereas the bread of the meat-offering = celestial good ; therefore both were offered.

[A.] 10105. 'Thou shalt boil the flesh in a holy place' (Ex.xxix.31)=the preparation of good for the uses of life by means of truths of doctrine in enlightenment from the Lord . . . 'Flesh'=good . . . and the flesh is thus prepared for the use of the body.

10106. 'And Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram' (ver.32)=the appropriation of spiritual good with those who are in internal things from the Lord. . . 'The flesh of the ram'=the good of the internal man, or good in internals ; 'flesh'=good.

10114. 'If aught of the flesh of fillings, or of the bread, be left until the morning' (ver.34)=the spiritual and celestial goods which are not conjoined with the new state . . . 'The flesh of fillings'=the reception of good in truth, thus their conjunction ; here, no reception or conjunction. . . For by the flesh of the sacrifice is signified spiritual good, which is the good of charity towards the neighbour ; and by the bread of it, celestial good . . .

10161. In (the Second Earth) they do not eat the flesh of animals, but only the flesh of fishes.

10236². By the Sensuous which is the ultimate of the Natural is properly meant that which is called the flesh . . .

10283. 'On the flesh of man (the holy oil) shall not be poured' (Ex.xxx.32)=that (the Divine good is) not communicative with the proprium of man.

—². It is the voluntary proprium which is signified by the flesh of man, and the intellectual proprium by the blood of that flesh. Ill. E.329¹⁵.

—⁵. 'Cursed is the man who . . . maketh flesh his arm' (Jer.xvii.5)=to trust in . . . his own proprium.

—⁶. —⁷.

—⁹. Hence those are called 'great in flesh' who, from sensuous things, reason and conclude concerning the truths of the Church . . . for they think from the corporeal proprium.

—¹⁰. The horses of Egypt are said to be 'flesh and not spirit' when men form conclusions from proprium, and not from the Divine. Life 30².

—¹¹. That 'flesh'=the proprium of man, or, what is the same, his voluntary evil, is evident from (Num.xi.) 'The flesh'=the proprium of that nation ; otherwise what evil could there have been in desiring flesh, seeing that it had before been promised them (Ex.xvi.12) . . . Voluntary evil is the same as concupiscence. Ex. As that nation was such, it was said that they should eat flesh . . . for a month . . . which = for ever . . .

—¹³. 'Spirit' is opposed to 'flesh,' because 'spirit'=life from the Lord, and 'flesh' life from man. Ill. . . Hence it is said 'the flesh profiteth nothing.'

—¹⁴. As 'flesh,' when predicated of man, =the proprium, which is the evil of the love of self and of the world, it is evident what is signified by 'flesh' when predicated of the Lord, namely, His proprium, which is the Divine good of the Divine love. Ill.

—^e. As the sacrifices represented goods from the Lord, their flesh=goods. Refs.

10521. The body or flesh of the Lord=the good of love . . . and the blood of the Lord=the good of faith . . . N.212. L.27.

10754^e. Their faces were of a human fleshy colour.

S. 98. To be 'made flesh' (John i.14)=to be made the Word in ultimates. W.221².

R. 574². 'Much flesh' (Dan.vii.5)=the sense of the letter of the Word wholly.

640. They who crucify the flesh . . .

748. 'And shall devour her flesh' (Rev.xvii.16)=to condemn from hatred and to destroy in themselves the things proper to that religiosity, which are evils and falsities. E.1082.

—². For 'flesh'=the things proper to anyone, which have relation to goods and truths, and in the opposite sense to evils and falsities. Ill.

—³. As 'flesh'=the proprium of man, and they who hate another assail the things which are proper to him with the purpose of destroying them, this is signified by 'eating flesh.' Ill.

—^e. Besides, 'all flesh' is spoken of in the Word, and thereby is signified every man. Ill.

832². 'As 'flesh'=the good of the Church, and 'blood' the truth of the Church, it is evident that the Lord's 'flesh and blood' in the Holy Supper=Divine good and truth from the Lord, similarly as by the 'bread and wine.'

837. 'All the birds were filled with their flesh' (Rev.xix.21)=that the infernal Genii are as it were nourished from their concupiscences of evil, which are proper to them.

M. 44⁵. Not at the same time of the flesh beneath the heart. (See CHASTE, here.)

156a. By 'one flesh' is signified one man. Ill. Gen. art. D.6110⁶³, Ex.

178. That they who are in love truly conjugal feel themselves to be . . . as it were one flesh. Ex.

312^e. If marriage love commences from the ardour of the flesh, it becomes external and not internal, thus not conjugal . . .

440. That the delights of scortatory love commence from the flesh, and are of the flesh even in the spirit ; but the delights of marriage love commence in the spirit, and are of the spirit even in the flesh. Ex.

T. 367⁵. The separation of charity and faith coincides with the separation of the blood and the flesh ; for the blood separated from the flesh becomes gore, and the flesh separated from the blood grows putrid and breeds worms. Moreover, blood=the truth of wisdom and of faith, and flesh the good of love and of charity.

381. Because he is a carnal man . . .

582^e. What is then the life after death . . . but a carnal life . . .

702. From an acquaintance with correspondences it is known . . . that by the Lord's flesh and by the bread is meant the Divine good of His love, and also all the good of charity ; and that by the Lord's blood and by the wine is meant the Divine truth of His Divine wisdom, and also all the truth of faith ; and that by eating is meant appropriation. Gen.art.

704. 'Flesh and blood' in these passages mean the passion of the cross, which they were to keep in remembrance. Ex.

D. 3345. I saw a sphere as of mere human flesh (representing truly human affection).

3993. (Pieces of black human flesh seen in a kitchen.)

5464³. From him in whom they see human flesh—carneum—the (evil Spirits) withdraw.

5575. The celestial in general correspond to . . . the flesh, etc. in the Grand Man.

5576. But Genii are contrary to the flesh and heart; thus most of them become as it were bones, or flesh that is becoming ossified and cartilaginous . . .

E. 30^e. Most people . . . when they approach the Holy Supper, think nothing about flesh and blood . . .

295^e. 'Not from the will of the flesh' = those who are not in the love of evil. (= all the evils of love. 329³⁰). (= those who are not in cupidities from the love of self. 802^o.)

388³⁰. The 'flesh' which they should eat (Ezek. xxxix.) = the good of love.

391¹¹. 'My heart and my flesh shout joyfully towards the living God' (Ps. lxxxiv. 2) = worship from the delight of the good of love.

455⁸. 'Their flesh consuming away' (Zech. xiv. 12) = all the good of love and of life about to perish.

475⁴. 'To wash the flesh' (Lev. xvi. 4, 24) = to purify the spiritual man.

—¹⁸. 'The flesh restored' (to Naaman) (2 Kings v. 10) = spiritual life, such as exists with those who are being regenerated by means of Divine truths.

507⁴. 'All flesh' = every man.

513¹⁹. 'Flesh and bones' = the ultimates of man.

555¹⁴. That both (good and truth) shall become one good, is signified by 'they shall be one flesh'; 'flesh' = good, and it also = man.

556⁵. 'Devour much flesh' = that they applied many things, and thereby destroyed the genuine sense of the Word. (= the destruction of good through falsities; also the appropriation of evil. E. 781¹³.)

584⁴. 'Flesh' = the will, and its good or evil.

617²⁰. The Divine good proceeding is meant by the flesh and by the bread, and the Divine truth proceeding by the blood and by the wine. In like manner as in the sacrifices, in which the flesh and the meat-offering, which was of bread, = the good of love, and the blood and the wine, which was the drink-offering, = truth from that good, both from the Lord. As by the flesh and the bread is signified the Divine good proceeding, and by the blood and the wine the Divine truth proceeding, therefore by the flesh and the bread is meant the Lord Himself as to Divine good, and by the blood and the wine the Lord Himself as to Divine truth . . .

—²⁴. That to eat flesh and drink blood = the appropriation of spiritual good and truth. Ill.

—²⁵. 'To eat flesh and drink wine' (Is. xxii. 13) = to appropriate to themselves evil and falsity.

—²⁶. 'A man shall eat the flesh of his own arm'

= that falsity will consume good, and evil truth, in the natural man.

619¹⁵. The Lord disclosed to the disciples that He had . . . made Divine the whole of His Human even to its Natural and Sensuous, which is signified by the hands and feet, and by the flesh and bones, which they saw and felt; by the hands and feet is signified the ultimate of man which is called the Natural, by flesh its good and by bones its truths; for all things in the human body correspond to spiritual things; the flesh to the good of the natural man, and the bones to its truths.

637¹⁸. The loins and the flesh = the good of the Church.

654¹². 'Flesh' = man's proprium. —⁷¹.

710²⁶. That the man's understanding . . . will be conjoined with the corresponding affection of the wife, whence the two become one affection of truth and good, is meant by the 'one flesh' in which the two will be; for 'flesh' = the good which is of love or of affection . . .

750⁸. 'From the soul even to the flesh' (Is. x. 18) = even to its understanding and to its will; 'soul' = the understanding of truth, and 'flesh' = the will of good.

—¹⁵. The flesh of the quails = natural nourishment.

811¹⁴. 'My sword shall devour flesh' (Deut. xxxii. 42) = that falsities will destroy all things of good.

1004¹. Married partners there who are able to be one flesh. Des.

1069^e. 'Flesh' (John i. 14) = the Divine Human.

1082². 'Flesh,' in the Word, has various significations; it = the proprium of man, thus either its good or its evil, and from this it = the whole man; but in the supreme sense it = the Lord's Divine Human, specifically, the Divine good of the Divine love proceeding from Him. Ill.

—³. Divine good from the Lord was also signified by the flesh of the sacrifices, which they ate . . . Ill.

—⁴. That 'flesh' also = the good with man. Ill.

—⁶. That 'flesh,' on the other hand, = the voluntary proprium of man, which, regarded in itself, is evil. Ill.

1087^e. The flesh and bones are the ultimates of the human body on which its strength depends.

Ath. 112^e. Hence the Lord said that He has flesh and bones.

Flexible. Flexilis, Flexibilis.

A. 3469⁴. Pliant to evils . . .

9192⁷. These falsities are soft and flexible.

D. 808^e. In the life of the body such are easy, fickle.

Flight. Fuga.

Flight, To put to. Fugare, Profugare.

A. 34^e. The 'flight' (Mark xiii. 18) = the last time; also that of every man when he dies.

1835. That the Lord put to flight evils and falsities. Sig.

—². The Lord continually, so far as possible, puts evils and falsities to flight, but by means of conscience.

3755². 'Pray ye that your flight be not in the winter, nor on a Sabbath' (Matt. xxiv. 20) = removal from (the good of love and from the good of innocence), lest this should take place precipitately in a state of too much cold, or in a state of too much heat: 'flight'=a removal from a state of the good of love and of innocence: 'flight in the winter'=removal from them in a state of too much cold—there is cold when there is aversion for these things, which is induced by the loves of self; 'flight on a sabbath'=removal from them in a state of too much heat; 'heat'=a holy external when there is the love of self and of the world within.

[A.] S304. Power in the spiritual sense is to put to flight . . . the infernal crew, which is done solely by means of truths. (Compare 364^e.)

9330. The flight and damnation of falsities. Sig.

9332. The flight of falsities from evils. Sig. 'To drive out'=to put to flight, thus flight.

9333. No hurried flight or removal of the falsities and evils which are signified by the nations in the Land of Canaan. Sig.

10219^g. See ENEMY—hostis.

Flight, To put to. Profligare, Profligatio.
T.117². 323. E.S17¹³.

Flint. Silex.

See ROCK—saxum.

A. 2184². 'Oil out of the flint of rock' (Deut.xxxii.13).

7324². 'The flint into a fountain of waters' (Ps.cxiv.8).

E. 405¹⁴. 'The rock'=the natural man as to truth before regeneration; 'the flint' (Ps.civ.8)=the natural man as to good before regeneration.

Flit. Volitare. See under FLY.

A. 6724². Infernal Spirits flit around him . . .

M. 29². He would either flit about in the universe . . .

D. 4281. There were a great many souls flitting about . . .

5950. They seem to themselves to flit about in the air.

Float. Fluitare.

See under SWIM.

D. 3685. They suppose that Spirits thus float in the universe.

Flock. Grex.

See CATTLE.

A. 343. They who are being led and taught are called the flock. . . But they who are not being led to good, and who are not learning good, are not the flock. II.

—^e. They who lead the flock to the good of charity, are they who 'gather' the flock; but they who do not lead to the good of charity, are they who scatter it.

352. 'The firstlings of the flock' (Gen.iv.4)=that which is of the Lord alone.

415. The shepherd of the flock=the good of charity; but here shepherd is not mentioned, but 'father'; neither is flock mentioned, but 'cattle—pecoris.'

1486. '(Abram) had flock and herd . . .' (Gen.xii.16)

=all things in general which pertain to scientifics. . . 'The flock and herd'=the possessions.

1550. 'Cattle' and 'flock'=good.

1564. '(Lot) had flock and herd and tents' (Gen.xiii.5)=the things with which the external man abounds; (thus) the possessions of the external man. . . 'Flock, herd, and tents,' here,=those things which cannot agree.

1565. The reason 'flock and herd'=the possessions of the external man, may be evident from the signification of 'flock and herd,' which is goods; but here, the things which are to be separated, thus non-goods. III.

2180². The sacrifices from the herd=celestial natural things, and those from the flock, celestial rational things.

2184³. 'Milk of the flock' (Deut.xxxii.14)=the Celestial Spiritual of the Rational.

2566. '(Abimelech took) flock and herd' (Gen.xx.14) =that (the doctrine of faith) was enriched with rational goods and natural goods. Those within the Church who are truly rational, that is, who are internal men, are called the flock: hence it is that by 'a flock' is also signified in the abstract rational or internal goods themselves. But those within the Church are called the herd who are natural, that is, external men; and hence by 'a herd' is also signified in the abstract, natural or external goods themselves. Refs.

2567¹⁰. 'The flock' of which he will take the tenth (1 Sam.viii.17)=the remains of good to which he will do violence.

2720⁶. 'Abraham took flock and herd, and gave to Abimelech' (Gen.xxi.27)=Divine goods implanted in the rational things of doctrine.

2830⁶. 'The flock of Kedar' (Is.lx.7)=Divine celestial things.

3154². '(Jehovah) hath given him flock and herd' (Gen.xxiv.35)=goods in general.

3268². 'The flock of Kedar'=spiritual good. That 'a flock'=spiritual good. Refs.

—⁵. 'Tents and flocks' (Jer.xlix.29)=the goods of the Spiritual Church. . . It is the holy things of worship which are signified by 'tents and flocks . . .'

3408. '(Isaac) had possession of flock and possession of herd' (Gen.xxvi.14)=as to interior good and as to exterior good, that is, as to rational good and as to natural good.

3518. 'Go I pray to the flock' (Gen.xxvii.9)=domestic natural good, not conjoined with the Divine Rational. 'Flock'=good, here, natural good, because Jacob is addressed, in fact domestic good, because it was at home. . . Otherwise, 'flock,' in the Word, is predicated of the good of the Rational, but then 'herd' is predicated of the good of the Natural.

3762¹. 'Flocks'=the goods of charity. Refs.

3767. 'Three droves of a flock lying near it' (Gen.xxix.2)=the holy things of the Church and of doctrinal things. . . Specifically, 'a flock'=those who are within the Church, and who learn and imbue the goods of charity and the truths of faith. . . But, in general, 'a flock'=all those who are in good, thus those who belong to the Lord's Church in the whole earth; and as all these are introduced into good and truth by means of doctrinal things, 'a flock' also=doctrinal things. Ex.

3772. 'They watered the flock' (ver.3)=doctrine. . . For 'a flock'=those who are in the goods and truths of faith.

3783. '(Rachel) cometh with the flock' (ver.6)=interior doctrinal things. 'A flock'=the Church, and also doctrinal things; here, interior doctrinal things, because predicated of Rachel. . . 3793. 3797.

3903. The fructification and multiplication of truth and good is signified by the flock which Jacob acquired by means of the flock of Laban. 3971². 3987.

3972^e. This (collateral) good is signified by the flock of Laban, by means of which Jacob acquired his flock. 3982².

3991. 'I will return, I will feed, I will keep thy flock' (Gen.xxx.31)=that the good represented by Laban was to be applied to use, namely, to that of introducing genuine goods and truths; for the 'flock,' here that of Laban, =the good represented by him.

3992. 'I will pass through all thy flock to-day' (ver. 32)=that he perceives every good as to its quality; 'flock'=good.

3993⁴. It now treats of this fructification of good and the multiplication of truth. . . signified by the flock which Jacob acquired by means of the flock of Laban. 'Flock,' here, =good and truth, as is frequently the case in the Word; the flock of Laban, the good which is represented by Laban. . . the flock of Jacob, genuine good and truth, which is procured by means of the former.

4005². 'A flock,' in the Word, =good and truth, or, what is the same, those who are in good and truth, thus who belong to the Lord's Church.

4011. 'Jacob fed the rest of Laban's flocks' (ver.36) =that from those which were left he took those goods and truths which were to be conjoined. 'Flocks'=goods and truths.

4018. 'Over against the flocks' (ver.38)=that truths and goods might be conjoined with the Natural.

4019. 'And the flocks grew warm at the rods' (ver. 39)=the effect of affection from their Own power. 4029.

4036. '(Jacob) had many flocks' (ver.43)=the interior goods and truths thence derived.

4073. 'To send to them and call the field to his flock' (Gen.xxxi.4)=to adjoin to himself; 'field'= . . . where good is; and 'the flock,' the goods and truths themselves which are now acquired, to which the affections of truth meant by Rachel and Leah were applied. . .

4110. 'Laban had gone to shear his flock' (Gen.xxxi. 19)=the state of use and the end of the good signified by the flock of Laban.

4178. 'Six years in thy flock' (ver.41)=that afterwards he might acquire good.

4185. 'The flock is my flock' (ver.43)=that all. . . the goods were his.

4244. 'Flock' (Gen.xxxii.5)=interior natural good.

4250. 'Flock' (ver.7)=interior goods, and also non-goods.

4378. 'The flocks and herds giving suck with me' (Gen.xxxii.13)=interior goods and natural goods which have not as yet acquired Divine life.

4505. 'Their flocks and their herds' (Gen.xxxiv.28)=that they destroyed rational good and natural good.

4713. 'And the peace of the flock' (Gen.xxxvii.14)=how the case was with those who were learning, that is, the Church.

4853. 'He went up to the shearers of his flock' (Gen. xxxviii.12)=somewhat of elevation to consult for the Church.

4926². 'Flocks' and 'oxen' (Ps.cxliv.13,14)=goods internal and external.

5201². 'Flock' (Jer.xxiii.1,2)=those who are being instructed.

5913. 'And thy flocks, and thy herds' (Gen.xlv.10)=natural good interior and exterior. . . The reason 'herd' =exterior good, and 'flocks' interior, is that the beasts which constituted a herd, as oxen and bullocks, in the sacrifices signified the external goods of charity, and also the goods of the external man; whereas those which constituted the flocks, as lambs, sheep, goats—caprae—, signified the internal goods of charity, and also the goods of the internal man; and therefore they who are in these latter goods are called in the Word 'a flock,' and he who leads them 'a shepherd,' 6044. 6046. 8937, Ex.

6048. That they correspond is evident from the fact that when from heavenly affection the Angels are talking together about the goods of charity, there appear. . . flocks and herds; flocks when they are talking about the interior goods of charity, and herds when about the exterior ones.

6065. 'Their flocks and their herds' (Gen.xlvii.1)=the interior and the exterior goods of truth. Ex.

6126. 'For the cattle of the flock, and for the cattle of the herd' (ver.17)=the interior and the exterior goods of truth.

6390^e. 'To hear the hissings of the flocks' (Judg.v.16) =contempt from those who are in the good of charity.

6530. 'And their flocks' (Gen.l.8)=charity; (for) 'flocks'=the interior good of charity.

6777^e. 'To water the flocks'=to instruct from the Word in good.

6778. 'A flock'=those who learn and who are led to the good of charity. Refs.

6781. '(Moses) watered their flock' (Ex.ii.17)=that those who were in good were instructed thence. . . 'A flock'=those who learn and are led to the good of charity; thus those who are in good.

6786. 'He watered the flock' (ver.19)=those who are of the Church there. 'A flock'=those who are in good and who suffer themselves to be instructed; here, those who were of the Church there. . . 'A flock'=both good and the Church, that is, those who are in good and those who are of the Church, for these things are so joined together that the one cannot be separated from the other . . .

[A.] 6827. 'Moses was feeding the flock of Jethro . . .' (Ex.iii.1)=that the law from the Divine was instructing those who were in the truth of simple good.

—². 'A flock'=one who learns and is led by means of truth to the good of charity; thus in the general sense 'a flock'=the Church, here the Church where were those who were in the truth of simple good. 6828.

7504. 'Upon the herd and upon the flock' (Ex.ix.3)=the voluntary things; 'the herd'=the good of the exterior Natural; and 'the flock'=the good of the interior Natural; thus they=what is voluntary.

7663. 'With our flock and with our herd will we go' (Ex.x.9)=those who are in interior good and in exterior good.

7723. 'Only your flock and your herd shall stay' (ver. 24)=that they shall not worship the Lord from good; 'a flock'=interior good, and 'a herd' exterior good.

7960. 'Also take your flocks and your herds' (Ex.xii. 32)=the interior and the exterior goods of charity.

7977. 'Flock and herd, very much acquisition' (ver. 38)=the good acquired by means of truth, interior and exterior, in great abundance.

8937. 'Thy flocks and thy herds' (Ex.xx.24)=goods internal and external. Ex.

— (The animals of the flock and of the herd respectively, enumerated.) 9391.

9135. See CATTLE—pecus, pecudis.

9225. 'Flock'=interior good.

9276. The beasts of the flock=affections of internal truth and good; and the beasts of the herd, affections of external truth and good. 9391.

10042⁹. 'The flocks of Arabia' (Is.lx.7)=all the goods of the external man. . . 'Flocks'=the goods of the internal man; and 'Arabia,' where the good is.

—¹⁰. See CATTLE—pecus, pecoris.

10609. 'Also the flock and the herd shall not feed over against this mountain' (Ex.xxxiv. 3)=that neither could they be instructed concerning the interior and the exterior good of the Church, of worship, and of the Word.

—³. That 'flock and herd'=the interior and the exterior good with man. III.

R. 417. There appeared in the Spiritual World two flocks, one of goats and the other of sheep. . . T.506.

—⁴. The Angel divided the sheep into two flocks. . .

—⁹. Ministers of God, seduce not the flock. (Then) the greater part of the flock on the left hand . . . joined the flock on the right.

E. 279. The animals of the herd=the affections of good and truth in the external or natural man; and those of the flock, the affections of good and truth in the internal or spiritual man. Enum.

280⁹. 'The flock of man with which the waste cities shall be full' (Ezek.xxxvi.38)=spiritual truths with which the doctrine of the Church will be full.

314². 'The flock which He shall feed as a shepherd' (Is.xl.11)=those who are in the good of charity.

336⁷. 'Flocks'=interior goods and truths, which are called spiritual. Refs.

374³. 'Sons of the flock'=spiritual truths; and 'sons of the herd,' natural truths.

403¹³. 'Which shall eat up thy flock and thy herd' (Jer.v.17)=truths and goods internal and external.

453⁹. 'Flocks'=interior goods and truths . . . which are spiritual; 'herds,' exterior goods and truths, which are natural. Enum. 513⁹. 650⁶, Enum. 724⁷. 911¹⁴. 1100⁴.

727⁶. 'The flock of thine heritage' (Micah vii.14)=those of the Church who are in the spiritual things of the Word, which are the truths of its internal sense.

730²³. 'Flock' (Ps.lxv.13)=spiritual truth.

863⁸. 'The shepherd and his flock' (Jer.li.23)=those who teach and those who learn.

Flood. See under RIVER—flumen and fluvius.

Flood. Diluvium.

See ANTE-DILUVIAN, ARK (of Noah), INUNDATE, NEPHILIM, and WATER.

A. 200⁶. Such a change took place after the Flood.

271. The end of the days of the Church was the time of the Flood.

307. It here treats of the sixth and the seventh posterity, which perished by the Flood . . .

311. The state of those in the other life who perished by the Flood. Des. . . Because they would be such in the other life . . . they all became extinct.

563. They became extinct of themselves, and were suffocated as with an inundation not unlike a Flood; and therefore their extinction is compared to a Flood, and . . . is also described by the Flood.

581⁶. They who lived before the Flood were of such a nature and genius . . .

606. The Flood, the ark, and the things described in relation to them, signify regeneration, and also the temptations which precede it.

660. 'The Flood'=an inundation of evil and falsity . . . (For) when the way for remains is closed, the man . . . can no longer be protected by the Angels, but is wholly possessed by evil Spirits . . . Hence the death of the antediluvians, which is described by a Flood, or total inundation. The influx of phantasies and cupidities from evil Spirits is moreover not unlike a kind of flood, and therefore in the Word passim it is called 'a flood' or 'inundation.'

662. No Flood is here meant, still less a universal Flood, but the expiring or suffocation of those who were there, when separated from remains . . . and thus from the Heavens.

705⁶. The reason that both temptations and desolations are compared in the Word to floods or inundations of waters, and are so called, is that they are similarly circumstanced. It is evil Spirits who flow in with the persuasions and principles of falsity in which they are, and excite the like things with man; but with the man who is being regenerated they are temptations, and with the man who is not being regenerated they are desolations.

739. 'The Flood of waters' (Gen.vii.6)=the beginning of temptation, because it here treats of temptation as to intellectual things, which temptation precedes, and is light . . . It is therefore called 'a Flood of waters,' and not simply 'a Flood.'

—². That 'a Flood of waters,' or 'an inundation' = temptation. III.

—³. (Thus) it is evident that 'a Flood' or 'inundation of waters' = nothing else than temptations and vastations.

787. 'The Flood' (ver.17)=the falsities which still inundated the Church; for there is no Flood or inundation except that of falsities. Above, 'a Flood of waters' =temptation, which is also an inundation of falsities which are excited by the evil Spirits then with the man. It has a like signification here, but without temptation, and therefore it is here called simply 'a Flood,' and not 'a Flood of waters.'

842⁵. Similar things are represented by the waters of the Red Sea to those here signified by the waters of the Flood . . . And by the Red Sea, as by the Flood, is signified damnation and also temptation.

876. In his state before regeneration, he was . . . beset on all sides by evils and falsities, or by the waters of the Flood.

893⁶. A year, as here applied to the Flood, does not signify any year, but a time not determined by certain years, and at the same time the state.

973. It then treats of the state of man after the Flood . . .

1034. 'All flesh shall not any more be cut off by the waters of a Flood' (Gen.ix.11) = that they will not perish like the last posterity of the Most Ancient Church. Ex.

1035. 'And there shall not be any more a Flood to destroy the earth' (id.) = that so deadly and suffocative a persuasion shall not come into existence any more. 1051.

1120. At last, in the last posterity of the Most Ancient Church, which existed just before the Flood, hardly anything of internal breathing remained; and when at last there was none at all in the breast, they were suffocated of their own accord; but in some external breathing then commenced . . .

1148. 'After the Flood' (Gen.x.1)=from the time in which this new Church came into existence. . . For the end of the Most Ancient Church is described by the Flood, and also the beginning of the Ancient Church . . . 1257. 1263.

1335. 'Two years after the Flood' (Gen.xi.10)=the second postdiluvian Church.

1850². The Flood itself was the last judgment of the Most Ancient Church . . . 2118. J.46².

2243³. Then was the consummation of the Most Ancient Church, which is described by their state before the Flood.

2910³. The Most Ancient Church thus expired about the time of the Flood.

4057. The consummation of the first Church is described by the Flood. P.328⁴. T.760.

4333. This last judgment happened for the first time when the . . . Church which was most ancient perished in the antediluvians through an inundation of evils and falsities, which, in the internal sense, is the Flood.

4334⁴. 'As they were in the days before the Flood' (Matt.xxiv.38)=the state of vastation of those who were of the Church, which is compared to the state of vastation of the Most Ancient Church, the consummation of the age or last judgment of which is described in the Word by the Flood. That by the Flood is signified an inundation of evils and falsities, and the consequent consummation of that age. Refs.

—⁶. 'And knew not until the Flood came, and took them all away' = that the men of the Church will not know that they are inundated with evils and falsities, because in consequence of the evils and falsities in which they are they will be ignorant of what the good of love to the Lord and the good of charity towards the neighbour are, and also of what the truth of faith is . . .

5725⁵. I was thus instructed what is signified by the Flood in the Word, namely, that the last posterity of the most ancients . . . were entirely inundated by evils and falsities, and thus perished.

J. 26. Spoken with some who lived before the Flood, P.324⁴.

46. One of the two previous last judgments is described by the Flood.

61⁹. (The Babylonians) who were in the plains were inundated as with a flood. D.529S.

C. J. 29. Some (of the Reformed) were inundated as with a flood.

D. 2346. On the signification of the rainbow after the Flood.

2712⁶. As with those who at last perished in the Flood.

3370. Such before the Flood perished in this way.

3373. (Thus) immediately before the Flood almost the entire interior man was destroyed.

3376. After the Flood man was as they were inverted. Ex.

3415. (On the literal occurrence of the Flood and the ark.)

3583². Therefore some will have it that this is what is meant by the Flood, namely, that they were suffocated one after another; for this Persuasive is of such a nature that it suffocates others, and thus takes away their breathing . . .

4454. There is a Flood by which the modern nephilim perish . . .

E. 304⁶. That 'an inundation,' and 'a flood' = immersion in evils and falsities, and the consequent destruction of the Church. Refs.

419⁹. 'The Flood' = the end of that Church, and the last judgment, which took place when everything of the Church had become extinct.

[E.] 595^c. The Flood by which the human race was then destroyed=direful falsities of evil, by which the posterity of the Most Ancient Church perished. 644^e.

633⁴. The Flood=the devastation of the Old Church, that is, the Most Ancient Church; and also the Last Judgment upon those who had been of that Church. 650²⁰. Ath. 49. De Verbo 14⁵. Coro. 34.

Floor. See GROUND—solum.

Flour, Meal. Farina.

See FINE FLOUR.

A. 1510². As it were grinding flour.

2177. 'The farina of fine flour' (Gen. xviii. 6) = the Spiritual and the Celestial then with the Lord. —⁷. 2183.

—⁷. Farina = the Spiritual of love.

3316⁴. The 'meal' which Elisha cast into the pot (2 Kings iv. 41) = the truth which is from good, or the Spiritual which is from the Celestial. Thus it signified that the mass was amended by means of spiritual truth from the Word. 8408^e. 10105³. R. 411^e. E. 618^e.

4335. 'To take the millstone and grind meal' (Is. xlvii. 2) = to hatch doctrinal things from truths which they pervert; for meal, being from wheat or barley, = truths from good; but in the opposite sense, the truths which they pervert in order to seduce.

4844¹². 'The barrel of meal' (1 Kings xvii. 14) = truth from good. (=the good of truth. 9198⁷.)

7780. Corn is ground into flour, and is thus prepared for bread, and by flour is signified the truth from which is good, and by bread the good itself therefrom.

7906³. 'Meal' (Matt. xiii. 33) = the truth from which is good.

7966. Flour and fine flour = truth; the dough, the good of truth; and the bread, the good of love.

9995⁵. 'The bud shall yield no meal' (Hos. viii. 7) = barrenness, because there is no truth from good.

—⁶. 'The meal' (1 Kings xvii. 14) = the truth of the Church; and 'the oil,' its good.

—⁷. 'To grind meal' (Is. xlvii. 2) = to pick out such things from the sense of the letter of the Word as serve to confirm the evils of the loves of self and of the world . . . 'To grind' = to pick out . . . and 'meal' = the truth serving for that. (=truth falsified. 10303^e.)

R. 794. Wheat and barley = celestial and spiritual good, and therefore fine flour and meal = truth from that good . . .

M. 292². The worst of this sort.

T. 77². Besides many other things of a like sort.

347². Faith from truths is like the seed of the produce of the fields, which on being ground yields meal.

E. 240¹⁰. 'To grind meal' = to falsify truths.

245. This means an ointment made from flour and oil; and flour = the truth of faith.

1153⁴. By the meal from barley is signified truth from a natural origin.

Flow. Fluere.

Flux, Flow. Fluxus.

Fluxion. Fluxio.

Flow. Fluor.

Stream. Fluentum.

A. 1759. Their speech is flowing. 1760.

2184⁶. 'A land flowing with . . .' 6857. 8056.

3889. A fluxion into gyres. W. 376.

— . They follow the flux of Heaven.

4041. This is like the flux of the Earth about its axis.

—². I was permitted to see that flux . . . and it thus became evident to me that the brain is formed according to the fluxion of Heaven.

5558. They observe whether it flows freely . . . D. 1209. 1569.

5563². Truths . . . flow as it were freely . . .

5620⁹. 'Flowing with' = abundance. (=to be full. 10530.)

6692². Believes that all things are of blind flux.

7359. Their speech was softish in its flow.

8226. 'To the force of its flow' (Ex. xiv. 27) = according to the common state and order in Hell.

8287. 'The streams stood as a heap' (Ex. xv. 8) = that those who continually attempted evil could not at all infest. . . 'Streams' = falsities from evil.

9014⁵. 'Suffering from a flux' (2 Sam. iii. 29) = the profanation of the good of love.

H. 489⁵. In them there appear as it were flowing forms representative of celestial things.

W. 270^e. The circumgyration follows the flux of the interiors of the mind.

I. 12³. From the fluids—fluoribus—in and between (the fibres).

D. 1057. By fluxions as it were linear and reciprocal.

1889². Speech of ideas without flow—fluore.

2318. Such is the flux of endeavours and forces to their centres.

2438². Thus the evil returns to him by a wonderful . . . flux of determination.

3607. How the thoughts, endeavours, and forces flow, has been shown by the fluxions of the fibres in our bodies.

E. 163⁹. 'He that has an issue' (Lev. xv. 4) = those who are in natural love separated from spiritual.

5187. 'To pour streams upon the dry land' (Is. xlv. 3) = to give intelligence to those who long for truth from good.

1208³. The forms of the animal kingdom . . . are all according to the flux of spiritual substances and forces, which flux, from the endeavour which is in them, is into the human form . . .

—⁵. The second form, which is the natural form, in which are all plants, derives its origin from the endeavour and the derivative flux of natural forces, which belong to the atmosphere . . .

De Verbo 4. The inflections in the letters derive their origin from the flux of Heaven . . .

D. Wis. vi⁸. By means of a wonderful and inexplicable fluxion into gyres, the Angels formed a likeness of the heart and a likeness of the lungs . . . and they then followed the flux of Heaven . . .

Flow down. Defluere.

Flowing down. Defluxus.

H. 263. When the thought flows down.

E. 502². This flowing down . . . —².

1147⁴. A truth from the Word . . . which flowed down to Hell . . . In its flowing down it was successively turned into falsity.

Flow forth. Profluere.

H. 396. All delights flow forth from love . . . The delights of the body all flow forth from the loves of self and of the world . . . whereas the delights of the spirit all flow forth from love to the Lord and towards the neighbour . . .

Flow in. See INFLUX.

Flow through. Transfluere.

Transflux. Transfluxus.

A. 4167. Without conscience . . . the good flowing in from the Lord flows through, like water through a sieve. 5032². 5145⁵. 6368².

6371². The Divine transflux through the Celestial Heaven (then). 6720.

6720^o. The Divine which flows through Heaven is good.

8899. The Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord flows through Heaven . . .

H. 282. By a transflux of innocence from the Lord.

336. That which was from them was as it were transfluxant.

W. 115⁸. If this were not so, the inflowing love and wisdom would . . . flow through and not affect.

E. 802². If they did not do this as from themselves, the Divine influx and operation would flow through . . .

Flow to. Alluere. A.454. 798^o. 842². 940². W.42^o. M.2². T.29². 119². 121². 134. 160². —³. 281. 653^o. 796. 798. 821^o. E.783⁶. 1091. 5M.4.

Flow to. See AFFLUX.

Flow together. Confluere. A.2121. D.2762.

Flower. Flos.

Flower, To. Florere, Florescere, Efflorescere.

Flowering. Florescentia, Efflorescentia.

Floretum, Flower-bed. Floretum.

A. 828. When they have stolen the flower of virginity, they leave them.

— . It is known that it is the first flower of love which leads virgins into chaste marriage love, and conjoins the minds of the partners. D.2705. De Conj.126.

1519. Spheres of charity and faith . . . are perceived as odours of flowers, of lilies . . .

1621². Atmospheres as of variously coloured flowers. 4528².

1629. The dwellings of good and angelic Spirits have . . . long courts . . . the walls of which . . . are decorated with flowers and with garlands of flowers woven together in a wonderful way.

1807². His eye does not remain fixed on any flower . . . but on the things in the other life which they represent.

2296. Little children seen adorned with garlands of flowers resplendent with the most pleasant and celestial colours . . . H.337.

—². The floretum over the entrance brightened most gladsomely as they came in.

3220. When the Angels are discoursing about the things of intelligence and wisdom, and about perceptions and knowledges, the influx thence . . . falls into representations of . . . paradises, vineyards, forests, meadows with flowers . . . which surpass all man's imagination.

3477. The broad way was set with trees and flowers . . . but serpents were hidden in them . . . The narrow way was not so adorned to the sight with trees and flower-beds, but appeared sad and dull ; yet there were infant Angels in it . . . in paradises and most delightful flower-beds, which, however, the Spirits did not see.

3942. With the ancients . . . all fruits and flowers were significative.

4301². As the eye is affected with flowers . . .

4528. The Societies in paradisaical things . . . see gardens with trees and flowers of so many genera and species, that those in the universal Earth are comparatively few . . .

4529. A (botanist) saw there most beautiful plantations and most delightful flower-beds of immense extent . . . He strolled through the plain, and not only looked at them one by one, but also gathered them and held them close to his eye . . . He declared that flowers of plants are to be seen there in vast abundance, such as are never seen in the world, and are scarcely comprehensible here with any perception ; and that each one sparkles with an incomprehensible resplendence, because they are from the light of Heaven. He could not as yet perceive that the sparkling was from a spiritual origin, and that it was because there is in each one something of intelligence and wisdom . . .

4676. Into the flower-florida-of youth.

5115. 'To bud,' that is, to produce leaves and afterwards the flower, = the first of the re-birth.

—². The man who is being re-born . . . as a tree, produces leaves, then the flower, and finally the fruit ; for he produces such things as are of intelligence, signified in the Word by leaves ; then such things as are of wisdom, which are signified by flowers ; and finally such things as are of life, namely, the goods of love and charity in act, which in the Word are signified by fruits.

5116. 'And the flower thereof went up' (Gen.xl.10) = the state near regeneration. (For) the flower which buds out from the tree before the fruit—the state before regeneration. . . The leafy verdure represents the first state; the efflorescence the second, or the one immediately before regeneration; and the fructification the third. . . Hence it is that the leaves—the things of intelligence, that is, the truths of faith. . . and the flowers the things of wisdom, that is, the goods of faith, because these immediately precede regeneration; and the fruits the things of life, that is, the works of charity. . .

[A.5116]². Which of them is there, who, when he sees flowers on a tree and on the other plants, considers that it is as it were their gladness, because they are now producing fruits or seeds. They see that the flowers precede, and that they last until they have the beginnings of the fruit or seed in their bosom, and thus transfer their sap into them; and if they knew anything about the regeneration of man. . . they would see in those flowers a representative of the state of man before regeneration; namely, that at that time the man in like manner flowers from the good of intelligence and wisdom, that is, in interior gladness and in beauty; because he is then in the effort to implant those goods of intelligence and wisdom in the life, that is, to produce fruits. . .

562¹. Fragrances as from. . . flowers are then smelt.

562². The flower of the almond tree—the interior truth which is from good. III.

600⁴. Such scientifics flourished in Egypt.

752⁴. 'For an ulcer efflorescing with pustules' (Ex. ix 9).

836². The cherubs, palms, and flowers upon the walls of the Temple (1 Kings vi.29)—the providence, wisdom, and intelligence which are from the Lord, thus all things which are of Heaven. . . By the flowers was represented the intelligence which is of truth from Him.

848⁰. Like the flowers painted on a tablet compared with the flowers which are born in a garden. . . 1019⁴.

955³. 'Its flowers' (Ex.xxv.31) = the scientifics of truth. . . The reason 'flowers' = the scientifics of truth, is that flowers are things which are put forth, which precede, and in their own way produce the fruits and seeds. . . The case is similar with man as to intelligence and wisdom; the scientifics of truth precede, and in their own way produce the things which are of wisdom with man. . . Hence it is that the scientifics of truth are as flowers, and the good of life, which is the good of wisdom, as fruits. . . Hence it may now appear whence it is that flowers = the scientifics of truth, and in general truths; and fruits and seeds, goods. III. 956⁴.

1016¹. (In the Second Earth) there are flower-beds. . .

1018³. The flowering before the fruit corresponds to the state of that age with man when the marriage principle enters the mind, and gladdens it; thus when truth is being conjoined with good. . . Hence it is that the flowering before the fruit is compared to the voice and to the joy of the bride and bridegroom.

1077⁰. (In the Fifth Earth) there appeared grassy plains with flowers. . .

1083⁴. (On account of the shortness of the years in the Sixth Earth) the fields blossom continually. . .

H. 176. To those who are in intelligence there appear gardens. . . full of trees and flowers of every kind. . . They who are in intelligence also walk there, and gather flowers, and weave garlands, with which they adorn little children. There are also species of trees and flowers there which are neither seen nor possible in the world. . . They see such things, because a garden. . . and flowers correspond to intelligence and wisdom.

185. The flowers in their beds by their colours presented to view as it were rainbows.

414. They come into the flower-floem—of their youth. 489⁷. P.324⁴. M.69². 250². E.1004⁴.

489⁴. They who have loved knowledges, and have thereby cultivated their Rational, and have thus acquired intelligence. . . dwell in gardens, where there appear flower-beds and lawns beautifully laid out. . . The trees and flowers are varied every day. . . They enjoy these delights because gardens, flower-beds, lawns, and trees correspond to knowledges, Knowledges, and the derivative intelligence.

569. The heat flowing from the sun into plantations and flower-beds produces vegetation.

Life 46. A tree=man; its leaves and flowers the truths of faith. . .

W. 61^e. From the flowers in mines.

246^e. By virtue of which conjunction the man begins to blossom spiritually, as a tree in the spring-time.

P. 332². The things connected with man's initiation into the marriage of good and truth. . . are like the blossoms which the tree produces in the spring-time; spiritual truths are the petals of these flowers.

R. 875¹³. Behold, the twigs in their hands flowered.

936. A tree=man. . . its branches, his sensuous and natural truths; its leaves, his rational truths; its flowers, the primitive spiritual truths in his Rational; its fruits, the goods of love and of charity; and its seeds, the man's last and first things.

M. 13². Doors which opened into flower-beds.

15^e. See EAGLE.

42⁴. In her hair were inserted flowers of gems.

—e. They were carried along. . . among flower-beds.

137. Wreaths of flowers decorated their heads. . . They wore cloaks and coats of refulgent silk, in which were woven flowers most lovely to behold.

—². The deliciousnesses of their conjugal love were represented by the garlands, and also by the flowers woven into their cloaks and coats.

—⁷. Where there were married partners in the like flower of their age.

183^e. Then upon the heads of some of them there appeared wreaths of flowers; and when they asked why, the Angels said, Because they have understood more deeply.

301^e. The internal pleasantnesses of the state of betrothal may be compared to the efflorescence of trees before their fructification.

315². Each (speaker) put on a robe of soft wool interwoven with flowers.

316². The shrubs and flowers were in pairs, and I heard that such gardens appear round the houses where there are and have been weddings . . .

355³. The Angel said, I have lived with my wife a thousand years, and that in the like flower of my age in which you here see me.

T. 154³. The Word is like . . . a flower-bed . . .

308². Hence it is that there are flowers which open when the sun rises and close when it sets.

392². All things on Earth flower from their conjunction; and so do all things in the human mind flower from their conjunction; but with this difference, that natural heat and light cause the efflorescence on the Earth, but spiritual heat and light the efflorescence in the human mind; and that the latter efflorescence, being spiritual, is wisdom and intelligence.

585². The flowers which precede the fruit are the means of decanting the sap . . . and of separating its grosser from its purer things . . .

D. 358². I was permitted to represent a certain flower . . . If I were to reason from these things about the manifestation of the flower as such, should I not deny that the flower has any existence?

3636. Occurs.

5663. So long as they are virgins there are only flowers in their gardens.

5665. When they see the flowers growing dim in their little gardens, or being changed into worse ones, they also take notice; but if they are changed into better and more beautiful ones, they are glad, because it is a sign that they have been thinking well.

E. 288¹¹. Their joy from instruction in truths and from illumination, is signified by 'to be glad,' 'to exult,' and 'to blossom' (Is. xxxv. 1, 2).

376¹¹. 'The flower of the fading glory . . .' (Is. xxviii. 1) = the truth of the Church destroyed at its birth . . .

458³. 'The flowers' (on the walls of the Temple) = spiritual natural good, which is the good of the Ultimate Heaven. . . But in the supreme sense . . . 'flowers' = His Divine intelligence; for the Divine good united to Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord is received . . . in the Ultimate Heaven as Divine intelligence.

507⁴. That with men there will then not be any scientific truth, nor any spiritual truth, is signified by, 'All flesh is grass, and all its holiness is as the flower of the field; the grass withereth, the flower fadeth' (Is. xl. 6, 7): 'grass' = scientific truth; and 'the flower of the field' = spiritual truth . . .

650³⁰. 'The leaf thereof was beautiful, and the flower thereof was much' (Dan. iv. 12) = the Knowledges and affections of truth and good, and the derivative intelligence.

727¹¹. The reason Aaron's rod blossomed and produced almonds (Num. xvii. 8), was that his rod represented truth from the good of love; and as truth from the good of love alone produces the fruit which is the good of charity, his rod blossomed and produced almonds.

763³. Flosculus concinnant.

828². A flower = implantation.

942². The flowering of man before the fruit is from the affection of truth.

1211⁴. There are also flowers of precious stones and of crystals.

De Verbo 19². There was once opened before the Angels a flower as to its interiors which are called spiritual; and when they saw it, they said that there was a whole paradise therein which consisted of things ineffable.

D. Wis. iii. 3. There, love is the heat and wisdom is the light; and therein all things in the Angels live, and blossom around them, entirely according to the union of love and wisdom in them.

Fluctuate. Fluctuare.

Fluctuation. Fluctuatio.

A. 788. That its fluctuation was thus. Sig.

— . That its fluctuations thus increased. Sig. and Ex.

—³. Therefore converted Jews fluctuate between truth and falsity more than others. . . These are the fluctuations which are here described. 789. 833. 847.

847. 'The waters receding in going and returning' cannot signify anything but fluctuation between truths and falsities. But the nature of this fluctuation cannot be known unless the nature of temptation is known; for such as the temptation is, such is the fluctuation after it. When the temptation is celestial, the fluctuation is between good and evil; when the temptation is spiritual, the fluctuation is between truth and falsity; when the temptation is natural, the fluctuation is between the things which are of cupidities and their contraries.

848. When temptations are over, there is as it were fluctuation . . . (For) when the man's former life . . . is destroyed by means of temptations, after the temptation he cannot but fluctuate between truth and falsity . . . (For) when the former life has been destroyed, and there is such a fluctuation, the man scarcely knows what truth and good are. Examp.

851. The connection of the sense of the letter may seem to imply that by the ark resting is signified a cessation of the fluctuations which follow temptation . . . But fluctuations, which are doubts and obscurities concerning truths and goods, do not so cease, but continue a long time.

857. By these words, as by the former, are signified fluctuations between truth and falsity, but here, that these fluctuations were lessened. In the fluctuations after temptation, the man does not know what truth is, but as they gradually cease the light of truth appears. Ex.

1110². Still, they fluctuate long between truth and falsity.

5783. Fluctuation. Sig.

N. 197⁵. After temptation is over there is at first a fluctuation between truth and falsity.

Fluid. Fluidus.

Fluidity. Fluiditas.

A. 1381. They are called wandering Spirits, and are compared to the fluids in the human body which rise up from the stomach . . .

[A.] 1759^e. The fluidity . . . of the speech is from this, that the celestial good in their ideas is such . . . The speech of the spiritual is also fluid, but not so soft and gentle.

4050³. Their reasonings are the fluids there which represent.

5173. The introductions of these fluids (of the body) to uses, represent those inaugurations into gyres.

5563^e. The fluidity which belongs to the form of Heaven is thus arrested.

7486. They know how to make fluid fires.

So26. These kinds of speech are like fluids . . .

D. 242. In internal things the parts . . . are very fluid. (See COHERE, here.)

1727. Their general motion was fluid . . .

2250^e. The less man has from himself . . . or the more fluid he is, the more perfect . . . In the inmost fibres there is nothing but what is fluid, because spiritual.

3024¹. The more fluid it is in man . . . the more easily is he bent by the Lord . . .

3423. Spirits act more fluidly without the attention of man . . .

3459. Such a fibre could not operate at all without its fluid within, as a patient could not without an agent.

3494. The gyre was not so fluid . . .

3496². An influx . . . pearly, but still fluid.

3727^e. See BLOOD.

Fluid. Latex. T.491².

Flute. Tibia.

Flute-like. Tibialis.

Flute-player. Tibicen.

A. 2605. Their speech was . . . flute-like . . . H.327.

R. 792. 'A voice or sound of pipers and trumpeters' (Rev.xviii.22) relates to celestial affections. Ex. E.1185.

T. 391³. The Angel said, You answer like one who sings only one note on his pipe . . .

D. 4507. Their speech was almost of a single tone, like a flute-tibialis major.

Flux. See FLOW.

Fly. Musca.

A. 1594⁴. Occurs. T.335⁵.

7441². It is these (sensuous) falsities which are signified by 'the flies of Egypt' (Is.vii.18). (See FLY-volare, here.) 9331⁴. 10582⁴. E.410⁶.

T. 68². Than a fly against a camel.

381. Like flies round the head of a running horse. 590. I.14⁶.

D. 2921b. They would all flee from a single fly. 3749.

3332. I fixed my look on a fly . . .

4394^e. They are likened to flies . . .

4743. Like the flies of a marsh which fly up in a body, and then settle in the marsh.

D. Min. 4779. As easily as if they had been flies.

E. 740¹⁰. See BEELZEBUB.

Fly. Volare, Advolare, Avolare, Devolare, Evolare, Involare.

Fly about. Volitare, Circumvolitare. (See FLIT.)

Flying. Volatilis.

Flight. Volatus.

See BIRD-volucris.

A. 1834. 'The flying thing came down upon the bodies' (Gen.xv.11)=the evils and derivative falsities which wanted to destroy. 'The flying thing'=falsity. 'A flying thing' in the Word=truth, and also in the opposite sense falsity.

2758². The transformation of caterpillars into flying things.

3901. Birds which fly high . . . =rational things.

7378^e. The fifth degree of their vastation is that they were in falsities from these evils, by which all truth was destroyed: these are signified by 'the baneful flying thing' (Ex.viii.21). (=the falsities of malevolence. 7441-7465.)

7441. The particular kind of falsities which are here signified by 'the baneful flying thing' is (falsities in the extremes of the natural mind, thus in the Sensuous). The same are signified by 'the flies of Egypt' (Is. vii.18) . . . These falsities are compared to such an insect because the things which are there are just like flying things in the air, which obscure interior things, and also inflict injury upon them; for they are for the most part imaginary things, and are fallacies, the reasonings from which are like things based on the air. The baneful flying thing of this kind is mentioned only in Ps.lxxviii.45; cv.31.

—³. All flying things in the Word=intellectual things, and therefore truths, and in the opposite sense falsities. Refs. But flying things of the lowest sort, which are insects, =truths and in the opposite sense falsities which are more ignoble and obscure, such as are those which are proper to the Sensuous . . .

S431. A flying thing=what is spiritual or that which is of faith.

9331. Flying animals and also winged insects=such things as are of thoughts in both senses, thus truths or falsities.

—². In the other life falsities from evil . . . are presented to view as a filthy swarm of insects and of unclean flying things, terrible to look upon according to the species of the evil from which they are. Ill.

9340¹⁰. 'To fly-involare-upon the shoulder of the Philistines' (Is.xi.14)=to receive and take into possession the interior truths of faith. (Compare E.433⁷.)

H. 108². They fly in the air as in their Heaven.

—³. All the birds of the air know their food . . . how to build nests, etc. W.353.

110. Flying things according to their species correspond to the intellectual things of both the natural and the spiritual mind.

429^e. From a perception of their stench they fly—avolant—to cadaverous and stercoraceous things.

456^e. The soul (supposed to be) something flying in the ether.

W. 40. The idea (men have) of love and wisdom is as of something flying and floating in the . . . ether . . . not being aware that love and wisdom are the subject itself, and that what is perceived outside of it as flying and floating, is only the appearance of the state of the subject in itself.

41. (Thus) sight, hearing, etc., are not any volatile thing . . .

42. Thought, perceptions, and affections . . . are not volatile entities . . .

46. Nor can they think about life, except as a volatile thing . . .

341. Noxious flies fill the atmosphere . . .

346^e. The less perfect animals are birds.

P. 226. Profaners . . . appear to themselves to fly on high . . .

R. 244. See EAGLE. D.2229. E.410⁵.

415. 'To fly in the midst of heaven and say' (Rev. viii.13)=to perceive and understand; and when said of the Lord, to look out for and provide; here, to instruct and foretell.

437. To fly=to perceive and instruct.

561. 'That she might fly into the wilderness, into her place' (Rev.xii.14)=protection while the New Church is as yet among a few. . . 'To fly'=to clearly see, and to look about.

626. 'To fly in the midst of heaven' (Rev.xiv.6)=to look down, to clearly see, and to look out for; here, what is new from the Lord out of Heaven for the Church.

831. 'Saying to all the birds that fly in the midst of heaven' (Rev.xix.17)=all who are in the spiritual affection of truth, and who therefore think of Heaven. . . 'To fly in the midst of heaven'=to clearly see, to attend, and to think.

M. 2. I once saw an Angel flying . . .

136^e. There appeared one from Heaven as it were flying, having two wings at his feet and two at his temples.

514^e. In their cavern they fly about—circumvolitant—like spectres; for they are then in phantasy, and phantasy appears to fly. After their flight they rest.

T. 67. Love and wisdom without use are only volatile things of reason, and also fly away—evolant—unless they betake themselves to use. The first two separated from the third are like birds which fly over a great ocean, until, wearied with their flight, they fall down and sink.

151^e. As his delight is in Hell he flies down—devolat—thither.

D. 3747^e. Dragons are flying serpents.

3911. The Spirit flew out—evolabat—thence above the head.

4198. Some flew out—evolarunt—from that Hell.

4281. There were a great number of Souls flying about there, who . . . had been vastated . . .

5950. Profaners . . . become like spectres, and appear to themselves to fly about in the air . . . A female profaner has been seen so to fly, and she then has nothing of thought, for she is in infernal phantasy, which is the source of the appearance.

D. Min. 4723^e. Acute reasoners . . . appear flying in ashes . . . —^e.

E. 281. 'To fly'=presence, also view round about; and, when predicated of the Divine, omnipresence.

282. 'To fly,' in the Word, =circumspection and presence, because when a bird is flying on high it sees clearly on every side, and thus is present everywhere by its sight. But when 'to fly' is predicated of Jehovah, it=omnipresence, because omnipresence is infinite circumspection and presence. Ill. 283⁵.

—⁵. 'To fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows' (Is.lx.8)=the inquiring into and the searching out of truth from the sense of the letter of the Word.

—⁶. The inquiring into truth, and circumspection as to where to turn, is signified by, 'Who shall give me a wing as of a dove? I will fly away—avolabo—where I may dwell' (Ps.lv.6). 'To fly away where I may dwell'=through this to rescue the life from damnation.

—⁷. 'To fly away—avolare—like a bird' (Hos.ix.11)=the deprivation of Divine truth.

—⁸. 'To fly towards heaven' (Deut.iv.17)=the circumspection which is of intelligence in Divine things.

—¹⁰. The reason 'to fly,' when predicated of men, =circumspection and at the same time presence, is that the sight is present with the object which it sees . . . Hence it is that 'to fly' is said of the understanding and of its intelligence . . .

375⁴. Hence profaners . . . appear to themselves to fly hither and thither without any thought.

410⁶. There appear in the Spiritual World flying things of various kinds, but they are appearances from the ideas of the thoughts of Spirits; and the baneful flying things among them are of such a kind as flies and bees.

529. 'To fly' (Rev.viii.13)=to enlighten and give understanding.

—². The reason 'to fly,' when predicated of the Lord, =to enlighten, is that 'to fly' is predicated of the understanding and of the extension of its sight round about; and therefore, when predicated of the Lord, 'to fly'=the enlightenment of the understanding. 'To fly,' when predicated of the Lord, =omnipresence, and therefore it also =enlightenment; for wherever the Lord is present there is enlightenment. Ill.

632⁶. The 'birds of heaven' which devoured the seed (Luke viii.5)=falsities . . .

710⁴. 'To fly away' (Hos.ix.11)=to be dissipated. To fly away is mentioned because a bird is mentioned.

1050². They seem to themselves to fly in the air, like dragons.

1100⁴. Avolatio occurs.

1201^e. In a higher degree are the birds of the air.

Foal. See under YOUNG—pullus.

Foam. See FROTH.

Fodder. Pabulum.

3114. 'Straw'=scientific truths; 'even much fodder' (Gen.xxiv.25)=their goods. Ex.

3146. 'He gave straw and fodder for the camels' (ver.32)=instruction in truths and goods. 'Straw'=the truths of the natural man; 'fodder,' the goods there.

5495. 'To give fodder to the ass' (Gen.xlii.27)=to reflect upon scientific; for fodder is the food with which asses are fed, and consists of straw and chaff; and therefore it=all reflection upon scientific, for this is what especially feeds them. 'An ass'=scientific.

5670. 'He gave fodder to their asses' (Gen.xliii.24)=instruction concerning good. 'To give fodder'=to instruct in good; for 'fodder'=the good of scientific truths; and 'to give fodder,' which is to feed,=to instruct in this good. . . The good of scientific is delight from scientific truths. . .

E. 507. As green grass serves animals for fodder, so scientific truth serves men for spiritual nourishment.

Fog. See MIST.

Fold. Caula.

A. 415. It signifies the good which comes from the Holy of love, and there is meant the dwelling or fold of cattle. . . Ill. Here, 'folds' and 'pastures'=the goods of love.

983². 'I will bring them to their folds' (Jer.xxiii.3), treats of the Church planted.

T. 383^e. Like a wolf in a fold of sheep.

Fold. Plicare, Complicare.

Folding. Plicatio.

T. 371^r. The fibres folded together. . .

D. 3393^e. By the foldings of his body. . . thus foldable—plicabile. . .

3927. Grievous penalties of folding. . . They were then folded, or by foldings were broken and torn. . .

4012. Occurs. 4087^e.

4093. When I folded my hands I perceived that as it were I did not fold them, but another; and a certain person said that he felt himself folding his hands, instead of me.

6093^e. They folded their lips at various angles. . . but in vain. See T.111⁶.

Foliage. See LEAFY.

Folkes. W.344.

Foller. D.4899.

Follicle. Folliculus, Follicularis. W.413².

Follow. Liquere. A.744I. 9198^r. 9213^e.

Follow. Sectari.

Follower. Sectator.

A. 9319. The evils of life are not to be followed. Sig.

—e. Not to follow—sequi, or to follow.

T. 798³. The followers of Godoschalcus.

799. The followers (of the three Reformers).

D. 4446. The followers (of Aristotle).

E. 894. The followers of faith alone. 933.

Follow. Sequi.

See AFTER.

A. 1737². Conjunction with the Lord is effected by means of temptations, and by means of the implantation of faith in love. . . This alone is 'to follow Him,' that is, to be conjoined with the Lord in the same way as the Lord as to the Human essence was conjoined with Jehovah. T.302.

3191. 'To go after,' or to follow=from guidance or protecting oversight.

3325⁵. To be in innocence is signified by 'to follow the Lamb.'

3816^e. Every affection follows him thither. 7085.

3939². The essence and quality of the beginning is derived and passes into the things which follow.

3957². The life which a man has acquired in the world follows him. 4227. 6977. [7122.] 7295², Ex. 10813. H.364.

8864⁴. That the things which precede will reign in those which follow. . . is evident from. . . the Lord's Prayer. . .

10087⁴. That John 'followed' the Lord signified that those who are in the good of charity follow the Lord, and are loved by the Lord, and do not go back; whereas they who are in faith separated not only do not follow the Lord. . . E.9².

Life 66^e. Therefore the Lord said that he was 'to follow Him' (Mark x.21), by which is meant that he was to acknowledge the Lord as God.

R. 350. Like a universal entering into all the things which follow.

621. 'These are they who follow the Lamb whithersoever He goeth' (Rev.xiv.4)=that they are conjoined with the Lord through love and faith in Him, because they have lived according to his commandments. Ill. E.864.

641. 'Their works do follow with them' (Rev.xiv.13) =as they have loved and believed and thence have done and spoken. By 'the works which follow with them' are signified all the things which remain with a man after death.

826. 'The armies in Heaven followed Him upon white horses. . .' (Rev.xix.14)=the Angels in the New Christian Heaven who are conjoined with the Lord in the interior understanding of the Word. . . 'To follow the Lord'=to be conjoined with Him.

T. 681. See BAPTISM.

E. 383. 'Hell followed with him' (Rev.vi.8)=eternal damnation. . . For 'to follow with him'=to remain therein. . .

864. No one can follow the Lord from himself, but only from the Lord; for the Lord draws the man after Him who from freedom is willing to follow; but He cannot draw anyone who is not willing to follow Him; for the Lord so operates with him that the man follows Him as it were from himself. . . . For unless it appeared to the man that he follows the Lord as of himself. . . . there would be no appropriation and conjunction. . . .

—². That to acknowledge the Divine Human of the Lord, and to do His commandments is 'to follow Him', is because no others can be conjoined with the Lord. —³, III. 893³. —⁴.

—⁶. From these things it may be evident that 'to follow the Lord' is to be led by Him, and not by self. . . .

901. 'To follow with them' = to be in them; for that which follows with anyone, when it is said of his life, is in him, and is as he is; and therefore it is said 'to follow with them,' and not to follow them.

934^e. To follow the Lord' = to acknowledge Him alone, and to be led by Him.

Follower. Assecla.

A. 465⁸. The followers (of Aristotle). —^e. M. 151b. D. 394⁸. 3949. 3955.

6047². The leaders of the Church have said so, and their followers confirm it. —.

W. 267². Macchiavelli and his followers.

T. 159⁶. The followers (of Arius and Socinus). 174². 489. Their followers could not do otherwise.

D. 472⁸. The followers (of Wolff).

5915². The followers (of Luther).

E. 791^e. A heresy is believed by its followers to be truth.

De Just. Title. A conversation with Calvin and fifty of his followers. . . .

Folly. Insipientia.

Foolishly. Insipide.

A. 2568⁴. The one leads to all folly and insanity.

3938⁵. Hence come folly and insanity.

H. 505. He then acts foolishly and insanelly.

D. 3703. Ratiocination is the height of folly.

Foment. Fomentare, Fomentum.

Fomentor. Fomentator.

A. 5715². As a fomenting cause.

P. 250³. Such a fire could not exist with the good, unless it is fomented. . . .

278a⁵. All evil which does not appear foment itself. . . .

M. 360^e. They are like so many foment. . . .

D. 4571. A sick man summons fomentors (that is, evil Spirits who increase his febrile heat).

Fontanel. Fontanella. A. 10381. D. 1675.

Food. Alimentum.

A. 5392^e. Like foods introduced into the stomach. . . .

A. 5960. 'Food for his father by the way' (Gen. xlv. 23) = interior truth for spiritual good meanwhile. 'Food' = interior truth; for this comes forth from the truth of good and the good of truth which are signified by corn and bread; moreover, interior truth is the food for spiritual good.

932⁸. The Word in its ultimate. . . . is described by the clothing and meat of John the Baptist.

—⁹. The foods in the other life are represented according to the longings for knowledge and wisdom. Hence it is. . . . that food or food-cibus = spiritual nourishment. Refs.

M. 133. Man does not (at birth) know any food-alimonia—that is good for him.

Ad. 965. Foods themselves are the Knowledges of things. . . .

E. 750¹⁶. 'Is not the soul more than meat?' (Matt. vi. 25) = spiritual nourishment. . . . 'Meat' = the good and truth from which there is nourishment.

Food, Meat. Cibus.

Feed. Cibare.

Feeding. Cibatio.

A. 56. The celestial man is delighted solely with celestial things, which, as they agree with his life, are called celestial meats. The spiritual man is delighted with spiritual things, which, as they agree with his life, are called spiritual meats; and the natural man in like manner with natural things, which, as they are of his life, are called meats, and are chiefly scientific. As the spiritual man is here treated of, his spiritual meats are described by representatives. Enum. His natural meats are described in the following verse.

57. 'Fruit' is what the Lord gives to the celestial man; but 'seed producing fruit' is what He gives to the spiritual man, and therefore it is said, 'The tree producing seed to you it shall be for meat' (Gen. i. 29). That celestial meat is called 'fruit from a tree' is evident from the following chapter. . . . and from Ezek. xlvii. 12. . . . But that spiritual meat is called 'the herb,' is declared in Ps. xxiii. 2.

58. The natural meat of the same is here described (Gen. i. 30). It treats of both his natural and his spiritual meat in Ps. civ. 14.

59. In the time of combat the evil Spirits. . . . leave the man nothing for food-escae, except what is compared to the vegetables and the green herb; but the Lord gives him food in addition which is compared to the herb yielding seed, and to the tree in which is fruit, which are the food of tranquillity and peace, with their delights and happinesses; and this at intervals.

276. 'Bread' = everything spiritual and celestial which is angelic food. For if they were destitute of this they would not live, any more than a man who was destitute of bread or food. . . . That what is celestial and spiritual is angelic food, is evident from Matt. iv. 4.

677. As to the food of the man who is to be regenerated, the case is this. Before man can be regenerated, he must be instructed in all those things which may serve as means. . . . These things are food. . . . But every man has his peculiar, and as it were proper food, which is provided for him by the Lord before he is regenerated.

[A.] 678. 'Take thou unto thee of all food that is eaten' (Gen. vi. 21) = goods and delights . . . for goods and delights constitute the life of man; and truths not so much, for truths receive all their life from goods and delights; everything scientific and rational . . . is insinuated by means of good and delight, which, as his soul lives and is supported from them, are called meats, and are meats, for without them the soul of man cannot live at all.

680. That goods and truths are the genuine meats of man may be evident to everyone, for he who is destitute of them has no life, but is dead; the meats on which his soul is fed when he is dead are delights from evils, and pleasantnesses from falsities, which are the meats of death, and also delights from bodily, worldly, and natural things, which have nothing of life in them. Moreover such a man does not know what spiritual and celestial meat is, so that the meat or bread mentioned in the Word he supposes to mean bodily food. (Examp. from the Lord's Prayer.)

—². The Lord Himself clearly teaches what is signified in His Word by 'meat' and 'bread' . . . 'Labour not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto eternal life, which the Son of Man giveth unto you' (John vi. 27).

—⁴. That 'meat' in the Word = nothing else than spiritual and celestial meat, which is faith in the Lord and love. III.

681. What celestial and spiritual meat is may be perfectly well known in the other life. The life of Angels and Spirits is not supported by any meat such as there is in the world, but by every word that goes forth from the mouth of the Lord, as He Himself teaches, (Matt. iv. 4). Fully ex.

—^e. If Angels, Spirits, and men were deprived of this meat, they would instantaneously expire.

995. 'It shall be meat for you' (Gen. ix. 3) = the delight thereof which they should enjoy; (for) every pleasure not only affects man, but also supports him, like food . . . The delight in which there is good from the Lord is alone alive . . . therefore it is here said, 'Every creeping thing which is alive shall be to you for meat,' that is, for enjoyment.

1460³. 'To break the staff of bread' = to be deprived of heavenly food-victa; for the life of good Spirits and Angels is supported by no other food than the Knowledges of good and truth, and the goods and truths themselves. Hence comes the signification of 'hunger.'

1480. The spirit is greatly delighted with knowledge . . . it is its food, with which it is supported and refreshed, as the outward man is by earthly food. This food-victus, which is of the spirit, is communicated to the external man, to the end that the external man may be adapted to the internal. But these foods succeed each other in the following order; celestial food is all the good of love and of charity from the Lord; spiritual food is all the truth of faith; on these kinds of food the Angels live. From these there comes forth a food which is also celestial and spiritual, but is a lower angelic food on which live angelic Spirits. From this again there comes a celestial and spiritual food still lower, which is that of reason and the derivative knowledge, and on this live good Spirits. Lastly, comes bodily food, which is proper to man while he lives in the body. These foods correspond to each other in a wonderful manner; and hence it is evident why and how knowledge is so pleasing to itself . . .

1695. 'They took all their food' (Gen. xiv. 11) = that they were deprived of the power of thinking falsely.

— The celestial, spiritual, and natural food which they enjoy in the other life . . . correspond to the food of the body, and are here represented in the Word by 'food,' and are called 'food.' But the food of evil and infernal Spirits is what is contrary to wisdom, to intelligence, and to true knowledge, which is all falsity. With this food, wonderful to say, evil Spirits are supported. The reason is that it is their life . . .

1973^o. Spirits have not the sense of taste, but instead of it a desire, like an appetite, of knowing and learning. This is as it were their food with which they are nourished. How they are tortured when this food is taken away, may appear from the following example.

2135². The meats here mentioned = the celestial and spiritual goods specified in the explication.

2165. See BREAD.

2187. These feasts . . . represented heavenly food.

2838^e. As the Divine Human of the Lord signified heavenly food, which is nothing else than love and charity together with the goods and truths of faith, this food in the Heavens is given to the Angels every moment by the Lord . . .

2930⁴. 'Meat' (Lam. i. 19) = wisdom and intelligence.

3085^e. The things contained in the internal sense are among the delicious things of the Angels, because heavenly food is nothing else than everything which belongs to wisdom and intelligence . . .

3114. As 'camels' = the natural man as to the general scientifics therein, his food, here signified by 'straw,' must be scientific truths, for he has no other food which is the food of his life. This is the source of his nonnourishment, and if such food were to fail him—that is, knowledge—he would not subsist. That this is the case is evident from the life after death; for then such things, with Spirits, take the place of food. Refs.

3570⁵. It is the soul which gives to the body the appetite for food . . . The foods-cibaria—are introduced by means of the delight of the appetite and of the flavour, thus by means of external good; but the foods-cibaria—which are introduced do not all enter the life; some serve as menstrua for digestion, some for tempering, some for opening, some for introducing into the vessels; but the good ones are introduced into the blood . . . The case is similar with the Rational and the Natural; the longing and affection for knowing truth correspond to appetite and relish, and scientifics and Knowledges correspond to the foods-cibariis . . .

3596^o. Food in general = the things which are of love and charity, that is, the same as celestial and spiritual food.

3832². That which is called spiritual and celestial food. Sig.

4459^b. He also who is in internal things has pleasure in these things, but his reigning affection is that his body may be pleasureably nourished with food for the sake of his health . . . But to the celestial man, bodily food is a means for the enjoyment of spiritual food, and spiritual food is a means for the enjoyment of celestial food; and as they ought so to serve, these foods also correspond; and hence they are called foods.

4792. As food and nutrition correspond to spiritual food and nutrition, taste corresponds to the perception and the affection thereof. Spiritual food is knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom; for Spirits and Angels live from these things, and from these they are nourished; and they long and have an appetite for them, as men who are hungry do for food . . . Wonderful to say, by means of this food they grow up . . .

4926^c. 'The food with which the garners are full' (Ps. cxliv. 13) = spiritual food, that is, truth and good.

4976. Natural truth bears the same relation to its good as . . . drink does to meat; water or drink causes bread and meat to be diluted . . . In like manner they correspond; for in the other life man is not nourished by any natural meat and drink, but by spiritual meat and drink; spiritual meat is good, and spiritual drink is truth; and therefore wherever 'bread' or 'food' is mentioned in the Word, the Angels understand spiritual bread or food, namely, the good of love and of charity; and where 'water' or 'drink' is mentioned, they understand spiritual water or drink, namely, the truth of faith. From this may be seen what the truth of faith is without the good of charity . . .

5144. The reason 'baskets' = voluntary things, is that they are vessels to contain meats, and because meats = celestial and spiritual goods . . .

5147. 'Of all Pharaoh's meat' (Gen. xl. 17) = full of celestial good for the nourishment of the Natural. 'Meat' = celestial good (because) it was in the highest basket.

—³. The reason 'meat' = celestial good, is that the meats of the Angels are nothing but the goods of love and of charity; by these they are not only vivified, but are also refreshed . . . That such things yield nourishment for man's spirit when material meats yield nourishment for his body, may also be evident from the fact, that food without delights is of little avail, but with delights it nourishes; it is delights which open the ducts that convey [the chyle] into the blood . . . These delights with the Angels are the goods of love and of charity; from which it may be concluded that these are spiritual meats, which correspond to earthly meats; and as meats are goods, so drinks are truths. III.

5174. The aliments or meats in the stomach are violently moved in many ways, in order that their interior things may be extracted. (The correspondence of this.) D. 1035.

5175. When a man . . . enters the other life, his life is like the food, which is softly received by the lips . . . D. 1742.

— . The foods which are soft, and in which there is what is sweet, oily, and spirituous, are at once received by the veins . . . whereas the foods which are hard, or in which there is what is bitter, foul, and but little nutritive, are . . . swallowed down into the stomach, and are there castigated by various methods . . . and those which are still harder . . . are detrued into the intestines. (The correspondence of this.)

5293. 'Let them gather all the food' (Gen. xli. 35) = all things which are of use. . . In the internal sense 'food' properly = the things which nourish man's soul, that is, which nourish him after the life of the body; for he then lives as a Soul or Spirit, and no longer needs material food . . . but spiritual food, which food is everything that is of use, and everything that conduces to use. That which conduces to use is to know what good and truth are, and what is of use is to will and do them. These are the things with which the Angels are nourished, and which are therefore called spiritual and celestial foods. The mind of man, where are his interior understanding and interior will, or where are the intentions and ends, is nourished with no other food even while he lives in the body; material food does not penetrate thither, but only to the things of the body, which that food supports, to the end that the mind may enjoy its food at the same time that the body enjoys its food, that is, that there may be a sound mind in a sound body. The reason why 'food' in the spiritual sense is everything which is of use, is that all the knowledge, the intelligence, and the wisdom of man, and thus all his will, ought to have use as the end . . . That 'food' in the internal sense is everything which is of use, is evident from these words of the Lord . . . 'I have meat to eat which ye know not of. The disciples said one to another, Hath anyone brought Him to eat? Jesus said unto them, My meat is to do the will of Him that sent Me, and to perfect His work' (John iv. 32-34). 5297.

5340. 'Gathered all the food of the seven years' (Gen. xli. 48) = the preservation of truth adjoined to good, multiplied in the first times. . . 'Food' = all that by which the internal man is nourished; and that this is good and truth, may be evident from the correspondence of the earthly food with which the external man is nourished, with the spiritual food with which the internal man is nourished. Here, therefore, it is truth adjoined to good.

5342. 'He bestowed the food in the cities' (id.) = that he stored up truths adjoined to good in the interiors. Ex. 5343.

5360. The reason 'famine' = this failure, or desolation, is that there is no other celestial and spiritual food except good and truth; these are the things with which Angels and Spirits are nourished . . . and therefore to these correspond material foods . . .

5426. 'To buy food' (Gen. xlii. 7) = to appropriate the truth of good.

5435. 'To buy food are thy servants come' (ver. 10) = to be appropriated to the Natural by means of good. . . 'Food' = celestial and spiritual good, and also truth adjoined to good; here, therefore, truth to be adjoined to the Natural by means of good, thus to be appropriated.

5576. Famine in the Spiritual World . . . is famine for such food as nourishes their minds; this food is to understand truth and to relish good; which food is called spiritual food; and, wonderful to say, the Angels are nourished by this food. This has been made evident to me by the fact (that little children there grow up as they are instructed), and also by this, that the Angels continually long for the things of intelligence and wisdom . . .

[A. 5576]. That to understand truth and to will good are spiritual food, may be evident to everyone who reflects. He who enjoys material food for the nourishment of the body, is better nourished by such food, if at the same time he is cheerful in spirit, and is engaged in conversation about such things as are favourable thereto; a sign that there is a correspondence between the spiritual food of the mind, and the material food of the body. Moreover, he who is longing to fill his mind with such things as are of knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom, begins to be sad and anxious when they are withheld from him, and, like one in hunger, to long to return to his spiritual food, and thus to the nourishment of his soul.

—⁴. That it is spiritual food which nourishes the soul, as material food does the body. III.

—⁵. Therefore, 'food,' in the supreme sense, that is, when predicated of the Lord, = the good of the Divine love of saving the human race. This is the food which is meant by . . . 'I have meat to eat which ye know not of: My meat is to do the will of Him that sent Me, and to perfect His work.'

5579. In the Spiritual World . . . they are satisfied with truths and goods, for these are food to those who are there; and when these have ceased to be of use, they again come into want. This is like the nourishment of man by material food; when this food has ceased to be of use, hunger comes again.

—^e. For when these things are hungered for, they yield better nourishment; as material food does to a hungry man.

5582. 'Return ye, buy us a little food' (Gen. xliii. 2) = that in order to live they should acquire the good of spiritual truth. . . 'Food' = the good of truth; here, the good of spiritual truth, for this good is treated of in what follows. 5588. 5655.

5706. All foods = goods; and drinks of every kind = truths.

5733. 'Fill the wallets of the men with food' (Gen. xliv. 1) = (influx from himself) into the Natural with the good of truth.

5820. 'Return ye, buy us a little food' (ver. 25) = that the good of truth is to be appropriated. . . Spiritual food is, in general, all good; specifically, however, it is the good which is acquired by means of truth, that is, truth in will and act, for this becomes good . . . and is called the good of truth. 5893.

5915. To this sustenance (by the influx of good and truth from the Lord) corresponds the sustenance of the outward man by food and drink; and therefore by food is signified good, and by drink truth. Moreover, the correspondence is of such a nature, that when a man is being fed with food, the Angels with him are in the idea of good and truth; and, wonderful to say, with a difference according to the species of the food; and therefore when a man is receiving the bread and wine at the Holy Supper, the Angels with him are in the idea of the good of love and of the good of faith . . .

—². That the soul of man . . . is supported by spiritual food and drink, is evident from . . . 'Man doth not live by bread alone, but by every utterance of the mouth of Jehovah doth man live' (Deut. viii. 3; Matt. iv. 4). 'The utterance of the mouth of Jehovah' = the good and truth which proceed from Him. And also from, 'Labour not for the meat which perisheth' . . .

6078. The soul longs for scientific truth as the body does for food . . . The correspondence (of food with scientific) manifests itself with a man when he is being fed with foods; for if this takes place while he is speaking and listening, the vessels which receive the chyle are opened, and he is more fully nourished than when he is alone. Spiritual truths, and instruction in them, would have the same effect with men, if they were in the affection of good. That truths nourish the spiritual life, is especially manifest with the good Spirits and Angels in Heaven; they are in a constant longing to know and to be wise, and when this spiritual food is wanting, they are in desolation, languor, and hunger . . . But in order for scientific to yield healthful nutrition to the soul, there must be in them life from the goods of truth; otherwise, the scientific does indeed support the interior life of man, but only his natural life, and not his spiritual life.

6110. Truths and goods, and the Knowledges of them, constitute the spiritual life of those who are in Heaven, for they are the spiritual and celestial foods with which they are nourished. These foods are given them daily by the Lord: when it is morning with them, goods are supplied; when it is mid-day, truths are supplied; but when it is evening, they fail, and this until the . . . morning again. Meanwhile, they are kept in appetite, which is of such a nature, that they long for those things more than a hungry man does for food on earth . . .

6118. 'Bread,' in general, = all food, (thus) spiritual life; for food in general, in the spiritual sense, is all the good of love and also all the truth of faith; these two being what constitute spiritual life.

6159. 'For your food, and for those in your houses' (Gen. xlvii. 24) = that thus the good of truth may be in each and all things. 6160.

6502⁵. 'Food' = goods and truths themselves. Refs.

6576. Spiritual food is knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom, thus truth and good. Refs. H. 340 (rr). 356, App. II.

8352². The nourishment of the spiritual life is good and truth . . . If there is a deficiency of good it is like a deficiency of food, and if there is a deficiency of truth it is like a deficiency of drink . . . for food corresponds to good, and drink to truth; and on account of this correspondence, food and drink nourish the body better and more suitably, when at supper or dinner a man is at the same time in the delight of conversation with others about things he loves, than when he sits at table alone . . . When a man is in the latter state, the vessels in him which receive the food are constricted; but when he is in the former state they are open. Such are the effects of the correspondence of spiritual food and natural food. It is said the delight of conversation with others about things he loves, because everything of that kind has relation to good and truth . . .

8378. (The inhabitants of Jupiter) said that they do not prepare food according to taste, but chiefly according to use; they added that useful food is to them savoury. (A conversation among Spirits on this subject.) D.596.

8408^e. By food and all the kinds of it are signified such things as nourish the soul, thus the affections of good and truth. Refs.

8540. By the things which belong to food are signified goods.

8562. He who is in spiritual life longs for the support of it by such things as are called heavenly foods and drinks, which are the goods and truths of faith . . .

—2. Good has a constant appetite for truth . . . This is like food, which, without drink, is of no avail for the nourishment of the natural life. Moreover, food has an appetite for drink, with which it may be conjoined, in order to be of use. 9206². Life 40. T.367⁶.

9003. See FOOD-victus.

9052. The reason 'teeth'=(the exterior Intellectual, and thence natural truth) is that they grind up like a mill, and thus prepare, the food which is for the nourishment of the body; here, the food which is for the nourishment of the soul; (which is) intelligence and wisdom. This is first received, ground up, and prepared by means of the Knowledges of good and truth in the Natural. That intelligence and wisdom are what is called spiritual and celestial food. Refs.

9139². Hence it is that the goods of love and the truths of faith are called in the Word foods and drinks; moreover, in this sense they are heavenly foods and drinks. Refs.

9192⁷. See FALSITY.

9210⁵. 'To impose the usury of food' (Deut.xxiii.19) = to lend the goods of truth for the sake of gain. . . 'Food' = the good of truth. Refs.

9396³. Heavenly food is all the good of love and of charity; and heavenly drink is all the truth of faith from that good.

9527. These things are signified by 'a table,' because by foods are signified the celestial things which are of the good of love and faith, and thus intelligence and wisdom; which are also called heavenly foods in common conversation, and are, moreover, meant by 'foods' in the Word. Refs. . . These things are sometimes presented to view in Heaven by a table, on which are foods of every kind.

10283⁶. See FIRE.

10362². 'To prepare food (on the Sabbath day)' = to teach themselves from their Own intelligence.

10385. Concerning food (the Spirits of the Sixth Earth) said that they eat fruits and vegetables, and drink milk with water.

H. 111. The foods which are from (plants), especially those which are from the harvested grain of the field, correspond to the affections of good and truth, because these nourish the spiritual life as earthly foods nourish the natural life.

C. J. 77. (The Africans in the Spiritual World) told me that their little children frequently ask their nurses for food, saying that they are hungry; and when foods are set before them, they examine and taste them to see whether they are suitable, but eat little; and from which it is evident that it is spiritual hunger, which is a longing to know genuine truths, that causes this. D.6095.

L. 27. 'Meat' (John vi.27)=all the truth and good of doctrine from the Word, thus from the Lord.

W. 334. The Angels are nourished gratis, for food is given them daily.

370^e. Hence . . . man requires to be nourished by material food.

P. 321⁷. It is like the pleasure in the appetite for food which a man has once found to be wholesome for him.

R. 122. Good without truths is like bread and food without wine and water, which do not nourish.

153⁷. As they do their work, so they receive food . . . —¹⁰. 531⁴. E.1194².

—7. The foods there are like the foods in our world, but are from a spiritual origin; and they are given to all from Heaven by the Lord according to the uses which they perform; but they are not given to the idle, because they are useless.

224³. There is no animal which does not know the food of its own life when it sees it; and as man is a rational and spiritual animal, he sees the food of his life, not that of his body but that of his soul, which is the truth of faith, provided he hungers for it, and seeks it from the Lord.

M. 6⁵. In Heaven equally as in the world there are meats and drinks.

—^e. Heavenly food in its essence is nothing but love, wisdom, and use together, that is, use through wisdom from love; on which account to everyone in Heaven there is given food for the body according to the use which he performs . . . E.1226².

D. 178. On the food and drink of Spirits. . . Their food and drink are spiritual, namely, they constantly long to know whatever comes up, and are scarcely ever content. The food of the celestial Angels is love, and at the same time the intelligence of truth and good . . . The food of Spirits, who are affections of speaking, consists of a number of affections according to their nature; and their drink is the cupidities of knowing . . . 1055. 1056.

1055. All Knowledges are spiritual foods; but the quality of them is Known from the end. Ex.

2084. That kinds of repugnance are observed among those who partake of foods which are repugnant to them.

3564. That the Knowledges of faith are the food of Spirits.

—^e. (Thus) the Knowledges of truth and the affections of good are the true foods of Spirits.

3566. See EAT.

[D. 3566]^e. As there are Spirits with every man, and they do not know that they are Spirits separated from the man, they, together with the spirit of the man, enjoy their food, when the body of the man enjoys its food.

4117. (How a man can persuade himself to like any kind of food.)

4729. See Doc.

6046. They (who are in faith alone) have little food, because food corresponds to intelligence, which they have not.

6088. On food in the Spiritual World. J.(Post.)341.

— They eat and drink there as in the natural world, but all the food there is from a spiritual origin, and therefore is not prepared, but is given daily. When it is dinner-time and supper-time, there appears a table with foods . . . and it disappears when they have dined or supped.

—². All are fed according to their functions . . . food is given to everyone according to the works which he performs: he who has no employment, business, or work, receives no food, but begs. I have seen great people so begging because they did not want to work, and ladies of distinction too. I have seen great people who in the world had lived in splendour, receiving nothing but bread and milk, and when they complained that they did not receive more, they were told that they had not done any work, and that no food is given to the lazy and those who pass their time in idleness; and so they were reduced to perform some low employment in order to be fed. They also go to those who labour, and eat with them by begging for it, but this does not last long. Bread can be bought in the proper places, but not food . . .

—⁴. In the Hells all are driven to their works, and they who do not work receive no food, garments, or bed. J.(Post.)230.

—⁵. The food cannot be preserved until the morrow: there is a maggot bred in it as in the manna . . . J.(Post.)337.

—⁶. As the food is from a spiritual origin, and is in itself spiritual, and as Spirits and Angels are men, and are endowed with a spiritual body, therefore such spiritual nourishment is of service to them . . . And as all things which appear in the Spiritual World correspond to the affections and thence to the thoughts of the understanding . . . food is given only according to correspondences . . .

—⁷. I have seen their food as manifestly as the like food in our world, food of every kind, together with various dainties. There are also table ornaments which cannot be described in natural language.

D. Min. 4613. If anyone believes that a food which he has loved is injurious to him, and then on principle abstains from that food, he at last abhors it.

E. 235. The food which man takes corresponds to Knowledges. . . That 'food' from its correspondence = Knowledges and the derivative intelligence. Refs. Because Knowledges nourish the internal man: or spirit, as foods nourish the external man or body. Refs.

314⁷. 'He fed on the produce of the fields' (Deut. xxxii. 13) = that they were instructed in all truth and good.

329². Spiritual food is all the good which is communicated and given to man by the Lord; and spiritual drink is all the truth which is communicated and given to man by the Lord.

—³. Spiritual nourishment is from the good and truth which proceed from the Lord, as all the nourishment of the body is from food and drink; and therefore there is a correspondence between them, which is of such a nature that wherever anything of food or that serves for food is mentioned in the Word, good is meant; and wherever anything of drink or that serves for drink is mentioned, truth is meant.

336⁷. 'Garners' and 'food' (Ps. cxliv. 13) = the goods and truths of the Church; for spiritual foods are the Knowledges of truth and good, through which comes intelligence.

374². That foods of every kind = spiritual food, thus the things which belong to knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom, and therefore the good and truth from which these come. Refs. 375³⁷.

386. Food and drink = all things which nourish and support the spiritual life, which in general are the Knowledges of truth and good . . . Moreover, natural foods correspond to spiritual foods; as bread to the good of love, wine to the truths thence derived, and all other meats and drinks, to their own goods and truths in special.

—². 'The food of fire' = consumption by the love of evil.

—⁸. 'To be meat for the beast of the earth' (Jer. xvi. 4) = damnation through evils.

388⁷. 'To become meat' (Ezek. xxxiv. 5) = to be consumed.

413³. Those belonging to the Church, who possess all spiritual food, or knowledge of good and truth from the Word. Sig.

430¹⁵. Feeding = spiritual nourishment by the Lord.

475⁶. A platter is a containant of food, and . . . food has a like signification to bread, namely, good.

514¹¹. 'Meat' (Ps. civ. 27) = knowledge and intelligence.

537¹⁹. By spiritual food is meant instruction in truths and goods, whence come intelligence and wisdom.

617⁴. When the Lord wills, spiritual food, which is also real food for Spirits and Angels, is turned into natural food. Ill.

—¹⁴. 'To feed with the heritage of Jacob' (Is. lviii. 14) = to endow with all things of Heaven and the Church.

622. By food is signified everything which nourishes the soul.

650³⁰. 'In it was meat for all' (Dan. iv. 12) = the heavenly nourishment which is from good and the derivative truths.

—³⁷. 'The meat which is cut off from the house of God' (Joel. i. 16) = the spiritual nourishment which is from the truths which are from good.

730²⁰. Instruction by the Lord is signified by feeding. Ill.

—³⁵. That the Lord meanwhile supports man with spiritual food and drink, which are the goods and truths of Heaven, is signified by His feeding them with manna . . .

739⁸. 'Good for food' (Gen.ii.9)=that which conduces to the nourishment of the mind.

794³. Food=the good of the Word and of doctrine. 960¹³.

990. By foods and drinks are signified the goods and truths which nourish the natural mind.

1084³. (The economy of the food.)

—⁶. As the food of the body . . . corresponds to the food of the soul, which is knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom.

1193^e. By food is meant everything internal which nourishes the soul.

J. (Post.) 337. On foods.

338. Some are fed at the tables of others, but they who are evil and idle sit at the table and do not see the food.

Inv. 56. Hence (after His resurrection) the Lord ate and drank with the disciples from natural foods.

Food. Esca.

A. 58. 'Every green herb for meat' (Gen.i.58).

59. The reason the green herb alone is here mentioned as food for the natural man. Ex. (See FOOD-cibus, here.)

H. 479⁵. As animals . . . know their own foods . . . P.317^e.

P. 233³. The memory may be compared to the ruminatory stomach of some animals, into which they swallow their foods, and which, so long as they are there, are not in their bodies . . .

Food. Victus.

A. 1480. See FOOD-cibus.

3478². In (the bread of faces) they perceived the food by which the Angels live, thus celestial and spiritual love with their happinesses.

3957⁴. Man there leaves behind him . . . cares for food . . .

6936. Everyone ought to take thought for his body in respect to food and clothing . . . to the end that there may be a sound mind in a sound body; and everyone ought to take thought for his mind in respect to food, namely, in respect to such things as are of intelligence and wisdom, to the end that it may thus be in a state fit for serving the Lord; he who does this takes good thought for himself to eternity. T.406.

8956. (The inhabitants of Saturn) are but little solicitous about food and clothing; they eat-rescuntur-fruits and vegetables of various kinds, which their Earth produces.

9003. 'Her food, her raiment, and her duty of marriage, shall he not diminish' (Ex.xxi.10)=no deprivation of the interior life, which is 'food,' nor of the exterior life, which is 'raiment' . . . 'Food'=the sustenance of the interior life; for food, that is, food-cibus and drink, in the spiritual sense,=the Knowledges of good and truth; food-cibus, the Knowledges of good, and drink, the Knowledges of truth; and therefore 'food'=the things which nourish the spiritual life of man. Refs.

10160. What need is there of more, said (the Spirits of the Second Earth), than to have food and clothing?

P. 220⁵. Temporary things . . . relate to the necessities of man, which are food, clothing, and habitation. These are put off . . . by death, and such things are put on as are like them in respect to the external appearance, but not as to . . . the essence.

R. 153¹⁰. As they labour, so is food given them from Heaven.

D. Love xii³. The necessities of life which are given gratis by the Lord, and which come forth in a moment, are food, clothing, and habitation, which exactly correspond to the use in which the Angel is.

Fool. Fatuus.

Foolish. Fatuus.

Folly. Fatuitas.

See under STUPID.

A. 1644. These more subtle evil Spirits . . . are like fools.

3834^e. Like an ignis fatuus. 4419².

4214². The other comes from foolish lumen.

—³. The case with foolish lumen there. Ex.

—⁴. Such is the case with those who are in foolish lumen . . .

5128^e. The things in the centre are in . . . a fatuous lumen, like that from a charcoal fire.

10675^e. He who sees only from the world, sees from a foolish lumen.

H. 54^e. When in Heaven (these Spirits) became like fools.

464⁴. Some of those (who had crammed the memory only) were stupid, some were fools . . .

481². They who are corporeal loves are stupid and as it were fools.

506². They who have lived in evil . . . and have consequently denied the Divine . . . in the other life appear . . . like fools. Des.

S. 118. They who ascribe all things to their Own intelligence . . . at first become like drunkards, afterwards like fools, and at last stupid. T.276^e.

W. 162. From this may be seen the folly of those who ascribe all things to nature.

P. 98. Every man, unless born silly, or excessively stupid, can attain to reason and freedom themselves.

—². Freedom and rationality themselves cannot exist with those who are fools from birth; nor to those who have become fools afterwards, so long as they remain fools.

318⁸. The difference is as that between fatuous light and genuine light; and, in the Spiritual World, fatuous light is of such a nature, that when genuine light flows in, it is turned into darkness; such fatuous light exists with many in Hell . . .

R. 566². They were told that they see it in fatuous light. They asked what fatuous light is; and were informed that fatuous light is the light of the confirmation of falsity . . . —³.

M. 77⁵. If they are whoremongers, they are cast out into the fatuous lights of the south, (which are) falsifications of truth.

252. Actual foolishness—stultitia, and silliness (a cause of lawful separation).

269. While men are in (their natural concupiscence), they are like fools, and yet seem to themselves to be wise in the highest degree. From this folly they are by turns let into their Rational, which, with them, is in externals . . .

I. 4¹. Into what blindness, thick darkness, and fatuity they may fall . . . Into fatuity, because the man still thinks, but from natural things concerning spiritual . . . thus idiotically, foolishly—stulte, and fatuitously-fatue.

T. 40². Then all that he thinks, reasons and speaks about God, Heaven, and the Church, is done in folly, because in darkness . . . For . . . when the lumen of the world is separated from the light of higher things, it is fatuous light, in which falsities appear like truths . . .

69. Into the fatuous light of Hell.

94⁶. Becomes sensuous corporeal, which, regarded in itself, is fatuous light.

110. I saw an ignis fatuus in the air . . . When the Sun rose it disappeared, as is the case with all fatuous fire.

135³. I thought to myself, What fatuity! 137⁷.

155. It may appear clear from confirmations: but this is from fatuous light . . .

169. What is speech then but silly!

176. They open their eyes to sensuous things, which are in the fatuous light of the bodily senses.

335. I saw deceptive lights in diverse forms . . .

346⁶. Nyctalopia is sight in the dark from a deceptive light.

385³. This cold emanated from the fatuous light of their faith . . . After sunset travellers see such a fatuous and cold light.

484. Who does not see the inanity, I do not want to say the folly, in these things!

503⁹. What madness to speak so! It is folly upon folly.

758⁶. It is not Known whether the light is fatuous, such as exists in dreams . . .

759². A falling star is a meteor composed of fatuous light. . .

—³. What lunatic does not believe his own folly to be wisdom, and wisdom to be folly? Who can by eyesight distinguish the false light of rotten wood from the light of the moon?

D. 2934. Their fatuous state was such . . .

3950⁶. Occurs. 3955. 4748⁶. 4751. —⁶. 4847¹. 5011. 5201. 5479. 5935. D. Min. 4664. J. (Post.) 246. 248. 249. 350.

E. 252⁸. The prudent and foolish virgins = those who are in faith from love, and those who are in faith without love; in like manner as the prudent and foolish (builders) (Matt. vii. 24, 26).

1057⁶. Profaners of this kind are stupid and foolish in spiritual things, but in worldly ones are cunning and clever.

Fool. Stultus.

Foolish. Stultus.

Folly. Stultitia.

A. 44. He is compared to 'a foolish man' (Matt. vii. 26).

2477². They would become foolish—stultescerent—more and more . . .

4445. 'He had wrought folly in Israel' (Gen. xxxiv. 7) = what was illicit in their eyes.

4638³. 'Those who were foolish took their lamps and took no oil with them' = that they had not the good of charity in their truths. —⁴. —⁵. E. 187¹. 840². 860.

5718². Among fools they might be esteemed wise.

9229⁸. 'Ye fools and blind' . . . (Matt. xxiii. 19).

9278⁵. Those are foolish and delirious who are not in the good and truth of the Church . . .

W. 275³. Folly and insanity, which appear like wisdom and intelligence . . . constitute the middle degree in the Hells.

R. 387. The diabolical kingdom consists of those who are in the love of dominion from the love of self, and thence in folly; for . . . the folly thereof is opposite to celestial wisdom. (Whereas insanity is opposite to spiritual intelligence.)

M. 252. See Fool-fatuous.

D. 4352. Hypocrites and the deceitful are much more foolish and senseless—insipientes—than others.

4728². Occurs. D. Min. 4682.

E. 365²⁹. That afterwards they have no evil from falsity and falsity from evil, is signified by, 'Let them not turn again to folly' (Ps. lxxxv. 8).

386²¹. 'The fool speaks folly . . .' (Is. xxxii. 6). He is here called 'a fool' who is in falsities and evils from the love of self, and thus from his Own intelligence; the falsities are meant by 'the folly' which he speaks . . . E. 750⁹.

560². Regarded in itself, cunning and wickedness . . . are insanity and folly; for they remove themselves from eternal happiness, and conjoin themselves with eternal unhappiness, which is the part of . . . a madman and a fool. Moreover, all things of heavenly wisdom are in thick darkness with them, and where this wisdom is thick darkness, there is folly.

650⁶³. 'The foolish people who have spurned His name' (Ps. lxxiv. 18) = the falsities which are contrary to the truths of doctrine; (for) those who are in falsities are 'a foolish people.'

675⁶. As where this marriage does not exist there is neither Heaven nor the Church, they are called 'foolish' who know the truths of faith and have not the good of love.

721¹³. That at last they will have no Knowledges of truth except falsified ones, is signified by, 'At his last end he shall be a fool' (Jer. xvii. 11).

746¹⁸. To say, 'Thou fool' = to utterly abhor.

1003³. With those who are in adulteries, in place of intelligence and wisdom . . . there are insanities and follies.

D. Wis. i⁵. I saw two ways, one called the way of wisdom and the other the way of folly . . .

Foolish. See DULL—stolidus, and FOLLY.

Foot. Pes.

See under HEEL, and SOLE.

A. 425⁶. Man's foot represents what is natural.

1276. The Hells are under the feet.

2161². 'The feet' = natural things.

2162. 'Wash your feet' (Gen. xviii. 4) = that the Divine should put on something natural. 2332.

—². That 'the feet' = natural things, may be evident from the representatives in the other life, and from the derivative representatives with the most ancient people, and so in the Word . . . III.

—⁷. The sense of the letter is signified by 'the feet.'

2714². The spiritual are signified by . . . 'those who are conjoined to His feet' (Deut. xxxiii. 3). 'The feet' = what is lower, thus what is more obscure, in the Lord's Kingdom.

2757. I came to an abode where heat took possession of the feet. I was told that those who had indulged in pleasures were there . . .

3147. 'Water to wash his feet' (Gen. xxiv. 32) = purification there . . . 'The feet' = natural things, or, what is the same, the things which are in the natural man. In the representative Church it was customary to wash the feet with water, and thereby to signify that the dirt of the natural man was washed off, (which is) all things of the love of self and of the world.

—⁸. 'He that is washed needeth not save to wash his feet' (John xiii. 10) = that he who is being reformed needs to be cleansed only as to natural things, that is, that evils and falsities be removed thence . . . Moreover to wash the feet was an act of charity, meaning that they did not reflect upon the evils of another; and it was also an act of humiliation, meaning that the man would cleanse another from evils, and as it were from dirt. 3148. 7442². 10047⁵.

3148. It was customary for travellers to wash their feet when they entered any house. III.

3481. (The Jews) appear under the plane of the left foot.

3637⁶. Cast under the feet, thus outside the Grand Man.

3641. The infernals (appear) feet upwards.

3750. They are under the feet in Hell.

3761. 'Jacob lifted up his feet' (Gen. xxix. 1) = the elevation of the Natural.

—². It is from correspondence with the Grand Man that the feet = the Natural, or natural things . . . In the Grand Man, those belong to the province of the feet who are in natural light and but little in spiritual light. Hence it is that the things which are beneath the feet, as the sole and the heel, = the lowest natural things; and a shoe . . . the corporeal Natural, which is the ultimate.

3986. 'Jehovah hath blessed thee at my foot' (Gen. xxx. 30) = from the Divine which the Natural had.

4280. The feet, in the internal sense, = natural good.

4302⁶. By 'the foot which is to be cut off if it should offend' (Matt. xviii. 8), is meant the Natural which constantly sets itself in opposition to the Spiritual; and that it is to be destroyed if it attempts to weaken truths.

4382. 'To the foot of the work which is before me' (Gen. xxxiii. 14) = according to general things. . . It is said 'the foot of the work,' and afterwards 'the foot of the children,' because 'the foot' = the Natural. 4383.

4403². They who appear at the feet are they who are natural; and they who appear at the soles are grosser Spirits of the same kind.

4728. The Lower Earth is immediately under the feet . . .

4931. On the correspondence of the feet, etc., with the Grand Man. Gen. art.

4938. They who in the Grand Man correspond to the feet, soles, and heels, are they who are natural; and therefore 'the feet' in the Word = natural things; 'the soles,' lower natural things; and 'the heels,' the lowest natural things. For the celestial things in the Grand Man constitute the head, the spiritual things the body, and the natural things the feet . . .

4939. Once, when I was elevated into Heaven, it appeared to me as if my head were there, my body below, and my feet still lower. It was thence perceived how the higher and lower things with man correspond to the things in the Grand Man, and how the one flows into the other, namely the Celestial . . . into the Spiritual . . . and finally into the Natural . . . Hence it is evident that natural things are like feet on which higher things rest . . .

4940. They who are in the Lower Earth correspond to the feet and soles; their places, too, are under the feet and soles. . . They are such as had been in natural delight and not in spiritual.

4950. Under the left foot, a little to the left, are such as had attributed all things to nature . . . D. Min. 4722.

5013². The natural, that is, those with whom the Natural has dominated, appear in the light of Heaven feet upwards . . .

5051. It was shown that a communication exists (from the loins) through the feet with the soles and heels . . .

5060². He made spiral turnings about the feet, by which was represented that they wanted to insinuate themselves by such things in nature as are delightful.

5188^e. Their Hell is in a deep place under the right foot . . .

5328. 'And his foot' (Gen. xli. 44) = all the power in the Natural . . . For 'to lift up the foot' . . . = power; but . . . power in the Natural . . . The Ultimate Heaven relates to the feet. The reason . . . is . . . that it is natural.

[A.] 5394. These Hells are partly . . . under the right foot. D.2843^c.

5669. 'They washed their feet' (Gen.xliii.24)=the consequent purification of the Natural.

5714. He appeared under the feet.

5991. Spirits who rose up from the deep to the side of the sole of the right foot. 6318.

6015⁷. 'The feet'=the things which are of the Natural.

6372. 'A lawgiver from between his feet' (Gen.xlix. 10)=the truths which are from (the Celestial Kingdom) in lower things . . . It is said 'from between his feet,' that the truth from good may be signified; for that interior part of the feet, from its communication with the loins, has this signification.

6413². 'To make the feet like those of hinds' (Hab. iii.19)=the Natural in the freedom of the affections.

6436. The feet together with the soles = the outermost things.

6463. 'He gathered up his feet to the bed' (Gen.xlix. 33)=as to his lower things in which are interior things, to the good and truth of the lower Natural. 'To gather up the feet'=to betake himself to lower things. . . 'The feet'=the things which are of the Natural, thus which are lower things.

6669². 'Thy feet sunk in the mire' (Jer.xxxviii.22)=that the Natural is in evil.

6844. 'Put off thy shoes from off thy feet' (Ex.iii.5) = that the sensuous things which are the external things of the Natural were to be removed. . . 'The feet'=the Natural.

—^c. The Natural with man is external, middle, and internal; the internal Natural is signified by the feet, the middle Natural by the soles, and the external by the shoes.

6952⁶. The centre of gravity is where the Lord is in His Sun . . . thither are the feet of the infernals elevated.

7046. 'Made it touch his feet' (Ex.iv.25)=that the quality of the Natural at that time was shown.

7789. It is said 'the people that is at thy feet' (Ex. xi.8); for Moses represents truth Divine; and . . . 'at thy feet'=those who are beneath, thus who are subordinate; for 'the feet'=lower things, because they = natural things.

—^e. 'The people at his feet'=all and each who are in truth from the Divine.

7864. 'Feet'=what is natural.

9054. 'Foot for foot' (Ex.xxi.25)=if (they shall injure) anything of the power of natural truth.

9325¹⁰. 'The feet'=the things which are of the natural man; in general, what is natural. Refs.

9391². External or natural good was represented by the right foot.

9406. 'Under His feet' (Ex.xxiv.10)=the ultimate sense, which is the sense of the letter. 'The feet'=natural things; thus the soles, which are 'under the feet'=the ultimates of nature. 9873⁵.

—². As the Word in the letter is natural, and natural things are signified by 'the feet,' the ultimate of the Word, like the ultimate of the Church, is called 'the place of the feet of Jehovah,' and 'His foot stool.' III.

9514². Good is to truth as the body is to the arms and feet. Without the arms and feet, the body cannot move itself.

9538. 'Which are for the four feet thereof' (Ex.xxv. 26)=in the natural sphere. . . 'Feet'=what is natural. Refs.

9643². The bases (of the boards) correspond to the feet and soles of the feet in man; in general to the bones . . . and by the feet and by the bones is in like manner signified truth supporting. . . 'The feet'=what is natural, thus truth in power from good. Refs.

9741⁶. 'The place of the soles of My feet' (Ezek.xliii. 7)=the Ultimate Heaven.

9836². All preservation depends on the state of the ultimates . . . Ultimates are as the soles and the feet, on which the whole body rests . . . Hence it is, that . . . the soles and the feet correspond to the ultimates of Heaven.

9872. The wheels of the cherubs have a like signification to that of the arms and feet in man, namely, the power of acting, and of making progress, which is of truth from good.

10005. The feet correspond to the Ultimate Heaven, where there is natural good.

10030³. The 'feet' (of Nebuchadnezzar's statue)=the last state of the Church.

—⁶. In general . . . the feet=natural good, which is the good and truth of faith. Refs.

10044². As ultimate things=all things, or the whole . . . the feet are also taken for them.

10087. The feet correspond to the good of faith, thus to the good of obedience, which is the good of the Ultimate Heaven, and is called the Divine Natural.

10185. All the representatives in nature have reference to the human form; as . . . the foundation of a house (which) has a like signification to that of the feet and the soles.

10241. 'His hands and his feet' (Ex.xxx.19)=the interiors and exteriors of man. . . For when both hands and feet are mentioned, there is signified whatever is in the internal and also in the external man, or spiritual and natural things. Hence it is that 'to lift up the hand'=power in the Spiritual; and 'to lift up the foot,' power in the Natural. Besides, by the extremes of man are signified all things of him, and the extremes are the hands and feet. Hence it is evident why Aaron and his sons washed their hands and feet when they entered the Tent of the Assembly, or approached the altar to minister.

10362. 'To turn the foot from the Sabbath' (Is.lviii. 13)=such things as are of the natural man.

H. 29. The three Heavens . . . follow each other and subsist among themselves as the . . . head . . . the body . . . and the feet.

65^e. The Ultimate Heaven forms the feet down to the soles, and also the arms down to the fingers. T.6o8.

96^e. They who are in the feet are in the ultimate good of Heaven, which good is called spiritual natural.

97. Hence it is that . . . by 'the feet' (in the Word) is signified what is natural.

R. 49. 'His feet like unto fine brass, as if glowing in a furnace' (Rev.i.15)=Divine natural good. 'The feet' of the Lord=His Divine Natural. . .

—². In Heaven, they who are in . . . the Divine Natural constitute the feet.

— The feet, soles, and heels correspond to the natural things in man, and therefore, in the Word, signify natural things. . .

—³. Divine natural good is also signified by 'the feet' in the following passages.

—⁴. As the Lord's Church is beneath the Heavens, and is thus under the Lord's feet, it is called 'the footstool of His feet.' Ill.

—⁵. 'To wash the feet'=to purify the natural man; and when this is purified, the whole man is purified. E.666^e.

—⁶. As 'the feet'=the Natural of man, and this perverts all things if it is not purified, the Lord says, 'If thy foot cause thee to offend, cut it off' . . .

—⁷. By His 'feet' is meant the Word in the natural sense.

183^e. To receive and acknowledge truths is signified by 'to come and worship at thy feet' (Rev.iii.9); not at theirs, but at the Lord's feet, from whom they have the truths from good. (The same is signified in Ps.xcix.5.)

468. 'His feet as pillars of fire' (Rev.x.1)=the Lord's Divine Natural as to Divine love, which supports all things.

470. 'He set his right foot upon the sea, and his left upon the earth' (ver. 2)=that the Lord has the universal Church under His auspices and dominion. . . 'To set his feet upon them'=to have all things subject to Himself.

510. 'They stood upon their feet' (Rev.xi.11)=natural life agreeing with spiritual life, and thus to be vivified by the Lord. . . By 'standing upon the feet' the external of man is signified. . . Every man is reformed first as to his internal man . . . (and then) the external man is reformed by speaking and doing the things which the internal man wills and loves. . . Man is not regenerated before, because (then) his internal . . . is like a man without feet to stand and walk upon. . . This is what is signified by the two witnesses standing upon their feet, after the spirit of life from God had entered into them. Ill. (=new life. E.666, Ill.)

533. 'The moon under her feet' (Rev.xii.1)=the Church about to be on earth, which is the new Jerusalem.

— The moon was seen 'under the woman's feet,' because the Church on earth is meant, which was not yet conjoined with the Church in the Heavens. . .

Generally, the Church itself, when conjoined, is signified by 'the feet.'

M. 44^a. The new comers undergo a change, and in the eyes of the Angels appear . . . with feet like those of calves or leopards.

263. Instead of feet (the devil) had bony ankles without flesh.

264. The ankles of his feet were like two vipers.

T. 383. So long as a man lives in this world . . . Hell is under his feet. . .

Ad. 2/1660. On the washing of feet. 3/2121. 3007.

D. 1913. That (creatures) with many feet signify the more insane devils.

2923. (Stumbling with the foot is caused by evil Spirits.)

3202. That in the left foot up to the knee dwell those who being natural correspond to the celestial.

3295. On a sea beneath the feet.

3550. I perceived cold . . . from the sole of the foot, through the foot up to the knee . . . first in the right foot, and then in the left. . . The Spirits who rose up through the right foot were such as had lived in absolute ignorance . . . such as exist among the lowest of the people . . . And those who ascended so cold through the left foot were in like manner from the lowest of the people, but who had utterly denied the life after death . . . 3551.

3605^e. When thinking of places they drew back the foot . . .

3852. Order is terminated in material things; and when some Spirits lose them . . . they seem to themselves to lose their feet.

3935. I supposed it was a foot for these Spirits to stand upon.

4632. The Sirens descended into the Hell which is before the left foot . . . 4633^e. 4634.

5216. They inflowed into the lowest parts of the left foot, because they were more sensuous than the rest.

5972. They who are in the feet do not perceive as the rest do . . .

E. 65³. As the Ultimate Heaven corresponds to the feet, by 'the feet' is signified the good of natural love from spiritual love, which is the good of faith; because this good reigns there and makes that Heaven.

69. 'His feet like unto burnished brass, as if glowing in a furnace'=the ultimate of Divine order, which is the Natural, full of Divine love. (153.) 'The feet'=the Natural; therefore, in reference to the Lord, the ultimate of Divine order, because that is the Natural. —², Ex. —³, Ill.

212. 'To come and worship at thy feet'=to be outside of Heaven and to want to be admitted but not to be able.

240³. 'To unshoe the soles of the feet' (Is.xx.2)=to reveal the filthy things of nature.

279². The right foot=the Natural as to good.

282². See WING.

[E.] 298¹⁴. The right hand and the right foot = the intelligence and power of truth from good in the internal man and in the external.

405¹². 'The feet' = the natural man. 475⁷.

433⁴. 'Nor a lawgiver from between his feet' = that neither shall the truths of the Word recede from its ultimate sense.

438⁵. The good of love from which are the truths of the Word in the sense of the letter, is signified by 'Let him dip his foot in oil' (Deut. xxxiii. 24).

455⁸. 'To stand upon their feet' (Zech. xiv. 12) means upon the bones without the flesh, by which is signified that they will become utterly corporeal natural. 'The feet' = the things which are of the natural man; here, the lowest things of it.

475⁴. 'To wash the hands and feet' = to purify the natural man.

513¹⁰. 'See My hands and My feet' (Luke xxiv. 39) . . . By the hands and the feet are signified the ultimates of man. 619¹⁵.

556⁵. 'He stamped the residue with his feet' (Dan. vii. 7) = that the things which they could not pervert and destroy they defiled and obliterated by the evils of natural and corporeal loves.

584⁴. 'The feet' = the things which are of the natural man; therefore 'to stand upon them' (Zech. xiv. 12) = to live from these things alone.

600. 'He set his right foot upon the sea, and his left upon the earth' = the sense of the letter which is natural, in which are all things of Heaven and the Church. 'The feet,' when predicated of the Angel, by whom is meant the Lord as to the Word, = Divine truth in ultimates, or the Word in the natural sense. . . 'The feet,' in the general sense, = natural things, because man, from head to the soles of the feet corresponds to Heaven . . . and the feet correspond to the Ultimate Heaven, the Angels of which are celestial natural and spiritual natural; whereas the soles of the feet correspond to the world, in which everything is natural.

606. The dominion of the Lord over all things of Heaven and the Church is meant by, 'Thou hast put all things under his feet' (Ps. viii. 6).

—'. 'The place of the Lord's feet,' in the general sense, = all things of Heaven and the Church, because the Lord as a Sun is above the Heavens. But, in the particular sense, by 'the place of His feet' is signified the Church; for the Lord's Church is with men in the natural world, and the Natural is the ultimate in which the Divine ceases, and upon which it subsists. Hence the Church on earth is also called 'the stool of the feet of Jehovah.' Ill.

622⁸. To walk there upon the earth with the feet, is to touch and draw in the exhalations from the Hells with the corporeal Natural, which corresponds to the soles of the feet . . .

632⁴. 'To tread down with your feet the residue of your pasture' (Ezek. xxxiv. 18) = to destroy so that it does not exist, which is done by reasonings from the corporeal Sensuous, and from the natural man separated from the spiritual. This, therefore, is 'to tread down with the feet.'

—'. 'To disturb the residue of the waters with your feet' (id.) = to confuse the truths not defiled with falsities by means of reasonings from the natural man.

701¹¹. When by the Lord is meant the Word, by His 'feet' is meant the Word in its ultimates, that is, in the sense of its letter.

708. 'The moon under her feet' = faith with those who are natural and in charity.

—^e. The reason the moon was seen under the feet, is that those who are in the Heavens which are under the Lord as a Moon have nothing in common with those who are in the Heavens which are under the Lord as a Sun . . .

717¹⁴. 'The work of a sapphire stone under His feet' (Ex. xxiv. 10) = Divine truth in ultimates, such as is the Word in the letter; for the soles of the feet = the ultimate, which alone could be seen by the Jewish nation.

730¹⁶. 'Their foot did not swell' (Deut. viii. 4) = that the natural man was not injured by these afflictions.

781¹⁰. As 'the feet' = natural things, the 'feet of the bear' (Rev. xiii. 2) = the fallacies from which by means of reasonings they falsify the sense of the letter . . . R. 573.

Foot, On. Pedissequus. T. 459². 480².

Footprint. Vestigium.

A. 859³. Nor does a trace of it appear in externals.

T. 561^e. They lead him away from his track . . .

D. 319³. No trace of life is observed.

E. 275¹³. 'Thy footprints were not known' (Ps. lxxvii. 19).

1065². The kissing of his footprints.

Footstool. Scabellum.

A. 1725^e. 'To make His enemies His footstool, etc. = the combats of temptations, and victories. 9809⁴. L. 14.

2162⁸. See EARTH-terra. 5313².

—⁹. The Jews supposed that the House of God and the Temple was the footstool.

9166². 'The footstool' = truth Divine below Heaven, such as is the Word in the sense of the letter; for on this rests and as it were stands truth Divine in Heaven, such as is the Word in the internal sense. Ill. 9406².

—⁴.

R. 49⁴. See Foot.

470. As the Lord's Church on earth is under the Heavens, it is called 'the footstool of His feet.' Ill. E. 606, Ill. 608⁹.

T. 121². When the footstool of the Angels, which is in the World of Spirits, was taken away from them . . .

E. 69⁴. As the feet of the Lord = the ultimate of Divine order, and this specifically is the external of the Church, of worship, and of the Word, this external is called in the Word 'His footstool.' Ill.

298⁸. 'To put them for a footstool' = to completely subjugate. Ill. 850¹².

413⁵. 'The footstool of Jehovah' = the worship of the Lord in the natural world. Ex.

684²⁷. 'His footstool' (Ps. xxxii. 7) = the things which are of the natural sense of the Word; thus, also, the Church; for in the Church there are Divine truths in their ultimates, which serve as a footstool to the spiritual things of the Word and of the Heavens, and thus to the Lord Himself, who dwells therein. 700⁹.

687⁸. 'Until I put Thine enemies for the footstool of Thy feet' (Ps. cx. 1; Mark xii. 36) . . . 'The footstool of the feet' = the lowest region under the Heavens, beneath which are the Hells.

For. Pro.

D. 6110⁶⁵. (The difference between fear of a wife and fear for a wife.)

For ever. See under AGE-saeculum, and also under ETERNITY.

Foramen ovale. D. 2477.

Forbid. See INHIBIT, and PROHIBIT.

Forbidden. Vetitus.

A. 1947. We strive after what is forbidden. N. 271^e

Force. See under COMPEL, and COMPRESS.

Force. Vis.

A. 1607^e. With His Own power, and His Own forces. 2025⁵.

1661³. Which man cannot resist with his own forces.

1712³. The Lord cannot inflow into anyone who deprives himself of everything into which the forces can be infused.

2025. The Lord (acted) from His Own forces. —².

2177⁴. That they loved with all their forces, or with all their soul. Sig.

3628². There are always two forces which keep everything in its connection and in its form; a force acting from without, and a force acting from within, in the midst of which is that which is being so kept. Examps. . . . Unless to these forces there were corresponding internal forces, which should react against those external ones, and thus keep the intermediate forms in connection and equilibrium, they would not subsist a moment. Hence it is evident that there must be two forces in order that anything may come forth and subsist. The forces which inflow and act from within are from Heaven, and through Heaven from the Lord, and have life in them. Examps. . . . And so with all the rest of the organs and members in the human body; there are forces acting outside which are natural and in themselves not living, and there are forces acting within which in themselves are living, which keep each one together, and cause them all to live, and this according to the form which has been given them for their use.

3887^e. All force and action (are from the good of love and the truth of faith).

4031². He supposes that the Lord . . . can save everyone . . . by Angels who . . . shall impel to good by a manifest strong force. —³.

4076. 'With all my power I have served your father' (Gen. xxxi. 6) = that it was from His Own power.

4933. The forces and powers of the whole body and of all its viscera have reference to (the hands, arms, and shoulders).

4937. The forces are (thus) driven back.

5113². This (is done) by a higher force.

5116². From influx there is endeavour; from endeavour there is force; and from force there is effect.

—³. They say that (it is) from a force implanted at the creation. 5173².

5173³. This force, or this endeavour, in action or motion, is what is spiritual in what is natural; for thinking and willing are spiritual . . .

5189^e. One force acting in the extremes is capable of manifold variation, and this according to the form there.

5259^e. The same power and force produces different motions according to the constructions in the mediates and extremes . . .

5557^e. They are only passive forces . . .

5704. In good there is life, thus a living force acting.

5758. Withheld from evil . . . by a mighty force. 6945³. 7206^e. 7989.

5854². Could keep man in good ends by omnipotent force.

6225. New forces through spiritual good. Sig.

—^e. The external of the Church . . . receives forces from no other source than its internal.

6343. 'Strength' = the power of good; and 'forces,' the power of truth . . . For the word by which 'forces' is expressed in the Original Language, in the Word is predicated of truth. 6344, Ill.

6344. 'The beginning of my forces' (Gen. xlix. 3) = that thereby truth has the first power. E. 434¹⁷.

6367. Innocence with innate forces. Sig.

6465. (Thus) in the posterior are all prior things in their order: the case is the same with the modes and forces which proceed from them . . .

6655^e. They have a hidden strong power to attract minds.

6663. All the power to resist had been from the Lord.

7754. For anything to be produced there must be two forces, one called active, and the other passive . . . Such forces or lives are charity and faith in the man of the Church.

8168. Two forces or powers act into them, one from the falsities injected by the Hells into the external man, the other from the truths insinuated by the Lord into the internal man. These two forces act mutually against each other; the falsities . . . have their force and power from the love of self and of the world in the man; but the truths . . . have their force and power from love towards the neighbour and to the Lord. When the man conquers, the internal force and power always prevails, because this is Divine; neither does it permit the force or power from falsities to be increased further than that it can be repelled. When, therefore, these two forces are acting, the internal force which is from the Lord continually as it were draws back the man . . . For it is a general rule that when two opposite forces are acting, the one draws and the other withdraws. In the Spiritual World forces are the affections which are of the loves, and the instruments by which they act are truths (or) falsities.

[A.] 8172. He who believes that when tempted he is able to resist from his own strength, yields.

8176. That from their own strength they will not effect anything. Sig.

8226. 'The sea returned to its strength' (Ex.xiv.27).

8603⁴. The forms or substances recipient of life are subjects, and the things which result from their changes and modifications are forces, which ought to be called lives, because they are living forces.

8710. Those who have forces from the truths which are from good. Sig.

9028. The forces of life in him. Sig.

—. 'A staff' = the power which is of truth, thus forces.

9473². The internal of motion is endeavour, or moving force.

9936⁴. 'Thou shalt love Jehovah . . . with all thy might' (Deut.vi.5) . . . = from the things which are of the understanding and will in the external man.

H. 3. As if destitute of strength in the joints.

432^e. Just as the instrument serves the living moving force.

455. Evil Spirits . . . have frequently been turned by Divine force . . .

537. For when, from their equal opposition, two things have no force, the force of a third does all . . .

589. Equilibrium exists between two forces, of which the one acts and the other reacts.

—². All manifestation, that is, every effect, takes place in equilibrium, but takes place by this, that the one force acts and the other suffers itself to be acted upon, that is, that the one force by acting flows in, and the other receives and yields in a fitting manner. In the natural world, that which acts and that which reacts is called force, and also endeavour; but in the Spiritual World that which acts and that which reacts is called life and will; life, there, is living force, and will is living endeavour, and the equilibrium itself is called freedom.

W. 65. The end of all uses is the endeavour to produce those uses, and the beginning (of all uses) is the force acting from that endeavour.

157^e. (Thus) the actuality of the natural sun is . . . from the living force proceeding from the Sun of the Spiritual World.

166. For the dead force to act upon the living force, or, what is the same, for the Natural to act upon the Spiritual, is entirely contrary to order.

178. The atmospheres are the active forces, the waters are the middle forces, and the earths are the passive forces from which all effects come forth.

200^e. Perfection of forces is the perfection of all things which are actuated and moved through the agency of life, in which things, however, life is not. Such forces are the atmospheres as to actualities; and such forces also are the interior and exterior organic substances with man, and also with animals of every kind. Such forces also are all things in the natural world which get activities immediately and mediately from the sun there.

201. We shall not speak of the perfections of life, forces, and forms, increasing or decreasing according to the degrees of . . . continuity . . . but of the perfections of life, forces, and forms ascending or descending according to . . . discrete degrees.

205. In similar (successive) order are all the perfections of the forms and forces (in Heaven).

218. (See ENDEAVOUR, important passage.) 219^e. 311. D. 3291. 3891^e.

—^e. Such is the progression of endeavour, force, and motion into power.

219. Let there be an application of these things to living endeavour, and to living force, and to living motion. Living endeavour in man . . . is his will united to his understanding. The living forces in man are the things which interiorly constitute his body; in all of which there are motor fibres woven together in various ways. And living motion in man is action, which is produced through these forces by the will united to the understanding. Thus the interior things which belong to the will and understanding make the first degree; the interior things which belong to the body make the second degree; and the whole body . . . makes the third degree. That the interior things of the mind are in no power except through the forces in the body, and also that the forces are not in power except through the action of the body itself, is a recognized fact. These three do not act by continuity, but by discreteness, and acting by discreteness is acting by correspondences . . .

260. So if the membrane which invests the motor fibres of a muscle did not react against the forces of these fibres in motion . . . action would cease . . .

277. Actions . . . contain things innumerable; there are the forces of the motor fibres of the whole body in concurrence, and there are all things of the mind which excite and determine these forces; and these . . . of three degrees.

311. The atmospheres, in ultimates, become such (ultimate) forces, by which the substances and matters, such as are in earths, are actuated into forms . . .

315. The heat, light, and atmospheres of the natural world only open seeds . . . and put upon them matters which fix them; but not by any forces from their own sun, which viewed in themselves are null, but by forces from the spiritual Sun by which they are perpetually driven to these things. But the natural forces contribute absolutely nothing to giving them an image of creation; for the image of creation is spiritual.

316⁴. Because thousands and myriads of forces operating in act appear as one thing.

392^e. As all the forces of the universe are from life . . .

P. 3³. In every such created thing force is implanted, but force does not perform anything from itself; but from him who implanted the force.

177. There would be two forces continually acting against each other; a force of evil from the man, and a force of good from the Lord . . .

M. 172. That the wife is conjoined with the husband through the appropriation of the powers of his virtue.

238². This propagative or plastic force in seeds . . . and in souls . . . is from the conjugal sphere . . . which perpetually emanates from the Lord . . .

I. 11. What is spiritual, as a living force, is active; and what is natural, as a dead force, is passive.

T. 438. No one can purify himself from evil from his Own power and from his Own forces; but still it cannot be done without the power and forces of the man, as his Own . . . (Thus) man . . . ought to resist evils from the power and forces which are given him by the Lord . . .

471. Which life (of God) may be called living force itself.

607². Regarded in itself, what is natural is passive, or a dead force, but what is spiritual is active, or a living force. The passive, or the dead force, cannot act from itself; but must be actuated by the active, or the living force.

Ad. 645. (On forces, active and passive.) 646. 647. 648. 653^e.

D. 159. On the general force of Spirits . . .

360. All must be passive forces to which active forces, as reagents, correspond . . .

1723. The membranes . . . perform no other use that to act as passive forces, and to do whatever the active forces impress upon them.

2299. Spiritual things are not material, because they are forces from substances.

2318. Such is the flux of endeavours and forces everywhere to their centres, namely, by spirals from left to right . . .

2733^e. Believe . . . that the forces are not his, but the Lord's.

3000. On certain who want to do what is good from their Own strength.

3374. It is not the force of argument, as it is called . . .

3419^e. Therefore the whole Grand Man is a patient force, that is, a passive force, which is called dead in itself; and the Lord alone is the active agent, or living force. Hence the marriage.

3909. That evil Spirits acquire for themselves forces from numbers.

4063^e. The eyes and ears are passive and recipient forces, and the ether and air are active or acting forces.

5274. A Divine force compelled them . . . 6012².

D. Min. 4683. The Angels are in a perpendicular position . . . In this case, there is as it were a force acting from above to beneath . . .

E. 209⁴. Good without truths has no quality, and where there is no quality there is neither force nor power.

403⁷. 'The fig-tree and the vine shall yield their strength' (Joel ii. 22) = that they have natural good and spiritual good; for 'strength,' here, is the production of fruit.

555⁹. 'The women shall suffer violence' (Zech. xiv. 2) = that truths will be perverted, and thus the affections of truth will perish.

1004^e. Everything in which there is force wants to produce its like . . .

1146⁷. (Thus) everything comes forth, subsists, is actuated, and is moved from the First . . . who, in Himself, is a living force, which is life.

— Nothing can be actuated and moved unless it is in the midst between two forces, of which the one acts and the other reacts; thus, unless the one acts on the one side, and the other on the other; also, unless the one acts from within, and the other from without. And as these two forces, when at rest, make an equilibrium, it follows that nothing can be actuated and moved unless it is in equilibrium.

1147⁴. It shall be shown how evil and falsity can flow forth from Hell although there exists only one acting force, which is the life which is God.

1201². There is in everything spiritual a plastic force, where homogeneous exhalations are present in nature; and there is also in everything spiritual a propagative force . . .

1203^e. That a living force as the principal cause is the Spiritual, and a dead force as the instrumental cause is the Natural, will be seen in what follows.

1206³. Even to the ultimate, where the effecting force subsists.

—⁴ The presence of the sun, which appears as light, causes the activity of the forces or substances of every individual thing according to the form in which it is from creation. This is modification.

1207². The difference is, that the cause is a living force, because it is spiritual; whereas the effect therefrom is a dead force, because it is natural. Hence it is that in the natural world there exist such things as exactly accord with those which are in the Spiritual World.

1208⁴. The animal form derives an endeavour to such things from the First . . . This endeavour and consequent determination of all spiritual forces cannot exist and come forth from any other source . . .

—⁵ But the other form . . . in which are all plants, derives its origin from the endeavour and consequent flux of natural forces, which are the atmospheres, and are called the ethers, in which there is such an endeavour from the determination of the spiritual forces, which tends to the animal form; and from the continual operation of these into the natural forces, which are the ethers, and through them into the matters of the Earth, of which plants are composed. That this is its origin, is evident from . . . the likeness of the animal form which appears in them.

1209². In everything spiritual there are three forces; a force of acting, a force of creating, and a force of forming. There is a force of acting, because what is spiritual proceeds from the first fountain of all forces, which is the Sun of Heaven; and that Sun is the Lord's Divine love; and love is agency itself; and thence proceeds the living force which is life.

[E. 1209]³. The force of creating is the force of producing causes and effects from the beginning down to the end ; and advances from the First through the intermediates to the ultimates. The First is the Sun of Heaven . . . intermediates are spiritual things . . . And as at the creation of the universe this force advanced from the first to the ultimate, it advances afterwards in the same way, in order that productions may be continual . . . It matters not that the continuations are effected by means of seeds ; it is still the same creative force which produces . . .

—⁴. The force of forming is the ultimate force from the ultimates ; for it is the force of producing animals and plants from the ultimate matters of nature . . . The forces which are in nature from the origin of nature, which is the sun of the world, are not living forces, but are dead forces ; which are no other than as are the forces of heat in man and in animal, which keep the body in such a state that the will . . . and the understanding . . . can flow in and perform their acts in it ; nor are they any other than as are the forces of light in the eye, which only cause that the mind . . . may see by means of this its organ . . .

1210². That from the Spiritual, by means of these forces, there come forth plants and also animals ; both those which appear in Heaven, and those which appear in the world. The reason such things come forth also in Heaven, is that these forces are in the Spiritual in the greatest things and in the least, in the primes and in the ultimates of it ; thus in the Spiritual in both Heaven and the world . . .

—³. These three forces . . . are in the Spiritual in every degree thereof, but with a difference of perfection.

D. Love xi². Discrete degrees . . . are as a producing force is to the forces produced, which again become producing down to the ultimate product.

xx. The reason love produces heat, is that love . . . is the living force of all things in the universal world. There is no other origin of all the endeavours, forces, activities, and motions therein . . .

—². The reason love produces heat, is that it is the life of all the forces in the universe . . .

D. Wis. ii. See FIBRE.

Inv. 45. Correspondences . . . possess such force and virtue, that the Word may be called the force and virtue of the Divine omnipotence. 59.

Force one's way out. Eniti.

A. 1267. The antediluvians who try to emerge from that Hell . . . those who obstinately persist in forcing their way out . . . 1271.

827³. The endeavours of the Hells to force their way out appear like boilings up . . .

828³. It is said that they could not emerge . . . because being surrounded by their own falsities from evil, they can no longer force their way out . . .

W. 401^e. After the birth. 402^e.

D. 3267. This volume endeavoured to struggle upwards . . . but . . . they could not force their way out. 3268.

3584². They wanted to emerge, and to struggle out into the World of Spirits.

4854^e. Occurs. 4895^e.

Forebode. Ominari. T.638^e. D.2691.

Forehead. Frons.

See FOREHEAD—frontispicium, and FRONTLET.

A. 4046. A cold breathing into my forehead.

9936. 'It shall be upon the forehead of Aaron' (Ex. xxxviii.38)=from the Lord's Divine love . . . 'the forehead,' when predicated of the Lord, = His Divine love. Ex. 9939.

—¹. The reason the forehead specifically = the Divine love itself, is that the interiors have their allotted provinces in the face ; the interiors which are of love, in the province of the forehead . . .

—². As the forehead with man corresponds to his love, they who are in celestial love . . . are said to have a mark in their foreheads ; by which is signified that they are under the Lord's protection, because in His love. III.

—⁵. As the forehead . . . = celestial love with the good, so with the evil it = internal love which is opposite to celestial. III.

10061^e. 'The forehead' (Rev.xiii.16)=the love of evil from which comes falsity.

10217⁷. 'The forehead'=love.

H. 145. The Lord sees the Angels in the forehead . . . because the forehead corresponds to love, and the Lord through love flows into their will . . . P. 29.

251. The influx of the Lord Himself with man is into his forehead, and thence into the whole face ; because man's forehead corresponds to love.

332. This Heaven (of infants) appears in front, opposite the forehead . . . because all little children are under the immediate auspices of the Lord . . .

R. 347. 'To seal on their foreheads' (Rev.vii.3)= . . . to distinguish and separate those who are in the good of love ; for 'the forehead'=the good of love . . . The reason 'the forehead'=the good of love, is that the face is the image of man's affections ; and the forehead is the highest part of the face. The brain, from which is the origin of all things of man's life, is directly under the forehead. As 'the forehead'=love—good love with the good, and evil love with the evil—by sealing on the forehead is signified to distinguish and separate the one from the other according to the love. III. E.427.

—². The Lord looks at the Angels in their foreheads, and they in turn look at the Lord through the eyes ; because the Lord looks at all from the good of love, and wills that they in turn should look at Him from the truths of wisdom. 380².

—^e. 'The forehead,' in the opposite sense, = evil love. III.

363². They who constitute the first class of the tribes, are those who correspond to the forehead down to the eyes.

426. 'They that have not the seal of God on their foreheads' (Rev.ix.4)=those who are not in charity and the derivative faith ; for 'the forehead'=love and charity.

605^e. 'The forehead' (Rev.xiii.16)=the whole of man as to voluntary power, and thus as to love; for 'the forehead'=love.

613. 'Having His Father's name written on their foreheads' (Rev.xiv.1)=their acknowledgment of the Lord's Divine and Divine Human from love and faith.

—'. 'The forehead'=love, and the derivative intelligence or faith.

634. 'To receive the mark (of the beast) on the forehead and on the hand' (Rev.xiv.9)=to receive (that doctrine) in love and faith, and to confirm one's self in it.

729. 'Upon her forehead there was a name written' (Rev.xvii.5)=... what is implanted in the love. (=her quality as to love. E.1046.)

938. 'They shall see His face, and His name shall be in their foreheads' (Rev.xxii.4)=that they will turn themselves to the Lord, and the Lord will turn Himself to them, because they are conjoined by love.

—². 'The name of the Lord in their foreheads'=that the Lord loves them, and turns them to Himself. ... 'The forehead'=love; and 'written in the forehead'=the love of the Lord in them.

—³. The reason it is that they will turn themselves to the Lord, and that the Lord will turn Himself to them, is that the Lord looks at all who are conjoined with Him by love in the forehead, and thus turns them to Himself.

D. 4032. The higher parts of my forehead, towards the beginnings of the nose, and the entire forehead together with the upper part of the nose, were filled with the heat of a bath. Ex.

E. 148⁴. The forehead corresponds to love, and therefore signifies it.

242². The Lord looks at Angels and men in the forehead; and they look at the Lord through the eyes. The reason is that the forehead corresponds to the good of love, and the eyes to the understanding enlightened thence. 427.

412³. 'I have made thy forehead strong against their foreheads' (Ezek.iii.8)=the rejection of evil by means of good. ... For 'the forehead'=the affection of good and the affection of evil. The affection of truth and of good is strengthened and hardened outwardly from zeal when it is fighting against falsity and evil; otherwise it would not repel it; but it is not hardened inwardly.

427⁷. As the forehead corresponds to the good of love, and therefore the Lord from Divine love looks at Angels and men in the forehead, it was commanded that a plate of pure gold, on which was written 'Holiness to Jehovah' should be put on the mitre of Aaron just over the forehead (Ex.xxviii.36-38). Ex.

—⁸. As 'the forehead'=the good of love, the sons of Israel were commanded to bind the commandment relating to love to Jehovah upon their foreheads (Deut. vi.8; xi.18; besides Ex.xiii.16). Its being said that they were 'for frontlets between the eyes,' was representative that the Lord looks at Angels and men in the forehead, because from Divine love; and gives Angels and men to look at Him from intelligence and wisdom

... That they were to bind them also upon the hands, represented ultimates. ... Thus 'upon the forehead and upon the hands'=in primes and in ultimates; (therefore) all things.

—⁹. On the other hand, 'the forehead'=that which is opposite to the good of love, namely, evil of love, and the consequent hardness, obstinacy, shamelessness, and infernalism. Ill.

546. 'To have the seal of God in their foreheads' (Rev.ix.4)=to be in truths from good from the Lord.

838. 'The forehead'=the good of love.

852. 'Having His Father's name written on their foreheads'=these truths according to the acknowledgment of His Divine from love. ... 'To be written in the forehead'=plenary acknowledgment. The reason 'the Father's name written in the foreheads'=the plenary acknowledgment of the Lord's Divine, is that the Lord turns to Himself all who acknowledge His Divine, and looks at them in the forehead, and they ... look at Him with the eyes; and this because the forehead=love, and the eye the understanding of truth. Thus their being looked at by the Lord in their foreheads signifies that the Lord looks at them from the good of love, and their looking at Him with their eyes, that they look at the Lord from the truths which are from that good, consequently from the understanding of truth.

J. (Post.) 241^e. Some look at the forehead, and (in-breathe the love of self).

Forehead. Frontispicium.

H. 251. The influx of the spiritual Angels with man is into his head on all sides from the forehead and temples to every part underneath which is the cerebrum ...

M. 267². Such walk with the back of the head upwards, and the forehead downwards ...

444⁶. The Lord looks at every man in his forehead, and this look passes into the back of his head. Beneath the forehead is the cerebrum, and beneath the back of the head is the cerebellum; the latter is allotted to love and its goods, and the former to wisdom and its truths; and therefore he who looks with his face towards the Lord, receives from Him wisdom, and, through this, love; whereas he who looks backwards from the Lord, receives love and not wisdom; and love without wisdom is love from man and not from the Lord ... and therefore this love is the origin of evil.

I. 13⁴. All the Angels turn the forehead to the Lord as a Sun, and all the Angels of Hell turn the back of the head to Him; and the latter receive the influx into the affections of their will, which in themselves are concupiscences, and make the understanding favour them; whereas the former receive the influx into the affections of their understanding, and make the will favour them ... For the human understanding dwells in the cerebrum, which is beneath the forehead; and the will in the cerebellum, which is at the back of the head.

T. 73^e. (The light did not yet shine on that part of their temples which is next the forehead.)

160⁸. Man's other brain is in the forehead, and is called the cerebrum, and . . . in the cerebrum dwells the thought of the understanding . . .

D. 1259. The good Spirits above the forehead . . . 1296.

E. 55. The things which flow in from Heaven immediately into the thought, flow in into the region above the forehead.

Foreign. Extraneus.

A. 927³. 'To sow the land with a shoot of what is foreign' (Is.xvii.10)=to teach truths which are not genuine.

H. 504⁶. This by extraneous means.

R. 11². They do not allow foreigners to enter, except the Chinese . . .

T. 425. These are not proper to charity, but are extraneous to it.

E. 746¹¹. 'An alien unto my mother's sons' (Ps. lxi.8).

De Verbo 13. The will regards as foreign that which is from the memory in the understanding.

Foreigner. Alienigena.

See STRANGE-alienus; and under INMATE-inquilinus.

A. 2049. 'Of every son that is a stranger, who is not of thy seed' (Gen.xvii.12)=those who are outside the Church . . . thus not in the goods and truths of faith, because not in the Knowledge of them. 'Sons who are strangers' also=those who are in external worship (See 1097, Ill.), because it there treats of those who are within the Church. But here, as it treats of the Lord's Church in the universal, 'the sons who are strangers'=those who are not born within the Church, as is the case with the gentiles . . . These are they who are signified by the sons who are strangers, who are not of the seed, and who are to be circumcised, that is, purified. Hence it is evident that they can be purified equally as well as those who are within the Church. Ex.

—⁵. Such (as have not charity), although born within the Church, are called 'sons who are strangers, uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh,' who are not to be admitted into the sanctuary, that is, into the Lord's Kingdom (Ezek.xliv.7,9).

2115. 'From the son who is a stranger' (ver.27)=all who are rational outside the Church.

4544. 'Put away the gods of the stranger which are in the midst of you' (Gen.xxxv.2)=that falsities should be rejected. . . They were called strangers who were outside the Church, thus who were in falsities and evils.

5081². 'The son of the stranger' (Is.lvi.3) = the natural man as to truth. For the Lord's Church is external and internal, and they who are of the external Church are natural . . . They who are natural . . . and yet in truth are 'the sons of the stranger.' And as truly spiritual or internal men can only exist within the Church, therefore also by 'the sons of the stranger' are signified those who are outside the Church, or the Gentiles, and who still are in truth according to their religion.

7996. 'Every son of a stranger shall not eat it' (Ex. xii.43)=that those who are not in truth and good are separated from them. 'A stranger'=those who being outside the Church do not acknowledge anything of the truth and good which are of faith . . . thus who are not in truth and good.

8998. 'To sell her unto a people of a stranger he shall have no power' (Ex.xxi.8)=not to those who are not of the faith of the Church. 'A stranger'=those who are outside the Church, thus who are not of the faith of the Church.

9210⁵. The reason it was allowed to impose usury on strangers (Deut.xxiii.20), was that by 'strangers' are signified those who do not acknowledge and receive anything of good and truth, thus who do good only for the sake of gain. These are to serve man, because they are relatively servants.

10287¹⁵. 'They who are clothed in the clothing of a stranger' (Zeph.i.8)=those who are in falsities.

—⁶. That 'the sons of a stranger' (Ps.cxliv.7)=those who are in falsities, thus falsities, is very manifest; for it is said, 'whose mouth speaketh vanity, and their right hand is the right hand of a lie.'

T. 677². The reason . . . foreign proselytes are baptized . . . before they have been instructed . . .

808. (How the English regard foreigners.)

E. 195¹². 'Strangers'=those who are outside the Church, and do not acknowledge the truths of the Church.

376¹². 'Sons of the stranger'=falsities. 724¹¹.

587¹². 'The vanities of strangers' (Jer.viii.19)=the falsities of religion.

654⁴⁶. 'A man a foreigner who is not thy brother' (Deut.xvii.15)=a religiosity not concordant; and also falsity in which there is not good.

—⁶¹. 'Our inheritance is turned unto strangers-alienos' (Lam.v.2)=the truths of the Church turned into falsities; 'our houses unto aliens'=the good of the Church turned into evils.

746¹¹. 'A man a foreigner,' and 'a stranger-alienus' = one who is not of the Church.

811¹⁶. By 'the strangers-alienos-who led captive his strength' (Obad.11) are signified the falsities of the Church destroying its truths . . . By 'the foreigners who entered his gates' are signified the falsities of doctrine destroying the truths by which entrance is afforded into interior truths.

850¹⁵. That there will be no falsities of evil there, is signified by, 'There shall no strangers pass through her any more' (Joel iii.17).

Foreknow. Praescire.

Foreknowledge. Praescientia.

P. 176. Man . . . would not act from freedom according to reason; nor would anything appear to him as his . . . if he foreknew events. Gen.art. 178.

179. As the foreknowledge of future things takes away the human itself, which is to act from freedom according to reason, no one is permitted to know future things . . . The desire to foreknow future things is con-nate with most people, but this desire originates from a love of evil. It is therefore taken away from those who believe in the Divine Providence, and there is given them trust that the Lord disposes their lot; consequently they do not want to foreknow it, lest in some way they should interfere with the Divine Providence. This the Lord teaches . . . in Luke xii. 14-48.

Foresee. Praevidere.

Foresight. Praevidentia.

A. 393. As it was foreseen . . . 394. 521^e. 609^e.
3398³.

587. Jehovah never repents, because He foresees each and all things from eternity; and when He made man
. . . and perfected him till he became celestial, He also foresaw that in process of time he would become of this character.

598. That the Lord foresaw that thus mankind might be saved. Sig. 927².

1755. The Lord foresees and sees each and all things, and provides and disposes each and all things . . .

2679^e. For the least things appertaining to man are foreseen by the Lord, and are provided for in regard to his future state to eternity . . .

2790. 'To see from afar'=to foresee.

2796. Each and all things appertaining to man are disposed by means of Spirits and Angels; and from this come all states and changes of state; and thus they are directed by the Lord towards ends to eternity, which ends the Lord alone foresees.

3495. Presence from being foreseen and provided for.
Sig.

3686. The Lord's foresight and providence that . . .
Sig.

3688³. A man who is . . . capable of being regenerated —for this the Lord foresees, and as He foresees He also provides for it . . .

3854. 'Jehovah saw'=the Lord's foresight and providence.

—². As to foresight and providence in general.
Relatively to man, there is foresight; providence relatively to the Lord. The Lord foresaw from eternity what the human race would be, and what each person would be . . . Therefore the Lord has not only provided the means by which man may be bent from Hell and led to Heaven, but also, from providence, He continually bends and leads him. The Lord also foresaw that it would be impossible for any good to be rooted in man, except in his freedom . . . and also that man of himself
. . . would incline to the deepest Hell; and therefore the Lord provides that if a man should not suffer himself to be led in freedom to Heaven, he may still be bent to a milder Hell; but that if he should suffer himself to be led in freedom to what is good, he shall be led to Heaven. Hence it is evident what foresight and providence are; and that the things which are foreseen are provided for accordingly. From this it appears how greatly that man errs, who believes that the Lord has not foreseen and does not see the smallest particulars appertaining to man, and that in the smallest particulars

He does not foresee and lead, when the real case is, that the Lord's foresight and providence are in the most minute of the smallest particulars appertaining to man
. . . For each smallest moment of man's life has in it a series of consequences extending to eternity . . . and as the Lord has foreseen from eternity what he would be, and what he would be to eternity, it is evident that Providence is present in the smallest particulars, which it rules and bends . . .

3863. 'She said, Jehovah hath seen,' in the supreme sense, = foresight; in the internal sense, faith . . .

—⁴. That 'to see,' in the supreme sense, = foresight, may be evident; for the intelligence which is predicated of the Lord is infinite intelligence, which is nothing else than foresight.

3869³. That 'to hear,' in the supreme sense, = providence, may appear from what has been said concerning
'to see,' that in the supreme sense it = foresight; for the Lord's foresight is to see from eternity to eternity that a thing is so; but the Lord's providence is the ruling that a thing shall be so, and is the bending of man's freedom to good, so far as He foresees that the man will suffer himself to be bent in freedom.

—^e. Infinite will is providence, and infinite intelligence is foresight.

3966. 'God remembered Rachel, and God listened to her' (Gen. xxx. 22) = foresight and providence . . . For to remember anyone is to look to him; and to see, in the supreme sense, is foresight.

4136^e. For it is foreseen by the Lord what kind of a life a man will lead, and how he will suffer himself to be led by Him; and as each and all things . . . are foreseen, they are also provided for.

4383. For each and all things are foreseen by the Lord, even as to what their quality will be to eternity . . .

4718. 'What seekest thou?' = foresight.

5091. 'They dreamed a dream, both of them' = foresight concerning these things. . . The reason why, in the supreme sense, a dream = foresight, is that the dreams which flow in immediately through Heaven from the Lord, foretell things to come . . . The things to come, which are foretold thereby, are from no other source than the Lord's Divine foresight. From this it may also be known that each and all things are foreseen.

5122^e. If the Lord were to intermit (His providence) for an instant, all the progressions would be disturbed; for what is prior looks to what follows in a continual series, and produces series of consequences to eternity.
Hence it is evident that the Divine foresight and providence are in the most minute things, and that unless this were the case . . . the human race would perish.

5155. That which is concluded from what is foreseen.
Sig. . . The reason it = that which is concluded from what is foreseen, but not from what is provided, is that providence is predicated of what is good, but foresight of what is evil; for all good flows in from the Lord, and therefore is provided; whereas all evil is from Hell . . . and therefore is foreseen. In respect to evil, providence is nothing else than the direction or determination of evil to what is less evil, and as far as possible to good ; but the evil itself is foreseen.

[A.] 5195. For providence has regard to successive state to eternity, which cannot be provided for unless it is foreseen. To provide things present, and not at the same time to foresee things to come, and thus not to provide things to come in things present, would be to provide without an end . . . and thus not from the Divine. But providence is predicated of what is good, and foresight of what is not good. Foresight cannot be predicated of what is good, because good is in the Divine . . . but it can be predicated of what is not good and of what is evil ; for this comes forth outside the Divine from others who are against the Divine . . .

5254. This signifies the faculty of apperceiving what is in the things foreseen.

5309. Because he had foresight and providence. Sig.

— It cannot be said of God that he Knows . . . and therefore 'to Know,' in God, is to foresee and provide. To foresee is to Know from eternity to eternity ; and to provide is to do it.

5361. As it had been foreseen by the Celestial of the Spiritual. Sig.

— 'To say' . . . = to perceive . . . and therefore, when predicated of the Lord . . . it denotes to perceive from Himself, thus to foresee.

5430. 'Joseph remembered the dreams which he dreamed of them' = that the Celestial of the Spiritual had foreseen what would happen concerning the general truths of the Church in the Natural . . . 'To remember' is predicated of foresight. . . And 'dreams' = foresight, prediction, event.

5777. 'He was yet there' = foresight ; (for) it had been foreseen by Joseph that they would return. . . It is said foresight, because in the supreme sense the Lord is treated of.

6298. 'He blessed them in this day' = foresight and providence to eternity. 'To bless' = prediction ; but in the supreme sense, the foresight of the Lord ; and as it = foresight, it also = providence, for the one does not exist without the other ; because evil is foreseen, and good is provided ; and the evil which is foreseen, by means of providence is bent to good. The reason 'to bless,' here, = foresight and providence, is that Israel, who here blesses, in the supreme sense, = the Lord.

6340. In the supreme sense, the Lord's foresight. Sig. . . . For all prediction is from the Lord's foresight.

6484². It was shown to the Angels . . . what had been the quality of his future life as foreseen, and that each thing of his life had been under the Lord's guidance . . .

6489. The providence of the Lord is conjoined with foresight ; and the one does not exist without the other ; for evils are foreseen, and goods are provided ; and the evils which are foreseen are continually bent to good by the provident disposing of the Lord.

6853. 'I know their sorrows' = foresight how much they were immersed in falsities. . . The reason 'to know' = foresight, is that the Lord knows each and all things from eternity. 6906.

6946. 'Jehovah said unto him' = foresight as to what their quality would be if they had not faith. 6951. 6959.

8095. 'God said,' when predicated of future things, = the Divine foresight.

8215³. 'Wheels' = the Divine intelligence, or foresight. Hence it is said that the wheels went together with the animals, and that their rings were full of eyes . . .

8697. 'Moses' father in law said unto him' = foresight. 'To say,' when predicated of the Divine good . . . = foresight.

9009. 'He who hath not lain in wait' = when it is not of foresight from the will. . . For the evil which the liar in wait is about to do, he foresees in his mind ; and as he does such evil from foresight, he does it from the will, for it proceeds thence. There are evils which proceed from the will of a man, but not from foresight ; and there are others which proceed from the will and from foresight ; (the latter) are much worse. Ex.

9296². This good . . . increases . . . more with those who afterwards suffer themselves to be regenerated. This the Lord foresees, and, according to the state of the subsequent life, provides ; for in the present the Lord always foresees evil and provides good, and this from the beginning of the thread of life to all eternity.

9304. Providence consists in providing and foreseeing — prospicere, thus in leading to good and in guarding from evil ; since good is provided by the Lord, and evil is foreseen. And as evil is foreseen, man is also guarded from it, otherwise good cannot be provided.

10048². With those who are being regenerated, interior and exterior things are regulated by the Lord for all succeeding states . . . for the Lord foresees all things, and provides all things ; and His foresight and providence are to eternity, thus eternal . . .

10428. 'I have seen the people' = what is foreseen. 'To see,' when predicated of Jehovah, = foresight ; for what Jehovah sees, He sees from eternity ; and to see from eternity is foresight and providence. Refs.

10444. 'Thou spakest to them' = foresight and providence. 'To say,' and 'to speak,' when predicated of confirmation by the Divine, = foresight and providence. Refs.

10781. There is providence and there is foresight ; good is what is provided by the Lord, and evil is what is foreseen by the Lord ; the one must be together with the other ; for that which comes from man is nothing but evil, and that which comes from the Lord is nothing but good.

P. 67^o. This takes place with those whom the Lord is able to lead to Heaven. And as the Lord foresees this, He also continually provides that a man may be of such a character (as to fit him for his special place in Heaven).

202^o. It is in accordance with the laws (of the Divine Providence), for it to appear to man as if he led himself ; but the Lord foresees how he will lead himself, and constantly accommodates.

203. The place (of everyone) is foreseen, and at the same time provided.

333. The Lord sees of what quality a man is, and foresees what he will want to be, thus what he will be ;

and in order for him to be a man, and therefore immortal, the freedom of his will cannot be taken away . . . Therefore the Lord foresees his state after death, and provides for it, from his birth to the end of his life . . .

—². Now as the Lord foresees the state of all after death, and also foresees the places in Hell of those who are not willing to be saved, and the places in Heaven of those who are willing to be saved, it follows that for the evil He provides their places by permitting and withdrawing, and for the good by leading . . . Without this foresight and simultaneous providence, neither Heaven nor Hell would be anything but confusion. Ex.

D. 1088. On foresight and providence.

— . Evils are not provided, but are foreseen; in like manner are permissions. . . Foresight belongs to evils; providence is the disposition of them to good ends. . . Nothing is permitted which has not been foreseen so (as to conduce to good) . . . Thus it is providence alone which governs; for foresight is thus changed into providence. . . If the foreseen things of evil Spirits were permitted, it would be to the destruction of men and Souls . . .

1885. There is nothing which is not foreseen to happen just as it does, because man is of such a quality as he is; it being foreseen that otherwise he would perish . . .

2718. Each and all things have been foreseen by the Lord from eternity; but evils have been foreseen, and goods have been provided.

3008^e. The conclusion was, that it is foreseen by the Lord that they will thus do evil in act; and that it is provided that they should not precipitate themselves into the worst death.

4275. That all evil is foreseen by the Lord; not provided.

4704. On foresight and providence in the smallest particulars.

5002. The life of every man is foreseen by the Lord, as to how long he will live, and in what manner; therefore he is directed from earliest infancy with regard to a life to eternity.

D. Min. 4652. On the foresight and providence of the Lord. 4692.

E. 710³. 'Before I formed thee in the womb I knew thee, and before thou wentest forth from the womb I sanctified thee' (Jer.i.5) . . . = foresight that he was able to be in truths from good through regeneration; thus that he was able to receive and teach the Word.

Foreskin. Praeputium.

Uncircumcised. Praeputiatus.

See CIRCUMCISE.

A. 1151². They are called uncircumcised when there is no love.

1197. In the Ancient Church, all were called Philistines who talked much about faith . . . and yet had no life of faith; therefore they were pre-eminently called 'the uncircumcised,' that is, devoid of charity. Ill. 3024². 3412²

2039. Circumcision, or the cutting off of the foreskin, signified the removal of those things which hinder and defile celestial love; and which are evils of cupidities, especially of the cupidities of the love of self, and the derivative falsities. The cause of this signification is that the genitals of both sexes represent celestial love. There are three kinds of loves which constitute the celestial things of the Lord's Kingdom . . . Whatever covers, obstructs, and defiles these loves is signified by the foreskin; the cutting off of which, or circumcision, was therefore made representative.

—³. 'Circumcise yourselves to Jehovah, and take away the foreskins of your heart' (Jer.iv.4)= . . . to remove such things as obstruct celestial love.

— . 'To circumcise the foreskin of the heart' (Dent. x.16)=to be purified from the evils of filthy loves and from the falsities thence derived.

—⁵. That by 'the foreskin,' and 'the uncircumcised' is signified what is unclean. Ill.

2049^e. Hence then it is evident what is meant, in the internal sense, by 'the uncircumcised,' namely, those who are in filthy loves, and in the life of them.

2056. 'The uncircumcised male' (Gen.xvii.14)=him who is not in the truth of faith. . . 'Uncircumcised' is predicated of that which obstructs and defiles . . . (here) truth. In like manner when it is joined to any other thing, it=the darkening and contamination of that thing; as 'the uncircumcised ear' (Jer.vi.10) . . . (which)=that there is no hearkening, and that the Word was a reproach to them.

4462. 'To give our sister to a man who hath a foreskin' (Gen.xxxiv.14)=unless they would place the truth and good of the Church in representatives, and recede from those things which they signify; (for) 'the foreskin'=an external representative, a sign that they were of the Church . . . Hence by these words is signified accession to their religiosity.

—². The genitals in each sex=the things which belong to the conjunction of good and truth . . . As the foreskin covers the genital, in the Most Ancient Church it corresponded to the obscuration of good and truth; but in the Ancient Church, to their defilement . . .

—⁴. But they who are in the loves of self and of the world are called 'the uncircumcised,' although they had been circumcised. Ill.

7045. 'She cut off the foreskin of her son' (Ex.iv.25)=the removal of filthy loves, and thereby the laying bare of what is internal. . . 'The foreskin'=earthly and corporeal love which defiles celestial and spiritual love. . . The reason the foreskin=filthy loves, is that the loins together with the genitals correspond to marriage love, (and therefore) to all celestial and spiritual love. Therefore the foreskin corresponds to loves in the highest degree external, which are called corporeal and earthly loves. If these loves are destitute of the internal loves . . . they are filthy, as was the case with that nation. . . Now as 'the foreskin'=loves in the highest degree external, it follows that when these are removed—which is signified by Zipporah cutting off the foreskin—the quality of the former loves appears, thus the laying bare of the internal.

7225. 'I am uncircumcised in lips' (Ex.vi.12)=that to them I am impure . . . =he is impure as to those things which belong to doctrine; for 'uncircumcised' is predicated both of doctrine and of life. III.

[A.725]². From these passages it is evident that 'fore-skinned' or 'uncircumcised-incircumcisum' denotes what is impure; and as everything impure is from impure loves, which are the love of the world and the love of self, therefore by 'uncircumcised-incircumcisum' is signified that which obstructs the influx of good and truth . . . Therefore 'an uncircumcised ear'=disobedience; and 'an uncircumcised heart,' the rejection of good and truth.

—³. It is for the sake of the internal sense that Moses, being a stammerer, calls himself 'uncircumcised in lips,' in order that it might signify that those who are in falsities . . . would not hearken to the things declared to them from the law Divine . . . Therefore the truths of doctrine are apperceived by them no otherwise than as impure . . . 7245.

8012. 'No one that is uncircumcised shall eat thereof' (Ex.xii.48)=that he who is in the loves of self and of the world cannot be together with them.

8313. These are 'Philistines,' and they are called 'the uncircumcised' from the evils of the love of self and of the world, in which is their life.

9659². The foreskin corresponded to the defilement of good by these loves.

9960¹⁵. 'To uncover the foreskin' (Hab.ii.16)=to defile those things. 'The foreskin'=the defilement of celestial goods by these loves. E.235⁶.

10287⁸. 'The uncircumcised'=those who as to life are in filthy loves and their cupidities, however much they may be in doctrinal things.

F. 51. As the Philistines represented those who are in faith separated from charity, they are called 'the uncircumcised;' and by 'the uncircumcised' are meant those who are destitute of spiritual love, and consequently are in mere natural love. Spiritual love is charity.

54. Thus, on the other hand, by 'the uncircumcised-incircumcisum,' or 'the foreskinned,' is meant one who has not been purified from the evils of merely natural love, thus who is not in charity; and because one who is unclean at heart is meant by 'the foreskinned,' it is said, 'No . . . uncircumcised in heart, and uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into My sanctuary' (Ezek. xlv.9). Further ill.

R. 90³. 'The uncircumcised' are they who are destitute of the good of charity. —

D. 2113. The foreskin properly=envy at the happiness of others; and therefore the foreskins . . . were to be cut off. (From experience.)

2114. This is because the foreskin represents what obstructs the things which belong to love, consequently the happy things which come from love alone . . .

E. 195⁶. 'The uncircumcised and the unclean' (Is. lii.1)=those who are in evils and falsities.

240⁹. 'To uncover the foreskin' (Hab.ii.16)=to reveal filthy loves.

417⁸. 'The uncircumcised'=those who are destitute of love and charity, thus who are destitute of good, and are consequently in the loves of self and of the world.

619¹⁸. The Philistine nation represented faith separated from charity; and therefore the Philistines were called 'the uncircumcised,' by which name is signified that they were destitute of spiritual love and charity, and were only in natural love, which is the love of self and of the world. 700²⁰.

781¹². 'Uncircumcised'=those who are in filthy corporeal loves; for the foreskin corresponds to these loves.

811²⁶. 'The uncircumcised and the unclean . . . '=the evils of earthly loves, and their falsities.

817⁶. 'The Philistines' in the Word, represent faith separated from love, and therefore they were called 'the uncircumcised;' for by the foreskin is signified that which is devoid of spiritual love, and which is only in natural love, with which love alone nothing religious, and still less anything of the Church, can be conjoined . . .

—¹¹. Truth defiled by evil of life is signified by 'the uncircumcised.' III.

Forest. Sylva.

Forest, Wild. Sylvestris.

A. 1443. The rational things (of the celestial man) are compared to a forest of cedars and similar trees, such as existed on Lebanon.

1458³. 'The forest of the south' (Ezek.xx.46)=those who are in the light of truths, and extinguish it; thus those who are of such a character within the Church.

3220. When the Angels are discoursing about the things of intelligence and wisdom, and about perceptions and Knowledges . . . it falls into representations of . . . paradises, vineyards, forests, etc.

3240⁴. 'To spend the night in the forest' (Is.xxi.13)=to be desolated as to good; for 'Arabia'=those who are in celestial things, that is, who are in the goods of faith; 'to spend the night in the forest there'=to be no longer in goods, whence comes desolation. (=to be vastated as to truth. 3268⁷.)

5113¹¹. 'The boar in the wood' (1's.lxxx.13)=falsity.

5717. (Spirits who) dwell in dark forests. Des. D.1782.

6485. They who attribute all things to their Own prudence, are like those who wander in dark forests, and do not know the way out . . . D.4393.

9011⁴. 'To hew wood' (Deut.xix.5)=to place merit in works; but 'to hew wood in a forest'=to discuss these and the like things, and also to bring them into debate; for 'a forest'=what is religious.

—⁵. 'To cut down wood in the forest' (Jer.xlvi.23)=to act from a false religion, and to destroy such things as are of the Church; for the Church is called 'a forest,' 'a garden,' and 'a paradise;' 'a forest' from knowledge, 'a garden' from intelligence, and 'a paradise' from wisdom. For trees=the perceptions of good and truth; and also the Knowledges of them. And as 'a forest'=the Church as to knowledge, thus as to external things, it also=what is religious.

—⁶. The Church as to knowledge, or as to external things, is signified by 'a forest,' in . . . 'Then shall all the trees of the forest sing' (Ps.xcvi.12); and in . . . 'We found Him in the fields of the wood' (Ps.cxxxii.6) . . . In Is.x.18, 'his forest'=the Church as to the Knowledges of truth; and 'Carmel'=the Church as to the Knowledges of good.

914¹. 'Wood out of the field' (Ezek.xxxix.10)=the interior goods of the Church; and 'wood out of the forests'=the exterior goods. 922⁸.

922⁸. 'Wood from the forests'=the scientifics of good and truth.

940⁶. 'In the fields of the wood'=in the natural or literal sense of the Word. E.684²⁷. 700⁹.

959⁴. 'The fields of the wood'=the goods of the Church with the Gentiles.

964². 'A forest'=what is scientific regnant; but 'a garden'=truth regnant.

9699. Forests (seen in the First Earth).

984³. Men who . . . come into the other life, and who bring with them truths of faith in the natural memory only . . . appear to themselves to wander among broken pieces of rock, and in forests.

10161. (In the Second Earth) there are forests full of fruit trees . . .

10644. Each species of tree=a species of perception and of Knowledge. Hence it is that paradises and gardens=heavenly intelligence and wisdom; and forests, the knowledge of the natural man.

H. 586². (In the Hells) there are dark forests, in which infernal Spirits wander about like wild beasts. 587^e. D.4854. 4897.

S. 18³. By 'a garden,' 'a grove,' and 'a forest,' are meant wisdom, intelligence, and knowledge.

—⁵. 'The forests which he strips bare' (Ps.xxix.9) =the knowledges and Knowledges which the Word opens to them.

96b. The Word is like a garden . . . The man who is in truths, not from doctrine, but from the mere sense of the letter, is at the circumference, and sees nothing but forest trees.

R. 400. In some places in Hell there are forests of trees which bear evil fruits, in correspondence with the concupiscences and the derivative thoughts of those who are there.

M. 75². (Three forests through which Swedenborg passed on his way to visit those who had lived respectively in the Golden Age, in the Iron Age, and in the Age which succeeded. Des.) 78². 79².

151a³. In forests there have been found men like beasts . . .

521³. (Relation concerning satyrs seen in a forest.)

522. The next day . . . the forest (of the satyrs) had disappeared, and in its place there was a sandy plain, with a lake in the middle containing some red serpents. But some weeks after . . . I saw on its right side some fallow land . . .

D. 1681. (In that Earth whole forests are formed into palaces by training the trees.) Des.

1786. While they live in the forests, but little life is allowed them.

3339^e. In forests a man wanders; an animal never. Ex.

3550. On the common people . . . such as live in forests . . .

3785. (The Quaker Spirits, when under the influence of their holy spirit) seem to themselves and to others to be wandering in dense forests, like wild swine . . . J.(Post.) 58.

4174^e. The antediluvians . . . suppose themselves to dwell in forests.

4895. On the right side (of the Heavens) there appeared a dense and dark forest, concerning which it was said that those are sent thither who are in falsities . . .

5465. (Spirits who were wandering in forests.)

D. Min. 4655. When any truth was mentioned, such persons at once descend into terms . . . This was represented as a dark forest, into which they cast themselves . . . Whereas such a forest is removed from those who are in simple good, and they are in an open plain . . .

E. 304⁴⁸. 'A forest' (Is.xliv.23)=natural truth; and 'the trees therein'=the Knowledges of truth. 326¹¹.

365²⁷. 'The forests in which they shall sleep' (Ezek.xxxiv.25)=the falsities thence derived which will not infest them.

388⁵. 'A forest' (Hos.ii.12)=the sensuous man who is in mere fallacies and the derivative falsities.

403⁵. 'A forest'=what is merely natural.

405¹⁰. By 'a forest' (Is.xliv.23) is meant the external or natural man as to all things which belong to him; and by 'every tree' is meant what is a matter of knowledge therein.

412²⁰. By 'the forest of the south' (Ezek.xx.47) is meant falsity within the Church, consequently those who are in falsities therein . . . Falsity from evil is signified by 'the forest.'

458⁸. 'A forest'=what is natural; here (Jer.x.3), what is natural separated from what is spiritual.

504³⁴. 'The forest of the south'=the Church which is able to be in the light of truth from the Word, but now, which, being destitute of spiritual light, is in mere Knowledges.

638⁵. Gardens or paradises, specifically, =the intelligence and wisdom appertaining to the men of the Church; and forests, or groves, =the intelligence of the natural man, which, regarded in itself, is knowledge, and is of service to the intelligence of the spiritual man.

650¹⁰. 'The wild beast of the forest' (Ps.civ.20)=the affection of scientifics.

—²⁶. 'Beautiful with branch and with shady forest' (Ezek.xxxi.3)=intelligence through rational truths by means of scientifics.

—⁴⁰. The nations which are outside the Church are signified by 'the wild beast in the forest' (Is.lvi.9). 'The wild beast'=the natural and sensuous man; and 'the forest,' his knowledge and derivative obscure intelligence.

—⁵². 'To sleep in the forests'=that they will be safe from the infestation of these (cupidities and concupiscences), although in and among them. 'The desert' and 'the forest' are where such things and such Spirits are. 701¹⁸.

[E.] 654¹⁴. 'The forest of his fruitful field' (2 Kings xix. 23) = scientific.

724⁴. Are called paradises in the spiritual man, groves in the natural man, and shady forests in the sensuous man.

730²⁸. That from this he possesses the knowledge of the knowledges of good and truth, is signified by 'the fruitful field shall be counted for a forest' (Is. xxxii. 15). 'A forest' is predicated of the natural man, as 'a garden' is of the spiritual man; and therefore by 'a forest' is signified knowledge, and by 'a garden' intelligence. 1145⁷.

Foretell. Vaticinari.

See PREDICT.

T. 181^e. Therefore I am able to foretell . . .

D. 1579. On those who forebode future things . . .

Forget. Oblivisci.

Forgetfulness, Oblivion. Oblivio.

A. 1886². There, historical things are given to oblivion. 7112².

3615. '(Until) he forget that which thou hast done to him' (Gen. xxvii. 45) = habit from delay. 'To forget,' here, = the successful abolition of repugnance.

5170. 'But forgot him' (Gen. xl. 23) = removal. When 'not to remember' = no conjunction, 'to forget' = removal, because in proportion as there is no conjunction there is removal. That which is given to oblivion is also removed.

5278. 'All the plenty shall be given to oblivion in the land of Egypt' (Gen. xli. 30) = the removal of truth, and its apparent privation in each Natural. 'To forget' or 'be given to oblivion' = removal and consequent apparent deprivation. . . (For) the things of which a man is thinking are immediately under his view, and the things which relate to them present themselves in order round about, even to the things not in relation and which are most remote, and which are therefore in oblivion.

5352. 'God hath made me forget all my toil' (ver. 51) = the removal (of evils) after temptations.

5353. In the Original Language, 'Manasseh' means forgetfulness; thus, in the internal sense, removal, namely, of evils both actual and hereditary; for when these have been removed the new Voluntary rises.

8620. By the Divine remembrance is signified salvation; and by no remembrance, or oblivion, damnation.

M. 398. In the case of beasts and birds, (there is) a total forgetfulness of relationship.

T. 80^e. As he descended, forgetfulness drove away recollection.

D. 5378^o. They are then in forgetfulness, that is, in no thought about His Divine.

E. 411²⁸. The evils from which is their worship are signified by, 'My people hath forgotten Me' (Jer. xviii. 15); for he who forgets God is in evils.

780¹⁰. 'Therefore have they forgotten Me' (Hos. xiii.

6) = that pride has obliterated these things; and thus their longing, and with this their heart, has departed from the Lord.

Forgive. See under EXCUSE—ignoscere, and REMIT.

Forgive. Condonari.

Forgiveness. Condonatio.

A. 1188². Nineveh was forgiven, because of this their character.

6559^e. If, perchance, good Spirits speak or do what is evil, they are not punished, but are forgiven, and are also excused, because their end is not to speak or do what is evil . . .

7272². In like manner, they who believe that sins can be forgiven by men (do the evil of falsity).

9938. From (the things of love and faith) come the forgiveness of sins, that is, the removals from them, because sins are removed by love and faith from the Lord.

10042⁵. The forgiveness of sins, expiation, propitiation, and redemption are nothing else than purification from evils and falsities, the implantation of good and truth, and their conjunction; thus regeneration. Refs.

P. 117². They think that sins are not sins before God, because they have been pardoned.

T. 459¹⁵. A criminal who . . . prays that the judge will pardon him . . .

D. 3562. (The hatred of those who will not forgive. Rep.)

Fork. Gaffel. D. 4787.

Form. Forma.

Form, To. Formare.

Formal. Formalis.

Formally. Formaliter.

Formation. Formatio.

Former. Formator.

Formability. Formabilitas.

See HUMAN FORM, and under EFFIGY, and SPECIES.

A. 549. Each is as the centre of all, which is the heavenly form. 2057². 4225^e. D. 4090.

553. It is goodness and charity which form them . . . so that they are the very forms of charity. The form of charity. Des. . . All the Angels are such forms, with innumerable variety.

668. Truth is only the form of good; and faith is only the form of love. Truth, therefore, is formed according to the quality of the good . . .

1175. They set the things of faith before those of charity . . . thus formal things before essential ones; for all external worship is the Formal of internal worship . . . To perform worship from what is formal devoid of what is essential, is to make external that which is internal. Examps.

—². All these things are the formal things of worship . . .

1394^e. Hence is the heavenly form, which . . . relates to a man ; and which form is continually being perfected. 2718^o. 3638^e.

1517^e. A vinous odour comes from the sphere of formal beauty.

1757. They serve for distinct forms of speech.

1762. Their thought as it were in form (in the face).

1860. Hell consists of hatreds and such diabolical forms.

—². In Heaven there are nothing but forms of charity.

1869. In the other life . . . ideas appear visible in a form.

1928. Things or Truths not joined together according to the form of the heavenly Societies, have not as yet acquired life . . . They first receive life, when the form on both sides is alike . . .

1950^o. The truth which is from good is truth formed from good, so that it may be called the form of good.

1999^o. The Internal of man . . . is the first form itself from which man . . . is man . . . These Internals of men . . . are forms recipient of life from the Lord.

2363^o. These are diabolical forms, in which there is nothing human. Such forms do all become after death who perceive the delight of life in such things . . . But, on the other hand, if . . . one depicts (love and charity) in a form, he will see . . . that the form is angelic . . . Can anyone believe that these two forms can exist together? and that that diabolical form can be put off, and be transcribed into the form of charity . . .

2487. According to the impressions made by (the objects of the senses) there take place variations of form (in the exterior memory), which are reproduced ; and these forms are varied and changed according to the changes of the states of the affections and persuasions.

2872^e. By wonderful influxes in an incomprehensible form, which is the form of Heaven.

2940^e. This (arrangement) originates in the form of things spiritual and celestial, which is of such a nature.

2991. Natural forms are effects . . . They receive their forms according to the use in the place where they are ; but still the forms of the effects represent the things which belong to the causes.

3002. (Thus) all natural forms, both animate and inanimate, are representative of the spiritual and celestial things which are in the Lord's Kingdom . . .

3121^e. Truth is nothing but the form of good. 9474^o.

3122^o. For truth has (then) so conjoined itself with good, that it no longer appears, except only as the form of good . . .

3189. All things which are therein are affections, conjoined in an incomprehensible form . . . The Societies of Heaven are in such a form, nay, the whole Heaven, being arranged by the Lord according to the Divine form which is in Himself. The form of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom comes forth according to the arrangement of the affections in His Divine Human.

3212^o. When the body is put off, the spirit appears, and this in a quite different form when the man has been regenerated ; for it then has the form of love and charity in beauty inexpressible ; instead of its previous form, which was a form of hatred and of cruelty, with ugliness also inexpressible.

3347. The Angels . . . compared (human minds) to the external form of man, which comes forth and subsists from the innumerable forms which are within . . . all of which nevertheless conspire . . . to the composition of the external form, in which nothing appears of the things that are within. To this (external) form they compared human minds, and their thoughts and derivative speech ; whereas they compared angelic minds to those things which are within . . . They also compared the faculty of thinking to the faculty of the viscera of acting according to the form of the fibres . . . Such comparisons . . . are at the same time exhibited by means of representatives, whereby the interior forms spoken of above are presented visibly and intellectually . . .

3470^e. Genuine good is as it were the blood in the vessels . . . leading and applying truths into form. The good which is thus formed in the natural or external man is general, being as it were woven together . . . from the particulars . . . of spiritual good . . . from the Lord, who alone forms and creates anew. Hence it is that the Lord is so often called in the Word 'the Former' and 'Creator.'

3484. To this (one) life correspond the forms which are substances . . .

—². In the case of natural forms . . . such as the recipient forms are, such are the modifications of the light (which flows into them). In the Spiritual World the modifications are spiritual ; therefore, such as the recipient forms there are, such is the intelligence, and such the wisdom, of those who are there. Hence it is, that good Spirits and Angels appear as the veriest forms of charity ; whereas evil and infernal Spirits appear as forms of hatred.

3489. These are external forms by which one person misleads another ; whereas the internal forms of the men of the Church are utterly different from each other, and also from the external ones. The internal forms are those which are here described . . .

3570^o. It is celestial good and spiritual truth . . . which forms man.

3584. Truths and goods form a society among themselves . . . This originates from the form of Heaven . . . Therefore the truths and goods with man flow in and are disposed with him into a like form, and this by the Lord alone.

3612^e. Thus, finally, Heaven in its form, that is, in its beauty and happiness.

3619. For the Intellectual is nothing but the Voluntary in form . . .

3627. It is a general rule, that nothing . . . can be kept in form except from something else, that is, by means of something else . . . The human body is kept in form from without by the atmospheres . . . 6056. D.3972.

3628^o. See FORCE.

3630. Celestial and spiritual things flow in with man, and this into adapted and suitable forms . . .

[A.3630]^o. Under a different form and appearance—specie.

3646. The operation (of influx with animals) presents itself differently according to the forms of their souls and the derivative ones of their bodies. The case is the same as with light . . . which . . . acts diversely in different forms . . .

3648. Unless the Spiritual from the Lord within continually acted upon the primitive forms (of plants), which are in their seeds, they would never vegetate and grow . . . But the forms therein are of such a nature, that they do not receive anything of life.

3679^o. Their speech is not from forms of words, as with man, but from forms of things.

3741. All the Angels are forms, or substances formed according to the reception of the Divine things which are from the Lord.

—². Hence it is that the forms and material substances appertaining to man are also of such a nature, but in a lower degree, being grosser and more composite. That these, too, are forms recipient of celestial and spiritual things, is very evident from . . . thought, which inflows into the organic forms of the tongue, and produces speech . . . The thought and will which produce these things are spiritual and celestial things, whereas the forms or substances which receive them, and put them into act, are material. It is evident that the latter have been formed wholly for the reception of the former, and therefore that they are from them . . .

3743^o. Still, the evil . . . are forms recipient of life from the Lord, but such forms, that they either reject, or suffocate, or pervert good and truth . . . As light . . . is varied as it . . . flows into various forms . . .

3804^o. Truths themselves constitute as it were the face of good, the beauty of which is from the form of truth ; but that which affects is good. Such are all angelic forms ; and such would man be if from interior life he were in love to the Lord and charity towards his neighbour. Into such forms was man created, because he was created into the image and likeness of God ; and such forms as to their spirits are they who are regenerate.

3820. When (ideas) are illustrated by particulars . . . they derive thence the essential and the formal things which are signified by 'the beauty of form, and the beauty of look' which belonged to Rachel. (Gen.xxix.17). 'Form'=essence. 3821.

3855. External things are images and forms compounded of myriads of internal things.

—². The external forms (of plants) may easily suffer injury . . . but not so the internal or inmost forms of the seeds, which are of a more interior and perfect nature. The like is the case with the internal and external things of man . . .

3938^o. Men, Spirits, and Angels are nothing but recipients, or forms recipient of life from the Lord.

4039^o. On the form of the brain in general.

4040^o. All these things (in the brain) are exactly according to the heavenly form ; for such a form is imprinted on the Heavens by the Lord, and thence on the things in man, especially on his cerebrum and cerebellum.

4041. The heavenly form is stupendous, and altogether transcends all human intelligence ; for it is far above the ideas of the forms which man can possibly conceive, even by analysis, from worldly things. According to this form are all the heavenly Societies ordered, and wonderful to say, there is a gyration according to the forms, of which Angels and Spirits are not sensible . . . The nature of the heavenly form in the lowest sphere has been shown me ; it was like the form of the circumvolutions which appear in human brains . . . (Thus) the brain is formed according to the form of the fluxion of Heaven. But the interior things therein, which do not appear to the eye, are according to the interior forms of Heaven, which are quite incomprehensible ; and it has been said by the Angels, that man is created according to the forms of the three Heavens . . . so that man is a little Heaven in the least form.

4043. The reason the still more interior forms, which are also more universal, are not comprehensible, is that when forms are mentioned, they carry with them an idea of space and also of time, when yet in interior things, where Heaven is, nothing is perceived by means of spaces and times . . . but by means of states, and their variations and changes. But as variations and changes cannot be conceived by man apart from such things as belong to form . . . it may appear how incomprehensible those things are.

—^e. Still, the things which take place in the Heavens are represented in the World of Spirits by means of forms, to which the forms which appear in the world bear some likeness.

4149^o. The organ is according to the form of the fibres, consequently so is its operation.

— . With everyone who is in good, all truths communicate with each other, and constitute a certain form : and therefore the truth of one person cannot be transferred into another, but if it is transferred, it passes into the form of him who receives it, and puts on a different face . . . Hence it is that the universal Heaven consists of angelic forms, which are in perpetual variety, and which, being disposed by the Lord into the heavenly form, act as one ; for a unit is never composed of identities, but of varieties in form, which constitute a unit according to the form.

4156^o. The same light illuminates scientifics . . . and disposes them into order and into the heavenly form.

4206^o. Life is diversely received ; for it is the form of each thing according to which the action is determined. 4320.

4214^o. Both appear alike in the external form.

4223. The Heavens above mentioned correspond to the very organic forms themselves of the human body . . . but still they principally correspond to the functions of these viscera and organs. . . The functions constitute one with these organic forms ; for it is not possible to conceive of any function except from forms, that is, from substances. Examps. . . Functions, therefore, are what the heavenly Societies principally correspond to, and this being the case, the organic forms are also what they correspond to . . . for whether we say the function, or the organic form by which and from which the function exists, it is the same thing.

—². It is the use which commands in the forms. Hence it is evident that the use existed before the organic forms of the body came forth; and that the use produced and adapted them to itself. . . . But after the forms have been produced, or the organs adapted, the uses proceed from them, and then it appears as if the forms or organs were prior to the use; when yet it is not so; for the use flows in from the Lord, and this through Heaven, according to the order and according to the form in which Heaven is ordered by the Lord; thus according to correspondences.

4224. Organic forms are not only those which appear to the eye, and which can be discovered by the microscope, but there are organic forms still purer. . . . The latter forms are more interior; as the forms which are of the internal sight, and finally those which are of the understanding. The latter are inscrutable, but still they are forms, that is, substances.

— . Those purer or more interior forms which are inscrutable, are what present the internal senses, and also produce the interior affections. The interior Heavens correspond to these forms, because they correspond to their senses, and to the affections of these senses.

4279². Is Heaven in a small form.

4301. Good has its . . . form from truth. . . .

4302³. All truths, like goods. . . . are disposed in Heaven in such an order, that one has respect to another in such a form as the members, organs, and viscera of the human body. . . .

4317⁵. For the very interior form respective of good and truth from Heaven. . . . is depraved, and, so to speak, distorted. . . .

4322². This influx produces all things in the three kingdoms. . . . and holds them together in forms according to their uses.

—^e. Preservation in connection and form is perpetual creation.

4415. By influx into the forms which are from the light of the world, (that light) produces all things which are of the understanding.

4524. The purer or more interior things are such forms as can receive the influx.

4574. Good, and the Divine forms of good. Sig. . . . 'A company of nations' = the truths which are from good, or, what is the same thing, the forms of good; and, in the supreme sense. . . . the Divine truths which are from the Divine good, or the Divine forms of good.

—². We must first show what is meant by the forms of good. . . . Truths which are from good are said to be the forms of good, because they are nothing else than goods formed. . . . Truths do indeed appear as if separate from good, thus as a form by themselves; but they so appear only to those who are not in good. . . . When the understanding acts in unity with the will. . . . his intellectual things are forms of his will. . . . Hence it follows that, regarded in itself, the Intellectual is nothing but the Voluntary formed.

—³. But as the term form savours of human philosophy, it shall be illustrated by an example, from which it will be evident that truths are the forms of good.

—⁴. Hence it is evident what is the quality of truths when they are forms of good, and what it is when they are separated from it; for when they are not from good, they are from some evil, and are the forms thereof, however much they may counterfeit the forms of good.

4906^e. With animals. . . . spiritual heat. . . . constitutes life, but a life according to the reception in their organic forms.

4926. The use is prior to the members and organs, since the latter are from the uses, and are thus formed according to the uses; nay, the use itself forms them and adapts them to itself. . . . The case is similar with good and truth. . . . for good forms truths, and adapts them to itself; therefore, regarded in themselves, truths are nothing but goods formed, or forms of good.

4985. 'Joseph was beautiful in form' (Gen. xxxix. 6) = the good of life thence; 'and beautiful in look' = the truth of faith thence. . . . For 'form' = the essence of a thing; and 'look' = the manifestation thence; and as good is the very essence, and truth is the manifestation thence, by 'beautiful in form' is signified the good of life.

—². The truth of faith itself presents beauty in the external form, but the good of the will. . . . forms it. Hence it is that the Angels are of beauty ineffable, being as it were loves and charities in form.

5102. For the thoughts are the forms of the affections.

—³. The Angels see the faces of men. . . . in their spiritual forms; that is, in the form presented by the affections and derivative thoughts.

5114^e. As the state (of brute animals) is such, the recipient forms of their life cannot but be dissipated; for with them the influx passes through their organic forms out into the world. . . . and never returns.

5115. Is Heaven in the least form. 5339^e. 6605. 9807. 10303³.

5128^e. Into such a form are natural and sensuous things disposed when the Rational has the dominion.

5133^e. In the good of charity there is life from the Lord, which life disposes truths into order, so that the form of charity. . . . may come forth. In the other life this form appears visible, and is the very angelic form itself. Hence all the Angels are forms of charity, the beauty of which is from the truths of faith, and the life of the beauty is from the good of charity.

5147². Intellectual things may be compared to forms which are constantly varying.

5150. For (in the interior Rational) the forms are more perfect, and are accommodated to reception.

5165^e. The face is (then) love and charity in form. . . . The face is (then) hatred, revenge, and cruelty in form.

5173^e. That which in the will and thence in the thought is that which produces, is not the same in form as the action which is produced; for the action only represents that which the mind wills and thinks.

5198². See BEAST.

5199. See BEAUTY.

5200^e. See ESSENCE. 5207.

[A.] 5256. Regarded in itself, the human is nothing but a form recipient of life from the Divine ; whereas the glorified Human of the Lord . . . is not a form recipient of life from the Divine, but is the very Being of life.

5259°. Whatever man thinks falsely and acts evilly is from the form which he has impressed on himself ; and whatever he thinks truly and acts well is from the form which he has received from the Lord . . .

5272°. The Divine truth proceeding from the Lord is the veriest reality . . . the forms of good and truth are from it.

5278°. Thoughts there sometimes present themselves to view . . . and then such a form of their arrangement appears. Des.

5288°. The good flowing in through Heaven . . . orders all things, and, so far as the man allows, forms them to a resemblance of Heaven, and hence the thought flows in agreement with the heavenly form. The heavenly form is that form into which the heavenly Societies are ordered ; and they are ordered according to the form which is induced by the good and truth proceeding from the Lord.

5337. Going forth or proceeding, in the spiritual sense, is presenting one's self before another in a form accommodated to him, thus as the same, but in a different form. . . (Thus) it is said of truth that it goes forth or proceeds from good when truth is the form of good, or when truth is good in a form which the understanding can apprehend. It may also be said of the understanding that it goes forth or proceeds from the will, when the understanding is the will formed, or when it is the will in a form apperceivable by the internal sight. . . When thought becomes speech, it clothes itself with a different form, but still it is the thought which thus goes forth or proceeds . . . In like manner the will becomes a different form when it becomes action, but still it is the will which is presented in such a form . . .

5339°. Is Hell in the least form.

5351°. For the understanding is the will in form, or the will formed to the sense.

5551. Every such general thing, with its particulars and singulars, has its receptacle, within which it can put itself in action, or vary its forms and change its states.

5558°. They conjecture that as there is no resistance, the thing is in agreement with the heavenly form.

5563°. As truths are determined according to the form of Heaven, they flow as it were spontaneously . . .

5598. As such is the form in man, it may be concluded that the form in Heaven . . . must be most perfect.

5700°. When scientifics are in order, they are disposed by the Lord into the form of Heaven ; but when they are in inverted order, they are disposed into the form of Hell. Des.

5807. When the will wills what is good, the good is insinuated into the understanding, and is there formed according to the quality of the good at the time ; this form is truth.

—°. Love is a harmony resulting from the changes of state and the variations in the forms or substances of which the human mind consists. If this harmony is from the heavenly form, it is heavenly love. Hence it is evident . . . that love is the Divine, which inflows into forms, and disposes them, in order that there may be changes of state and variations in the harmony of Heaven.

5847°. During his life in the world, man induces a form on the purest substances of his interiors, so that it may be said that he forms his own soul, that is, its quality ; and according to that form is the Lord's life received . . .

5881°. Scientifics and truths are arranged into these fascicular forms solely by the man's loves ; into infernal forms by the loves of self and of the world, and into heavenly forms by love towards the neighbour and love to God.

5986°. This life flows in from the Lord through a wonderful form, which is the heavenly form . . . and it is varied everywhere according to the form of each subject, just as this either agrees or disagrees with the heavenly form.

6028. What is best is in the middle . . . and around it on every quarter are goods, disposed in the heavenly form, nearer and more remote according to the degrees of the goodness. . . But with the evil the worst things are in the middle, and goods are relegated to the extremes . . . This form exists with the evil in particular, and in the Hells in general ; thus it is the infernal form.

6115°. In order for scientifics and truths to be anything, a form must be induced on them, in which they bear a mutual relation to each other ; and this cannot be effected unless they are consociated under a general thing ; and therefore the general thing is what keeps them together in a form . . . Moreover, the general thing itself, together with other general things must be referred under things still more general ; and these again under those which are most general . . . The most general universal . . . is the Lord Himself, and that which keeps all things together is the Divine truth proceeding from Him ; the more general things are the general Societies in the Spiritual World . . . and the general things are the less general Societies. Ex.

6138. By receptacles are meant the forms themselves of man ; for men are nothing but forms recipient of life from the Lord ; and, from heredity and actuality, these forms are of such a nature, that they reject the spiritual life which is from the Lord. When these receptacles are so far renounced that they no longer have freedom from proprium, there is a total submission. Sig.

6326. (I said to the philosopher) that man consists of mere forms for receiving life ; and that one form is more interior than another ; but that one comes forth and subsists from another ; also that when a lower or exterior form is dissolved, the higher or interior form still lives. It was further said, that all the operations of the mind are variations of the form ; and that in the purer substances these variations are so perfect that they cannot be described ; and that the ideas of thought are nothing else ; and that these variations come forth according to the changes of the state of the affections. How the most perfect variations exist in the purer forms, may be concluded from the lungs, which fold themselves variously, and vary their forms, according to every expression of speech, and to every note of a song, and to every motion of the body, and also to each individual state of thought and affection. What then must be the case with interior things . . .

6465. Concerning the manifestation—existentia—of interior things in exterior ones . . . all things (both in man and in nature) come forth—existant—by means of successive formations, thus posterior things by means of formations from prior ones. Hence it is, that each formation comes forth separate from another ; but that still the posterior depends upon the prior, so that it cannot subsist without it ; for the posterior is kept by the prior in its connection and in its form . . . He who does not apprehend the interior and exterior things in man according to such formations, cannot possibly have any idea about the external and the internal man, or about the influx of the one into the other ; still less about the manifestation and life of the . . . spirit . . .

6468. Everyone has life according to the form of the interiors which he has acquired by willing and acting, thinking and speaking.

6574. The truth which is from good is in itself good, because formed from good, thus good in its own form.

6584. For the truths which are derived from good are the forms of good.

6607. When thoughts together with affections pour forth, they make a circuit almost according to the form of the circulations of the cimeritious substances in the human brain. Des. . . But the forms of Heaven are still more wonderful, being such as cannot possibly be comprehended, even by the Angels. In such a form are the angelic Societies in the Heavens ; and in such a form do the thoughts of the Angels flow, to a great distance almost instantaneously, because according to a form which is infinitely perfect.

6626. The Angels appear in a form more beautiful and resplendent than can be described. . . But in Hell . . . they appear in the light of Heaven as horrible monsters . . . In like manner in the least things of their thought they are such forms ; for such as anyone is in the whole, such he is in the part . . . That form, in which they appear, is also the form of the Hell in which they are ; for every Hell has its own form . . .

6669⁴. 'Clay' = the man of the Church who is being formed, thus the good of faith by means of which man is formed, that is, reformed.

6685². This Divine truth in which is Divine good . . . is the very life itself which fills Heaven . . . but in the subjects it is varied according to the form . . .

6690. 'He made them houses' = that the scientific truths in the Natural were disposed into a heavenly form. . . The scientifics in the Natural are disposed into continuous series . . . according to various affinities and relationships . . . not unlike families and their generations . . . But the disposition of the scientific truths in the Natural is varied with each man ; for the dominant love induces the form on them. This love is in the middle . . . and places those things next itself which most agree with it, and everything else in order according to the agreement. Thus do scientifics receive a form. If heavenly love has the dominion, all things there are disposed by the Lord into the heavenly form, which form is like that of Heaven, and thus is the form of the good of love itself. Into this form are truths disposed ; and when thus disposed they act as one with good ; and then when the one is excited by the Lord, the other is excited, that is to say, when the things of faith are excited, the things of charity are excited, and the reverse. Such is the disposition which is signified by God making houses for the midwives.

6872³. The Angels, when seen, appear as forms of love . . . The reason is, that all the interiors of an Angel, as also of a man, are nothing but forms recipient of life ; and as they are forms recipient of life, they are forms recipient of loves . . . Since, therefore, the influent love and the recipient form are in agreement with each other, it follows that an Angel or a man is of such a quality as is his love . . . (Thus) man is made altogether new when he is regenerated . . . Nevertheless the previous forms are not destroyed, but are removed ; whereas with the Lord, the previous forms, which were from the maternal, were utterly destroyed and extirpated, and Divine forms were received in their place ; for the Divine love does not agree with any but a Divine form ; all others it casts completely out.

7004². The Divine truth itself is the one only substance ; derivatives are nothing but successive forms thence derived.

7068⁰. Truth cannot be ordered into the heavenly form except by good ; therefore in itself it is hard ; for the heavenly form is perfectly free and has no resistance.

7191². It is an amazing and incredible thing that the form of Heaven is represented in angelic discourse . . .

7236². The reason of the perpetual variety (of good), is that every form consists of various distinct things . . .

7270⁴. The truth Divine which inflows into the Third Heaven . . . inflows simultaneously without successive formation into the ultimates of order. (For) there is only one substance, and all the rest are formations from it ; and that one only substance reigns in the formations, not only as form, but also as non-form, as in its own origin. Unless this were the case, the thing formed could not possibly subsist and act.

7297. The things which flow from order are not varied by abuse, but appear alike as to the external form, but not as to the internal form ; for they are contrary to the ends of order.

7298⁰. For truths receive various forms according to circumstances.

7337. Such are Divine miracles in their internal form. Magical miracles . . . in the external form appear like Divine ones. . . Their external forms are alike, but the internal ones differ as do Heaven and Hell.

7342. For, regarded in itself, the understanding is nothing but the form of the will.

[A.] 7343². The light from the sun is white, but still it is varied according to the forms into which it flows; whence come colours: it becomes beautiful ones in beautiful forms, and unbeautiful ones in unbeautiful forms.

7408. This fasciculation is presented to view especially in the brain . . . The case is not unlike this in purer things, and, finally, in the purest ones, where the forms which receive them are the very forms of life. That forms or substances are recipient of life, may appear in each several thing which appears in living creatures; and also that the recipient forms or substances are disposed in a manner the most suitable for the influx of life. Without the reception of life in substances, which are forms, nothing living would exist in the natural world, nor in the Spiritual World. Series of the purest threads, like fascicles, are what constitute these forms. And the case is the same with the things which are so highly modified therein; for modifications receive their form from the forms which are substances in which they are and from which they flow; for the substances or forms are the determining subjects.

7648^o. If that which reigns is evil and false, the form of his spirit is diabolical; but if that which reigns is good and true, his form is angelic; for, regarded in itself, the spirit is affection in form; and the dominant affection is its veriest form . . .

8043². The Lord is called 'the Maker,' and 'the Former from the womb,' because He regenerates man, and from natural makes him spiritual. —³, III.

8311². For falsity . . . is evil in form . . .

8343. For, by evil of life, men become forms of falsity from evil; and therefore when the evils themselves together with the falsities are cast down, the forms to which they adhere are drawn down with them.

8456. The truth of peace . . . disposes into the heavenly form all things in the truth which is called the truth of faith, and also, afterwards, the truths themselves one among another.

8458. The good of truth in its first formation. Sig. . . . As truth, it forms the Intellectual of the mind, and as good it forms the new Voluntary. The Intellectual is distinguished from the Voluntary by this, that the Intellectual presents things to itself in a form, and so that it may see them as in light; whereas the Voluntary is affected by them . . . and this according to the quality of the form.

—². Truth is there presented as angular in various forms . . . But good . . . as round, which is continuous in form. . . Hence it is that things in the world which approach such forms signify either truths or goods.

8459^o. (Thus) 'hoar frost' = truth in the form of good. Truth in the form of good is said to be consistent and flowing because truth is the form of good, and good is the life and as it were the soul of that form.

8469^o. From the distinct goods of those who are in a Society, which are thus various, yet still congruent, there arises a form, which is called the heavenly form. The universal form consists of such forms. Relatively to goods, these conjunctions are called forms, but relatively to Societies they are called persons. Rep.

8470^o. The universal which forms and orders each and all things, is the Divine good of the Divine love from the Lord.

8497². For men and Angels are only recipients, that is, forms accommodated to receive life, thus good and truth from the Lord.

8530. That truths are vessels recipient of good, may be illustrated by various things in nature . . . They are circumstanced . . . as is every organic form of the body to the life therein . . .

8603². Beneath these skins (of fruits) is the interior pulp, which contains the first form, as a soul; from which again come new trees and new fruits. . . The first form, which is the inmost one in the seed, must be successively opened, before it can be expanded into forms like their parents . . .

—⁴. They differ in this, that the forms in the animal kingdom are created to receive life; therefore, as forms recipient of life are in successive order, so also are the lives which thence result; for the forms or substances recipient of life are subjects . . .

8631. The Spirits of Jupiter . . . represented the intellectual mind as a beautiful form; and, for affection, they impressed on it an activity suitable to the form.

8750². As in the inmost sphere of Heaven there is a certain progression according to the Divine heavenly form, which comes to the perception of no one . . . the Angels are alternately in the good of love, in the truth of faith, and in obscurity as to both.

8772. He who knows the formation of good from truths, knows the veriest arcana of Heaven: for he knows the arcana of the formation of man anew, that is, of the formation of Heaven . . . with him.

8773. They who are in good which is not as yet formed by means of truths . . . are first formed by the Lord by means of primary truths, that is, by means of general truths . . .

—^e. When these truths have been insinuated . . . the rest are insinuated; and in and under those general ones are ordered according to the heavenly form . . .

8861^e. Each and all things originate from truths Divine, which are the internal beginnings of all things; their forms too, in which they exist, originate thence; for they are created to receive and to contain.

8862. All the words, that is, all the truths, which are from the Lord . . . in the Heavens are in a spiritual form, but on earth in a natural form. Ex.

8882. For the understanding is the form of the will, that is, the will manifests itself there in the light.

8885. Man's thought . . . is the form of a number of things which have successively entered. The things which come to manifest perception are in the middle . . . the rest are at the sides round about; the things in the the circumferences are in obscurity . . . except when such objects occur as they are associated with; and the things which are still more remote, and not in the same plane, but which incline downwards, are such things as the man has rejected and is averse to . . .

—³. The will itself is the inmost of man, because it is formed from his love.

8889. 'The Sabbath' = . . . good implanted by means of truths and afterwards formed by them ; for the good with man is not spiritual good until it has been formed by truths ; but when it has been formed, there is the heavenly marriage.

8916. 'The mountain smoking' = the good itself of truth not perceptible except in external form . . . (For) Divine truth in the internal form is like light and flame, whereas in the external form it is like a cloud and smoke. The reason is, that truth Divine in the internal form is such as it is in Heaven . . . whereas in the external form it is such as it is in the world . . . 8920, Ex. 8921.

8985². When they think abstractedly . . . the thought diffuses itself on every side according to the heavenly form, which (form) is produced by the influx proceeding from the Divine.

9043^e. When good is in the Natural, the man is new ; his life being then from good, and his form from the truths which are from good ; (as is the case with) an Angel. This is the human form.

9154². As good has its quality from truths, it also has its form from them ; for where there is form there is quality, but where there is no form, neither is there quality. (So) the animal spirit receives its determinations, and thus its form, by means of the fibres ; and in like manner the blood by means of the vessels. 9514. 9643.

9192⁶. For falsities from evil are evils in form, because when evil shows itself in the light, and forms itself, it is called falsity.

9297⁴. All things are formed according to the use of life ; it is the truths of faith by means of which the formation takes place . . . In the other life . . . the truths or falsities which had made one with that use, remain ; and more are learned, which . . . complete the use, and cause it to appear in its own form. Hence it is that Spirits and Angels are forms of their own use ; evil Spirits the forms of evil use . . . good Spirits or Angels the forms of good use . . .

9394⁵. Everything scientific is a certain general thing . . . and such general things are disposed into series, and as it were into bundles ; and these bundles and series are so ordered together, that they relate to the heavenly form ; and this in order from the most singular to the most general things. Examp.

9481. 'The form of the habitation' (Ex. xxv. 9) = a representative of Heaven ; for 'a form' = what is representative . . . The reason is that the Divine things in the Heavens are presented to view in form ; and these visible things are representative.

—². All these things are representatives . . . and present in a visible form Divine celestial things . . . and Divine spiritual things . . . As the tabernacle and the things it contained were forms of Divine celestial and spiritual things . . . there were presented in Heaven such things as were represented.

9482. 'And the form of all the vessels thereof' (id.) = a representative of all the celestial and spiritual things which are from the Lord.

9496². (Thus) natural forms which are not alive represent like things with living forms, that is, with the forms in the human body.

9576. 'See and make in the form of those things' (ver. 40) = a representative of all things.

9666². Things are said to be less perfect which can be more easily warped from their form and beauty, thus from their order. Examp.

— . In like manner in every perfect form ; its inmost is the best.

9783^e. Truth is the form of good, that is, good formed so as to appear in the light ; and so faith is the form of charity, or charity formed.

9846. The heavenly form of all Truths in their order in the memory from the good of love. Sig.

—^e. Hence it is that truths constitute the form of good.

9877. 'With the engravings of a seal' = to the heavenly form . . . The heavenly form is that form according to which all the Societies in the Heavens are ordered, thus according to which all truths from good are ordered . . . The Divine good proceeding from the Lord creates this form. According to this form flow all the affections which are of love, and thence all the thoughts which are of faith ; in fact, according to it they diffuse themselves into the angelic Societies and make the communion . . . But the nature of this form cannot be comprehended as to its particulars, because it transcends all intelligence.

9879². The Angels are receptions of good and truth from the Lord ; and as they are receptions of them, they are also forms of them, which forms are those of love and charity . . .

9995². For the being of thought is will, and the form of will is thought ; as the being of truth is good, and the form of good is truth.

—³. Moreover, all the good with man is formed by means of truth ; for good flows in by an internal way . . . and truth enters by an external way . . .

10303³. Truths are said to be disposed into series, when they are disposed according to the form of Heaven . . .

10373². 'To create' = what is new . . . 'to form' = quality ; and 'to make' = the effect.

H. 17. All in Heaven are forms of love and charity. Des. Refs.

49^e. For all the extension of the affections and thoughts proceeds according to this form.

51. That each Society is a Heaven in a less form, and each Angel in the least. 52.

52^e. The Lord (then) appears in an Angelic form.

56. A unit which is not from various things . . . has no form, and therefore no quality. But when a unit comes forth from various things, and the various things are in a perfect form, in which each thing joins itself to another in friendly agreement in a series, then it has perfect quality. Heaven is a unit from various things ordered in the most perfect form ; for the heavenly form is the most perfect of all forms.

62. In the most perfect form, the generals are cir-circumstances as are the parts, and the parts as the generals; the difference is only like that between greater and less.

[H.]99. Man is not an image of Heaven as to the external form, but as to the internal one . . . As far as his interiors receive Heaven, man is Heaven in the least form; (otherwise) his exteriors may be in a form according to the order of the world, and therefore in beauty . . . Hence it is that the form of his natural man differs vastly from the form of his spiritual man. From experience.

200. On the form of Heaven according to which exist the consociations and communications there. Gen.art.

—¹. Heaven is like itself in the greatest and in the least things . . . Therefore each Society is a Heaven in a less form, and each Angel in the least. . . The wisest are in the middle . . . Those who are in the good of love dwell from east to west, and those who are in truths from good, from south to north. All these things are according to the form of Heaven, and from them may be concluded the nature of its form in general.

201. It is important to know what the form of Heaven is, because not only are all consociated according to that form, but all the communication is according to that form; (and therefore) all the extension of the thoughts and affections; consequently, all the intelligence and wisdom of the Angels. (Thus) in proportion as anyone is in the form of Heaven, he is wise. Whether you say in the form of Heaven, or in the order of Heaven, it comes to the same thing, because the form of everything is from order, and according to it.

202. What it is to be in the form of Heaven. Ex. . . Man was created to the image of Heaven and to the image of the world; his internal to the image of Heaven, and his external to the image of the world. Whether you say to the image, or according to the form, it is the same. But as man . . . has destroyed in himself the image of Heaven, thus its form, and in its place has introduced the image and form of Hell, his internal, when he is born, is closed . . . In order that the image or form of Heaven may be restored to him, he must be instructed in the things relating to order; for . . . form is according to order . . . In proportion, therefore, as man knows (the laws of Divine order), and lives according to them, his internal is opened, and there the order or image of Heaven is formed anew. Hence it is evident that to be in the form of Heaven . . . is to live according to the things which are in the Word.

203. In proportion as anyone is in the form of Heaven he is in Heaven; nay, is a Heaven in the least form; and therefore in the same proportion is in intelligence and wisdom . . .

204. Those whose intelligence and wisdom are formed from genuine truths and goods, have communication with the Societies according to the form of Heaven; but with those whose intelligence and wisdom are not formed from genuine truths and goods, and yet from such things as agree with them, the communication is broken . . . for it does not exist with the Societies in the series in which is the form of Heaven.

205^e. Therefore, they with whom truths and goods are conjoined according to the form of Heaven, see things following each other in a series, and also how wide is their coherence in all directions; but it is otherwise with those with whom goods and truths are not conjoined according to the form of Heaven.

206. Such is the form in each Heaven according to which the Angels have communication and extension of the thoughts and affections . . .

211. From these things it may be evident what is the nature of the form of Heaven; namely, that in the Inmost Heaven it is the most perfect of all; that in the Middle Heaven it is perfect, but in a lower degree; and in the Ultimate Heaven in a degree still lower; and that the form of one Heaven subsists from the form of another by means of influx from the Lord.

212. As to what concerns the form of Heaven in special, and how it proceeds and flows, this is incomprehensible even to the Angels. Some idea may be conceived of it from the form of all things in the human body. Des.

—². That this form corresponds to the form of Heaven, is clearly manifest from the operation of all things of the understanding and will in and according to that form . . . and as it is the form of the thought and the will, it is the form of the intelligence and wisdom. This is the form which corresponds to the form of Heaven; and hence it may be known, that such is the form according to which all the affection and thought of the Angels extends itself; and that they are so far in intelligence and wisdom as they are in the form; (and) this form of Heaven is from the Divine Human of the Lord. These things are advanced for the additional reason that it may be known, that the form of Heaven is of such a nature that it cannot be exhausted even as to its general things; and thus that it is incomprehensible even to the Angels.

266. That the Angels . . . may be called wisdoms, may be concluded from this, that all their thoughts and affections flow according to the heavenly form, which form is the form of the Divine wisdom; and that their interiors, which receive wisdom, are composed to that form.

368. That the man is born to be intellectual . . . and the woman to be voluntary, (shown from their form).

553. All Spirits in Hell, seen in any light of Heaven, appear in the form of their own evil . . . In general, they are forms of contempt for others . . . they are forms of hatred of various kinds; they are forms of revenge of various kinds . . . All these forms . . . are indescribable in a few words, for one is not like another . . .

—³. Hell itself in general, in the form in which it exists, I have not been permitted to see . . . But in what kind of a form exist Hells in special . . . I have often been permitted to see; for there appears at the apertures which lead to them . . . a monster, which in general represents the form of those who are inside . . . 554.

554. All in general are forms of the loves of self and of the world.

N. 32^e. For the good which is of the will forms itself in the understanding, and presents itself to view.

J. 12. That the perfection of Heaven increases according to the plurality is evident from its form . . . which is the most perfect of all ; and, in the most perfect form, the greater the numbers are, the more does there exist a direction and consent of those numbers towards a unit, and the more is their conjunction close and unanimous . . .

—². The form of Heaven is like the form of the human mind, the perfection of which increases according to the increments of truth and good . . . The reason the form of the human mind . . . is like the form of Heaven, is that the mind is the least image of its form . . .

—⁴. Every form consists of various things. The form which does not consist of various things is not a form, because it has no quality, nor any changes of state. The quality of each form exists from the orderly arrangement of the various things it contains, and from their relation to each other, and from their consent towards a unit ; from which every form is considered as a unit. In such a form the more things there are ordered in this way, the more perfect it is ; for each several thing . . . confirms, strengthens, conjoins, and thus perfects.

27³. All things of the spiritual mind are also presented in forms before their sight. Hence the magnificent and stupendous things of the Spiritual World cannot be described. Moreover, they are increasing according to the multiplication of the human race in the Heavens ; for all things are presented there in forms corresponding to the state of each person as to love and faith . . .

W. 15. The reason being is not being unless it comes forth, is that until then it is not in a form ; and if it is not in a form it has no quality ; and what has no quality is not anything.

40. That the Divine love and the Divine wisdom is a substance, and it is a form. Gen.art.

41. The very substance and form of the skin cause it to feel the things applied to it : the sense of touch is . . . in the substance and form of the skin . . . It is the same with taste ; this sense is only an affection of the substance and form belonging to the tongue . . . Hence it follows, that sight, hearing, smell, taste, and touch, are . . . the organs regarded in their substance and form.

42. It is the same with love and wisdom, with this difference only, that the substances and forms which are love and wisdom are not extant before the eyes . . . Yet no one can deny that . . . thoughts, perceptions, and affections are substances and forms ; and that they are not . . . abstracted from a real and actual substance and form, which are their subjects. For in the brain there are innumerable substances and forms, in which every interior sense resides which relates to the understanding and the will.

46^e. Forms are the containants of uses. Therefore if the forms alone are regarded, nothing of life can be seen in nature, still less anything of love and wisdom, thus not anything of God.

174². The spiritual atmospheres are discrete substances, or least forms . . . The natural atmospheres . . . also are discrete substances and least forms . . .

200. Perfection and imperfection are predicated of life, of forces, and of forms. . . Perfection of forms and perfection of forces make one ; for such as the forces are, such are the forms ; with this difference only, that forms are substances, but forces are their activities ; and therefore to both belong similar degrees of perfection. The forms which are not at the same time forces, are also perfect according to degrees.

205. In like (successive) order are all the perfections of the forms and forces (in Heaven).

209^e. By substance is also meant form ; for substance without form does not exist.

226. From the fact that the greatest and the least things are forms of both kinds of degrees, there is a connection between them from primes' to ultimates ; for similitude conjoins them. . . That no sameness is possible between any leasts in any form, or among any forms, is because . . .

229. It is asserted . . . that there is a substance so simple that it is not a form from lesser forms . . . But . . . such absolutely simple substances have no existence. For what is a substance without a form ? . . . That there are innumerable things in the first created substances . . . will be seen in what follows, where forms will be treated of.

245. The forms which are the receptacles of heat and light, or of love and wisdom, in man, and which . . . are in threefold order . . . are by birth transparent, and transmit spiritual light . . . But these forms are not opened until spiritual heat conjoins itself with spiritual light . . . By this conjunction these transparent forms are opened according to the degrees.

273^e. The reason the natural mind . . . is in form a Hell, is that every spiritual form in the greatest and least things is like itself. 275.

275. That the three degrees of the natural mind, which is a form and image of Hell, are opposite to the three degrees of the spiritual mind, which is a form and image of Heaven. Ex.

—⁴. Goods and truths are made into evils and falsities by influx into forms turned the wrong way ; for . . . all that flows in is perceived and felt according to the recipient forms and their states.

291^e. Because the affections are the mere states of the forms of the mind . . .

307. That all uses . . . are in forms, and that they receive the forms from substances and matters such as are in earths. Ex.

309. As the forms of uses are here treated of, the subject shall be stated in this order.

310. I. That in earths there is an endeavour to produce uses in forms, or forms of uses. Ex.

—². Thus do uses pass into forms ; and the forms of use, which is like a soul, in the progression from the primes to the ultimates, and from the ultimates to the primes, derive this, that each and all things of these forms are of some use. Use is said to be as a soul, because its form is as a body.

311. The atmospheres in the ultimates become such forces, by which substances and matters such as are in earths are actuated into forms, and are held together in forms, both within and without.

[W.] 313. II. That in all forms of uses there is some image of creation. Ex.

— The forms of uses are of three kinds ; the forms of the uses of the mineral kingdom, the forms of the uses of the vegetable kingdom, and the forms of the uses of the animal kingdom. The forms of the uses of the mineral kingdom cannot be described, because they are not visible to the eye. The first forms are the substances and matters of which earths consist, in their leasts ; the second forms are congregates of these, and are of infinite variety ; the third forms come from plants fallen to dust, and from the remains of animals, and from continual vaporizations and exhalations of these, which go to increase the earths, and form their soil. These forms of the three degrees of the mineral kingdom in an image resemble the creation in this, that actuated by the sun . . . they produce in forms the uses which have been the ends of creation.

314. In the forms of the uses of the vegetable kingdom the image of creation appears in this, that from their primes they proceed to their ultimates, and from the ultimates to the primes. Ex. . . An image of creation in the forms of uses is exhibited in the progression of the formation of these things from primes to ultimates, and from ultimates to primes . . .

316. In the forms of the uses of the animal kingdom there is a similar image of creation. Ex.

—³. A similar progression from primes to ultimates, and from ultimates to primes, is exhibited in the forms, most purely organic, of the affections and thoughts in man. Ex.

—⁴. There is a similar progression of all the affections and thoughts ; these being changes and variations of the state of those forms and substances. Ex.

317. III. That in all the forms of uses there is some image of man.

318. IV. That in all the forms of uses there is some image of the Infinite and the Eternal. Ex.

340. It is the Spiritual which originates from the Sun . . . and proceeds to the ultimates of nature, which produces the forms of plants and animals . . . and packs them with matters from the Earth, in order that these forms may be fixed and constant.

346. That there are two forms into which operation by influx takes place, the vegetable form and the animal form. Ex.

— That there are only two universal forms produced from the Earth, is known from the . . . animal kingdom and the vegetable kingdom . . .

— As to their productions into their forms, both kingdoms . . . derive their origin by spiritual influx and operation from the Sun of Heaven . . . and not from the influx and operation of nature from its sun, except their fixation.

347. That both forms together with existence receive the means of propagation. Ex.

373. As the will and the understanding are the receptacles of love and wisdom, these two are organic forms, or forms organized out of the purest substances ; for they must be such in order to be receptacles. Ex.

376. For Heaven strives after such forms (as those of the heart and lungs) . . .

409. In all things created by the Lord, the use has relation to good, and the form of the use to truth.

411. Thus do (truths) become affections in form ; therefore truth is nothing but the form of an affection which is of love. The human form is nothing but the form of all the affections of love. . . The truth which it receives . . . are what the love disposes into the form of its affections ; and these forms of affections exist in great variety ; but they all derive a likeness from their common form, which is the human. To the love all these forms are beautiful and lovely, but all others are ugly and unlovely to it.

432. The Angels . . . presented the initial form of man in a type before my eyes in the light of Heaven. Des. . . Moreover it was shown in the light of Heaven . . . that the compages of this little brain within, as to make and fluxion, was in the order and in the form of Heaven ; and that its outer compages was in direct opposition to that order and that form. . . The Angels said, that the two interior degrees, which were in the order and in the form of Heaven, were receptacles of love and wisdom from the Lord ; and that the exterior degree, which was in direct opposition to the order and the form of Heaven, was a receptacle of infernal love and insanity . . . D. Wis. iii. 4, Des.

P. 4². That a unit without a form has no existence ; but that the form itself makes the unit. Ex. . . For whatever comes forth derives from its form that which is called quality, and also that which is called predicate ; also that which is called change of state, and that which is called relative, and other similar things. Therefore, that which is not in a form has no power to affect—non est alienjus affectionis—; and that which has no power to affect has no reality. Form itself produces all these things. And because, if a form is perfect, all things which are in the form mutually regard each other . . . it follows that the form itself makes the unit, and thus the subject, of which may be predicated quality, state, affection, thus anything, according to the perfection of the form.

—³. In order that each and all things may be forms, it is necessary that He who has created all things shall be Form itself, and that all things which have been created in forms shall be from Form itself. Refs.

—⁴. That a form makes a unit the more perfectly in proportion as the things which enter into the form are distinctly different and yet united. Ex.

— That which is indistinct is confused, from which there results all imperfection of form.

124. All things belonging to man are in such a connection, and, by means of the connection, in such a form, that they act not as many but as one . . . Now as the human form is such . . . it follows that one thing cannot be moved out of its place, or changed in state, except with the consent of the rest ; (for otherwise) the form which acts as one would suffer. (Therefore) the Lord never acts on any particular thing without acting simultaneously on all things. . . Yet . . . the Lord acts upon the particulars in man singly . . . but at the same time through all things of his form ; still, He does not change the state of any part, or of anything in particular, except suitably to the whole form.

180^o. The internals (of the human body) which are organic forms from the fibres and vessels . . .

—⁴. When the sheath acts or is acted upon, the whole form in like manner acts or is acted upon. Ex. . . The reason is that in every form what is general and what is particular . . . by a wonderful conjunction act as one. That the like takes place in spiritual forms, and in the changes and variations of their state . . . as in natural forms and their operations . . . will be seen below. 181^o.

195^o. Goods and truths are indeed changes and variations of the state of the forms of the mind, but these changes are perceived and live only through the delights . . . of good and truth.

196^o. (Thus) all thought . . . is the form of its own affection. It is the same with the will and the understanding, with good and truth, and with charity and faith.

199. When yet the thoughts are nothing but affections compounded into forms by his life's love, so that they appear in the light.

—³. The human mind, in which all things are forms of affections, and of the derivative perceptions and thoughts.

279^o. They are utterly ignorant that affections . . . are mere changes and variations of the state of the purely organic substances of the mind ; and that thoughts . . . are mere changes and variations of the form of those substances . . . Ex. . . Who does not acknowledge . . . that affections and thoughts have no existence except in substances and forms, which are the subjects ? And as they exist in the brains, which are full of substances and forms, the forms are called purely organic. . . Thought can no more exist separate from substantial form, than sight can separate from its form which is the eye . . .

—⁷. There are many viscera . . . and they perform their functions by changes and variations of state and form . . . The operations of the purely organic substances of the mind are like these.

—⁸. The nature of the changes and variations of the state and form of the organic substances of the mind, which are affections and thoughts, cannot be demonstrated to the eye ; but still they may be seen as in a mirror from the changes and variations in the state of the lungs in speaking and singing. . . This is done by changes and variations of the state and form of the organic substances in the lungs, (trachea, tongue, and lips). Des. 319, Ex.

319^o. In the organic forms of the mind, which are the subjects of man's affections and thoughts . . . (with) the good the spirals turn forward, but in the evil backward ; and the substances and forms which have the spirals turning forward, are turned towards the Lord, and receive influx from Him ; whereas those which have the spirals turning backward, are turned towards Hell, and receive influx therefrom. . . From this it may be evident what kind of a form or organ an evil man is, and what kind of a form or organ a good man is . . .

327. Good can be turned into evil by the recipient subject whose form is a form of evil . . .

R. 231^o. The formation (of precious stones in Heaven) is from the Lord alone.

875^o. That thought is nothing but the form of affection, may be illustrated by speech, which is nothing but the form of sound.

—³. Faith is nothing but the form of charity, just as speech is the form of sound. Moreover, faith is formed by charity, as speech is formed by sound. The method of the formation is known . . . in Heaven.

903. These two . . . are the essentials (of the doctrine of the New Jerusalem), from which all the formal things proceed.

M. 21^o. Consent is the essential of marriage ; all other things, which follow, are its formal things.

35^o. Every man . . . is the form of his love. It is . . . the interior man which is . . . the form of his love.

86. The reason good and truth in created things are according to the form of each, is that every thing receives influx according to its form. Examp.

90^o. The same is discoverable from (the male) form, which is . . . totally distinct from the female form.

186. That . . . a man's internal form . . . is continually changing. Ex.

— (For) there is nothing that exists except in a form ; and state induces that form ; and therefore it is the same thing whether we say that the state of a man's life is changed, or that his form is changed. All man's affections and thoughts are in forms, and consequently from forms ; for forms are their subjects . . .

187. Men from creation are forms of knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom ; and women are forms of the love of these things as existing with men. Ex.

— The changes of state . . . with both men and women . . . are for the perfecting of the forms ; of the intellectual form with men, and of the voluntary one with women . . . With both, the external form which is of the body is perfected according to the perfecting of the internal form which is of the mind . . .

192. That marriage induces also other forms in the souls and minds of married partners. Ex. and Des.

193. That the woman is actually formed into a wife, according to the description in the Book of Creation. Ex.

194. That this formation is effected on the part of the wife by secret means . . . Ex. 195. 197. 198.

199. That thus a maiden is formed into a wife, and a youth into a husband. Ex.

201. That thus their forms are also successively perfected and ennobled from within. Ex.

310. Therefore the bodies of men viewed interiorly are merely forms of their minds exteriorly organized . . .

—². When marriage love unites the minds of two persons, and forms them into a marriage, it also unites and forms their bodies into a marriage ; for, as has been said, the form of the mind is also interiorly the form of the body ; with this sole difference, that the latter form is outwardly organized to effect that to which the interior form of the body is determined by the mind.

[M.]315¹¹. The soul is a form . . . It is a form of all things relating to love, and of all things relating to wisdom. . . The latter derived from the former . . . constitute one form, in which are contained innumerable things in such an order, series, and coherence, that they may be called a unit. . . Nothing can be taken away from it, or added to it, without the quality of the form being changed. What is the human soul but such a form? Are not all things relating to love, and all things relating to wisdom, essentials of that form?

— . Because you are forms of love and wisdom from God, you can never die. The soul, therefore, is a human form, from which the smallest thing cannot be taken away, and to which the smallest thing cannot be added; and it is the inmost of all the forms of the whole body. And as the forms which are without receive from the inmost both essence and form, therefore you are souls . . .

I. 12^o. Man is rational and moral according to the organic structure of his mind. For the rational sight . . . without forms organized for the reception of spiritual light, would be an abstract nothing.

T. 8^o. As this general influx descends, it falls into forms which do not correspond; and the very form itself varies the influx. . . So in the . . . three kingdoms of nature. It is the same God who communicates life to the beast that does so to the man; but the recipient form causes the beast to be a beast and the man a man. It is the same with a man, when he induces on his mind the form of a beast.

—^o. As to human minds, they are varied according to their forms, which are spiritual within according to faith in God and at the same time life from God; and these forms become pellucid and angelic through faith in one God; but opaque and ferine through faith in a number of gods, which differs but little from faith in no God.

20. That this one God is Substance itself and Form itself, and that Angels and men are substances and forms from Him . . . Ex.

— . Whatever is a substance is also a form; for unless a substance is a form, it is an entity of reason; and therefore both may be predicated of God, but in this way, that He is the only, the very, and the first Substance and Form. That this Form is the Human Form itself. Ref.

33. One thing has been formed from another, and thus degrees were made . . .

37. Not knowing that love abstracted from form is not possible, and that it operates in form and through form. . . Love, moreover, is not only the essence forming all things, but is also that which unites and conjoins them, and so keeps the things formed in connection.

—³. That love, as the bridegroom and husband, produces or generates all forms, but through wisdom as the bride and wife, may be proved by . . . (this), that the universal angelic Heaven is disposed into its form, and kept together in it, from the Divine love through the Divine wisdom.

38^o. Every good forms itself through truths . . . and the goods of one stock bind themselves into bundles, and at the same time clothe these, and thus distinguish themselves from others. That formations are effected in this way, is evident from each and all things in the human body; and that the like takes place in the human mind is evident from the perpetual correspondence of all things of the mind with all things of the body. From this it follows that the human mind is organized, interiorly from spiritual substances, exteriorly from natural substances, and finally from material things . . .

53. The reason God is order, is that He is Substance itself and Form itself. He is Substance, because all things that subsist have come forth and do come forth from Him: and He is Form, because all the quality of substances has originated and does originate from Him; and quality can only be derived from form. Now as God is the very, the only, and the first Substance and Form . . . and as wisdom from love makes form, and the state and quality of this is according to the order therein, it follows that God is order itself.

65. That man was created a form of Divine order. Ex.

339. Faith in its essence is spiritual, but in its form natural . . .

347. On the formation of faith. Gen.art.

366. That the things which flow in from the Lord are received by a man according to his form. Ex. . . By the form is here meant the man's state as to his love and at the same time as to his wisdom . . . That the form or recipient state induces variations, may be evident from the life of infants . . . adults, and old people, in each of whom there is the same life from infancy to old age . . .

—³. That everyone receives life from God according to his form, may be illustrated by comparison with plants of all kinds . . . The sun with its heat does not change their forms, but the forms change its effects in themselves . . . In like manner the Lord . . . (is present) with His heat . . . and with His light . . . but the form of a man, which has been induced by the states of his life, varies the operations; consequently the Lord is not the cause of a man not being reborn and saved, but the man himself.

367. But that a man who divides the Lord, charity, and faith is not a form recipient, but a form destructive [of them]. Ex.

—³. To separate charity from faith is like separating essence from form. It is known in the learned world that essence without form, and form without essence, is not anything; for essence has no quality except from form, and form is not a subsisting entity except from essence; consequently, nothing can be predicated of either when separated from the other . . .

374². From which it follows, that works are essentially of the will, formally of the understanding, and actually of the body.

—³. Fruits are essentially of the seed, formally of the boughs and leaves, and actually of the wood of the tree.

472³. For the whole man is nothing but a form organized for the reception of (heat and light), from both the natural and the Spiritual World. . . To deny that man is a form recipient of love and wisdom from God, would be to deny influx . . .

583. Now as the spiritual body is to be formed in the material body, and as it is formed by means of truths and goods which flow in from the Lord through the Spiritual World, and are received by man inwardly in such things belonging to him as are from the natural world, which are called civil and moral things, it is evident what the nature of its formation must be . . .

753. For all the quality of good is formed through truths; for good is the essence of truth, and truth is the form of good, and without form no quality is possible.

D. 241. On the (spiritual) form of the interiors, that it can never be overcome, but resists every attack, and always remains the firmer . . . 2487.

— (The more yielding a form is, the more firmly it stands.)

—³. It is otherwise in the interior form where there is what is natural . . . 2488.

1709. The life is according to the forms. Ex. 2326. 2329.

2762. (The corporeal forms of man in their natural, and in their reformed state. Des.)

3040. On angelic forms.

3482. I was led by the Lord into a certain perception of forms (which surpass geometrical forms). Des. 3484. Ex.

3920. (Signification of variations of forms which are turned backwards.)

4040. On form.

4399. The affection of truth is formal; the affection of good is essential. Examp.

4610. There is nothing in the universal body which makes life, except the changes and variations of the forms in the substances therein. Examp.

5646. On the forms of Spirits.

5779. Situation (in the Spiritual World) as to form is incomprehensible . . . The nature of that form may be a little comprehended from the form of the fibres in the human body . . .

6056^e. The greatest form and the least form in the Heavens are alike.

6058^e. The heavenly form is from continuous centres.

D. Min. 4667. Thoughts and intellectual things are only forms so appearing from affections, that is, affections formed.

E. 242². For truth is the form of good . . . For the Lord flows in with good, and from that forms the truth which is the truth of faith.

282³. 'They shall not make for themselves their form' (Deut.iv.17)=that these things are not to be procured from man or from his proprium.

283. All things by which celestial things are represented as to the bodies themselves=essential things; and as to those things which are around them, formal things. Thus man, as to the body, =good in essence; and as to those things which encompass it, good in form.

Celestial good is good in essence; and spiritual good is good in form; and this because the will, where good resides, is the man himself or the man in essence; and the understanding, where truth is, which is the form of good, is the man thence, thus the man in form. The latter good is also round about the former.

294³. From their reformation Jehovah is called 'Creator' and 'Former.'

349³. They turn good into evil and truth into falsity; and this is done because through a life of evil they have inverted their interior recipient forms; and all influx is varied according to the forms. . . Know, however, that the life itself is not changed and varied, but that by means of it there is presented the appearance of the recipient form, through which and from which the life passes . . . —⁶, Ex.

—⁴. Moreover, all man's senses . . . are not in him, but they are excited and produced from influx; in man there are only the organic forms which are the recipients. These have no sense until what is adapted to them flows in from without. It is the same with the internal sensories . . .

— The same afterwards confessed that . . . men, Spirits, and Angels are only forms recipient of life.

372⁵. That everything representative of Divine truth has been destroyed, is described by, 'Their form is darker than blackness' (Lam.iv.8) . . . 'Form' = the quality of truth.

433²⁰. Jehovah is called 'The Former from the womb' (Is.xliv.24) from the fact that He regenerates man.

638¹⁷. 'Beautiful in form' (Jer.xi.16)=the truth of that good, from which comes intelligence.

706¹⁸. He is called 'The Holy One of Israel' (Is.xlv.11) from Divine truth; and 'his Former' from the establishment of the Church thereby; 'Israel' = the Church.

710¹¹. As the Lord alone reforms and regenerates man, He is called in the Word 'The Former from the womb' . . . It is spiritual creation and formation which are there meant.

727¹⁰. 'He is the Former of all things' (Jer.x.16)=the Lord from whom is all the intelligence of truth.

781². These things are presented before their eyes in various forms. Enum.

837. In a word, man after death becomes his own love or his own affection in form . . .

926². All things which come forth in the Heavens . . . appear in forms like those of the three kingdoms of nature in our world. . . That they appear in such forms is from the order of creation, which is that when the things of wisdom and love descend into the lower sphere in which the Angels are as to their bodies . . . they are presented in such forms and types. These are correspondences.

1001². All the Angels are forms of their own affections . . . These loves with them form their faces . . . Such forms are the forms of the Inmost Heaven; and they are forms truly human.

1146^e. All activities are changes of state and variations of form, and the latter are from the former. By the form in man we understand his intelligence; and by the variations of the form, his thoughts.

[E.] 1208². That there are two general forms, the spiritual and the natural; the spiritual such as is that of animals, and the natural such as is that of plants. Ex. D. Love xxi.

—³. The forms of the animal kingdom, which in one word are called animals, are all according to the flux of spiritual substances and forces; which flux, from the endeavour which is in them, is into the human form, and into each and all things of it . . . It is from this that the universal Heaven is in such a form, and that all Angels and Spirits are in such a form, and that men on earth are in such a form; and also all beasts, birds, and fishes. This animal form derives the endeavour to such things from the First . . . Who is a Man . . .

—⁵. The other form, which is the natural form, and in which are all plants, originates from the endeavour and the derivative flux of natural forces, which are . . . called the ethers, in which this endeavour is present from the determination of the spiritual forces, which is into the animal form . . . That this is its origin, is evident from . . . some likeness of the animal form appearing in them. That all things of nature strive after that form, and that the ethers make an effort to produce it from what is spiritual impressed and as it were implanted in them, is evident from . . . the universal vegetation on the surface of the whole Earth, also from the vegetation of minerals in such forms in mines . . . from the vegetation of calcareous matter into corals in the depths of the sea, and even from the forms of the parts of snow which are emulous of plants.

1209¹. (On the force of forming.) See FORCE, here.

1212². That animals and plants have the same origin and derivative soul, with the sole difference of the forms into which the influx takes place. Ex.

Ath. 26. Every good, conjoined with truth, clothes itself with forms; principally with the human form . . .

D. Love ii^o. It follows that the conception of a man from his father is . . . only the conception of the first and purest form receptible of life . . .

iii. That the life, which is the Divine love, is in a form. Ex.

iv. That this form is the form of use in the whole complex. Ex.

v. That in such a form is man in particular. Ex.

vi. That in such a form is man in general. Ex.

vii. That in such a form is Heaven. Ex.

—^c. In order that Hell, too, may be in this form, everyone there is compelled to work . . .

viii. That all things of the world, also, have regard to a like form. Ex.

— . From the creation of the universe . . . it may be seen that the Divine love which is life itself, and which is the Lord, is in the form of forms of all uses, which form is Man. Ex.

xi². Discrete degrees . . . are degrees of the formation of one thing from another . . .

—^c. In every form, both spiritual and natural, there are degrees both discrete and continuous; without discrete degrees there is nothing interior in a form to constitute its cause or soul; and without continuous degrees there is no extension or appearance of it.

xvi². Thought, by itself, is nothing at all, but only through affection . . . because it is from it as the thing formed is from the thing which forms; and the reason why the thought and not the affection is perceived, is that the thing formed is perceived, but not the thing which forms.

xviii. Love cannot exist with man except in a recipient form, which is substantial . . . The form itself recipient of it can also be described . . .

—³. That the will is the man's love in form . . .

xix. Regarded in itself, the will is not love, but the receptacle of it; and such a receptacle as not only to receive love, but also to imbue its states, and to put on forms according to them . . .

— . This receptorium . . . descends into all things of the face and body, and there gyrates and circulates according to its form, which is the spiritual animal form . . .

xxi. That the Divine love . . . by means of heat, produces spiritual animal forms, with each and all things in them. Ex.

—². All these forms, both perfect and imperfect, are forms of love, and are alike as to life in externals . . . but unlike as to life in internals . . . The latter forms are men and Angels; the former are animals of many kinds.

D. Wis. 4¹. Wisdom with the Angels gives to see these things in their essence, and light gives to see them in their form . . .

ii. That the Lord has created with man and afterwards forms with him a receptacle of love . . . and adjoins thereto a receptacle of wisdom . . . Gen. art.

— . The nature of these forms cannot be unfolded, because they are spiritual forms . . . They are forms within forms, ascending to the third degree, innumerable, discrete, but still unanimous; and each of them is a receptacle of love and wisdom . . .

—². That these forms, which are receptacles of love and wisdom, first . . . come forth in the womb. Ex. . . The first forms themselves do not appear to the eye, but the first productions of them, which constitute the head . . . (Thus) these forms are the beginnings.

— . The formation of the embryo of man . . . is an image of creation . . . Hence it follows that the first forms especially with man are receptacles of love and wisdom, and that the creation of all the other things which constitute man is effected through them.

—³. That from these forms by continuity there are brought forth and produced all things of the body from the head to the soles of the feet. Ex.

—⁴. It is a universal law of correspondences that what is spiritual adapts itself into the use which is its end, and actuates and modifies the use by heat and light, and clothes it by the means provided, until it becomes a form subservient to the end; in which form what is spiritual acts as the end, the use as the cause, and what is natural as the effect.

iii. On the formation of man in the womb by the Lord through influx into those two receptacles. Gen. art.

1. That the Lord conjoins Himself with man in the womb of the mother from the first conception, and forms him. Ex. . . That Life itself must be present from the first conception, and must form, follows from this,—that man is to be formed by Life itself, in order to be a form of life, which is man . . . Therefore the Lord is called 'The Creator, the Former, and the Maker from the womb.' III.

3. Love and wisdom together and unanimously form each and all things . . . They operate not as two, but as one, in the formations . . .

5. That there is one receptacle for the will of the future man, and another for his understanding, and yet there is nothing whatever of his will and understanding present in the formation. Ex.

iv. That there is a similitude and analogy between the formation of man in the womb, and his reformation and regeneration. Ex.

viii.2. That such a mind cannot be formed except in man. Ex. . . That the angelic mind is formed in man, is evident from his formation in the womb, and also from his formation after birth. Ex.

— Thus in every man there is formability, and with him who is willing there is a continual formation from infancy . . .

xii.5³. The influx (of the Lord) is into uses, and from these into their forms.

C. 50. Man was created to be a form of love and wisdom. Ex.

96. By charity in form is meant that the man's life is charity; and the form is from the life. 97. 98. 99. 100. 102. 107. 114. 158.

137. All vocations and employments, regarded as to the goods of use, constitute a form which corresponds to the heavenly form. Ex.

143. They also constitute a form which corresponds to the human form. Ex. 149.

Former. See PRIOR and PRISTINE.

Former Church. See OLD CHURCH.

Former Heaven. Coelum Prius.

J. 2². See FIRST HEAVEN. 46^e. 66. 69. 71. 72.

65. On the Former Heaven and its abolition. Gen.art.

66. By 'the First Heaven' (Rev.xxi.1) is not meant the Heaven which was composed of those who had become Angels from the first creation . . . for that Heaven . . . remains to eternity . . . But by 'the First Heaven' is meant that which was composed of others than Angels, and for the most part of those who could not become Angels. . . This is the Heaven of which it is said that 'it passed away.' It is called 'Heaven' because those who were in it lived on high associated together on rocks and mountains, in similar delights of natural things, but in no spiritual delights; for most people, when they come . . . into the Spiritual World believe that they are in Heaven when they are on high, and that they are in heavenly joy when they are in delights like those in which they had been in this world.

67. Moreover, this Heaven, which is called 'the First,' was not composed of any who had lived before the Lord's Advent into the world . . . for at the end of every Church there is a last judgment, and then the Former Heaven is abolished, and a New Heaven is formed; for, from the beginning to the end of a Church, all are tolerated who have lived in external moral life, and in external piety and holiness, even if they have not lived in any internal moral life, piety, or holiness, provided that by means of the civil and moral laws of society they have been able to keep in bonds the internals of their thoughts and intentions; but at the end of the Church the internals are disclosed, and then Judgment takes place upon them. . . So that twice before has a Former Heaven with its earth passed away, and a New Heaven with its earth been created . . . C.J.9.

69. The First Heaven was composed of all those upon whom the Last Judgment was effected; for it was effected . . . solely upon those who had made for themselves a resemblance of Heaven, the greater part of whom were upon the mountains and rocks. . . These, too, are the people called by the Lord 'the goats' whom He set on the left hand. Thus it is evident that the First Heaven was composed not only of Christians, but also of Mohammedans and gentiles, all of whom had formed for themselves such Heavens in their own places. The character of these people shall be stated in a few words. They were those who had lived in this world in a holy external, but in no holy internal, and who had been just and sincere on account of civil and moral laws, and not on account of the Divine laws, thus who had been external or natural men, and not internal or spiritual men; and who, moreover, had been in the doctrinal things of the Church, and had been able to teach them, although they were not in a life according to them; and who also had filled various offices, and had performed uses, but not for the sake of the uses. These, and the like of these, from all the people in the whole world, who had lived after the Advent of the Lord, constituted 'the First Heaven.' This Heaven, therefore, was of a character like that of this world and the Church on earth which is composed of those who do not do what is good because it is good, but because they fear the laws and the loss of reputation, honour, and gain . . . In the First Heaven which was composed of the Reformed there was a large portion who had believed that man is saved by faith alone, and who had not lived the life of faith, which is charity: they had greatly loved to be seen of men. With all of them, so long as they were associated together, the interiors were closed so as not to appear; but they were opened when the Last Judgment was at hand; and then it was found that they were obsessed within by every kind of evils and falsities, and that they were against what is Divine, and were actually in Hell. . . All who had been interiorly good . . . had been . . . elevated into Heaven; and all who had been not only interiorly but also exteriorly evil . . . had been cast into Hell; and this from the time of the Lord's Advent down to the time of the Judgment; and they alone had been left, in order that they might form Societies among themselves, of which was composed the First Heaven.

70. There are several reasons why such Societies, or such Heavens, have been tolerated. The primary one is, that by their holy external, and by their external sincerity and justice, they were conjoined with the simple good in the Ultimate Heaven, and those who were as yet in the World of Spirits . . . for . . . the simple good who are in the Ultimate Heaven, and who are in the World of Spirits, look especially to external things . . . and therefore if they had been severed from them before the appointed time, Heaven would have suffered in its ultimates . . . Sig. (by the parable of the tares). C.J. 10.

[J.] 71. The quality of the First Heaven may (also) be concluded from . . . the fact, that those who are not spiritual . . . and yet appear to be spiritual . . . when left to their own internals, rush into nefarious things in accordance with their lusts . . . Hence it was that the moment they who were in the First Heaven were let into their interiors, they appeared conjoined with the Hells.

72. How the First Heaven passed away, (is described under JUDGMENT).

R. 548. War cannot take place in Heaven . . . but it took place in 'the Former Heaven which passed away' . . . For that Heaven passed away by means of the Last Judgment upon the dragon and his angels.

865. 'From Whose face the Heaven and the earth fled away' (Rev. xx. 11) = a universal Judgment executed by the Lord upon all the Former Heavens, upon those who had been in civil and moral good and in no spiritual good, and who thus simulated Christians in externals, but were devils in internals; which Heavens together with their earth were utterly dispersed, so that nothing of them appeared any more. . . From the time when the Lord was in the world . . . it had been permitted that those who were in civil and moral good, although in no spiritual good . . . should remain longer than the rest in the World of Spirits . . . and it was at last granted them to make for themselves fixed abodes there; and likewise, by the abuse of correspondences, and by phantasies, to form for themselves as it were Heavens; which also they did form in great abundance. But when they had multiplied so much that they intercepted spiritual light and heat . . . the Lord executed the Last Judgment, and dispersed those imaginary Heavens; which was done by their externals in which they simulated Christians being taken away, and the internals in which they were devils being opened.

877. 'For the Former Heaven and the former earth had passed away' (Rev. xxi. 1) = the Heavens not made by the Lord, but by those who had come from Christendom into the Spiritual World; which were all dispersed at the day of the Last Judgment.

878^s. The Former Heavens, which passed away at the day of the Last Judgment, were permitted for the sake of those who were in that external Heaven (collected from Christians), or 'sea,' because they were joined together by externals . . .

Ad. 2/687. That the evil are now in Heaven . . .

D. 218^s. If good Spirits and Angels reigned in this ultimate Heaven, mortals could not but be infested by continual torments of conscience . . .

220. Many who were in the ultimate Heaven were cast down. . . The unhappy ones who had long been in grievous captivity strove in sleep with those who in the ultimate Heaven were in freedom; and the latter wanted to take all mercy away from them . . .

223. For a long time . . . I have experienced every day, that almost all things which came from the interior Heaven . . . were turned into . . . evil. . . At last I was permitted to understand that those Genii who at this day still inhabit the ultimate Heaven . . . turn them into the contrary . . . This is the peculiar nature of the ultimate Heaven . . .

225^e. While I was writing these things, the reins were given somewhat to these furies (of Hell); and then the Spirits who are in the ultimate or natural Heaven were so terrified that . . . they wanted to flee to supplications to God Messiah. Hence may be evident how horrible is the face of those natural Spirits who rove about in the natural Heaven.

228^s. They complained of those free Spirits, or those furies, who still abide in the third Heaven . . .

240. That there are sirens even in the ultimate Heaven.

248. When the ultimate Heaven is not directed by the Angels, they burn with anger, and are wicked.

255. See FIRST HEAVEN. 256. 260.

438. (Compare this passage.)

488o. (Passages in which the Former Heaven and its inhabitants are described.) 4886. 4887. 5070. 5077.

5185. Many mountains and rocks were filled with such Spirits; and also that place where I had believed Heaven to be; for so it appeared, from a snowy mist, as it were, upon the summits. But . . . they were nearly all cast out, so that I believed that those mountains would be utterly destitute of inhabitants; but still, when those were cast out, others went up in their place . . . and I was told from Heaven, that those who had succeeded in their place had been previously thrust out thence by the evil . . . 5202. 5389.

5377. On the destruction of the Old Heaven, that is, on the changes there. Gen.art.

5532. On the Former Heaven and Last Judgment. Gen.art.

5742. On the Last Judgment and the destruction of the Old Heaven and earth. Gen.art.

5746. Thus perished the Old Heaven and the old earth . . . These things lasted from the 31st of March to the 11th of April . . . 1757.

5749. The Heavens which were gathered from the Christian world after the Lord's Advent successively declined, as is wont to be the case on earth. At first they found Heaven within them, and worshipped the Lord, and so had Heaven without them, thus in its own order. But, by degrees, the Heaven that was within them began to be obscured and at last to disappear; and then they wanted to have the Heaven which they knew outside of them; and this they then called Heaven, and no longer the one which is internal. Moreover, they were permitted to have Heaven outside of them. It consisted in amazing and unspeakable magnificence, in palaces, in porticoes, in ornamentations, in paradises; also in dignities and similar things, and so in magnificence from the number of servants, thus in mere dignity, and in external worship for the sake of these things. At last, when they could no longer have such things from the Lord . . . they proured them for themselves by means of phantasies, and by arts unknown in this world . . . They who were of the first resurrection were not of this character, but they who lived afterwards; for as these came into Heaven, the Lord removed the former, or hid them there, so that they did not appear . . . 5765 $\frac{1}{3}$. J.(Post.)169.

5765. On Babylon and the Old Heaven when destroyed. 5786.

5792 $\frac{1}{4}$. The character of those in general who were in the Former Heaven. Ref.

5831. Thus were they cast down from the Former Heaven, and thus were the Societies of Heaven purged. . .

5839 $\frac{2}{2}$. Such purifications of the nations from the Reformed lasted a long time. They were permitted, as before, as it were to climb up to the places where before were the like Spirits who had formed the Former Heaven . . .

5929. By means of phantasies the evil ascend on high, and they believe that they are in Heaven . . . The Former Heaven which perished was from these . . .

— $\frac{2}{2}$. Therefore, as such Spirits had formed the so-called Former Heaven, they were all cast out.

5966. On those who were in the Former Heaven.

5993 $\frac{2}{2}$. Such persons, together with many others, had formerly formed for themselves Heavens which are meant in the Revelation by the Former Heaven which perished . . . and hereafter such Heavens are not tolerated; but all go where their life draws them.

E. 215. This signifies the time of the Last Judgment, when those who are in the Former Heaven will be visited.

258. In the second and third chapters (of the Revelation), it treats of those who are of the Church and of those who are not of the Church, thus of those who are in the Former Heaven which is to be abolished, and of those who are in the New Heaven which is to be formed.

277 $\frac{9}{9}$. The guard and providence of the Lord to prevent the higher Heavens from being approached except through the good of love and charity. Sig. For unless this had been done before the Judgment, the very Heavens themselves in which were the true Angels would have been endangered, because those Heavens which were about to perish (Rev.xxi.1), were not in the good of love and charity, but only in some truths; for there were present there from the Christian world those who had been in the doctrine of faith alone, which some had confirmed by a few passages from the Word, and had thus obtained some conjunction with the Ultimate Heaven; but this conjunction was burst asunder, when that Heaven, which is called 'the Former Heaven,' was dispersed. It was then ordained by the Lord, that hereafter no one should be conjoined with the Heavens but those who are in the good of love to the Lord and in charity towards the neighbour . . .

391. Before the Last Judgment there was a resemblance of Heaven, which is meant by 'the Former Heaven which passed away' (Rev.xxi.1). This Heaven consisted of those who were in external worship without internal . . . They who constituted this Heaven before the Last Judgment appeared above the earth, also upon the mountains, hills, and rocks in the Spiritual World, and thus believed themselves to be in Heaven. But they who constituted this Heaven . . . were cast down, and then all those who had been reserved by the Lord, and hidden here and there, for the most part in the Lower Earth, were elevated and translated into the same places, that is, upon the mountains, hills, and rocks where the Former Heavens had been; and from these was formed the New Heaven.

392 $\frac{3}{3}$. The Former Heaven which passed away consisted of those who had lived morally in externals . . . or who lived as it were a spiritual life merely from the love of reputation, honour, gain; thus for the sake of appearances. These, although they were inwardly evil, were tolerated, and constituted Societies in the higher places in the Spiritual World; which Societies, taken together, were called Heaven, that is, the Former Heaven which afterwards passed away. Thus it came to pass, that all those who had been spiritual . . . could not be together with them, but withdrew either of their own accord, or were put to flight, and when found, they suffered persecutions. Therefore they were concealed by the Lord, and reserved in their own places to the day of Judgment, in order that they might constitute the New Heaven.

394. 'They that dwell on the earth'=those who were in the Former Heaven which afterwards passed away; for they dwelt upon the earth, upon the mountains, hills, and rocks in the Spiritual World; and they who had acknowledged the Lord and had been in the life of charity abode beneath the earth . . .

397. The Former Heaven consisted of such as had lived a moral life in externals, and yet in their internals had been evil . . . As they were interiorly evil, they would not tolerate among them those who had been interiorly good, on account of the discrepancy of the affections and thoughts . . . They therefore cast them out . . . and whenever they saw them did evil to them . . . therefore they were taken away from their violence by the Lord . . . and this was going on from the time when the Lord was in the world up to this time, when Judgment is done . . . The reason the evil were so long tolerated upon the high places, and the good so long detained beneath Heaven, was . . . that the good might amount to such a number as to be sufficient to form the New Heaven, and also that the evil might fall down of themselves into Hell; for the Lord casts no one into Hell, but the evil itself which pertains to the evil Spirits casts them down. . . This takes place at the time when the evils are consummated, that is, completed. Sig. (by the parable of the tares).

675 $\frac{3}{3}$. The evil were such as in the external form could present an appearance of sanctity . . . These are the evil with whom there no longer came forth any truths of doctrine, after the good had been taken away who are meant by 'the two witnesses' . . . There were many Societies composed of such in the Spiritual World; and these Societies, taken together, are meant by 'the Former Heaven which passed away' . . . In these Societies there were such evil Spirits as have been described; and, together with them, the good; and so long as they were conjoined in one Society, the evil, as to their externals, appeared as if they were good; but when they were separated, the external good . . . disappeared from them, and their interiors were manifested . . . Such a separation . . . took place in the Spiritual World a little before the Last Judgment; and this is the state which is here described.

[E.] 702². As the Lord does . . . good to all, He permitted those who had lived a moral and as it were spiritual life in externals . . . to form for themselves in various places of the World of Spirits a resemblance of Heaven; and then the ordinations of the Heavens above them, and of the Hells beneath them, were so disposed, that their interiors—by which they were conjoined with Hell—were as far as possible kept closed; and their exteriors—by which they were conjoined with the Ultimate Heaven—were kept open; and then it was provided that the higher Heavens should not flow in immediately; for by immediate influx their interiors which were infernal would have been opened, and their exteriors which appeared to be spiritual would have been closed . . . But when such quasi Heavens had multiplied to such an extent, that the influx from the Hells began to prevail over that from the Heavens, and thereby the Ultimate Heaven, which was conjoined with them, began to be shaken, the Last Judgment was imminent, and a separation was made by turns of the evil from the good in those new quasi Heavens, and this by an immediate influx from the higher Heavens . . .

J. (Post.) 134². These factitious Heavens . . .

140. (The Judgment on the Former Heaven des.) 141.

5 M. 21. Here you shall see 'the abomination of desolation' . . . and they showed them a black cloud . . . which terrified the novitiates . . . They are satanic Spirits, who . . . by magical arts, by abuses of correspondences, and by phantasies, have formed themselves as it were Heavens by occupying the hills, and building on them ascending roads and towers, like those in the valley of Shinar . . . in order to attempt to get up into the Heavens where the Angels are, with a purpose to thrust them down . . . And they saw a multitude of Spirits, and heard wicked words interspersed with lascivious foulness, and sounds like those made by bacchanalians in brothels; and the Angels said, The latter are they who are meant by the dragon and his two beasts; and the former by the harlot sitting upon many waters and on the scarlet beast. They are all from the Christian world.

24. Know, therefore, that by 'the Former Heaven and the former earth' . . . nothing else is meant than these dusky expanses; and that so long as these expanses remain, the communication between the angelic Heavens and men is intercepted . . .

Formerly. Olim.

E. 724¹⁷. 'As aforetime' (Jer.xx.30) = as with the ancients.

Formula. Formula.

A. 1179. A customary form of speaking . . . 1422. 1610. 1843^c. 5694. 9323.

5127^e. Thinking and speaking about spiritual things from formulae impressed on the natural memory.

5449. A formula of asseveration. 6981.

5654. A formula of testification.

5662³. A formula (of salutation).

5694. This formula was derived from the significatives in the Ancient Church.

D. 3617. A formula contrary to the Lord's Word.

Formula Concordiae.

B. 9. (The Formula Concordiae quoted). 66. 80. 81. T. 137⁷. 356². 464. 503⁴. 516. 798¹⁰. Inv. 31. 35. Coro. 33.

T. 101. (The Formula Concordiae referred to.) 112². 137⁹. 484. Inv. 47. 54.

Fornication. Fornicatio, Fornicari.

Fornicator. Fornicator.

Fornicatory. Fornicatorius.

See under HARLOT, and SCORTATION.

M. 423. By scortatory love is not meant the fornicatory love which precedes marriage, or which follows it after the death of a married partner.

444a. On fornication. Gen.art.

— By fornication is meant the lust of a youth . . . with a harlot before marriage; but lust with . . . a virgin or with the wife of another is not fornication . . . In what manner these two differ from fornication, cannot be seen by any rational being, unless he takes a clear view of the love of the sex in its degrees and diversities . . . Without these distinctions all relation perishes . . . and the understanding is involved in such shade, that it does not know how to distinguish fornication from adultery, and still less the milder kinds of fornication from the more grievous ones . . .

445. That fornication belongs to the love of the sex. Ex.

— It is said that fornication belongs to the love of the sex, because fornication is not the love of the sex, but is derived from it. The love of the sex is like a fountain, from which both marriage love and scortatory love may be derived, and they may be derived by means of fornication, and also without it. . . If (the love of the sex) puts itself forth before marriage with a harlot, it is called fornication; if not until with a wife, it is called marriage; if after marriage with another woman, it is called adultery . . .

—^e. With what caution and prudence chaste marriage love may proceed by means of fornication; and with what imprudence scortatory love may proceed thereby, shall be opened in what follows. Who can draw the conclusion, that he who has committed fornication cannot be more chaste in marriage?

446. That the love of the sex, from which fornication is derived, commences when a youth begins to think and act from his own understanding, and his voice to be masculine. Ex.

—². Wisdom consists in restraining the love of the sex, and insanity in allowing it a wide range. If it be let forth into fornication, which is the beginning of its activity, it ought to be moderated from principles of honour and morality implanted in the memory and thence in the reason . . .

447. That fornication is of the natural man, in like manner as is the love of the sex, which, if it becomes active before marriage is called fornication. Ex.

—^e. The reason fornication is of the natural man, is that it proceeds proximately from the natural love of the sex; and it may exist natural rational, but not spiritual, because the love of the sex cannot become spiritual until it becomes conjugal . . .

448. That fornication is lust, but not the lust of adultery. Ex.

— The reasons why fornication is lust are :—1. That it comes forth—prodit—from the natural man; and in everything which comes forth from the natural man there is concupiscence and lust . . . 2. Because the fornicator has a wandering and promiscuous regard for the sex . . . and so long as this is the case it is lust which excites him . . .

449. That the lust of fornication is not the lust of adultery, everyone sees clearly from common perception. What law, and what judge imputes the like criminality to the fornicator as to the adulterer? The reason why this is seen from common perception, is that fornication is not opposed to marriage love as adultery is. In fornication, marriage love may be stored up within, as what is spiritual may be in what is natural; nay, what is spiritual is actually unfolded from what is natural; and when what is spiritual has been unfolded, what is natural encompasses it as bark does its wood . . . and also serves what is spiritual as a defence against violence. (Thus) natural love, which is for the sex, precedes spiritual love, which is for one of the sex. If, however, fornication comes forth from the natural love of the sex, it may also be wiped away, provided marriage love be regarded, desired, and sought as the chief good. . . (Thus) reason may see that the limited lust of fornication, in comparison with the lust of adultery, is as the first warmth to the cold of mid-winter in northern regions.

450. That with some the love of the sex cannot without mischiefs be totally restrained from going forth into fornication. Ex.

452. That fornication is light in proportion as it looks to marriage love, and gives this love the preference. Ex.

— There are degrees of the qualities of evil . . . The case is similar with fornication, which, being lust . . . is an evil; but as every man is capable of being purified, therefore in proportion as he approaches a purified state, this evil becomes a lighter evil; for so far it is wiped away . . . The reason fornication is light in proportion as it looks to marriage love, is that it then looks from the unchaste state in which it is, to a chaste state . . . and in this case fornication, if the man nevertheless persists in it, is to him a necessity, the reasons of which he examines in himself. There are two reasons which render fornication light with those who prefer and pre-love the marriage state. The first is that the marriage life is their purpose, intention, or end; the other is that they separate evil from good in themselves. Ex.

453. That the lust of fornication is grievous in proportion as it looks to adultery. Ex.

— In the lust of fornication all those look to adultery who do not believe adulteries to be sins . . . It is evident that with such persons there is no purpose, intention, or end of what is good or chaste, in order that they may be exculpated; and no separation of evil from good . . . in order that they may be purified; as there is in the case of those who from fornication look to marriage love.

454. That the lust of fornication is more grievous as it verges to the desire for varieties, and to the desire for defloration. Ex.

455. That the sphere of the lust of fornication, such as it is at the beginning, is a middle sphere between the sphere of scortatory love and the sphere of marriage love, and makes an equilibrium. Ex. . . For, while anyone is in (the sphere of the lust of fornication) he can turn himself to the sphere of marriage love . . . and also to the sphere of the love of adultery . . . Both are in the man's free determination, good pleasure, and will, to the intent that he may act freely according to reason . . .

—^e. It is said that the lust of fornication is such at the beginning, because it is then in a middle state. Who does not know that whatever a man does at the beginning is from concupiscence, because from the natural man? And who does not know that that concupiscence is not imputed, while from natural he is becoming spiritual? The case is similar with the lust of fornication, while a man's love is becoming conjugal.

456. That care is to be taken lest marriage love be destroyed by immoderate and inordinate fornications. Ex.

—^e. To prevent these mischiefs, care is to be taken by the parents; for a grown up youth, excited with lust, cannot as yet from reason impose restraint upon himself.

459². By (keeping a mistress) promiscuous inordinate fornications are restrained and limited, and thus a more restricted state is induced, which has more affinity with marriage life. . . But these things are not said to those who are able to restrain the heat of lust; nor to those who can enter into marriage at once . . .

463³. I once inquired of those in the Spiritual World who had not accounted adulteries to be sins, whether they knew a single distinction between fornication . . . and the degrees of adultery. They said that they were alike. . . The case was otherwise with those who . . . had accounted adulteries to be sins . . .

E. 710²⁷. The reason it is said that 'whosoever putteth away his wife except for fornication, and taketh another, committeth adultery' (Matt. xix. 9), is that 'fornication' = falsity; and, with a woman, the affection of evil and falsity; thus an affection which by no means agrees with the understanding of truth and good . . .

[E.] 1010^e. That which does not destroy the marriage principle, and does not extinguish the love thereof, is fornication springing from a certain instinct of nature for marriage, which from various causes, cannot yet be entered into.

Forsake. Derelinquere.

See under DESERT-deserere, and LEAVE-relinquere.

A. 3120. 'Who hath not forsaken His mercy' (Gen. xxiv.27)=the perception of the influx of love.

E. 388¹³. 'I will leave thee in the wilderness' (Ezek. xxix.5.)=devoid of truths and goods. 654³².

410⁷. 'Multitude' is predicated of truths, which are said to be 'forsaken' (Is.xxxii.14) when they are not. 730⁶.

555¹¹. By 'men' are signified those who are in falsities; and by 'women,' those who are in evils from the affection of falsity; because it is said, that 'the one shall be taken and the other left' (Matt.xxiv.40,41); that is, that those who are in truths from affection will be saved, and that those who are in evils from affection will be condemned. 810². 1182³.

653⁶. As, from this, comes the devastation of all good and truth, it is said, 'a place forsaken to the nettle' (Zeph.ii.9).

768²⁴. 'They have forsaken Jehovah, and have provoked the Holy One of Israel' (Is.i.4)=that they have rejected Divine good and Divine truth.

Forswear. See PERJURE.

Fortify. Munire.

Fortification. Munitio, Moenia.

Fortress. Munimentum.

A. 7102³. 'They that be in the fortifications and caves shall die of the pestilence' (Ezek.xxxiii.27)=the damnation of the evil which fortifies itself by means of falsity.

7225². This is especially the case when these loves have fortified themselves with falsity as with a wall.

7297⁶. 'Fortresses'=truths, in so far as they defend goods.

7437². In the Word, when evil is compared to a city, falsities are compared to the fortifications-moenibus-around the city.

P. 215³. They then began to fortify themselves by means of towers, ramparts, and walls.

E. 177^e. 'To draw waters for the siege, and to strengthen the fortresses' (Nahum iii.14)=to fortify falsities by various means against truths. 540⁸.

223². As these things are signified by a prophet, it is said to this one, 'I have given thee for a fortified city' (Jer.i.18) by which is therefore signified the doctrine of truth protecting against falsities. —³.

316⁴. The total vastation of the Church is described by, 'He hath destroyed the strong holds of the daughter of Judah' (Lam.ii.2) . . . 'Her strong holds' (fortresses) =truths from good.

388¹⁹. 'Fortifications' (Ezek.xxxiii.27)=confirmations from the Word; 'caves'=confirmations from scientifics.

410^e. Occurs.

417¹⁰. 'Fenced cities' (Zeph.i.10)=false doctrinal things which they have confirmed.

514⁵. By 'your strong holds' (Is.xxiii.14) is signified doctrine from the Word protecting; and by its being 'laid waste,' is signified that there is no perception of it, and therefore no truth; for the like doctrinal things from the Word without spiritual perception are not truths, because they are falsified by ideas concerning them which are not just.

—⁹. By 'a lofty tower,' and 'a fenced wall' (Is.ii.15) are signified confirmed principles of falsity, thus also those who are in them.

714¹⁸. The dogmas protecting (falsities and evils) are signified by 'palaces,' and by 'fortresses-munitiones' (Is.xxxiv.13).

717^e. By 'the fortifications upon the station,' and 'the fortresses of fortifications' (Dan.xi.38,39) are signified the things which are of Own intelligence confirmed by the sense of the letter of the Word . . .

727⁴. 'He hath destroyed thy strong holds' (Jer.xlviii.18)=the taking away of protection. 'A strong hold'=protection against falsities and evils; and the literal sense of the Word is this protection.

863⁵. By 'the sea,' and by 'the strong hold of the sea' (Is.xxxiii.4) is meant the Natural, where are these Knowledges.

911⁴. By 'the cities of thy fortresses in which thou trustest' (Jer.v.17) are signified doctrinal things from Own intelligence.

Fortuitous. See under CHANCE.

Fortunate. See HAPPY-faustus.

Fortune. Fortuna.

Fortunate. Fortunatus.

See under CHANCE.

A. 5049^e. That everything called fortune is from (the Lord's Divine Providence) will . . . be shewn elsewhere by experiences from the Spiritual World.

5179². Some spheres from the Spiritual World, which are in agreement with his life, encompass a man; and by means of these spheres he is in society with Spirits of like affection; and this is the source of very many things which the man . . . ascribes to a more occult nature; as for example in the case of what is ascribed to fortune, some are quite persuaded from experience that there is something operating occultly which is called fortune . . . That it is from the spiritual sphere, and that it is the ultimate of Providence, will . . . be shewn elsewhere, from experimental proof.

6493. I have often spoken with Spirits about fortune, which in this world appears to be fortuitous chance, because men do not know the source of it. When something happened to me which appeared to be fortuitous, I was told by the Angels that it befel me because such Spirits were present, and that when the fortuitous thing is evil, the sphere of such Spirits has prevailed. Moreover, evil Spirits, by means of their arts, found out how to produce a sphere which gave rise to misfortunes, which appeared exactly as if they came by chance.

They told me further that all things, even the smallest things of all . . . are directed by the Providence of the Lord, even to the very steps; and that when that prevails which is contrary thereto, misfortunes happen. They also confirmed the fact that there is no such thing as chance; and that apparent accident, or fortune, is Providence in the ultimate of order, in which all things are comparatively inconstant. D.4567.

6494. For many years I have carefully observed whether fortune is anything, and I have found that it is, and that in such a case prudence is of no avail. Moreover, all those who have long reflected on the subject know and confess this; but they do not know what is the source of it. Hardly anyone knows that it is from the Spiritual World . . . I once played the common game of dice when this was the subject of conversation; and the Spirits who were with me spoke to me about fortune in games; and said that what is fortunate is represented to them by a bright cloud, and what is unfortunate by a dark cloud; and that when a dark cloud appeared with me, it was impossible for me to win; moreover, by that sign they predicted to me the turns of fortune in that game. From this it was given me to know that what is attributed to fortune, even in games, is from the Spiritual World; much more that which befalls man in relation to the vicissitudes in the course of his life; and that what is called fortune is from the influx of Providence in the ultimates of order, where it so comes forth; and thus that Providence is in the smallest particulars of all, according to the Lord's words, that not even a hair falls from the head without the will of God. D.4567.

N. 276^e. That fortune . . . is the operation of the Divine Providence in the ultimate of order, according to the quality of a man's state . . . Refs.

P. 212. Who does not speak of fortune? and who does not acknowledge it, because he speaks of it, and knows something of it from experience? . . . That it is something . . . cannot be denied . . . but the cause of fortune is unknown. Lest, however, it should be denied from mere ignorance of its cause, take dice or cards, and play, or consult those who play. Does any one of them deny fortune? No, for they play with it, and it with them, in a wonderful way. Who can succeed against it if it is set against him? Does it not then laugh at prudence and wisdom? While you shake the dice and shuffle the cards, does it not seem to know and to control the turns and the movements of the muscles of the hand, so as from some cause to favour one party more than the other? And can the cause exist from any other source than the Divine Providence in ultimates, where by constances and inconstances it deals wonderfully with human prudence, and still conceals itself? It is known that the Gentiles formerly acknowledged Fortune, and built her a temple . . . Of this fortune, which . . . is the Divine Providence in ultimates, I have been permitted to learn many things which I am not at liberty to make known; from which it has become manifest to me that it is no illusion of the mind, nor sport of nature, nor a something without a cause . . . but that it is ocular proof that the Divine Providence is in the smallest particulars of man's thoughts and actions. . . Still more (therefore, must it be so) in the particulars of things not insignificant and trifling, as the affairs of peace and war in the world, and the things of salvation and of life in Heaven. 251^e.

251^e. Successes . . . are called . . . the fortune of war; and this is the Divine Providence, especially in the plans and preparations of the general . . .

M. 286. The fortunes of men depend for the most part on their reputation . . . and this reputation depends upon the wife . . .

D. 4008. That the Providence of the Lord is in each and all things, may be evident from the things which are of fortune; as in games, and such things as appear to be altogether fortuitous; as, for instance, in a lottery . . . 4393^e.

4423. Such is the case with states of life in the world from various fortunes and misfortunes . . .

4819. Some perceive as regards fortunes and misfortunes, as if it were foretold.

4909. Saying and believing that everyone is the architect of his own fortune.

D. Min. 4784. On misfortunes and fortune. . . Fortune, especially that which tends to the salvation of man, is from the continual will of the Lord that it should be well with the man, and that he should be saved; and that that sphere (of misfortune) itself should, by means of Angels, contribute thereto.

E. 1159^s. The Lord . . . permits a man rather to attribute . . . contingencies to fortune . . . rather than that, through marked and manifest signs of the Divine Providence and presence, he should unseasonably cast himself into sanctities in which he does not permanently remain . . . For it is better for a man to ascribe the operations of the Divine Providence to prudence and fortune, than that he should acknowledge them, and still live as a devil.

Forty. Quadraginta.

Forty-two. Quadraginta duo.

A. 730. 'Forty days and nights' (Gen. vii.4)=the duration of temptation. . . The reason 'forty'=the duration of temptation comes from this, that the Lord suffered Himself to be tempted for forty days . . . and as each and all things in . . . the representative Churches . . . were types of Him, so too were forty days and nights in representing and signifying all temptation in general; specifically, the duration of the temptation, whatever that duration might be. And as, while a man is in temptation, he is in vastation of all things belonging to proprium and which are corporeal . . . therefore 'forty days and nights'=also the duration of vastation . . . 760. 862. 1847. 1856.

—². That 'forty'=the duration of both temptation and vastation. III.

—³. (In Rev. xiii.5) it is said 'forty-two,' which is the same as 'forty.' The origin of this is that seven days=the end of vastation and a new beginning; and 'six'=labour, from the six days of labour or of combat. Therefore, from the multiplication of seven by six there results the number forty-two, signifying the duration of the vastation and the duration of the temptation or labour and combat of the man to be regenerated, wherein there is what is holy. But the round number forty was taken instead of the not round number forty-two, as is evident from these passages in the Revelation.

[A. 730]. The Israeliitish people being led about in the wilderness for forty years . . . represented . . . the duration of temptation, and also the duration of vastation; the duration of temptation by this, that they were afterwards introduced into the Holy Land; and the duration of vastation by this, that all who were above twenty years old when they went forth from Egypt died in the wilderness, except Joshua and Caleb . . .

786. 'Forty days' (ver. 17) = the duration of the Church called 'Noah' . . . Here, it says 'forty days;' in verse 4, 'forty days and nights,' because it there = the duration of temptation, in which 'nights' are anxieties. 862.

862. 'It came to pass at the end of forty days' (Gen. viii.6) = the duration of the former state, and the beginning of the following one.

1963. 'Eighty' . . . involves the same as 'forty,' that is, temptations.

2272. 'Peradventure there shall forty be found there' (Gen. xviii.29) = those who have been in temptations. (For) 'forty' = temptations. 2273.

2273^e. (Thus) by 'forty' are here signified those with whom goods have been conjoined with truths by means of temptations.

2703^d. By their journeyings and wanderings in the wilderness forty years, is described every state of the Church militant, how of itself it yields, but conquers from the Lord.

2966^e. With those who believe all good and truth to be from the Lord, the price of redemption is signified by forty, and in a higher degree by 'four hundred.'

3281. 'Isaac was a son of forty years' (Gen. xxv.20) = from Own power through the combats of temptations. . . 'Forty' = temptations.

3469. 'Esau was a son of forty years' (Gen. xxvi.34) = a state of temptation as to the natural good of truth. . . 'Forty years' = a state of temptation. That 'forty' = temptations. Refs.

6505. 'Forty days were fulfilled for him' (Gen. i.3) = a state of preparation by means of temptations. 'Forty' = temptations.

6828^e. The number 'forty' = the duration of temptation, whatever it may be.

7932³. The life of forty years in the wilderness = temptations. 8098².

8098. As the conjunction can be effected only by means of temptations, these are signified, that is, when the number 'forty' is added, whether it be forty years, forty months, or forty days; for 'forty' = temptations, and their duration, whatever it may be.

8537. 'The sons of Israel did eat manna forty years' (Ex. xvi.35) = the appropriation of the good of truth in a state of all temptations. . . 'Forty years' = a state of temptations.

9437. 'Moses was in the mount forty days and forty nights' (Ex. xxiv.18) = what is plenary as to information and influx. . . The reason 'forty' = what is plenary, is that 'four' = what is full, and in like manner 'ten,' and the number forty results from four multiplied into ten.

—². As 'forty' = what is plenary, Moses remained on Mount Sinai, not only on this occasion but also on another, forty days and forty nights (Ex. xxxiv.28; Deut. ix.18,25; x.30). On this account the sons of Israel wandered in the wilderness forty years, and as it is said, 'until all that generation was consumed' (Num. xiv.33, 34). Further ill. And therefore it rained upon the earth . . . forty days and forty nights. Hence it is evident why it was ordained that a wicked man was to be smitten with forty stripes (Deut. xxv.3); for 'forty stripes' = punishment to the full. Further ill. Thus by 'forty' is signified what is plenary as to representation.

9643. 'Forty bases of silver' (Ex. xxvi.19) = plenary support by means of truth. 'Forty' = what is plenary.

9741^e. 'Forty-two months' (Rev. xi.) has a like signification to six weeks . . . for six multiplied into seven makes forty-two.

9937⁷. The reason why the temptation after forty days in the wilderness is alone mentioned, is that 'forty days' = . . . temptations to the full, thus those of many years.

10685. 'He was with Jehovah forty days and forty nights' (Ex. xxxiv.28) = the temptations before there exists the internal of the Church, of worship, and of the Word. 'Forty days and nights,' when predicated of the Church with man, = a state of temptation. Refs. 10686^e.

N. 201³. That 'forty years,' 'months,' or 'days' = a plenary state of temptations from beginning to end; and that this state is signified by the duration of the Flood for 'forty days,' etc. Refs.

R. 489. 'Forty-two months' (Rev. xi.2) = to the very end when there is nothing remaining.

—². That by 'forty-two months' is signified to the very end when there is not any truth and good of the Church remaining, is because by 'forty-two' the like is signified as by six weeks, for six times seven is forty-two; and by 'six weeks' is signified what is complete to the very end; for the number 'six' has this signification, and 'weeks' = state; and 'seven weeks' = a holy state, which is a new state of the Church, when the Lord begins His Kingdom. The like is signified by this number in (Rev. xiii.5). E.633.

—^e. Moreover the like is signified by this number as by three and a half, because forty-two months make three years and a half.

583. 'Forty-two months' (Rev. xiii.5) = to the end of the former Church while there is a beginning of the New; in like manner as by 'three and a half;' and by 'a time, and times, and half a time;' and also by 'one thousand two hundred and sixty;' because forty-two months make three years and a half.

E. 633. 'Forty-two months' (Rev. xi.2) = to the very end of the Old Church, and to the beginning of the New.

—². By the numbers 'forty' and 'forty-two,' in the Word, is signified either the plenary vastation of the Church, or plenary temptation. Ill. 654²⁵.

—⁴. The rain of forty days (at the Flood) = the destruction of (the Most Ancient Church) through falsities of evil ; but the beginning of a new Church is signified by the drying up of the earth after those forty days . . .

—⁵. For by 'forty' is signified the end of evil, and also the beginning of good . . .

—⁷. The vastation of the Church, and also plenary temptation, is signified also by the abiding of the sons of Israel forty years in the wilderness. III. . . From these passages it is evident that by 'forty years' is signified not only the vastation of the Church with the sons of Israel, but also plenary temptation ; and also by the end of those years the beginning of a New Church. Ex.

—⁸. (Thus) it may appear that by the number 'forty,' in the Word, is signified plenary vastation and consummation, that is, when all the good of the Church is vastated and the evil consummated ; and also that by the same number is signified plenary temptation ; as also the establishment of the Church anew, that is, reformation : from which it may be known what is signified by the forty-two months during which the nations will trample on the Holy City ; and what in like manner by . . . 'To the beast . . . Power was given forty-two months.'

650⁷⁰. By the Lord being in the wilderness forty days He represented the duration of all the temptations which He underwent . . . for by 'forty days' is signified an entire period and duration of temptations . . .

654⁵⁹. 'Forty years'=an entire period of the vastation of the Church, and also the entire duration of temptations.

730⁴¹. As 'the wilderness'=a state of temptations, and 'forty,' whether years or days, the entire duration from beginning to end . . .

781¹¹. 'Forty-two' (2 Kings ii.24)=blasphemy.

796. 'There was given to him Power to do his works forty-two months' (Rev.xiii.5)=destruction until nothing of truth and good remained . . . 'Forty-two months'=plenary vastation and consummation, thus destruction until nothing of truth and good remains. The like is signified by 'forty-two' (2 Kings ii.24), where it is said that forty-two children were torn in pieces . . .

Forty-five. Quadraginta quinque.

A. 2269. 'I will not destroy it if I find there forty-five' (Gen.xviii.28)=that he should not perish if they are able to be conjoined. . . (For) the number forty-five = conjunction. . . Forty-five results from the multiplication of five into nine, and therefore . . . signifies the same as five and nine : five=a little . . . and nine, conjunction, or that which is conjoined ; thus, here, [forty-five=] if goods are a little conjoined with truths.

—². 'Forty-five'=some conjunction.

Forward. See FRONT.

Foul. Teter.

Hideously. Tetre.

A. 7419^e. They who have been in the knowledge of faith and in a life of evil . . . are foul and cause aversion. (Lice.)

7454. That infernal foulness and filth would flow in. Sig.

8819^e. When the rays of light fall upon hideous forms, they are turned into hideous colours.

D. 1080. How foul loves are made known . . .

4117. In time it becomes palatable . . . so that he prefers what is loathsome and bitter to what is sweet.

E. 1015². The Hells appear in a fire hideously reddening . . . and in a fire hideously flaming . . .

Foul. Turpis.

Foulness. Turpitude.

A. 1592. The foulness of the external man when disjoined is here described. (Sodom.)

1666². 'This is the sea of salt'=the foul things of Falsities thence.

5433^e. 'To show nakedness to the nations'=ugliness ; all ugliness comes from the absence of truths ; and all beauty from truths.

5981. With infernal Spirits and Genii there sometimes appear things foul and filthy . . . But lest the Angels should flee away, these foul and filthy things are perceived by them more mildly . . . D.1995.

D. 2206. On the things which restrain the foulnesses of Spirits.

4793^e. (The foul practices of Moravian Spirits.) 4794.

Found. Conflare.

Founder. Conflator.

A. 1623. Composed of. J.66. 69. D.3213.

8159². 'A refiner's fire' (Mal.iii.2)=temptation, by means of which there is purification.

9424⁹. 'The goldsmith spreadeth it over with gold' (Is.xl.19). Ex. 9852². 10406⁴. E.587⁴.

9466⁵. 'The work of the workman and of the hands of the goldsmith' (Jer.x.9)=that which is from man's Own intelligence. R.450^e. E.576^r. 585¹⁰. 1186².

H. 102. Made up out of nature.

W. 229^e. Produce.

R. 458. Every evil is made up of concupiscences.

M. 269⁹. Why man is constituted of these three loves.

272. The matters of which the bodies of men are composed.

439^e. The internal delights which enter into the external and compose them.

T. 508³. Dogmas made up from man's Own intelligence . . . —⁴.

E. 587⁴. By these words is described how doctrine is forged and framed by means of falsities ; thus by means of such things as are from man's Own intelligence. . . By 'the artificer' and 'the founder' . . . is meant one who devises and forms such doctrine.

Foundation. Fundamentum. Fundus.

Found, To. Fundare.

Founding. Fundatio.

Fundamental. Fundamentalis.

From the Foundation. Funditus.

See under BASE.

A. 613. 'The foundations of generation and generation' (Is.lviii.12)=the things which belong to the spiritual things of faith, which had fallen since ancient times.

1055. The universal Heaven is founded on love . . .

1066². 'The foundations of the earth' (Is.xl.21)=the foundations of the Church.

1691⁴. 'The foundations of the mountains' (Deut. xxxii.22)=the Hells. . . They are called 'the foundations of the mountains' because the love of self and the love of the world reign there, and are thence.

1843³. Charity is the very foundation—fundus—in which faith is implanted.

3542³. 'Laying bare the foundation even unto the neck' (Hab.iii.13)=thus intercepting the conjunction.

3679⁵. Although Spirits are not allowed to use the natural memory, still it serves them as a plane or as a foundation, so that the ideas of their thought are therein terminated.

4060⁴. 'The powers of the heavens shall be shaken' = the foundations of the Church . . . For the Church on earth is the foundation of Heaven, because the influx of good and truth . . . is terminated in the ultimate.

4360^e. Spiritual things are founded upon natural ones.

5053. Marriage love is the fundamental love . . . M.58. 65. D.4229. E.993².

5126². Without an influx of innocence from the Lord during this first age, there would never be anything fundamental . . .

5182. It is a fundamental principle that . . .

5477². All the ideas of man's thought . . . are founded upon such things as there are in the world . . .

5510². Every truth of the Church . . . is founded upon man's scientifics . . .

6299². The external (of the Church) is in the place of a foundation on which the internal may stand . . . Therefore . . . unless the Natural is regenerated, the internal has no foundation, nor receptacle; and if it has no foundation and no receptacle, it utterly perishes.

6937. Like one who is building a house; he first lays the foundation; but the foundation must be for the house . . . He who believes that he is his own neighbour in the first place, is like one who regards the foundation as the end . . .

7554. 'From the day when it was founded until now' (Ex.ix.18)=that there is no such destruction with others; for 'day'=state, and 'foundation,' the quality thereof.

9301^e. The truths which belong to this latter innocence are mainly founded upon fallacies of the external senses.

9407². The precious stones which are foundations (Rev.xxi.)=truths Divine . . . in the ultimate of order.

9430². The Word in the letter . . . and interior things . . . are circumstanced like a house and its foundation . . . As a house rests on its foundation, so does Heaven rest on the Church, and consequently the Divine truth in Heaven on the Divine truth in the earth . . . 10559⁴. J.65.

9433³. 'The bases on which the earth is founded' (Ps. civ.5)=truths in ultimates . . .

—^e. The ultimate of truth Divine . . . on which, as on a pivot and a foundation, they subsist and rest. Sig.

9490. 'Thou shalt overlay it with pure gold'=that all these things are to be founded on good. . . In Heaven, the same thing which encompasses also forms the foundation; for Heaven presses against it as a house presses on its foundation . . . 10194.

9538^e. It is on this account that the Natural serves the former as a foundation . . .

9643². Hence it is that the foundation, which is a general base, =the truth of faith and also faith itself. III.

—³. 'The foundations of the earth' (Is.xl.21)=the truths of faith; for these truths serve the Church as foundations. III.

—⁴. As 'a foundation'=the truth of faith, and 'a city,' its doctrine, 'the foundation of the city' is mentioned in the Word when the truth of doctrine is understood. III.

— (Thus) the foundations of the city holy Jerusalem . . . =the truths of faith. (=truths from good. 9863².)

9873⁵. 'The foundations which are to be laid with sapphires' (Is.liv.11)=the externals of that Kingdom; for the foundations are the things laid under.

9959². Truths . . . are like the foundations on which a house is built; and therefore the foundations of a house = truths of faith from good.

10028. 'The foundation of the altar' (Ex.xxix.12)=the Sensuous, which is the ultimate of man's life. The reason 'the foundation of the altar' has this signification, is that the altar was a representative of the Lord's Divine Human, and therefore its 'foundation'=that which is the ultimate of life in the human . . . which is called the external Sensuous.

10185. The foundation (of a house) has a like signification to that of the feet and the soles of the feet.

10194. What it is to be founded upon good . . . It is believed by some that truth is that upon which all things are founded, but they are very much mistaken; for no truth exists with man unless he is in good. Ex.

H. 187 (a). 'Foundation'=the truth on which are founded Heaven, the Church, and doctrine.

480². Upon this plane the interiors of the mind rest, as a house does upon its foundation; and hence it is that a man remains to eternity such as has been his life of love in the world.

N. 1. 'The foundations of the wall' (Rev.xxi.) . . . =the Knowledges upon which that doctrine is founded.

J. 9. Without the human race the angelic Heaven would be like a house without a foundation . . . Without these ultimates . . . man's spiritual things . . . would dissolve, like things . . . without a foundation—fundo.

S. 43. That the truths of the sense of the letter of the Word are meant by the foundations of the wall of the New Jerusalem. Ex.

W. 72. This is the fundamental thought concerning God.

330. These things are like a house; of which the body is the foundation . . .

R. 17. Truth which is not truth in act is . . . like the foundation upon which a house is built . . . The first thing in end is residence in the house, and the first thing in time is the foundation.

343. When the evil are multiplied to such a degree . . . in the World of Spirits, the Angels . . . have no support and foundation.

533^e. The internal without the external is like a house without a foundation.

589. 'Slain from the founding of the world' (Rev. xiii.8)=the Lord's Divine Human not acknowledged from the establishment of the Church. E.807.

645. The Church on earth is to the angelic Heaven like the foundation upon which the house rests.

735. 'Whose names have not been written in the Book of Life from the founding of the world' (Rev. xvii.8)=those who do not believe in the Lord and are not in doctrine from the Word, from the establishment of the Church, here, from the establishment of this religiosity. E.1057.

902. 'The wall of the city having twelve foundations' (Rev.xi.14)=that the Word in the sense of the letter contains all things of the doctrine of the New Church. . . . By 'foundations' are signified doctrinal things; and by 'twelve,' all. Moreover, the Church is founded upon doctrine. . . . As all things of doctrine are signified by 'the twelve foundations of the wall of the city New Jerusalem,' and the Church is the Church from doctrine, it treats below of its foundations in special. In the Word . . . by 'the foundations of the earth' are . . . meant the foundations of the Church . . . and the foundations of the Church are nothing but the things which are from the Word, and are called doctrinal things; for the Word itself is that which forms the foundation of the Church.

—². Doctrinal things from the Word are signified by 'foundations' in the following passages. Ill.

914. 'The foundations of the wall of the city were adorned with every precious stone' (ver.19)=that all things of the doctrine of the New Jerusalem taken from the sense of the letter of the Word with those who are therein will appear in light according to reception.

T. 132. (This) is the fundamental error of the Church.

209⁵. 'The foundations of the wall' (of the New Jerusalem)=the doctrinal things of the New Church from the sense of the letter of the Word. 217.

342^e. Buried in its depths-fundo. 391.

394. These three loves . . . are the universal and the fundamental ones of all. E.798⁴.

D. 4046. Love is fundamental . . .

5552. The Sensuous of man . . . is the ultimate itself, and therefore also is the foundation upon which Heaven rests as a house does on its foundation.

5553^e. At that time man had entirely withdrawn, in ultimates, from the Heavens, so that the foundation began to perish.

560S. The natural thought of man is the plane in which all things of angelic wisdom close; it is a foundation like that of a house.

5616. Natural Truths are in the place of a foundation . . .

5709. I spoke about the foundations of truth, that they are two, one from the Word, and the other from nature . . . that the foundation from the Word is for the universal Heaven . . . and the foundation from nature is for those who are natural . . . And it was found also that all things of Heaven have their foundation in the laws of order of nature in the world and in man, which foundation remains constantly fixed . . . But as falsities have closed up the Intellectual, and all the ideas of thought are founded upon natural things, therefore such things must be as a foundation to those who have false ideas.

5710. I also spoke about the Word, that it is the very foundation, that is, for those who live well and acknowledge the Word as holy and Divine; whereas with these who doubt . . . the Word is to be unclosed . . . by means of natural Truths. How the foundation from the Word accords with the foundation from the truths of nature, was shown by two examples . . .

—^e. In fine, nothing can be founded upon sciences unless it has first been founded upon the Word . . .

E. 268². 'A foundation'=the truth upon which the Church is founded.

304¹⁵. 'The mountains' (Ps.xviii.7)=the goods of love; and their 'foundations'=the truths of faith.

357²⁵. 'The foundations of the mountains which are set on fire' (Dent.xxxii.22)=the truths upon which the goods of love are founded; specifically, the truths of the sense of the letter of the Word, because these are the foundations. 405⁴⁵.

391¹⁹. 'The founding of the world' (Luke xi.50)=the establishment of the Church.

400⁶. 'The foundations of the mountains' (Ps.xviii.7)=the truths upon which the Church is founded, which are truths from good.

401²⁵. 'The end' has a similar meaning to 'the foundation,' and this is the natural man, because the goods and truths of the spiritual man are terminated in the things which are there.

405⁴⁰. 'The earth' (Micah vi.2)=the Church; and its 'foundations'=the principles upon which all the rest are founded.

587¹⁵. 'The foundations' (Micah i.6)=the natural truths upon which the Church is founded.

654²⁸. Occurs.

727¹⁸. The reason the truths of the literal sense of the Word are meant by 'the rod of the foundation' (Is.xxx.32), is that this sense is a foundation to the truths of its spiritual sense.

741²². That all things of the Church as to its truths and as to its goods have been overthrown from the foundation, is signified by 'the channels of waters appeared, and the foundations of the world were revealed' (Ps. xviii. 15). 'The channels of waters'=its truths; and 'the foundations of the world,' its goods; 'to appear' and 'to be revealed'=to be overthrown from the foundation.

[E.] 817⁹. 'Jehovah had founded Zion' (Is. xiv. 32)=that the Church will be established by these things.

993². As (marriage love) is the fundamental love of all the loves of Heaven, it is also the fundamental of all the delights and joys of Heaven . . .

—³. The love of adultery is the fundamental of all infernal loves.

1057². The establishment of the Church is meant by 'the founding of the world,' in these passages. Ill.

1086. The acknowledgment of the Word as Divine, and the founding of the Church upon it. Sig.

De Verbo 3⁹. Therefore the basis and foundation of the Heavens is the human race.

Coro. 16². In the deep—fundo—beneath them there are also three expanses . . .

Fountain. Fons.

A. 756. 'All the fountains of the great deep were broken up' (Gen. vii. 11)=the extreme of temptation as to voluntary things.

1927. 'At a fountain of waters in the wilderness' (Gen. xvi. 7)=natural truth which has not yet acquired life. 'A fountain of waters'=truth.

1928. 'At the fountain in the way to Shur' (id.)=that this truth was from the things which proceed from scientifics. 'A fountain'=truth.

1949⁶. 'Fountains' (Ps. civ. 10)=Knowledges.

1956. 'Therefore she called the spring' (ver. 14)=the state of truth thence. . . As this truth was not seen in the Rational, but below the Rational, 'fountain' is expressed in the Original Language by a different word from that which is used above, which is the common word for fountain.

1957. 'The spring to the Living One who seeth me' (id.)=truth thus perspicuous.

2572². They are in the very beginnings or springs of things . . .

2702. 'A well of water' and 'a fountain'=the Word, and also doctrine from the Word, consequently truth itself. Ill.

— As the Spiritual Church is here treated of, 'a well' is mentioned, and not 'a fountain.'

—⁴. That 'a fountain'=the Word, also doctrine, and therefore truth. Ill.

—⁵. 'The fountain of Jacob' (Deut. xxxiii. 28)=the Word, and the doctrine of truth thence derived . . . (On account of this signification) when the Lord came to the fountain of Jacob, He spoke with the woman from Samaria, and taught what is signified by 'a fountain,' and by 'water' . . . As 'the fountain of Jacob' signified the Word; 'water,' truth; and 'Samaria,' the Spiritual Church . . . the Lord spoke with the woman from Samaria, and taught that the doctrine of faith is from Him, and that when it is from Him, or, what is the same, from His Word, it is 'a fountain of water springing up into eternal life.' S. 2^o. E. 483².

2762⁴. When they were describing the birth of knowledges from what is intellectual, they invented a flying horse, which broke open a fountain with his hoof . . . At this day . . . learning is described by a fountain; but scarcely anyone knows that . . . a fountain=truth.

2882. The Lord is good itself and truth itself, and therefore the fountain.

3065. 'Behold I stand above at the fountain of waters' (Gen. xxiv. 13)=a state of conjunction of truth Divine in the Human. 'A fountain'=truth; here, truth Divine, because the Lord is treated of. The state of conjunction itself is signified by 'standing above at the fountain.'

3082. 'She came down to the fountain' (ver. 16)=truth Divine.

3096. The difference between the signification of 'a fountain' and that of 'a well' (is) that 'a fountain' is mentioned when purer and when higher truth is treated of; and 'a well,' when truth not so pure and when lower truth is treated of; as is the case in this chapter, in which 'a fountain' is now mentioned, and now 'a well.'

3131. 'Laban ran out unto the man, unto the fountain' (ver. 29)=the animus of the affection of good towards the truth which was to be initiated in truth Divine . . . 'The fountain'=truth; here, truth Divine.

3137. 'At the fountain' (ver. 30)=their enlightenment from truth Divine. . . As the Word is truth Divine it is called 'a fountain' . . . 'To stand at the fountain' here involves the enlightenment of those things which are in the natural man . . . for where there is truth Divine there is enlightenment.

3194. 'Beer-lahai-roi,' in the Original Language, means 'the spring to Him that liveth and seeth me.'

3413^o. Earthly things, with which the Word, which is the fountain of all truth, is obstructed.

3424. It is well known that the Word is called 'a fountain,' in fact 'a fountain of living waters;' and the reason it is also called 'a well' is that such is the relative character of the sense of the letter; and because, relatively to the spiritual, the Word is not 'a fountain,' but 'a well.' Ill.

3635. There are two things in the human body which are the springs of all its motion . . . the heart and the lungs. 9276^o. L. 47. D. Love v². D. Wis. vi.

3765. The Word is here called 'a well' because it treats of what is natural . . . but it is called 'a fountain' when it treats of what is rational . . .

4197. Although they have not Divine truths direct from the Divine fountain, that is, from the Word . . .

4352². For He is the Fountain and origin of all celestial and spiritual love . . .

4524². There can be only one Fountain of life, as in nature there is only one fountain of light and heat . . . 5605^o. 10774. H. 9. P. 292.

4697^o. 'The rivers and the fountains of waters' (Rev. viii. 10)=intelligence, and wisdom from the Word.

4861. 'She sat in the door of fountains, which is on the way to Timnath' (Gen. xxxviii. 14)=what is intermediate to the truths of the Church and to falsities.

'Fountains'=the truths of the Church which are from the Word; for 'a fountain,' in the universal sense, = the Word.

4891. 'In the fountains upon the way' (ver.21)=that it appeared as truth. 'Fountains'=the truths of the Church.

4966². They said that . . . Pegasus broke open a fountain there . . . For they knew . . . that a fountain meant intelligence. (=doctrine from which knowledges are derived. W.H.4.)

6418. 'The son of a fruitful one upon a fountain' (Gen.xlix.22)=fructification from truth from the Word. 'A fountain'=the Word.

6774. The Word is sometimes called 'a well,' and sometimes 'a fountain;' when it is called 'a well,' the Word is signified as to the literal sense, and when 'a fountain,' the Word is signified as to the internal sense.

7343^e. 'The fountain' (Num.xxi.17)=the doctrine of truth Divine.

8367^e. Enlightenment by means of truth, and what is pleasant thence, is signified by 'the twelve fountains of waters' (at Elim); for 'fountains'=truths. 8368,Ex.

8368. 'Where were twelve fountains of waters' (Ex. xv.27)=that there they had truths in all abundance. . . 'Fountains'=truths of faith. E.458⁹.

8568³. 'The fountain of the water of life' (Rev.xxi.6) =the truth and good of faith.

W. 33. Affection and thought are the springs of all things of man's life . . .

R. 384. 'And shall lead them to living fountains of waters' (Rev.vii.17)=and shall lead to conjunction with Himself by means of truths from the Word. (For 'the living fountain of waters'=the Lord, and also the Word. Ill. (=in Divine truths. E.483.)

409. 'It fell upon the third part of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters' (Rev.viii.10)=that from this all the truths of the Word were utterly falsified. . . 'The fountains of waters'=the Word. E.518.

630. 'Adore Him who made . . . the fountains of waters' (Rev.xiv.7)=that the Lord alone is to be worshipped, because . . . from Him alone . . . are all things belonging to (Heaven and the Church) . . . 'The fountains of waters'=all truths of the Word which are of service to the Church for doctrine and life. E.876.

683. 'The third Angel poured out his vial into the rivers and the fountains of waters' (Rev.xvi.4)=the influx into the understanding of the Word with them. . . 'The Fountain of waters'=the Lord as to the Word, thus the Word of the Lord; and therefore 'the fountains of waters'=the Divine truths thence derived.

889. 'I will give to him that is athirst of the fountain of the water of life free' (Rev.xxi.7)=that to those who desire truths from any spiritual use the Lord will give from Himself through the Word all things which conduce to that use. . . 'The fountain of the water of life'=the Lord and the Word.

M. 14². (In the middle of the table) there gushed as it were a leaping fountain of nectareous wine . . .

182². When they had ascended the bill Parnassus, some guards brought water in crystal cups from a fountain there, and said, This water is from the fountain which, according to the ancient fable, was broken open by the hoof of Pegasus, and was afterwards consecrated to the nine virgins . . . The attendants said . . . The guards are instructed to speak thus; but by drinking water from a fountain we understand being instructed concerning truths, and through truths concerning goods, and thereby becoming wise.
VOL. II.

183. In the middle of the garden there was a grassy circus . . . and in the middle of the circus, on raised ground, there was a little fountain—fenticulus—, which, from the strength of its spring, leapt high.

293. I saw seven women sitting on a bed of roses at a certain fountain, and drinking the water.

—⁶. I asked, Why did that boy call you Virgins of the fountain? They replied, We are called virgins when we are sitting at this fountain, because we are affections of the Truths of the wisdom of our husbands, and the affection of truth is called a virgin; moreover, a fountain signifies the truth of wisdom . . . Then one of the seven wove a garland of roses, and sprinkled it with water from the fountain, and placed it on the boy's cap . . . and said, Receive the delights of intelligence . . .

T. 568². When evils spring from their native fountain . . .

E. 119⁴. That these are from the Word is signified by 'the fountain going forth out of the house of Jehovah' (Joel iii.18).

239¹³. That they are to be led to truths is signified by 'I will lead them to fountains of waters in a way of right' (Jer.xxxi.9).

340⁴. 'The fountain of salvation' (Ps.lxviii.26)=spiritual good, because through this there is salvation.

374⁷. 'Fountains and deeps going forth from valley and from mountain' (Deut.viii.7)=interior and exterior truths from the Word . . . 518⁵.

376¹⁰. 'The fountain of Jacob' (Deut.xxxiii.28)=Divine truth, and the Word.

386²⁷. 'A spring—scaturigo' (Is.xlix.10) or fountain =the Word, and also doctrine from the Word.

405¹⁴. 'A fountain of waters' (Ps.cxiv.8)=the Word from which come the (Knowledges of truth).

—²¹. 'Fountains'=the truths of the Word; 'the fountains sent into the rivers' (Ps.civ.10)=intelligence thence derived. 483⁷.

433¹³. 'A fountain shall go forth out of the house of Jehovah, and shall water the river of Shittim' (Joel iii. 18)=that there comes truth of doctrine out of Heaven from the Lord which will enlighten those who are in Knowledges. 483⁵. 518¹⁰.

483². 'To set fountains' (Is.xli.18)=to instruct in truths. 518⁵.

—⁷. That 'a fountain,' in the supreme sense, means the Lord as to Divine truth, or Divine truth from the Lord, and therefore the Word. Ill.

—¹². That Divine truth from the Lord is meant by 'a fountain.' Ill.

—¹³. The 'fountain' (that Joseph was said to be near, Gen.xlix.) means the fountain of Jacob; for the field in which that fountain was, was given to Joseph by his father (John iv. 5, 6).

[E. 483¹³]. 'A fountain' = the Word; and 'fountains,' the Divine truths from it. Ill.

—¹⁴. 'A fountain' and 'fountains,' in the opposite sense, = the doctrine of falsities, and the falsities of doctrine. Ill.

518³. It is from the signification of 'waters,' which is truths, that 'a fountain' = the Word, and the doctrine of truth.

727⁸. By 'the fountain' in Beer (Num. xxi.) is signified doctrine from the Word; for, in the Original Language, Beer means a fountain.

730¹². 'A spring' (Hos. xiii. 15) = doctrine; and 'a fountain' = the Word.

—²⁴. 'Fountains in the midst of the valleys' (Is. xli. 18) = intelligence from natural truths.

876. 'The fountains of waters' = interior Divine truth, such as is the Word in the spiritual sense.

1100⁹. When 'fountains' mean the truths of the Word, 'rivers' mean the intelligence thence derived.

De Verbo 7³. The fountain (on Parnassus) = intelligence and learning.

Four. Quatuor.

Fourth. Quartus.

A. 1686. 'Four kings with five' (Gen. xiv. 9) = the union of these, and their disunion. . . 'Four' = union because it is pairs, as also does 'two' when it regards the marriages of things.

1856. 'In the fourth generation they shall return hither' (Gen. xv. 16) = the time and state of restoration. . . 'The fourth generation' = the same as 'forty' and 'four hundred,' namely, the duration and state of temptation: it is a kind of diminutive from them.

5291. 'Four' involves the same as 'two.'

5313⁷. 'Four' = conjunction, the same as 'two.' Refs.

6157. 'Four parts shall be for you' (Gen. xvii. 24) = the things which are not yet remains. 'Four parts,' when predicated of what is left from the fifth part—by which are signified remains—= the things which are not yet remains. By 'four' is signified the same as by 'two,' namely, things which are pairs, and which are conjoined, as are good and truth.

8877. 'Upon the thirds and upon the fourths' (Ex. xx. 5) = in a long series, and conjunction.

9103. 'Four small cattle—pecudes—for a small cattle—pecude' (Ex. xxii. 1) = a corresponding penalty to the full. 'Four' = conjunction; for 'four' = the same as 'two' . . . and 'two' = conjunction. From this it follows that these numbers also = to the full, for what is conjoined is full.

9103². The reason why five oxen were to be repaid for an ox, and four small cattle for a small cattle, (was that) the number five involves the restoration of exterior good to much, and the number four the restoration of interior good to the full.

9493. 'Thou shalt cast for it four rings of gold' (Ex. xxv. 12) = Divine truth conjoined with Divine good. . . There were four rings because by this number is signified conjunction.

9538. 'Which are on the four feet thereof' (ver. 26) = in the natural sphere. . . 'Four' involves conjunction.

9563. 'Four almond-shaped bowls' (ver. 34) = the scientifics of truth from good. 'Four' = conjunction.

9601. 'The breadth four cubits' (Ex. xxvi. 2) = the marriage of truth with good. . . 'Four' = conjunction, thus marriage, for the conjunction of truth and good is called the heavenly marriage. The reason 'four' = conjunction or marriage, is that this number arises from two multiplied into itself, and 'two' = conjunction. 9674.

9642⁹. All states of the good of love and the truth of faith are signified by 'the four corners of the earth' . . . In like manner by 'the four winds.' Ill.

9674. 'Thou shalt put it upon the four pillars of shittim' (ver. 32) = the good of merit . . . which conjoins and supports. 'Four' = conjunction.

9677. 'Upon four bases of silver' (id.) = the power of conjunction through truth. 'Four' = conjunction.

9720. 'Upon the four corners thereof' (Ex. xxvii. 2) = in every way. 'Four' = conjunction.

9728. 'Upon the net thou shalt make four rings of brass' (ver. 4) = the sphere of good through which there is conjunction. . . 'Four' = conjunction.

9767. 'Its pillars four, and their bases four' (ver. 16) = the goods and truths therefrom which support conjunction. . . 'Four' = conjunction.

9864. 'Four rows of stones' (Ex. xxviii. 17) = the conjunction of all . . . truths from good. 'Four' = conjunction.

10624. 'Upon the thirds and upon the fourths' (Ex. xxxiv. 7) = the damnation of falsities and of the evils thence derived. . . 'Three' is predicated of truths or falsities, and 'four,' of goods or evils. . . The numbers two, four, and eight belong to the celestial class. . . By 'four' is also signified all good in the complex.

R. 322. 'There was given unto them Power over the fourth part of the earth, to kill' (Rev. vi. 8) = the destruction of all the good of the Church. . . By 'the fourth part of the earth' all the good of the Church is signified. 'The fourth part' = all good (because) the numbers 'two' and 'four,' in the Word, are applied to goods, and signify them. . . Hence 'the fourth part,' or simply 'a fourth,' = all good . . . Besides, 'four,' in the Word, = the conjunction of good and truth. That both these things are signified by 'four.' Ill.

342. 'I saw four Angels standing upon the four corners of the earth' (Rev. vii. 1) = the universal Heaven now in the endeavour to execute the Last Judgment upon those who were in the World of Spirits. . . Here, by 'the four Angels' is signified the universal Heaven, and by 'the four corners of the earth,' the universal World of Spirits. . . By 'the four corners' are meant the four quarters.

—⁴. That 'the corners' = the quarters; and therefore 'the four corners' = all the quarters. Ill.

343. 'Holding the four winds of the earth' (id.) = a nearer and thus a stronger influx into lower things. . . 'The four winds' = the influx of the Heavens.

348. The number four = all as to good.

654. Four is predicated of good and of the conjunction of good and truth, and therefore in the opposite sense of evil and the conjunction of evil and falsity, as here. E.847².

858. 'Shall go forth to seduce the nations which are in the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog' (Rev. xx.8)=that those who are meant by the dragon would draw to their party all who were from the earths in the universal World of Spirits who lived there in external natural worship only.

E. 283³. The reason there were four cherubs . . . was that by 'four' is signified celestial good . . . for 'four' =conjunction, and the inmost conjunction with the Lord is through love to Him.

—¹³. There being 'four wings' (Ezek. i.6) = the Divine Spiritual in the Celestial Kingdom.

316¹⁶. That the great horn of the he-goat was broken, and that there came up four in its place towards the four winds of the heavens (Dan. viii.8) = all falsities conjoined with evils thence. 'Horns' = the falsities of evil; 'four' = their conjunction; and 'the four winds of the heavens,' all, both falsities and evils. 418⁶.

—²⁷. There being four horns (to the altar), one in each corner, = that they were for the four quarters in Heaven, by which are signified all things of truth from good.

362². The reason there were four animals or cherubs, was that 'four' = conjunction into one, and such is the conjunction which they enjoy who are in that Heaven.

384². The reason 'the fourth part' (Rev. vi.8) = all good and the derivative truth, is that the number four = the conjunction of good and truth, and therefore 'the fourth part' = or 'the fourth' = everything of conjunction. . . 'A fourth part' = all good; and as all truth is from good, by 'a fourth part' is signified all good and the derivative truth.

— The reason 'four,' and therefore 'a fourth part' are predicated of goods and the derivative truths, is that they signify the conjunction of them. . . When the Angels discoursed about the conjunction of good and truth, or of love and faith, and that discourse was determined into numbers, there came forth the number four; and sometimes also the numbers two, eight, and sixteen, because these numbers have a like signification.

— That 'four' = the conjunction of good and truth, originates from the four quarters in Heaven; in two of which . . . dwell those who are in the good of love, and in the other two . . . those who are in the derivative truths. Hence by 'the four quarters,' or by 'the four winds,' is signified all good and the derivative truth; and by 'four,' the conjunction of them.

—^e. The reason 'the fourth part' = everything of the conjunction of good and truth, is that the fourth part here constitutes everything; and 'a fourth' is significative of conjunction.

418⁶. The reason 'the four winds of the heavens' also = all evil and falsity, is that in the four quarters of the Spiritual World there dwell not only those who are in the good of love and the derivative truths, but also those who are in evils and the derivative falsities.

532⁶. The number 'three,' in the Word, is predicated of truths, and 'two,' and 'four,' of goods. The reason is that 'two,' and 'four' = conjunction, but 'three,' fulness; and spiritual conjunction is love, and all good is of love; and spiritual fulness is formed by means of truths.

—⁷. 'Four five' (Is. xvii.6) = the few who are in good; 'four,' those who are in good, and 'five' a few.

—¹². By 'the third and fourth generation' are signified all who are in falsities from evil; by 'the third generation,' those who are in the falsities of evil; and by 'the fourth generation,' those who are in the evils of falsity; for in the opposite sense, 'three' = falsities, and 'four' evils.

569. (The angels bound at the river Euphrates) are said to be 'four' from the conjunction of falsity with evil; for this number in the Word = the conjunction of good and truth; and in the opposite sense, as here, the conjunction of evil and falsity. Refs.

Fourfold. Quadruplicatus, Quadruplicatim.

A. 1763. A speech of Spirits which has a quadruplicate termination . . .

D. 1036. The red blood . . . seems to be able to pass through similar gyres as Spirits when inaugurated into a Society; and, in fact, with fourfold terminations—terminis.

1127. There are Genii, and also Spirits, who . . . act and speak with a fourfold—quadruplicatim—sound and speech, so that there are four terminations—termini . . . When it is quickest it coincides with the fourfold or quadruped sounds of those mentioned elsewhere.

Foursquare. Quadrangularis.

See SQUARE.

A. 9717^e. The external good of (the New Jerusalem), which is what is just, is signified by its being 'foursquare.'

N. 1. That by 'foursquare' or 'square' is signified what is perfect. Refs.

R. 875⁵. (The Temple of Wisdom) was foursquare . . .

905. 'The city lieth foursquare' (Rev. xxi.16) = justice in it. The reason the city was seen foursquare, was that 'foursquare' or 'square' = what is just; for 'triangular' = what is right; all these in the ultimate degree, which is natural. 'Foursquare' or 'square' = what is just, because it has four sides, and the four sides look to the four quarters; and to look equally to the four quarters is to regard all things from what is just. . . The city lay foursquare that its length and breadth might be equal; and by 'the length' is signified the good of that Church, and by 'the breadth,' its truth; and when the good and the truth are equal, there is what is just. It is from this signification of 'square,' that we say in common conversation, a square man; who is a man that does not turn aside to this side or to that through what is unjust. As 'square' = what is just, the altar of burnt-offering . . . and the altar of incense were square . . . and the breastplate of judgment was a square doubled.

D. 5471. The middle-space is where those are who are truly Christian; and in its midst is the New Jerusalem, foursquare.

Fourteen. Quatuordecim.

Fourteenth. Quartusdecimus.

A. 1670. 'In the fourteenth year' (Gen.xiv.5)=the first temptation. (For) fourteen, or the end of the second week (of years) . . . =the beginning of temptation . . . It is here said 'in the fourteenth year' relatively to the twelve which precede, by which is signified the time of childhood.

4177. 'Fourteen years for thy two daughters' (Gen. xxxi.41)=the first period, that he might acquire thence the affections of truth. 'Fourteen' or two weeks=the first period; for 'a week'=an entire period, great or small; in like manner two weeks, when they are mentioned as one; for the doubling of a number does not take away its signification.

6024². 'The sons of Rachel . . . fourteen' (Gen.xlvi.22)=their state and quality.

7842. 'To the fourteenth of the month' (Ex.xii.6)=to a holy state. 'The fourteenth day'=a holy state. . . 'Fourteen'=the same as 'seven,' that is, what is holy. 7900.

8400. 'The fifteenth'=what is new; because 'fourteen,' or two weeks,=an entire period or state from beginning to end.

Fowl. See BIRD.

Fox. (The Quaker.) D.3771.

Fox. Vulpes, Vulpinus.

P. 311². They who are in their own prudence are like wolves and foxes.

T. 13^e. They become foxes in cunning.

34². He becomes as to love like a fox.

383^e. They cannot dwell together, any more than . . . a fox in a hencoop.

D. 3191². See ADULTERY.

3867. They set huge dogs, foxes, etc., upon men . . .

4151. A cloak lined with fox skin.

Fragment. Fragmentum.

A. 9391¹⁶. 'They trample under foot the pieces of silver' (Ps.lxviii.30).

E. 430¹⁵. 'The twelve baskets of fragments' (Matt. xiv.20)=the derivative Knowledges of truth and good in all abundance and fulness.

Fragrance. Fragrantia.

Fragrant, To be. Fragrare.

A. 4301². They who are in interior perception are affected by truths as with the fragrance which exhales from flowers.

5621. When the perceptions of the Angels are turned into odours . . . they are smelt as fragrances from spices and flowers.

—^e. The fragrant substances in the oil of anointing were representative of spiritual and celestial things.

10291. 'Take to thee fragrant spices' (Ex.xxx.34)=the affections of truth from good which must be in Divine worship.

10293. 'Fragrant onycha' (id.)=the affection of natural truth: by 'onycha' is signified that truth, and by 'fragrant' the perceptivity of what is grateful, which is from the affection of truth, thus is the affection itself. It is called 'fragrant onycha,' because it is said . . . 'Take to thee fragrant spices, stacte, and onycha, and galbanum, that are fragrant.'

10295. 'That are fragrant' (id.)=affections from spiritual good. (For) 'fragrant spices'=the affections of truth from good.

P. 305². Evil stinks, but good is fragrant.

R. 394. The smoke of the incense was fragrant from spices . . . and the fragrances from these spices correspond to such things as belong to spiritual love, or to charity and the derivative faith; for in Heaven there are smelt most fragrant odours which correspond to the perceptions of the Angels that originate from their love; and therefore it is said in the Word in many places that 'Jehovah smelled an odour of rest.'

777². The incense-offerings were pleasing because they were made from fragrant substances which correspond . . .

M. 171⁹. The sphere of love which flows from a wife who is tenderly loved is perceived in Heaven as sweetly fragrant . . .

T. 365⁴. This may be illustrated by the fragrances from a large garden, and by the fragrances from extensive fields of flowers; the fragrant odour which is exhaled from them consists of thousands and myriads of various odours, and yet they are smelt as one.

E. 324. It was on this account that the incense was made from fragrant spices . . . There is a correspondence of odour with perception . . . In the Spiritual World . . . the perceptivity of good and truth is smelt as what is fragrant from grateful odours. . . The good of love and of charity produces this sweetness or fragrance, that is, by means of truth, but not from itself without truth; still less does truth without good produce it; for good without truth has no perceptivity, neither has truth without good.

—²⁵. In order that what is grateful might be represented, the incense was made from fragrant spices . . . for fragrant odours correspond to the pleasantnesses and delights which are in the thoughts and perceptions from the delight of spiritual love . . .

—²⁷. As the fragrances which belong to odour correspond to spiritual pleasantnesses, or to the pleasantnesses which originate from spiritual good, the most grateful reception by the Lord is called 'an odour of rest.' III.

494². By fragrance and sweetness was signified that which was grateful and accepted.

D. Wis. x. 6². A good Spirit with delight draws into his nostrils things fragrant and sweet . . . But an evil Spirit . . . shuns things fragrant and sweet.

Franc. D.6034.

France. Gallia.

French. Gallicus.

P. 257⁴. It has been provided that there should be a nation among (the Babylonians) which has not passed under the yoke of such domination, and which holds the Word to be holy: this nation is the noble French nation.

R. 740. 'The ten horns are ten kings, who have received no kingdom as yet' (Rev. xvii. 12) = the Word as to power from Divine truths with those who are in the kingdom of France, and are not so completely under the yoke of the papal dominion; among whom however there has not yet been formed a Church fully separated from the Roman Catholic religion. That these things are said of those who are in the kingdom of France, may be evident from the series of things in the spiritual sense. . . The reception of the Word and the derivative state of the Church among those who are attached to that religion only as to externals, and who are especially in the kingdom of France (is treated of in verses 12-14).

—³. The Church with those in the kingdom of France is said to be not yet separated from the Roman Catholic religion, because it coheres with it in externals, but not so much in internals. . . The reason they still adhere to it is that there are so many monasteries there, and because the priesthood there is under the authority of the Pontiff, and these are in everything that is formal according to the papal edicts and statutes: and therefore very many are still in the essentials of that religion; on which account the Church there is not yet separated.

745². The reception and understanding of the Word by the noble French nation (is treated of in verses 12-14).

M. 110. (Opinions of the French concerning the origin of marriage love and its potency.)

380³. Mentioned.

381. (Three orators, from France, deliver orations on the origin of beauty in the female sex.)

D. 5980. On the king of France, Dec. 13, 1769. J. (Post.) 104.

E. 1070². Within Babylon are those in the kingdom of France . . . who have not taken away from the Lord the power of saving men, nor Divine holiness from the Word, and ascribed both these to some Vicar; as may be evident from the contest of the Gallican Church with the Roman one, which has lasted a long time and is still going on. The things contained in Rev. xvii. 12-14 are said especially of this contest.

1071. The Gallican Church acknowledges the Word as Divine truth, and attributes Divine inspiration to each thing of the Word; but to the sayings of the Pope not an equal Divine inspiration in relation to those things which are the means of salvation.

Frankincense. Thus.

A. 113⁰. 'They offered Him gifts, gold, frankincense, and myrrh' (Matt. ii. 11); where 'gold' = good; 'frankincense' and myrrh, 'the things which are grateful, because from love and faith; and which are therefore called 'the praises of Jehovah' (Is. lx. 6).

1171³. Things celestial and the derivative spiritual things are meant by 'gold and frankincense' (Is. lx. 6).

—⁵. 'Gold, frankincense, and myrrh' = celestial, spiritual, and natural good.

—^e. 'Sheba' = Knowledges and adorations, which are 'frankincense and calamus' (Jer. vi. 20).

2177⁴. 'Fine flour with oil and frankincense' (in the meat-offering, Lev. vi. 15) represented all things of charity; 'fine flour,' what is spiritual thereof; 'oil,' what is celestial; and 'frankincense,' what is on this account grateful.

— 'Frankincense,' from its odour, = what is grateful and acceptable.

3048⁵. 'Gold and frankincense' (Is. lx.) = goods and truths, which are 'the praises of Jehovah.'

3242². The doctrinal things of good are 'gold'; the doctrinal things of truth are 'frankincense,' both are 'the praises of Jehovah.'

4262³. 'Gold' (Matt. ii.) = celestial love; 'frankincense,' spiritual love; 'myrrh,' these loves in the Natural.

4748⁵. By 'cinnamon, incenses, ointments, and frankincense' (Rev. xviii. 13) are signified truths which are from good; but with them, truths perverted and falsities from evil.

9293³. By 'gold, frankincense, and myrrh' are signified all things which belong to the good of love and of faith directed to the Lord; 'gold,' the things of the good of love; 'frankincense,' the things of the good of faith; and 'myrrh,' the things belonging to both in externals. . . (The wise men knew from correspondences) that gold, frankincense, and myrrh signified the goods which are to be offered to God.

9993⁵. 'The pure frankincense' which was to be put upon the cakes (Lev. xxiv. 7) = truth from celestial good, which is the ultimate or outermost of the Celestial Kingdom.

10137¹¹. The reason no oil and frankincense were to be put upon the meat-offering of the sacrifice for sin and guilt, was that by 'oil' is signified the good of love, and by 'frankincense' the truth of that good; and by the sacrifice for sin and guilt is signified purification and expiation from evils and the derivative falsities, which were not to be commingled with good and the derivative truth. 10177¹².

10177¹¹. 'Frankincense,' specifically, = the truth of faith; and therefore when 'frankincense' is mentioned in the Word, there is adjoined 'oil,' 'bread,' 'meat-offering,' or 'gold,' by which is signified the good of love. III.

—¹³. As the good of love is not possible except together with the truth of faith . . . upon every meat-offering there was frankincense; and also upon the breads of faces (Lev. xxiv. 7).

10252⁵. 'Gold' (Matt. ii.) = good; 'frankincense,' internal truth; and 'myrrh,' external truth, both from good. . . 'Frankincense' is mentioned in the second place, because it = the internal truth which is from good.

10293². By 'frankincense' is signified internal truth in the internal man, which is spiritual good.

10296. 'Pure frankincense' (Ex. xxx. 34) = inmost truth, which is spiritual good ; (for) 'frankincense' = that which is purified from the falsity of evil. . . The good with those who are in the Spiritual Kingdom is nothing but truth, which is called good when a man wills and does it from conscience and affection.

[A. 10296]². As 'frankincense' = spiritual good, and good is what reigns in all truths, disposes them, conjoins them, and gives affection to them, therefore frankincense is mentioned in the last place ; and therefore it was from it that the vessels of incense were called censers-thuribula ; for the name is given from the essential, which is good.

—³. It is called 'pure frankincense,' because 'pure' = purified from the falsities of evil.

10303². 'Pure frankincense' = spiritual good.

S. 23³. 'Gold' = celestial good ; 'frankincense,' spiritual good ; and 'myrrh,' natural good ; from which three is all worship. R. 277⁶. E. 324¹⁰. 491⁵.

R. 277². 'Frankincense' has a similar signification to 'incense,' because frankincense was the principal spice from which the incense was made.

777. 'And cinnamon, and incenses, and ointment-pigmentum-, and frankincense' (Rev. xviii. 13) = that they no longer have worship from spiritual goods and truths, because they have nothing internally in their worship which corresponds to the things here named.

—². The essential of the incense-offerings is meant by 'the frankincense.'

E. 242⁷. By 'the gold and frankincense which they shall carry' (Is. lx. 6) are meant goods and truths from good, which, from being such, are grateful.

324⁷. As spiritual good, which is the good of charity towards the neighbour, derives its essence and its soul from celestial good, which is the good of love to the Lord, therefore 'frankincense,' by which is signified spiritual good, was put upon the breads of faces, by which is signified celestial good.

—⁹. That 'incense' and 'frankincense' = spiritual good ; and 'the incense-offering,' the worship which is grateful from this good. III.

—⁹. By 'the gold and frankincense which they shall carry,' is signified worship from the spiritual good which is from celestial good ; 'gold' = celestial good, and 'frankincense,' spiritual good ; and because worship from these is signified, it is said 'and they shall proclaim the praises of Jehovah.'

324¹⁴. As 'the meat-offering' = the good of celestial love, and 'frankincense' the good of spiritual love, oil and frankincense were put upon the meat-offering of fine flour . . .

—²⁶. The frankincense was the primary thing (of the incense), and the other three spices were added for the gratefulness of their odour . . . From this it is evident why 'frankincense' = the same as the compounded incense, namely, spiritual good.

340⁶. 'To offer frankincense and bless vanity' (Is. lvi. 3) = to worship God from such things as represent spiritual good, and yet to love evil and falsity . . .

449⁵. 'To bring burnt-offering, sacrifice, meat-offering, and frankincense' (Jer. xvii. 26) = worship from celestial good and from spiritual good in the natural man ;

'burnt-offering' = worship from celestial good ; 'sacrifice,' worship from spiritual good ; 'meat-offering and frankincense,' good and the truth of good in the natural man.

491². That 'frankincense,' in the Word, = spiritual good ; and in like manner 'the censer-thuribulum' - which was its containant. III.

— 'I have not made thee to serve by a meat-offering, nor wearied thee by frankincense' (Is. xliii. 23). 'Meat-offering' and 'frankincense' are mentioned, because by 'the meat-offering,' which was from fine flour, and thus was bread, is signified celestial good ; and therefore by 'frankincense' is signified spiritual good.

—³. Oil was poured upon the meat-offering, and frankincense was put on it ; and this in order that by the meat-offering there might be represented the conjunction of celestial good and spiritual good ; for 'oil' = celestial good, and 'frankincense' spiritual good.

—⁴. Therefore, also, 'frankincense' was put upon the breads of faces in the tabernacle ; and this also for the sake of the conjunction of both goods ; for the 'breads' = celestial good, and 'the frankincense,' spiritual good . . .

492. The incense-offerings represented worship from spiritual good ; and frankincense = this good . . . thus by the incense-offerings from frankincense was represented the things which thence proceed ; and the things which proceed from that good are truths ; for this good thinks them and speaks them . . . Moreover, spiritual good is formed in man by means of truths . . .

494. The reason the smoke of the incense-offerings = truths from spiritual good, is that the frankincense, from which came the smoke, = spiritual good ; and the fire by which the frankincense was kindled, celestial good.

1151. 'And ointment and frankincense' (Rev. xviii. 13) = profaned worship from spiritual love. 'Ointment' = the good of spiritual love ; and 'frankincense' = the truth of spiritual good. The reason it is spiritual love which is signified by 'ointment and frankincense,' is that the incense-offerings were effected by means of them . . .

Inv. 51. Statements of Scripture by which Truths are confirmed ascend into Heaven ; they are like the smoke from frankincense.

Fraud. Fraus.

Fraudulent. Fraudulentus.

Fraudulently. Fraudulenter.

To Defraud. Defraudare.

Defrauding. Defraudatio.

A. 949². They consult how to deceive others fraudulently . . . They who have acted fraudulently (at last have) faces worse than that of a dead man, of a ghastly hue . . . with horrible cavities ; and thus do they live in the torment of anxiety.

3597. 'Thy brother came in fraud' (Gen. xxvii. 35) = the inverse of order.

3660. The fraud which horrified Isaac signified and foretold what was fraudulent in that nation as to the representatives . . .

4459. 'The sons of Jacob answered Shechem and Hamor . . . in fraud' (Gen.xxxiv.13)=an evil opinion and intention concerning the good and truth of the Church with the ancients. . . 'Fraud'=an evil opinion and intention; for fraud, in general, involves evil against another and against those things which he speaks and acts; because he who is in fraud thinks and intends differently from another.

6666°. (The infernals) use all . . . cunning and fraud . . .

7296°. They who in the life of the body . . . have contrived many arts to defraud others . . . in the other life learn magical arts.

9200. 'Ye shall not afflict'=that they should not be defrauded. III.

9274°. 'The deceitfulness of riches' (Mark iv.19).

9348°. These two things (evil loves and reasonings from fallacies of the senses), are meant in the Word by . . . 'frauds' and 'deceits,' etc. III.

H. 358°. He who . . . does not defraud another, merely because he fears the laws . . . and if that fear did not restrain, would defraud another as much as he could; the thought and will of that man are fraud . . . He, being internally insincere and fraudulent, has Hell in him. But he who . . . does not defraud another, because it is contrary to God and against the neighbour, does not wish to defraud another even if he can; the thought and will of this man are conscience; he has Heaven in him.

481. They (who are in corporeal love) . . . feel delight in fraud; and what is good, sincere, and just, from fraud, is evil, insincere, and unjust.

530°. If they did not fear the law . . . they would to the utmost of their power defraud, plunder, and despoil others, and this from delight.

Life So. 'To steal,' in the natural sense, (also means) to defraud . . . E.803°,ii. 902°. 1028°.

P. 146. The man who has perceived delight in defraudings . . . and now sees . . . that they are sins . . . when he desists, there arises a combat . . . The internal man is in the affection of sincerity, but the external is still in the delight of defrauding; which delight, being completely opposite to the delight of sincerity, does not recede unless it is compelled to do so . . . Then when the victory has been gained, the external man comes into the delight of the love of sincerity . . . and afterwards the delight of defrauding gradually becomes undelightful to him.

891. 'The unfaithful'=those who are in no charity towards the neighbour; for they are insincere and fraudulent, thus unfaithful.

M. 460°. (This) is to defraud some man.

D. 4827. These frauds were turned into magical arts. Enum.

E. 182°. Moral life from the love of self and of the world . . . regarded in itself, is nothing but cunning and fraud . . .

725¹¹. That this worship, being fraudulent, is infernal, is signified by 'Cursed be the defrauder' (Mal.i.14).

Frederick. Fridericus. (King of Sweden, as husband of Queen Ulrica Eleonora.)

D. 5799. I saw one I had known in the world, who had been Frederick King of Sweden. He joined and devoted to himself all those he could, to the number of hundreds, all who were able to do for him what he wanted, both in procuring gold, and also in procuring many other things which he had possessed in the world and had loved above everything, especially the alluring of the women . . . he saw.

D. Min. 4725. On King Frederick. . . He was with me on the fifteenth day after death, and heard the same day that he was being buried. He saw and heard somewhat, as the ringing of the bells. He spoke with me for several hours, and was surprised that although dead, he should see and hear those things. Then he was glad that he was still alive.

4742. One who in the life of the body had been an adulterer—King Frederick—, and had placed his highest delight therein, without any conscience about injuring the matrimonial covenant; and who, moreover, was lascivious in the highest degree, and was wholly given up to pleasures, so that he did not want to perform any use except on his own behalf, and for the sake of his adultery and his pleasure, was with me for several days, beneath the feet. And when he changed his state, he inflicted . . . pain on the periosteum . . . When he was operating, his sphere produced a great oppression in the stomach . . . He assailed and hurt all the periosteum, even though of the head . . . for he was also a dissembling hypocrite. 4743. 4787.

4794. On adulteries. King Frederick. . . Translatus erat sub nates . . . ibi solum latrinae . . . quibus significabatur quod meris voluptatibus deditus esset . . . Novas continue volebat, et semel tactas respuebat.

4795. From the caverns there exhaled also the stench of corpses, because he had also been deceitful.

Free. See under VOID.

Free. Exsolvere.

A. 7218°. They cannot free themselves from this compulsion.

H. 479°. Their love is like . . . a rope . . . from which they cannot loose themselves.

R. 99. Interior combat . . . from which they cannot be released.

Free. Liber.

Freedom. *Libertas.

Freely. Libenter, Libere.

See DELIVER, and FREE WILL.

A. 891. 'The dove did not return to him any more'=a free state.

— . So long as Noah was in the ark he was in a state of slavery . . . His state of Freedom is described in the following verses . . . thus first of all by the going forth of the dove, that is, of the truth of faith from good; for all freedom is from the good of faith, that is, from the love of good.

* Libertas is distinguished from liberum by the use of a capital F for Freedom when it stands for libertas.

[A.] 892. When man is regenerate, he then for the first time comes into a state of Freedom; before this he was in a state of slavery. There is slavery when cupidities and falsities exercise command; and Freedom when the affections of good and truth do so. How this is man never perceives so long as he is in a state of slavery; but he does so for the first time when he comes into a state of Freedom. While he is in a state of slavery . . . the man supposes . . . that he is in a state of Freedom . . . for he is then carried away by the delight of cupidities and of the pleasures thence derived . . . and in consequence of such delight, it appears to him to be freedom. Everyone who is being led by any love . . . supposes himself to be free; but it is diabolical Spirits . . . who are carrying him away; and this the man supposes to be the utmost freedom . . .

—². Man never comes into a state of Freedom until he is regenerate and is led by the Lord through the love of good and truth. When he is in this state he is for the first time able to know and perceive what freedom is; because he then perceives what life is, and what is the true delight of life, and what happiness is . . . When those who are in a state of Freedom from the Lord see, and still more when they feel, the life of cupidities and falsities, they abhor it as do they who see Hell open before their eyes. But as most people are utterly unaware of what the life of Freedom is, we may say in a few words . . . that the life of Freedom, or Freedom, consists solely in being led by the Lord . . .

905. 'To go forth from the ark' = Freedom.

— The presence of the Lord involves Freedom; the one follows the other; the more the Lord is present, the freer is man; that is, in proportion as he is in the love of good and truth, he acts freely; such is the nature of the Lord's influx through the Angels . . .

918. The nature of man's spiritual Freedom may appear from this, that he is ruled by the Lord through conscience. He who is ruled through conscience, or he who acts according to conscience, acts freely . . . to act contrary to conscience is Hell to him, and to act according to conscience is Heaven to him; from which everybody may see that this latter is freedom.

1107. Freely-libenter, occurs. 2131.

1316². The sphere of one who regards himself in all things . . . absorbs . . . all the delight of the Spirits about him, and destroys all their freedom . . . Whereas, when . . . the general good of all is regarded, then one never appropriates to himself the delight of another and destroys his freedom; but, so far as he can, promotes and increases it. Hence the heavenly Societies are as one . . .

1507. A certain Spirit . . . had seemed to himself to be great and wise in comparison with others . . . The Spirits said that they could not possibly approach; that they were deprived of all Freedom . . . From this it may appear what is the nature of a sphere of authority in the other life.

1749³. The dominion from evil and falsity consists in wanting to make all into slaves; the dominion from good and truth consists in wanting to make all free.

1937⁴. In all compulsion to good there is a certain freedom, which is not perceived as such while one is in compulsion, but still it is in it. Examp.

—⁵. This is most especially the case in temptations, in which, when a man compels himself against evil and falsity . . . there is more freedom than there ever is in any state out of temptations, although the man cannot apprehend it at the time, it being an interior freedom . . . This freedom is from the Lord, who insinuates it into the man's conscience, and by it causes the man to conquer the evil as from proprium. By this freedom the man receives a proprium into which the Lord can operate good. Without a proprium acquired, that is, given, through freedom, no man can possibly be reformed, because he cannot receive a new will, which is conscience. The freedom thus conferred is the very plane into which comes the influx of good and truth from the Lord. Hence it is that those who do not resist in temptations from this Voluntary or freedom, yield. In all freedom consists the life of man, because there consists his love; for whatever a man does from love appears to him to be free; but in that freedom when a man compels himself against evil and falsity, and to do what is good, there is heavenly love, which the Lord then insinuates, and by which He creates his proprium . . .

—⁷. (Thus) from being compelled there never comes anything good . . . But the compelling of self is from a certain freedom which is unknown to the man; for there is never any compulsion from the Lord. Hence it is a universal law, that all good and truth is inseminated in freedom; otherwise the ground is never receptive . . . of good, nay, there is not any ground in which the seed can grow.

1947. (In temptations) freedom becomes stronger according to the assaults made by evils and falsities, and is strengthened by the Lord, in order that a heavenly proprium may be conferred upon him.

— Moreover the Lord never compels anyone . . . to think truth and do good . . . (for) everyone longs to get from non-freedom into freedom, because the latter belongs to his life.

—². (Thus) nothing can ever be grateful to the Lord which is not from freedom, that is, which is not from what is spontaneous or voluntary; for when anyone worships the Lord from non-freedom, he worships Him from nothing of his own, but is moved by what is external, that is, by what is of compulsion, while what is internal is either absent altogether, or is repugnant, or is even contradictory.

— When a man is being regenerated, he compels himself from the freedom with which he is gifted by the Lord . . . and thus receives a heavenly proprium, which proprium is afterwards gradually perfected by the Lord, and is made more and more free, so that it becomes the affection of good and of truth derived from good, and has delight, and in this delight and affection happiness like that of the Angels. This is the freedom of which the Lord Himself thus speaks in John: 'The Truth shall make you free. . . If the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed' (viii. 32, 36).

—³. What this freedom is, is utterly unknown to those who have no conscience, for they make freedom to consist in the humour and licence of thinking and speaking what is false, and of willing and doing what is evil . . . when yet this is the very reverse of freedom, as the Lord also teaches in the same: 'Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin' (viii.34). They receive this slavish freedom from the infernal Spirits who are with them, who infuse it; and while they are in the life of these Spirits, and also in their loves and cupidities, fanned by an impure and excrementitious delight, being carried away by them as by a torrent, they suppose themselves to be in freedom; but it is infernal freedom. The difference between this freedom and heavenly freedom, is that the former is of death and drags them down to Hell; whereas the latter . . . is of life and elevates them to Heaven.

—⁴. That all true internal worship takes place not from compulsion, but from freedom, and that it is not internal worship unless it is from freedom. III.

—⁵. The humiliation of the rational man . . . from freedom . . . was represented by the affliction of their souls on festival days. III.

—⁶. Man's freedom suffers (from a life of asceticism).

2131^o. Translation from one Society into another . . . is (thus) done entirely from freedom.

2744. The progression of the delights from marriage love . . . towards Heaven (is) into blessednesses and happinesses continually multiplying . . . and this by the utmost freedom; for all freedom is from love; consequently, the utmost freedom, which is heavenly freedom itself, is from marriage love. . . The progression of the delights of marriage love towards Hell (is also effected) from apparent freedom . . .

2842^o. An internal man is of such a character, that he loves to speak and act from freedom, and not from compulsion; for with them the internal compels the external, and not the reverse.

2870. On the freedom of man. Gen.art.

— . Few know what freedom is, and what is non-freedom. Freedom appears to be everything which is of any love and its delight; and non-freedom appears to be everything which is contrary thereto. That which is of the love of self and the love of the world, and of their cupidities, appears to man like freedom; but it is infernal freedom: whereas that which is of love to the Lord and of love towards the neighbour, consequently of the love of what is good and true, is freedom itself; and is heavenly freedom.

2871. Infernal Spirits are unacquainted with any other freedom than that which is of the love of self and the love of the world, that is, of the cupidities of exercising command, of persecuting and hating all who are not subservient to them, of tormenting everybody, of destroying the universe if it were possible, for the sake of themselves, of taking away and claiming for themselves whatever belongs to others. When they are in these and in the like things they are in their freedom, because they are in their delight. In this freedom consists their life, insomuch that if it is taken away from them, they have no more life left than a new-born child. From experience.

2872. But heavenly freedom is that which is from the Lord: in this freedom are all the Angels . . . It is of love to the Lord and of mutual love, thus of the affection of good and truth. The nature of this freedom may be evident from the fact, that everyone who is in it, from inmost affection communicates to others his own blessedness and happiness . . .

2873. How far heavenly freedom . . . is distant from infernal freedom . . . may appear from this, that when the Angels . . . merely think of such freedom as is from the affection for what is evil and false . . . they are at once seized with internal pain; and on the other hand, when evil Spirits merely think of freedom which is from the affection for what is good and true . . . they at once fall into agonies; and, wonderful to say, so opposite is the one freedom to the other, that the freedom of the love of self and of the world is Hell to good Spirits; and, on the other hand, the freedom of love to the Lord and of mutual love is Hell to evil Spirits. Therefore, in the other life, all are distinguished according to the freedoms; or, what is the same thing, according to the loves and affections . . .

2874. From this it is evident what freedom is, namely, that it is to think and will from affection; and that the freedom is such as is the affection: also that one freedom is infernal, and that the other freedom is heavenly; and that the infernal freedom is from Hell, and the heavenly freedom from Heaven. It is evident also, that they who are in infernal freedom cannot come into heavenly freedom—for that would be to come from Hell into Heaven—unless all life were taken away from them: and also that no one can come into heavenly freedom except through reformation by the Lord; and that he is then introduced into it through the affection for what is good and true, that is, through the good of life wherein is implanted the truth of doctrine.

2875. The truth of doctrine . . . is called forth (from the memory) by the Lord . . . and is conjoined with the affection of good: this takes place in the man's freedom; for man's freedom is from affection. Such is the insemination and inrooting of faith: whatever is done in freedom is conjoined; but whatever is done under compulsion is not conjoined. Ex.

2876. As no one can be reformed except in freedom, freedom is never taken away from man, so far as appears: it is an eternal law that as to the interiors everyone shall be in freedom, that is, as to the affections and thoughts, in order that the affection for what is good and true may be insinuated in that freedom. 3145^o.

2877. Whenever the affection of truth and the affection of good are insinuated by the Lord . . . the man imbues truth and does good in freedom, because from affection; for whatever is from affection . . . is free; and then the truth of faith conjoins itself with the good of charity. Unless man had freedom in all that he thinks and wills, it would be impossible for the freedom of thinking truth and of willing good to be insinuated into anyone by the Lord; for, in order to be reformed, man must think what is true as from himself, and must do what is good as from himself; and that which is as from himself is in freedom . . . 3146.

2878. As man is continually introduced by means of affections into what is true and good, thus by means of things free . . . the Lord alone knows these times and states . . . Hence it is evident why man has freedom.

[A.] 2879. Unless man is in freedom interiorly as to all affections and as to all thoughts, he can never be disposed so that good and truth can take any root.

2880. Nothing else appears to man as his own . . . except that which flows from freedom. The reason is that all affection . . . is his veriest life, and to act from affection is to act from life, that is, from himself, thus from what is his own . . . In order, therefore, that man may receive a heavenly proprium . . . he is kept in freedom, and is thus introduced into it by means of freedom. Everybody can see that to worship the Lord from freedom appears to be from self . . . whereas to worship from compulsion is not from self . . . thus that worship from freedom is real worship, and that worship from compulsion is no worship at all.

2881². While man is in combats . . . it appears as if the Lord compelled him, and thus that he has no freedom; for he then continually fights against the love of self and of the world, thus against the freedom in which he was born and in which he grew up . . . but . . . in the combats in which he conquers the freedom is stronger than it is out of combats; but it is a freedom not from himself, but from the Lord, and yet it appears as his own. 4031².

2882. Man believes he has no freedom chiefly because he knows that of himself he has no power to do what is good and think what is true; but let him not believe that anyone ever has or has had any freedom to think what is true and to do what is good from himself . . . But the freedom to think the truth which is of faith and to do the good which is of charity all flows in from the Lord . . . All the Angels are in such freedom; nay, in the very perception that it is so.

2884. The freedom of the love of self and of the world and of their cupidities, is nothing less than it is freedom, being complete slavery; but still it is called freedom, just as love, affection, and delight are used in both senses.

2885. No one can know what slavery and what freedom are, unless he knows the origin of the one and of the other, which he cannot know except from the Word; and unless he knows how the case is with man as to his affections . . . and as to his thoughts.

2886. Evils and falsities have connection with the Hells; from this comes the willing and thinking of those who are in them, and from this their love, affection and delight, and therefore their freedom. Whereas goods and truths have connection with Heaven; and from this comes the willing and thinking of those who are in them, and from this their love, affection, and delight, and therefore their freedom. From this it may appear what is the source of the one freedom, and of the other freedom.

2890. The evil Spirits who are with man . . . consider him as a vile slave . . . But the Angels . . . consider him as a brother, and insinuate into him affections for good and truth, and thus lead him by means of freedom, not whither they will, but whither it pleases the Lord. (Thus) . . . to be led by the devil is slavery, but to be led by the Lord is freedom.

2891. Novitiate Spirits . . . are told that they must by all means think, will, and do what is good from themselves, and that otherwise they cannot have a heavenly proprium, and heavenly freedom; but that still they must acknowledge that what is good and true is not from them, but from the Lord; and they are instructed that all the Angels are in such an acknowledgment . . . and that the more exquisitely they perceive that they are led by the Lord . . . the more they are in freedom.

2892. He who lives in good, and believes that the Lord rules the universe, and that from Him alone is all good . . . and all truth . . . nay, that life is from Him, thus that from Him we live, move, and have our being, is in such a state that he can be gifted with heavenly freedom . . .

3043. 'Thou art free-immunis—from my adjuration'= the freedom which the natural man has. 3154^o.

—². Freedom is predicated of the natural man, but not so much of the rational; for there flows in good in heavenly freedom from the Lord through the Rational into the Natural; the natural man is what receives it; and in order that he may receive it, and thus be conjoined with the heavenly freedom which flows in through the Rational, the Natural is left in freedom; for freedom is of love or affection.

—³. As to the Lord, He also left the Natural in freedom when He made His Rational Divine as to truth . . .

3145. 'He loosed the camels'= freedom for those things which were to be of service. . . The real case is this, that without freedom there is never any production of faith in the natural man, nor any calling forth of truth thence into the rational man and conjunction of good therein; all these things take place in a free state; for it is the affection of truth from good which makes freedom: unless truth is learned from affection, thus in freedom, it is not implanted, still less is it exalted towards the interiors, and there made faith.

3158. The free state of their deliberation. Sig. . . In both these cases a free state of deliberation is required: that it is required in betrothal and marriage is known, but that it is required in the initiation and conjunction of good and truth is not so well known . . . but still it exists every moment during man's reformation and regeneration, namely, that he is in a free state while truth is being conjoined with good.

—². In order that truth may be received by the good which is of the will, it is necessary that there should be a free state. Everything which is of the will appears free: the state itself of the will is freedom . . .

3159. Reciprocal freedom. Sig. and Ex.

3463³. He who acts not from the commandment but from charity . . . acts from the heart, thus from freedom . . .

3750. The love of self exalted . . . by an imaginary freedom . . .

—³. What a freedom . . . of respiration he enjoyed when he sat on his throne in the Consistory. Des.

3854². The Lord foresaw that it would be impossible for any good to be rooted in man, except in his freedom; for that which is rooted in non-freedom is dissipated at the first approach of evil and of temptation. This the Lord foresaw, and also that man, of himself, or of his own freedom, would incline to the deepest Hell; on which account the Lord provides that in case man should not suffer himself to be led in freedom to Heaven, he may still be bent to a milder Hell; but in case he should suffer himself to be led in freedom to good, he may be led to Heaven.

—^e. Providence is present in the least particulars (concerning man), which it rules and bends . . . and this by a continual management of his freedom.

3869³. The Lord's Providence is the ruling that a thing may be so, and the bending of man's freedom to good; so far as He foresees that the man will suffer himself to be bent in freedom.

3928³. 'A hind let loose' = the affection of natural truth in a free state which exists after temptation . . . For in temptations the combat is concerning freedom.

4029². The conjunction of truth and good in the Natural is not effected except through what is spontaneous, that is, in freedom. Tr.

4031. What is not free. Sig.

—^e. Whatever is not from affection is from non-spontaneousness or non-freedom . . . For when the ardour of affection is deficient, then freedom ceases; and that which then takes place is called non-freedom, and at last compulsory.

—². In non-freedom . . . no conjunction (of truth and good), thus no regeneration, can take place . . .

—³. Hence at this day manifest miracles are not wrought, but . . . invisible ones, which are such as not . . . to take away man's freedom.

—⁴. It is the freedom of man into which the Lord operates, and by means of which He bends him; for all freedom is of love or its affection, consequently of the will. If he does not receive good and truth in freedom it cannot be appropriated to him.

—^e. He who compels himself, does it from freedom within; whereas to be compelled is from non-freedom. Therefore it is evident into what . . . errors those cast themselves who reason about the Lord's Providence . . . and do not know that freedom is that by means of which the Lord operates . . .

4067³. These Spirits communicate with Hell, and the man . . . is completely ruled by them . . . although he supposes, from the delight and consequent freedom which he enjoys, that he rules himself.

4079. His freedom, and that in his freedom these things were taken by the Lord. Sig.

4096⁵. For all affection makes freedom.

4110². The separation of the Spirits of a middle sort is effected by several means, until they recede in freedom. Ex. . . Evil Spirits are also removed in freedom, yet in a freedom which only appears to them to be freedom. Ex.

4136. The state in case the separation had been from freedom on his part. Sig. . . (For) these words = that the separation was made against his inclination, when yet it ought to have been made from freedom. A state of freedom is signified and described by the words which now follow.

—³. At this day . . . few know anything about freedom. . . I may give one example . . . There was a certain leading man . . . who had been acknowledged by others to be learned; but as he had led an evil life, he was in such stupid ignorance about good and freedom . . . that he did not know the least difference between infernal delight and freedom, and heavenly delight and freedom; nay, he said that there was no difference.

4139. Disjunction from a free state according to the faith of that good. Sig.

4225². Respiration is according to the freedom of the life . . .

4352³. There is no spiritual confidence except that which flows in through the good of love and of charity, when the man . . . is in a free state.

4364². The Lord leads everyone through his affections . . . for He leads him through freedom . . . When, therefore, man has been led to good in freedom, then truths are accepted and implanted; then, too, he begins to be affected with them; and thus, by little and little, he is introduced into heavenly freedom.

4818³. The evil which a man does from false doctrine . . . he does from . . . freedom . . .

4884². When a man frequently does truth, it recurs, not only from habit, but also from affection, and therefore from freedom.

5002^e. In Heaven . . . when external bonds are relaxed . . . as they are thereby brought nearer to the Divine being—esse . . . they are more interiorly in affection and in the derivative freedom, consequently in blessedness . . .

5096. They who are in falsities, and still more they who are in evils, are said to be 'bound,' and 'in prison' . . . because they are not in freedom; for they who are not in freedom are interiorly bound. For they who have confirmed themselves in falsity are no longer in any freedom to choose and accept truth; and they who have much confirmed themselves therein, are not even in freedom to see it, still less to acknowledge and believe it; for they are in the persuasion that falsity is truth and truth falsity; and this persuasion is of such a character that it takes away all freedom to think anything else, consequently it holds the thought itself in a bond, and as it were in prison. From experience, and Sig.

—². People of this character . . . are affected with their falsity, and love it for the sake of the evil from which it comes; therefore they suppose that they are in freedom; for whatever is of the affection or love appears free. But they who are not in confirmed falsity . . . easily admit truths . . . and are affected with them . . . They are in so much freedom, that in view and thought they can range as it were through the whole Heaven to innumerable truths. But no one can be in this freedom unless he is in good . . .

5428³. He who looks at freedom from what is natural . . . cannot know otherwise than that freedom consists in thinking and willing from himself, and in being able to act as he thinks and wills without restraint . . . But if he is told that real freedom, which is called heavenly freedom . . . consists in willing nothing from himself, but from the Lord, and not even in thinking from himself, but from Heaven . . . this he does not acknowledge.

[A.] 5462. 'Go ye'—after they had been bound—= that meanwhile they had freedom.

5508^s. Miracles . . . would compel a man to believe, and whatever is compulsory takes away freedom, whereas all man's reformation and regeneration are effected in his freedom. That which is not implanted in freedom is not permanent. It is implanted in freedom when a man is in the affection of good and truth. Refs.

5619. It was customary to give . . . a present . . . The reason was that the presents . . . represented such things as ought to be offered to the Lord . . . which are what proceed from freedom, consequently from the man himself; for his freedom is what is from the heart . . .

5647. There is the fear of . . . losing freedom, and, with freedom, the delight of life. This is the subject treated of in what follows; for they were afraid lest they should be adjoined to the Internal, and should thereby lose their proprium, and with proprium their freedom, and with freedom the delight of life, for this depends on freedom.

5650. It is left to the natural man to think thus, in order that, from freedom, he may choose what he pleases.

—e. The man who is to be regenerated is placed in this state, in order that, in freedom, he may be able to turn whither he will; and in proportion as, in freedom, he turns to this, he is regenerated.

5660^e. They who are in a heavenly proprium are in freedom itself; for to be led by the Lord is freedom.

5760. 'We will be to my lord for servants'=that they will be associated for ever, without freedom from proprium. 5763. 5786. 613S. 656S.

5763. He who is in interior truth, knows that . . . all freedom from proprium, or from man himself, is infernal; for when man does and thinks anything from his Own freedom, he does and thinks nothing but evil; and therefore is a slave of the devil. . . Moreover, he feels delight in this freedom, because it agrees with the evil in which he is . . . And therefore this Own freedom of man must be put off, and heavenly freedom must be put on in its stead, which consists in willing good and so in doing it, and in desiring truth and so in thinking it. When a man receives this freedom, he is then a servant of the Lord, and is in freedom itself . . .

5786^s. It follows, that the external man . . . ought to be completely subject to the internal, consequently ought to be without freedom from proprium. Freedom from proprium consists in the indulgence of all kinds of pleasures; in despising others in comparison with ourselves; in subjecting them to ourselves as our servants . . . in delighting in the evils which befall them . . . Hence it is evident that when a man is in freedom from proprium, he is a devil in human form. But when a man loses this freedom, he receives from the Lord heavenly freedom, which is utterly unknown to those who are in freedom from proprium. They suppose that if this freedom were taken away from them, nothing of life would remain, when yet life itself then begins, and then also come real delight, blessedness, happiness, and wisdom; because this freedom is from the Lord.

5854^s. The Lord . . . could lead man into good ends by omnipotent force; but this would be to take away his life . . . and therefore the Divine law is inviolable, that man shall be in freedom; and that good and truth . . . shall be implanted in his freedom . . . for what is received in a compulsory state does not remain. . . It is (then) the will of another from which he acts; and therefore when he returns to his own will, that is, to his own freedom, it is extirpated. Therefore the Lord rules man through his freedom, and, so far as possible, withholds him from the freedom of thinking and willing evil; for unless man were withheld by the Lord, he would continually precipitate himself into the deepest Hell.

—^s. Therefore, unless man were reduced into order moderately, and by degrees, through the leading of his freedom, he would instantly expire.

5982. In order that man may be in freedom, the Lord places him in equilibrium between evils and goods, and between falsities and truths, by means of evil Spirits on the one side, and Angels on the other. In order for man to be saved he must be in freedom, and in freedom be withdrawn from evil and led to good. Whatever is not done in freedom does not remain, because it is not appropriated. This freedom is from the equilibrium in which he is kept.

5992. The office of the Angels is . . . to observe whither the man's delights are turning, and to manage and bend them to good, so far as, from the freedom of the man, they are able. . . The Angels especially manage the affections; for these constitute the life and also the freedom of the man. . . Especially do the Angels call forth the goods and truths which are in the man, and oppose them to the evils and falsities which the evil Spirits excite; so that the man is in the midst, perceiving neither the evil nor the good; and being in the midst, he is in freedom to turn himself either to the one or to the other.

6125. (The Intellectual) is given to man in order that he may be in freedom and choice, that is, in the freedom to choose good or evil . . .

6138. When these receptacles (by which are meant the very forms of man) are so far renounced as no longer to have any freedom from proprium, there is a total submission.

6193. The things which flow in from Spirits from Hell are evils and falsities, and those which flow in from Angels from Heaven are goods and truths; thus by means of these opposite influxes man is kept in the midst, and thus in freedom.

6207^e. Conscience is the plane into which the Angels flow . . . and thus they keep the man bound, but still in freedom.

6308. See EQUILIBRIUM. 6477. 6657. 6864^e. 8209^s. H. 537. 589. M. 444^s.

6325. Spirits who want to rule themselves suppose that (to believe that everything flows in) would be to lose their Voluntary, and thus their freedom, consequently all delight . . . because they do not know how the case really is ; for the man who is led by the Lord is in freedom itself, and thus in delight and blessedness itself ; goods and truths are appropriated to him ; the affection and longing to do what is good are given him, and then nothing is a greater happiness to him than to perform uses ; there is given him the perception of good, and also the sensation of it ; and there are given him intelligence and wisdom ; and all these things as his Own ; for he is then a recipient of the Lord's life.

6390. All slavery is from the affection of the love of self and of the world ; and all freedom is from the affection of love to the Lord and towards the neighbour. The reason is that the affection of the former love flows in from Hell, which exercises violent command ; whereas the affection of the latter love is from the Lord, who does not exercise command, but leads. 6393.

6413. 'A hind let loose'=the freedom of natural affection. . . Deliverance from a state of temptations is compared to a hind let loose, because a hind is a wild animal which loves its Freedom more than any other animal ; and the Natural is like it ; for it loves to be in the delight of its affections, thus in freedom ; for freedom is that which is of affection.

6487. Spirits were present who had impressed on themselves something about fate or absolute necessity, from which they supposed that the Lord acted . . . But they were shown that man has freedom, and that if he has freedom, it is not from necessity. (Illustrated by the case of the building of a house.) All things which are from the Lord are most essential, but they do not follow in order from necessity, but in application to the freedom of man.

6489^o. As man has freedom, therefore in order that he may be reformed, he is bent from evil to good so far as in freedom he suffers himself to be bent . . .

6657^o. When Spirits from Hell are fighting against the Angels, they are in the World of Spirits, and are there in a free state. Ref.

6663. Infestations take place by means of immersions in their evils and falsities . . . but still they are not so deeply immersed in them but that the influx from the Lord . . . may prevail. This is done with an exactness like that of a balance ; the object being that he who is being infested may appear to himself to be in freedom, and thus to fight from himself against the evils and falsities . . .

7007^o. The Lord leaves to everyone his own freedom ; for unless man is in freedom he cannot possibly be reformed. . . Compulsion is not the man's will, but freedom is his will ; and yet good and truth, in order to belong to man as his Own, must be inrooted in his will . . . And as, on this account, everyone is left to his freedom, man is allowed to think evil, and, so far as external fears do not restrain, to do it . . .

—³. These things (order in Heaven and Hell, and equilibrium) cannot possibly exist, except through the Divine Providence in the smallest particulars of all ; thus unless the Divine continually rules and bends the freedom of man.

7118^e. For that which flows in from Heaven, and reigns universally, reveals itself in all [states of] freedom.

7290^o. The internal things of worship, which are faith and charity, must be implanted in freedom, for then they are appropriated . . .

7502^o. There is such an order in Heaven from the Lord, that nothing is done violently, but all things in freedom as from themselves.

7564^o. The truths and goods which are not the Lord's are for the most part those which a man does in a state of misfortune, sadness, grief, or fear, and in a state not free ; for these are for the sake of self.

8307^o. The reason a man is able to abstain from evils of himself, is that the Lord continually inflows into the will of man with that endeavour, and thereby puts in his freedom the desisting from evils, and also the application of himself to good.

8392. The repentance which is done in a free state avails ; but that which is done in a compulsory state does not avail. . . An evil man in a state of compulsion . . . does what is good, but when he comes into a free state, he returns into his former evil life. N.168.

8516^o. All in Heaven are led in this way (that is, through good and not through truth) ; for this is according to Divine order ; and thus all things which they think and do flow as it were spontaneously and from freedom : it would be quite different if they were to think and act from truth . . .

8690^o. This good which he does is truth, because it is done only by command, thus as yet from compulsion, and not from freedom. He does good from freedom when he does it from affection ; for everything which flows from the affection of love is free.

8700^o. It is according to order that faith and charity should be implanted in freedom, and not under compulsion ; and that the faith and charity which are implanted in freedom should remain, but not what are implanted under compulsion. The reason is that the things which are insinuated in freedom are insinuated into the affection and thus into the will of the man, and so are appropriated ; but not the things which are insinuated under compulsion. Consequently it is impossible for a man to be saved, unless he—having been born in evil—is allowed to do evil, and to desist from evil. When he desists from evil from himself in this freedom, there is insinuated the affection of truth and good from the Lord ; and from this he has the freedom of receiving the things of faith and charity ; for freedom is of the affection.

8866^o. It is freedom to be led by the Lord. Refs.

8974^o. In the Spiritual Church . . . there are two kinds of men . . . Those who are in the good of charity and in the corresponding truth of faith . . . are men of the internal Church . . . these are, from themselves, free, because they are in good ; for they who are led by the Lord through good, are free. Refs. But those who are in the truth of faith, and not in the corresponding good of life, are men of the external Spiritual Church. These are they who are meant . . . by 'the Hebrew servants.'

8976. 'In the seventh [year] he shall go out to the free-ad liberum—for nothing' (Ex.xxi.2) = a state of confirmed truth without his works.

[A.] 897^o. Hence it follows that the man of the internal Church is free, whereas the man of the external Church is relatively a servant; for he who acts from the affection which is of love acts from freedom; whereas he who acts from obedience does not act from freedom; for to obey is not freedom.

898^o. 'I will not go out free' (ver. 5) = the delight of obedience; (for) 'to go out free' = the state after combat, which is a state merely of truth confirmed and implanted.

—². They who suffer themselves to be regenerated act from affection . . . whereas they who suffer themselves . . . to be . . . only reformed, act . . . from obedience. The difference is that they who act from affection act from the heart, and thus act from freedom . . . whereas they who act from obedience do not act so much from the heart, and therefore not from freedom. If they seem to themselves to act from the heart and from freedom, it is for the sake of something of self-glory.

898^o. To serve the Lord, by doing according to His commandments, and thus by obeying, is not to be a servant but is to be free; for the veriest freedom of man consists in being led by the Lord; because the Lord inspires into the man's will the good from which he is to act; and although it is from the Lord, it is perceived as being from himself, thus from freedom. This freedom is possessed by all those who are in the Lord; and it is conjoined with happiness unspeakable.

906^o. 'He shall let him go free for his eye' (Ex. xxi. 26) = that he can no longer serve the Internal. (For) 'to let go free' = to dismiss from service. 906^o.

906^o. Bonds so called are not bonds except relatively to the opposite things; for he who does anything from the affection which is of the love of good acts from freedom; but he who does anything from the affection which is of the love of evil, appears to himself to act from freedom, but he does not act from freedom, because he acts from the cupidities which are from Hell. He only is free who is in the affection of good, because he is led by the Lord, which the Lord teaches in John: 'If ye remain in My Word, ye shall be My disciples indeed; and ye shall Know the Truth, and the Truth shall make you free. Everyone that committeth sin is the servant of sin. If the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed' (viii. 31-36).

—^e. That freedom consists in being led by the Lord, and slavery in being led by the cupidities which are from Hell. Refs. For the Lord implants affections in favour of good, and He implants aversion for evil; hence man has freedom in doing what is good, and complete slavery in doing what is evil. He who believes that Christian freedom extends itself further than this, is very greatly mistaken.

9212^o. 'To walk whither he would' (John xxi. 18) = to live in freedom. For those live in freedom, or act from freedom, who are in faith from love to the Lord and from charity towards the neighbour; because they are led by the Lord.

9460. 'Of every man whom his heart hath moved willingly' (Ex. xxv. 2) = that all things are to be from love, thus from freedom. . . The reason this denotes from love is that all freedom is of love; for that which a man does from love he does from freedom. Refs.

9585. On the doctrine (of freedom). Gen. art. N. 141. —. All that is called freedom which is of the will, thus which is of the love. It is from this that freedom manifests itself by the delight of willing and thinking, and thence of doing and speaking; for all delight is of love; and all love is of the will; and the will is the being of man's life.

9586. To do what is evil from the delight of love appears to be freedom, but it is slavery, because it is from Hell. To do what is good from the delight of love appears to be freedom, and moreover is freedom, because it is from the Lord. It is therefore slavery to be led by Hell, and freedom to be led by the Lord. This the Lord teaches in John viii.

9587. The Lord keeps man in the freedom of thinking, and, so far as external bonds . . . do not hinder, He keeps him in the freedom of doing: but, through freedom, He bends him away from evil; and, through freedom, He bends him to good; leading him so gently and silently, that the man does not know but that it all proceeds from himself. Thus the Lord, in freedom, inseminates and inroots good into the very life of man. Sig. (Mark iv. 26-28).

9588. That which is inseminated in freedom remains, because it is inrooted in the very will of man, which is the being of his life; but that which is inseminated under compulsion does not remain . . . Hence it is that worship from freedom is pleasing to the Lord . . . Worship from freedom is worship from love, for all freedom is of love. N. 143.

9589. There is heavenly freedom and there is infernal freedom. Heavenly freedom consists in being led by the Lord, and this freedom is the love of what is good and true; but infernal freedom consists in being led by the devil, and this freedom is the love of what is evil and false, properly it is concupiscence.

9590. They who are in infernal freedom believe that it is slavery and compulsion not to be allowed to do what is evil and to think what is false at pleasure: but they who are in heavenly freedom feel horror in doing what is evil and in thinking what is false; and if they are forced thereto, they are tormented. N. 144.

9591. From these things it is evident what free will is, namely, that it consists in doing what is good from . . . the will; and that they are in this freedom who are led by the Lord. N. 146.

9877. According to the heavenly form flow all the affections which are of love, and thence all the thoughts which are of faith; for according to it they diffuse themselves into the angelic Societies, and make a communion. Hence it is that they who are in the good of love to the Lord, and thence in the truths of faith, are in the freest state of willing and thinking . . .

10097. It is said from the peace sacrifices, because by them is signified the worship which takes place from freedom; for the peace or eucharistic sacrifices were voluntary sacrifices; and the things which are voluntary are from man's freedom. That is called freedom which is done from love, thus which is done from the will . . . The Lord inflows with man into his love, thus into his will, and causes that that which the man receives is received in freedom; and that which is received in freedom, also becomes freedom; and he loves it; and therefore it becomes of his life. Hence it is evident what the worship from freedom is which is signified by the peace or voluntary sacrifices.

10173. That which is done from love truly conjugal is done from freedom on both sides; for all freedom is from love; and each partner has freedom when the one loves that which the other thinks and that which the other wills. Hence it is that to want to exercise command in marriages destroys genuine love; because it takes away its freedom, and therefore its delight. H. 380².

10409. By these words is signified to be led by the Lord, thus to be elevated from the natural man to the spiritual. . . and therefore from slavery into Freedom. . . . That slavery consists in being led by self, and Freedom in being led by the Lord, Refs. and Ex.

—4. Moreover, every man is led by the Divine through his Intellectual. . . . Hence it is that the Divine leaves the Intellectual with man in its freedom; and does not restrain it. . . .

10777. The reason the evil succeed according to their arts, is that it is from order that everyone should do that which he does from reason and also from freedom; and therefore unless man were left to act according to his reason from freedom. . . he could not possibly be disposed to receive eternal life; for this is insinuated when man is in freedom, and his reason is enlightened. For no one can be forced to what is good, because nothing compulsory adheres, not being the man's. That becomes of the man himself which is done from freedom; for that which is from the will is done from freedom; and the will is the man himself; and therefore unless a man is kept in freedom to do what is evil too, good from the Lord cannot be provided for him.

H. 44. When (Angels) are with their like, they are also in their freedom, and thence in all the delight of life.

293. As man is in equilibrium, he is in his freedom, and can be withdrawn from evils and bent to good, and good can also be implanted in him, which could not possibly be done unless he were in freedom; nor can freedom be given him unless Spirits from Hell act on the one side, and Spirits from Heaven on the other, and the man be in the midst. . . . Man would have no life. . . . unless he were in freedom. . . . The good which man receives in freedom is implanted in his will, and becomes as his Own; and hence it is that man has communication with both Hell and Heaven.

380². Where there is dominion no one has freedom; the one is a slave, and so too is the one who domineers, because he is led as a slave by the cupidity of domineering.

386. All freedom is from love; therefore the greatest freedom is from marriage love, which is the heavenly love itself.

597. That man is in freedom by means of the equilibrium between Heaven and Hell. Gen. art.

— The reason spiritual equilibrium, in its essence, is freedom, is that it is an equilibrium between good and evil, and between truth and falsity, and these are spiritual things; and therefore to be able to will what is good or what is evil, and to think what is true or what is false, and to choose the one in preference to the other, is the freedom here treated of. This freedom is given to every man by the Lord, nor is it ever taken away. It is, indeed, by virtue of its origin, not man's, but the Lord's, because it is from the Lord; but still it is given to man as his own together with life; and this to the intent that he may be reformed and saved; for without freedom there is no reformation and salvation. Everyone can see from rational sight that it is within the freedom of man to think evilly or well, sincerely or insincerely, justly or unjustly; and also that he can speak and act well, sincerely, and justly; but not evilly, insincerely, and unjustly, on account of spiritual, moral, and civil laws, by which his external is kept in bonds. Hence it is evident that the spirit of man, which is that which thinks and wills, is in freedom; but not so much the external of man, which speaks and acts, unless this be in agreement with the above mentioned laws.

598. The reason man cannot be reformed unless he is in freedom, is that he is born into evils of every kind, which, however, must be removed. . . and they cannot be removed unless he sees them in himself. . . ceases to will them, and at last holds them in aversion. . . This cannot be effected unless the man is in both good and evil; for, from good, he can see evils. . . This is the first reason why man must be in freedom. The second is that nothing is appropriated to man except that which is done from the affection which is of love. . . Nothing is ever free which is not from the will. . . . Whatever a man wills or loves he does freely. Hence it is that the freedom of man, and the affection which is of his love or will, are one. And therefore man has freedom in order that he may be affected with truth and good, that is, love them; and that they may thus become as his Own. In a word, whatever does not enter in freedom into man, does not remain, because it is not of his love or will.

599. In order that man may be in freedom, with a view to his being reformed, he is conjoined as to his spirit with Heaven and with Hell. . . By means of the Spirits from Hell, a man is in his own evil; and by means of the Angels from Heaven, he is in good from the Lord; thus he is in spiritual equilibrium, that is, in freedom.

602². Those with whom the freedom of thinking has not been extinguished by preconceived ideas, confirmed. . . .

603. Appendix. (Refs. to passages on the subject of man's freedom.) N. 148.

N. 141. On freedom. Gen. art.

— All freedom is of love, for that which a man loves he does freely. Therefore all freedom is also of the will. . . and as love and the will constitute the life of man, freedom also constitutes it. From this it is evident. . . that freedom is that which is of the love and of the will and therefore of the life of man. Hence it is that that which a man does from freedom appears to him to be from his own proprium.

142. To do evil from freedom appears to be freedom, but is slavery, because this freedom is from the love of self and from the love of the world, and these loves are from Hell. After death, such freedom is actually turned into slavery; for the man who has such freedom then becomes a vile slave in Hell. But to do what is good from freedom is real freedom, because it is from love to the Lord and from love towards the neighbour, and these loves are from Heaven. This freedom, moreover, remains after death, and then becomes truly freedom; for the man who has such freedom becomes like a son of the house in Heaven. This the Lord thus teaches: 'Every-one that doeth sin is the servant of sin; the servant doth not remain in the house for ever; but the son remaineth for ever; if the Son shall make you free ye shall be free indeed.' Now as all good is from the Lord, and all evil from Hell, it follows that freedom consists in being led by the Lord, and slavery in being led by Hell.

[N.] 143. The reason man has freedom to think what is evil and false, and also, so far as the laws do not withhold, to do it, is that he may be able to be reformed; for goods and truths must be implanted in his love and will, in order that they may become of his life; and this cannot be done unless he has freedom to think what is evil and false as well as what is good and true. This freedom is given to every man by the Lord; and while he is thinking what is good and true, in proportion as he then does not love what is evil and false, the Lord implants what is good and true in his love and will, thus in his life, and so reforms him.

144. The freedom of doing what is good and the freedom of doing what is evil, although alike in external appearance, differ and are remote from each other as are Heaven and Hell. Moreover, the freedom of doing what is good is from Heaven, and is called heavenly freedom; and the freedom of doing what is evil is from Hell, and is called infernal freedom. And, further, in proportion as a man is in the one he is not in the other; for no one can serve two lords.

145. As to act from freedom appears to man to be as it were from his own proprium, the heavenly freedom may be called the heavenly proprium; and the infernal freedom the infernal proprium. The infernal proprium is the one into which man is born . . . but the heavenly proprium is the one into which he is reformed . . .

147. A man may know what kind of freedom he possesses, from the delight he has while he is thinking, speaking, acting, hearing, and seeing; for all delight is of love.

J. 33. The primary reason why the Last Judgment takes place at the end of the Church, is that there then begins to perish the equilibrium between Heaven and Hell, and with the equilibrium the very freedom of man. And when the freedom of man perishes, he can no longer be saved; for he is then, from freedom, carried to Hell, and cannot be led, in freedom, to Heaven. For without freedom no one can be reformed; and all the freedom of man is from the equilibrium between Heaven and Hell.

73^o. Henceforth, the man of the Church will be in a freer state to think about the things of the Church, thus about the spiritual things which are of Heaven; because spiritual freedom has been restored. . . As spiritual freedom has now been restored to man, the spiritual sense of the Word is now disclosed, and interior Divine truths are thereby revealed . . .

74. I have spoken with the Angels about the state of the Church henceforth. They said that things to come they do not know . . . but that they do know that that slavery and captivity in which the man of the Church has been heretofore is taken away; and that now, from restored freedom, he is better able to perceive interior truths if he wants to perceive them, and thus to become more interior if he wants to do so: but that still they have small hope of the men of the Christian Church . . .

C. J. 40. The better of the English nation . . . derive this light from their Freedom of thinking, and thence of speaking and writing.

42^o. In the northern quarter (of the spiritual London) dwell those who preeminently love the Freedom of speaking and writing. T.809. (These are illiterate people. J.(Post.) 268.)

L. 48. As the life of man is various . . . by 'spirit' is meant various affections of life with man, as . . . III. The Freedom of life. III.

Life 19. So long as man is in the world, he is in the midst between Heaven and Hell . . . and he is kept in freedom to turn either to Hell or to Heaven . . . 69^o.

20. Every man has this freedom, not from himself, but from the Lord; and therefore it is said that he is kept in it.

101. It is from Divine order that man should act from freedom according to reason, because to act from freedom according to reason is to act from himself. But these two faculties, freedom and reason, are not proper to man, but are the Lord's with him; and, so far as he is man, they are not taken away from him, because he cannot be reformed without them . . .

102. The Lord loves man and wills to dwell with him, but he cannot do so unless He is reciprocally received and loved . . . For this reason the Lord has given man freedom and reason; freedom to think and will as from himself, and reason according thereto . . .

W. 57. From the freedom to think and will according to reason, which the Angels have from the Lord as theirs.

116. With every Angel there are freedom and rationality: these two are with him to the end that he may be receptive of love and wisdom from the Lord: yet both these, the freedom as well as the rationality, are not his, but are the Lord's with him. But as these two are intimately conjoined with his life, so intimately that they may be said to be joined into his life, they appear as his Own. From them he is able to think and to will, and to speak and act; and that which he thinks, wills, speaks, and does from them, appears as if it were from himself. This makes the reciprocity by means of which there is conjunction.

—². In these two, freedom and rationality, consists the life which is called angelic and human.

117. Some suppose that Adam had a freedom or free determination of such a nature, that he was able to love God and be wise from himself; and that this free determination was destroyed in his descendants. But this is an error. For man is not life, but a recipient of life.

162². Then, because the conjunction with Heaven is broken, conjunction with Hell takes place; the faculty of thinking and willing alone remaining; the faculty of thinking, from rationality; and the faculty of willing, from freedom . . . Devils have these two faculties just as much as Angels; but devils apply them to being insane and to doing evil . . .

240. See FACULTY. 247. 264. 425. P.15.

— . When man sees evil and fears the penalty, he is able, from freedom, to desist from doing.

266. An evil man is able to will and do truths . . . Who is not able to will and do the things which he thinks? The reason he does not will and do them is that he does not love to will and do them. The ability to will and do is the Freedom which every man has from the Lord; but his not willing and doing what is good . . . is from the love of what is evil, which is repugnant, yet he is able to resist this love, and many do resist it. (From experience.) From this it was evident that the evil have the faculty called Freedom just as much as the good. . . The reason a man is able to will, is that the Lord, from whom this faculty comes, continually gives the ability; for the Lord dwells with every man in these two faculties.

267. From the intellectual faculty which is called rationality, and from the voluntary faculty which is called Freedom, man derives the ability to confirm whatever he pleases . . . No beast can do this, because no beast enjoys these faculties. —^c.

271. He who abuses his Freedom to think and do what is evil, calls this Freedom; and the opposite of it, which is to think what is good . . . he calls slavery; when yet the latter is truly free, and the former slavish.

425. All the means through which man is able to come to good are provided. To know and to understand these means is from rationality, and to will and do them is from Freedom. Freedom also consists in wanting to know, understand, and think them.

—². After death, they who have confirmed themselves in (the belief that spiritual things transcend the understanding . . . and that no one can do good as of himself) are deprived, according to their faith, of both these faculties; and instead of the heavenly freedom in which they might have been, they are in infernal freedom . . . and, wonderful to say, they acknowledge that both these faculties exist in the doing of evils, and in the thinking of falsities; not knowing that the freedom of doing evils is slavery, and that the rationality of thinking falsities is irrationality.

—³. But it is to be carefully remembered that both these faculties, Freedom and rationality, are not man's, but are the Lord's with man; and that they cannot be appropriated to man as his; moreover, that they can not be given to man as his, but that they are continually the Lord's with him; and yet that they are never taken away from man, because without them man cannot be saved . . .

P.43. There is infernal freedom and there is heavenly freedom. From infernal freedom come the thinking and the willing of what is evil, and, in so far as civil and moral laws do not prevent, the speaking and doing of it; whereas from heavenly freedom come the thinking and willing of what is good, and, so far as opportunity is afforded, the speaking and doing of it. Whatever a man thinks, wills, speaks, and does from freedom, he perceives as his own; for everyone has all his freedom from his love; and therefore they who are in the love of evil perceive no otherwise than that infernal freedom is real freedom; whereas they who are in the love of good perceive that heavenly freedom is real freedom; consequently, to both of them the opposite freedom is slavery. But still it cannot be denied that either the one or the other is freedom; for there cannot be two opposite freedoms which are both real freedoms. Moreover, it cannot be denied that to be led by good is freedom, and to be led by evil is slavery; for to be led by good is to be led by the Lord, and to be led by evil is to be led by the devil. Now as everything which a man does from freedom appears to him as his own—for it is of his love, and to act from one's love is to act from freedom—it follows that conjunction with the Lord causes a man to appear to himself free, and therefore his own; and the closer the conjunction with the Lord is, the more free he appears, and thus the more his own. . . The Lord never compels anyone . . . and therefore man is led by the Lord continually in freedom; and is also reformed and regenerated in freedom.

44. The Angels of the Third Heaven . . . call it freedom itself (to be the Lord's); and to be led by self they call slavery. They say the reason is that the Lord does not flow in immediately into the things which are of their perception and thought from wisdom, but into the affections of the love of good, and through the latter into the former; and that they perceive the influx into the affection from which they have their wisdom; and that all they afterwards think from wisdom appears as from themselves, thus as their own; and that by this there is effected reciprocal conjunction.

71. That it is a law of the Divine Providence that man should act from freedom according to reason. Gen.art.

— . That man has freedom to think and will as he pleases, but not freedom to say whatever he thinks, and to do whatever he wants, is known. Therefore the freedom which is here meant is spiritual freedom, and not natural freedom, except when they make one. . . These things have been premised in order that it may be known that by acting from freedom according to reason is meant freely to think and will, and thence freely to speak and do, that which is according to reason.

72. As few know that this can be a law of the Divine Providence, chiefly because thus man has freedom to think what is evil and false, as well as what is good and true . . . we must proceed . . . in the following order.

73. That man has reason and freedom, or rationality and Freedom; and that these two faculties are from the Lord with man. Ex.

—². First it is to be known that all freedom is of love, so much so that love and freedom are one; and as love is the life of man, so is freedom of his life; for all the delight which man has is from his love . . . and to act from the delight of love is to act from freedom; for delight leads a man as a stream does that which is carried along by its current. Now as there are many loves, some concordant and some discordant, it follows that in the same way there are many freedoms. In general, however, there are three freedoms; natural freedom, rational freedom, and spiritual freedom. Every man has natural freedom by inheritance; from it he loves nothing but himself and the world; his first life is nothing else. And as all evils come forth from these two loves, and the evils derived from them also become of the love, it follows that to think and will evils is the man's natural freedom; and when he has confirmed them in himself by reasonings, he does them from freedom according to his reason. So to do them is from his faculty which is called Freedom; and to confirm them is from his faculty which is called rationality. Examp. It is from the Divine Providence of the Lord that the man is allowed so to act, because he has freedom or Freedom. In this freedom is man by nature, because by heredity; and in this freedom are they who have confirmed it in themselves by reasonings from the delight of the love of self and of the world.

[P. 73]. Rational freedom is from the love of reputation for the sake of honour, or for the sake of gain. The delight of this love is to appear in the external form like a moral man; and because the man loves the reputation of this, he does not defraud, commit adultery, take revenge, or blaspheme; and as he makes this a matter of his reason, he also from freedom according to reason does what is sincere, just, chaste, and friendly; indeed, he can from reason speak well in favour of these things. But if his Rational is merely natural, and not at the same time spiritual, this freedom is only external freedom, and not internal freedom, because in spite of all he does not love these goods interiorly, but only exteriorly, for the sake of reputation. . . His freedom . . . derives nothing from the love of the public good; nor does his reason, because this assents to his love. And therefore this rational freedom is interior natural freedom. This freedom, also, of the Divine Providence of the Lord, is left to everyone.

—⁶. Spiritual freedom is from the love of eternal life. No one comes into this love and its delight, except the man who thinks evils to be sins, and who therefore does not will them, and at the same time looks to the Lord. As soon as a man does this, he is in this freedom; for no one is able not to will evils because they are sins, and therefore not to do them, except from a more interior or higher freedom, which is from his more interior or higher love. At first this freedom does not appear to be freedom, but still it is, and afterwards it appears to be so, and then the man acts from freedom itself according to reason itself, in thinking, willing, speaking, and doing what is good and true. This freedom increases as the natural freedom decreases and becomes subservient; and it conjoins itself with the rational freedom, and purifies it. Anyone is able to come into this freedom, provided he is willing to think that there is an eternal life, and that the delight and blessedness of life in time for time are but as a fleeting shadow, compared with the delight and blessedness of life in eternity to eternity; and this a man can think if he is willing, because he has rationality and Freedom; and because the Lord, from whom are these two faculties, continually gives the ability.

74. That whatever a man does from freedom, whether it be of reason or not of reason, provided it is according to his reason, appears to him as his own. Ex.

— . What the rationality is and what the Freedom which are proper to man, cannot be more clearly known than by a comparison of men with beasts; for beasts have no rationality or faculty of understanding, nor any Freedom or faculty of freely willing; and therefore they have no understanding nor will. . . And as they have not these two faculties, they have not thought. . .

75. It is otherwise with man. . . Man is able to be elevated from natural knowledge into spiritual intelligence, and from this into celestial wisdom. . . But this elevation as to affection would not be possible, unless man had, from rationality, the faculty of elevating his understanding, and, from Freedom, that of willing to do so. By means of these two faculties he is able to think within himself about the things which he perceives outside of himself with the senses of his body; and he can also think higher up about the things of which he is thinking lower down. . . From this it is evident that man thinks above his thought, and sees it as it were beneath him. This man has from rationality and from Freedom: from rationality, that he can think higher up; from Freedom, that he wills so to think; for unless he had Freedom so to think, he would not have the will, and therefore not the thought either.

—³. Therefore, they who do not want to understand . . . what moral and spiritual good and truth are. . . make themselves men no further than that from the rationality and Freedom implanted in them they can understand if they will, and also will if they will. It is from these two faculties that man is able to think, and, from thought, to speak. In all other things they are not men, but beasts; and some, from the abuse of these faculties, are worse than beasts.

77. Man's rationality and Freedom are laid bare, appear, regulate, and give perception and ability, in proportion as, for these reasons, he shuns these evils.

78. That whatever a man does from freedom according to his thought, is appropriated to him as belonging to him, and remains. Ex. This is because the proprium of man and his freedom make one. The proprium of man is of his life, and that which a man does from his life he does from freedom. And again, the proprium of man is that which is of his love; for the love is the life of everyone; and that which a man does from his life's love, he does from freedom. The reason man acts from freedom according to his thought, is that everyone thinks about that which is of his life or love; and by thought it is confirmed; and when it is confirmed, he does it from freedom according to his thought; for whatever man does he does from the will by means of the understanding; and freedom is of the will, and thought of the understanding.

—². A man is also able to act from freedom against reason, and also from non-freedom according to reason; but things so done are not appropriated to the man; being merely of his lips or body. . .

79. It is said that what man does from freedom according to his thought remains. Ex.

—². For example; if in his youth a man has. . .

defrauded, blasphemed, taken revenge, committed whoredom; then, as he did these things from freedom according to his thought, he has appropriated them; but if he afterwards repents, shuns them, and regards them as sins which are to be abhorred, and thus, from freedom according to his thought, desists from them, there are then appropriated to him the goods to which those evils are opposite. These goods then constitute the centre, and they remove the evils towards the circumferences, further and further, according to his turning away from and abhorrence of them; but still they cannot be so completely cast out that they may be said to be extirpated . . .

85. The reason man is reformed and regenerated by means of these two faculties, which are called rationality and Freedom, and that without them he cannot be reformed and regenerated, is that by means of rationality he is able to understand and know what evil and good are, and thus what falsity and truth are; and, by means of Freedom, he is able to will that which he understands and knows. But so long as there reigns the delight of the love of evil, he cannot freely will what is good and true, and make them of his reason; and therefore he cannot appropriate them; for . . . the things which a man does from freedom according to his reason are the things which are appropriated to him as belonging to him; and unless they are appropriated to him as belonging to him, the man is not reformed and regenerated. A man first acts from the delight of the love of what is good and true, when the delight of the love of what is evil and false has been removed; for two delights of love which are opposite to each other do not exist at the same time. To act from the delight of love is to act from freedom; and, as the reason favours the love, it is to act from reason too.

86. As all men, both evil and good, have rationality and Freedom, an evil man . . . is able to understand what is true and do what is good, but he cannot do so from freedom according to reason, whereas a good man can; because an evil man is in the delight of the love of evil, and a good man is in the delight of the love of good: and therefore the truth which an evil man understands and the good which he does are not appropriated to him . . . and without appropriation as his there is no reformation and regeneration . . .

87. That by means of these two faculties a man can be reformed and regenerated, so far as he can be led to acknowledge that everything true and good which he thinks and does is from the Lord, and not from himself. Ex. . . From rationality man has the ability to understand; and, from Freedom, the ability to will; both as from himself: but to be able to will good from freedom, and, from that, do it according to reason, is impossible except to a regenerate man. An evil man is able, from freedom, to will only evil, and to do it according to the thought which, by means of confirmations, he makes as of his reason . . .

88². Hence it is evident, that these two faculties, which are called rationality and Freedom, are from the Lord, and not from man; and as they are from the Lord, it follows that man wills nothing whatever from himself, and understands nothing from himself, but only as from himself.

89. As all willing is from love and all understanding from wisdom, it follows that the ability to will is from the Divine love, and the ability to understand from the Divine wisdom . . . and from this it follows that to act from freedom according to reason is from no other Source. Everyone acts according to reason, because freedom, like love, cannot be separated from will. But in man there is an interior will and an exterior will; and he can act according to the exterior and not at the same time according to the interior . . . but still the exterior will is from freedom, because it is from the love of appearing different from what he really is, or from the love of some evil . . . But . . . an evil man cannot, from freedom according to reason . . . do what is good. He can indeed do it, but not from the interior freedom which is his own proper freedom, and from which his exterior freedom derives the quality that it is not good.

92. That the conjunction of the Lord with man, and the reciprocal conjunction of man with the Lord, is effected by means of these two faculties. Ex.

—³. The reciprocity with man is, that the good which, from freedom, he wills and does, and the truth which, from that will, he thinks and speaks according to reason, appear as if they were from him . . . Yes, they appear to man to be as from himself, and as his, just as if they were his; there is no difference . . .

96. That the Lord guards these two faculties in man unimpaired and as sacred, in all the progression of His Divine Providence. Ex. The reasons are, that without these two faculties man would not have understanding and will, and so would not be man; and also that without these two faculties man could not have been conjoined with the Lord, and so could not be reformed and regenerated; and, further, that without these two faculties man would not have immortality and eternal life.

—². That without these two faculties man would not have will and understanding, and so would not be man. Ex. For man has will from no other source than that he is able to will freely as from himself; and to will freely as from himself is from that faculty which is continually given him by the Lord, which is called Freedom. And man has understanding from no other source than that he is able, as from himself, to understand whether a thing is of reason or not; and to understand whether a thing is of reason or not, is from the other faculty which is continually given him by the Lord, which is called rationality. These faculties conjoin themselves together in man, like the will and the understanding . . . and therefore, with the faculty which is called Freedom, there is given the faculty which is called rationality . . .

—⁴. It is evident without confirmation, that unless man had a will from the faculty which is called Freedom, and an understanding from the faculty which is called rationality, he would not be man. Beasts have not these faculties . . .

—⁵. That without these two faculties man could not have been conjoined with the Lord, and so could not be reformed and regenerated. Ex. . . For the Lord resides in these two faculties with men both evil and good, and by means of them He conjoins Himself with every man. Hence it is that an evil man . . . is able to understand ; and hence he has, in potency, the will of good and the understanding of truth : that they are not in act, is owing to the abuse of these faculties.

[P.96.] That the Lord resides with every man in these two faculties, is from the influx of the Lord's will . . . It is this will of the Lord which causes to appear in man as belonging to him that which he thinks, speaks, wills, and does. That the influx of the Lord's will operates this, may be confirmed by many things from the Spiritual World ; for sometimes the Lord so fills an Angel with His Divine, that the Angel does not know that he is not the Lord . . . So, too, can one Spirit be filled by another . . . Moreover, it is known in Heaven, that the Lord operates all things by willing, and that what He wills is done. From these things it is evident that it is by means of these two faculties that the Lord conjoins Himself with man, and causes man to be reciprocally conjoined.

97. That therefore it is of the Divine Providence that man should act from freedom according to reason. To act from freedom according to reason, and to act from Freedom and rationality, is the same thing, and so is to act from the will and the understanding ; but it is one thing to act from freedom according to reason, or from Freedom and rationality, and another to act from real freedom according to real reason, or from real Freedom and rationality ; for even the man who does evil from the love of evil, and confirms it in himself, acts from freedom according to reason ; but still his freedom is not, in itself, freedom, or real freedom ; but it is infernal freedom, which, in itself, is slavery ; and his reason is not, in itself, reason, but it is reason either spurious, false, or apparent through confirmations. But still both are of the Divine Providence ; for if the freedom to will evil, and, through confirmations, to make it as of reason, were taken away from the natural man, his Freedom and rationality would perish, and at the same time his will and understanding, and he could not be withdrawn from evils and reformed ; so also he could not be conjoined with the Lord and live to eternity. Therefore the Lord guards the freedom in man, as man guards the apple of his eye. But still the Lord, through freedom, continually withdraws man from evils ; and, so far as He can through freedom withdraw him from them, so far, through freedom, He implants goods. Thus, successively, in place of infernal freedom, does He implant heavenly freedom.

98. It has been said that every man has the faculty of willing, which is called Freedom, and the faculty of understanding, which is called rationality ; but it is to be carefully remembered that these faculties are as it were implanted in man ; for his human itself is in them. But . . . it is one thing to act from freedom according to reason, and another to act from real freedom according to real reason ; no others act from real freedom according to real reason except those who have suffered themselves to be regenerated by the Lord ; the rest act from freedom according to their thought, which they make a semblance of reason. But still every man, unless born a fool, or excessively stupid, is able to attain real reason, and, through it, real freedom ; for his not attaining it there are many reasons, which will be unfolded in what follows ; I shall only say here who those are with whom real freedom, or real Freedom, together with real reason, or real rationality, cannot exist ; and who those are with whom they can scarcely exist.

—². Real Freedom and rationality cannot exist with fools from birth, nor with fools so made afterwards so long as they remain fools. Neither can real Freedom and rationality exist with those who are born stupid and dull ; nor with any who have become so from the torpor of idleness, or from sickness which has perverted or completely closed the interiors of the mind, or from the love of a beastly life. Neither can real freedom and rationality exist with those in the Christian world who utterly deny the Divine of the Lord and the holiness of the Word, and who have maintained this denial confirmed within them to the end of life . . . Neither can real freedom and rationality exist with those who attribute all things to nature and nothing to the Divine, and who have made this of their faith by reasonings from things that can be seen ; for these are atheists.

—⁵. Real Freedom and rationality can scarcely exist with those who have much confirmed themselves in falsities of religion, because a confirmer of falsity is a denier of the truth ; but they can exist in those who have not confirmed themselves, in whatever religion they may be.

—⁶. Little children and youths cannot come into real Freedom and rationality until they have grown up ; for, with man, the interiors of the mind are successively opened . . .

99. It has been said that real Freedom and rationality cannot exist with those who have denied the Divine of the Lord and the holiness of the Word, nor with those who have confirmed themselves in favour of nature against the Divine, and scarcely with those who have much confirmed themselves in falsities of religion ; but still all these people have not lost the very faculties themselves. (From experience.) From this (experience) I have been fully confirmed that every man has Freedom and rationality ; and that everyone can come into real Freedom and rationality if he shuns evils as sins. But the adult who does not come into real Freedom and rationality in the world, can never come into them after death ; for his state of life then remains to eternity such as it had been in the world.

104^e. That the mind of man is of such a nature (as to possess an exterior thought and an interior thought) is due to the two faculties which he has from the Lord, and which are called Freedom and rationality . . .

123^e. That man cannot be conjoined with the Lord, and thus reformed, regenerated, and saved, unless he is allowed to act from freedom according to reason—for by this man is man—is according to His Divine wisdom ; and whatever is according to the Lord's Divine wisdom is also according to His Divine Providence.

129. See COMPEL.

— For the spirit or mind of man is in the full Freedom of thinking, willing, believing, and loving : it is in this Freedom from influx from the Spiritual World, which does not compel . . . but not from influx from the natural world, which is not received, unless they act as one.

130. Miracles induce faith . . . and this at first so takes possession of the external of man's thought, that it as it were binds and fascinates it. But the man is thereby deprived of his two faculties, which are called rationality and Freedom, and thus of the ability to act from Freedom according to reason; and then the Lord cannot flow in through the internal into the external of his thought, except merely to leave the man to confirm, from his rationality, the thing which has been made of his faith by the miracle.

136³. That the internal so repels compulsion by the external that it averts itself. Ex. The reason is that the internal wants to be in freedom, and loves freedom; for freedom is of the love or life of man; and therefore when freedom feels itself being compelled, it withdraws as it were into itself, and averts itself, and regards compulsion as its enemy . . . That man's internal is of such a nature, is from the law of the Divine Providence that man should act from freedom according to reason.

—⁹. That there exists a forced internal and a free internal. Ex. A forced internal exists with those who are in external worship only . . . for their internal is to think and will that to which their external is being forced . . .

138. That no one is reformed in states not of rationality and not of freedom. Ex. . . Nothing is appropriated to man except that which he does from freedom according to reason. The reason is that freedom is of the will, and reason of the understanding; and when a man acts from freedom according to reason, he then acts from the will through his understanding; and whatever is done in the conjunction of these two, is appropriated.

139. The reason no one is reformed in a state of fear, is that fear takes away freedom and reason, or Freedom and rationality; for love opens the interiors of the mind, but fear closes them . . .

—². Fear can never invade the internal of thought; this is always in freedom, because it is in the love which is of its life; but it can invade the external of thought; and when it does so, the internal of thought is closed; and then the man can no longer act from freedom according to reason, and so cannot be reformed.

—⁴. The fear of infernal penalties does indeed invade the external of thought, but only for a (short time); it is soon restored to its freedom from the internal of thought . . .

—^e. This fear (which exists with those who are in a strong persuasion about their religion from the fear of the loss of dignity and wealth) especially takes away rationality itself and Freedom itself . . .

140. The reason no one is reformed in a state of misfortune, if that is the only time he thinks about God . . . is that it is a forced state; and therefore when he comes into a state of freedom, he returns into his former state . . . It is different with those who, in a free state, had feared God before.

—^e. To think about God only in (states of misfortune) is not from God but from self; for the mind is then as it were imprisoned in the body; thus is not in Freedom, and therefore neither in rationality . . .

141. The reason no one is reformed in a state of sickness of mind, is that sickness of mind (such as melancholy, spurious and false conscience, phantasies of various kinds, griefs of mind from misfortunes, anxieties and mental suffering from a vitiated condition of the body) takes away rationality, and therefore the Freedom of acting according to reason.

142. The reason no one is reformed in a state of bodily disease, is that the reason is not then in a free state; for the state of the mind depends on the state of the body. When the body is sick, the mind is sick by removal from the world; for a mind removed from the world . . . is not in the freedom of reason. Man has the freedom of reason from this, that he is in the middle between Heaven and the world . . .

144. Neither can anyone be reformed in a state of blindness of the understanding . . . for when the understanding is blinded the will is also closed up, and does not do from freedom according to its reason anything except the evil confirmed in the understanding, which is falsity.

145. That it is not contrary to rationality and Freedom to compel one's self. Ex.

—³. As man is man from the internal of his thought . . . it is evident that a man compels himself when he compels the external of his thought . . . and that this is not contrary to rationality and Freedom, but according to them, is evident; for rationality makes the combat and Freedom follows it up; moreover, real Freedom together with rationality resides in the internal man, and from this in the external. When, therefore, the internal conquers . . . real Freedom and real rationality are given to man by the Lord; for the man is then withdrawn by the Lord from infernal freedom, which, in itself, is slavery, and is introduced into heavenly freedom, which, in itself, is real freedom; and consociation with the Angels is given him. That they who are in sins are slaves, and that the Lord makes those free who receive the Truth from Him, through the Word, He Himself teaches in John viii.

147^e. As no one can fight against himself except from a more interior self, and except from the freedom there, it follows that the internal man then fights against the external, and that it does so from freedom, and that it compels the external man to obey it. This, therefore, is to compel one's self; and that this is not contrary to Freedom and rationality, but according to them, is evident.

148. Moreover, every man wants to be free, and to remove from himself non-freedom or slavery. Every youth who is under a master wants to be his own master, and thus free . . . every maiden wants to . . . marry, in order that she may act freely in her own house . . . All those compel themselves who serve of their own accord for the sake of Freedom; and when they compel themselves, they act from freedom according to reason, but from an interior freedom, from which the exterior freedom is regarded as a slave. This has been adduced in order to confirm the statement that to compel one's self is not contrary to rationality and Freedom.

149. One reason why man does not in like manner want to come out of spiritual slavery into spiritual Freedom, is that he does not know what spiritual slavery is, or what spiritual Freedom is. He has not the truths which teach it, and without truths it is believed that spiritual slavery is freedom, and that spiritual freedom is slavery. The second reason is, that the religion of the Christian world has closed up the understanding, and faith alone has sealed it up . . . Thus have the truths been hidden which teach what spiritual Freedom is. The third reason is, that few examine themselves and see their sins; and he who does not see them, and desist from them, is in the freedom of them, which is infernal freedom, and, in itself, slavery; and, from this, to see heavenly freedom, which is real freedom, is like seeing the day in thick darkness . . . Hence it is that it is not known what heavenly freedom is, and that the difference between it and infernal freedom is like the difference between what is alive and what is dead.

[P.] 176. That if man were to perceive and feel the operation of the Divine Providence, he would not act from freedom according to reason . . . It would be the same if he foreknew events. Ex.

—^e. Who does not see that in this case man would not have any freedom? And if he had no freedom, he would have no reason; for everyone thinks from freedom and in freedom; and whatever he does not think from freedom and in freedom, does not appear to him to be from himself, but from some one else.

179. As the foreknowledge of future things takes away the human itself, which is to act from freedom according to reason, man is never permitted to know future things . . . If a man knew (what his lot after death will be), he would no longer think from his interior self . . . but only from his exterior self . . . and this state closes the interiors of his mind, in which there chiefly reside the two faculties of his life, which are Freedom and rationality.

—². Most people, after death, want to know what their lot is to be; but they are told that if they have lived well, their lot will be in Heaven, and if they have lived evilly, in Hell . . . Thus everyone is left to act from freedom according to reason, in the Spiritual World as in the natural world; but as they have acted in this world, so they act in that . . .

183. Therefore, if man manifestly saw or felt this withdrawing . . . he would be angry, and would regard God as an enemy . . . and therefore, in order to prevent man from knowing it he is kept in freedom, from which he knows no otherwise than that he leads himself.

—². The Divine Providence does not take away this evil in a moment . . . but it takes it away so silently and successively that the man does not know anything about it. This is done by allowing the man to act according to the thought which he makes to be of reason; and then by various means, both rational, and civil and moral, the Divine Providence withdraws him, and thus, so far as he can be withdrawn in freedom, he is withdrawn.

184. The same is done with other evils in which man is hereditarily . . . none of which could be removed unless the Freedom to think and will them were left to man, that so he might remove them as of himself . . . Without this Freedom and the Divine Providence together, these evils would be like poison shut in . . .

186. The reason man would run counter to God, and would also deny Him, if he manifestly saw the workings of His Divine Providence, is that he is in the delight of his love; and this delight constitutes his very life; and therefore when man is kept in the delight of his love, he is kept in his freedom, because freedom and this delight make one. . . From this, man knows no otherwise than that he is constantly in his proprium; for freedom makes one with proprium. Hence it is evident that freedom appropriates to man that which the Divine providence introduces; which would not be the case if the Divine providence manifested itself.

204^e. Hell is in the human form, because those who are there . . . possess the two human faculties, which are called Freedom and rationality; although they have abused Freedom to will and do what is evil, and rationality to think and confirm it.

210. Unless man as from his own prudence disposed all things belonging to his employment and life . . . he would divest himself of his two faculties, which are Freedom and rationality, and by which he is distinguished from beasts.

211^e. If man felt this, he would be . . . enraged against God . . . For this reason the Lord by His Divine Providence constantly leads man in freedom; and the freedom appears to him no otherwise than as his proprium: and to lead in freedom that which is opposite to self, is like raising a heavy weight from the earth by screws, owing to the power of which the weight and resistance are not felt; and it is like a man in company with an enemy who intends to murder him, which intention he is not aware of at the time; and a friend leads him away by unknown paths, and afterwards discloses the intention of the enemy.

219^e. It is only from the Lord that man can think, speak, and reason; for he has this ability from the two faculties, which are called Freedom and rationality, and which faculties man has from the Lord alone.

227^e. Everyone has what is truly human from rationality, in being able to see and know, if he is willing, what is true and what is good; and also in being able, from Freedom, to will, think, speak, and do it. . . But this Freedom, together with its rationality, has been destroyed with those who have commingled together in themselves what is good and what is evil; for they cannot, from good, see evil, nor from evil, know good, because they make one; therefore they no longer possess the faculty or power of rationality, and therefore neither do they possess any Freedom.

228^e. It is not so with what they receive . . . in early childhood and youth . . . because at that time they do not receive and acknowledge . . . from any rationality and Freedom, that is, in the understanding from the will . . . Whereas, when a man comes into the use of his rationality and Freedom, which he does successively, as he grows up . . . if he then acknowledges truths and lives according to them, and afterwards denies them, he commingles holy things with profane . . . But if a man is in evil from the time when he has become of his own rationality and Freedom . . . and afterwards acknowledges the truths of faith and lives according to them, provided he then remains in them up to the end of life, he does not commingle them . . .

278. When a man sees this, and knows what sin is, if he implores the Lord's aid, he is able not to will it, to shun it, and afterwards to act contrary to it; if not freely, still by combat he is able to coerce it . . .

281. It is known that man is in full Freedom to think and will, but not in full Freedom to speak and do whatever he thinks and wills . . . He is in full Freedom to think many things which are evil . . . It seems incredible that unless man possessed full Freedom, he not only could not be saved, but would also perish altogether. (This fact ex.)

—³. If man were not allowed to think according to the delights of his life's love . . . he would lose his two faculties, which are called Freedom and rationality, in which consists humanity itself.

—⁴. As, therefore, it is within th Freedom of man to think as he pleases . . .

285. In every man, good or evil, there are two faculties, of which one constitutes the understanding, and the other the will. The faculty which constitutes the understanding is his ability to understand and think, from which this faculty is called rationality; and the faculty which constitutes the will is his ability to do these things freely, that is, to think, and therefore also to speak and do, provided it is not contrary to reason or rationality; for to act freely is to act whenever he wants, and as he wants. As these two faculties are perpetual, and continual from primes to ultimates in each and all things which a man thinks and does, and as they are not in man from himself, but are with him from the Lord, it follows that the presence of the Lord, when in them, is also in the . . . smallest singulars of man's understanding and thought, and also of his will and affection, and therefore in the smallest singulars of his speech and action. Remove these faculties from any singular, however small, and you will not be able to think or speak it as a man . . . Now, as these faculties are with man from the Lord, and are not appropriated to man as belonging to him—for what is Divine cannot be appropriated to man so as to be his, but can be adjoined to him, and thereby appear as his—and as this Divine with man is in his smallest singulars, it follows that the Lord rules the smallest singulars with both an evil man and a good man; and this government of the Lord is what is called the Divine Providence.

294². Everyone wants to be his own, and to be led by himself, and especially to think and will from himself; for this is freedom itself, which appears as the proprium in which every man is; and therefore if he knew that what he thinks and wills flows in from somebody else, he would seem to himself like one who is bound . . .

321³. They who wait for influx . . . do not receive any . . . and never are they instructed what to believe and what to do, and this lest the human Rational and freedom should perish, which are, that everyone should act from freedom according to reason, to all appearance as from himself.

—⁵. The Lord also gives man freedom of choice.

328⁶. The image of God and the likeness of God have not been destroyed with man . . . for they remain implanted in his two faculties, which are called Freedom and rationality.

R. 164^e. That which man does from himself, in freedom, remains to eternity.

224⁹. Who does not see that every man has freedom to think about God, or not to think about Him? . . . thus everyone has freedom in spiritual things equally as in civil and moral things; for the Lord gives this to all continually; and therefore he is guilty if he does not think about Him. B.69.

337. By 'bondmen' are signified those who are in such things from others, thus from memory; by 'freemen' (Rev.vi.15) are signified those who are in such things from themselves, thus from judgment. 604. 832.

875¹². The ability to desist from evil the Lord gives to every man . . . and whatever a man does from will as his own according to understanding as his own, or, what is the same, whatever he does from the freedom which is of his will according to the reason which is of his understanding, remains permanently. By means of this, the Lord induces on a man a state of conjunction with Himself . . .

M. 208³. We have heard from our husbands, that the Lord wills that a male human being should act from freedom according to reason; and that on this account the Lord Himself from within governs his freedom, so far as regards the inclinations and affections; and that He governs it from without by means of his wife . . .

257^e. Hence, whatever relates to this love is felt as free; neither is there any freedom but what is of love: and I have heard from the Angels, that love truly conjugal is most free, because it is the love of loves.

438. Man was created so that he may do whatever he does from freedom according to reason . . . Without these two faculties he would not be man, but a beast . . . and whereas there is no freedom on the one part, unless there is also a like freedom on the other . . . so, unless man had freedom from reason to draw near to evil also . . .

T. 106^e. 'Servants'=those who are not conjoined with the Lord; but 'the free'=those who are conjoined with Him; for the Lord says, 'If the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.'

371². In order that there may be this reciprocal conjunction, there has been given to man free choice; from which he can enter either the way to Heaven or the way to Hell. From this freedom which has been given to man there flows forth his reciprocity, which consists in his ability to conjoin himself either with the Lord or with the devil; but this Freedom . . . will be illustrated in what follows, where free will is to be treated of.

478³. There is also a freedom with beasts, birds, fishes, and insects; but these are carried away by the senses of their bodies . . . Man would not be unlike them, if, with him, the freedom to do were as the freedom to think . . .

491. God has imparted freedom not only to man, but also to every beast, and something analogous to it even to inanimate things, imparting to everything the ability to receive it according to its nature.

[T.] 493. That everything spiritual of the Church which enters in freedom, and which is received from freedom, remains; but not otherwise. Gen.art.

— The reason that remains with man which is received by him from freedom, is that freedom is of his will; and being of his will, it is also of his love. . . That whatever is of the love is free, and that it is also of the will, is understood by everybody, when he says, I will this because I love it . . . Everything which a man loves, and, from love, wills, is free; for whatever proceeds from the love of the internal will is the delight of his life; and as the same is the being of his life, it is also his proprium; which is the reason that that which is received from the freedom of this will remains; because it adds itself to the proprium. The contrary is the case if anything is introduced in non-freedom.

495. All the freedom which is from the Lord is real freedom; but that which is from Hell, and which is from Hell with man, is slavery: but still it cannot but be than that spiritual freedom must appear like slavery to one who is in infernal freedom, because the two freedoms are opposites; nevertheless, all who are in spiritual freedom not only know, but also perceive, that infernal freedom is slavery; and therefore the Angels abhor this freedom as a cadaverous stench; whereas the infernals draw it in as an aromatic odour. It is known from the Word of the Lord, that worship from freedom is truly worship. III.

496. The reason that remains which is received from freedom, is that the will of man adopts and appropriates it to itself; and also because it enters into his love; and the love acknowledges it as its own; and forms itself by it. (Shown by comparison with the action of heat.)

—³. The reason why the freedom of love may be illustrated by the freedom induced by heat, is that love produces heat . . .

—⁴. In such an equilibrium and consequent freedom are all things which are within man: in such freedom does the heart impel its blood equally upwards and downwards; and the mesentery its chyle . . . Equilibrium and freedom, here, are one. There is no substance in the created universe which does not tend to an equilibrium, in order that it may be in freedom.

498. This is the freedom of man, by which, in which, and with which, the Lord is present in man, and is incessantly urgent to be received; but He never puts aside or takes away his freedom; because . . . everything which man does in spiritual things not from freedom, does not remain; and therefore it may be said that this freedom of man is that in which the Lord dwells with him in his soul.

807. The better of the English nation . . . derive this light from the Freedom of speaking and writing, and thereby of thinking; with those who are not in such Freedom, this light is covered up, because it has no outlet.

814. As the Germans are under a despotic government in each dukedom, they are not in the Freedom of speaking and writing like the Dutch and the English; and when the Freedom of speaking and writing is restrained, the Freedom of thinking, that is, of taking a large view of things, is restrained also. Examp. . .

Influx adapts itself to efflux; and so does the understanding . . . adapt itself to the measure of Freedom of uttering . . . the thoughts.

815. From this their state proceeds . . . this, that they keep the spiritual things of the Church inscribed on their memories; and rarely elevate them into the higher understanding . . . thus quite differently from free nations; for these, as to the spiritual things of the Church . . . are like eagles which fly up to any height; whereas nations not free are like swans in a river. Moreover, free nations are like tall stags with lofty horns that range unchecked the plains . . . whereas nations not free are like stags kept in menageries . . . Again, peoples of Freedom are like flying horses . . . whereas peoples not emancipated are like high-bred horses adorned with fine trappings in the stables of kings.

D. 1936. Some can be led by the Lord more easily than others. The reason is that the Lord leaves to everyone his Freedom to think according to his inclination; which Freedom the Lord does not break . . .

1948. On Freedom. I said to Spirits, that he who thinks and does nothing from himself . . . is free; (whereas, he who thinks and does everything from himself) is a slave. This seemed like a paradox to the Spirits, but still it is most true, and is confirmed by the Angels, and by much of my own inward experience.

2365. On the Freedom of man. One law of order in the government of the universe by the Lord is, that Freedom is left to everybody; for without Freedom there is no life, nor any worship; and without Freedom there is no amendment. In the other life, too, there is Freedom, but apparent: everyone is permitted to will, which they suppose to be their own; nor can they make a distinction from the Freedom in the other life; but there is a difference.

2406°. For, in the life of the body they are left much more to themselves than after the life of the body, thus in a more spacious field of Freedom, by which they are led in a roundabout way.

2630. These do not appear to man as necessities; for he seems to himself to think and act from himself; and this in order that he may be led by the things which he loves . . . and be thus bent to what is good . . . this appears to man to be freedom; and therefore it does not appear as any necessity . . .

2965. As to the bounds in which Spirits in the World of Spirits are kept . . . Freedom to act according to their cupidities is given them; but still they are led, so that what they desire is attended with admission, and soon as it were with restriction; and in this way, although they are not aware of it, there flows in from others that which acts in opposition; and so they suppose that they are living their own life, and that they are in Freedom . . .

2971. Spirits do not tolerate others inducing anything . . . for they thus suppose that they are not free; although, if they did not know it, they would want that very thing.

3495. When I was writing about Freedom, that he is free who is led by the Lord, and that he is a slave who supposes that he is led by himself, a Spirit applied himself to my left side, who supposed that he was free because he was speaking from himself. But I was permitted to tell him that he was not speaking from himself, but from others; and, in fact, from such as wanted to murder him if they could; and would it not therefore be better for him to be led by the Lord, who . . . wills well to all?

3786. That he is less free who supposes himself to be free.

— When Spirits speak or think through another Spirit, they infuse their own cupidities and persuasions into him; so that the other Spirit supposes that he is speaking and thinking from himself; for he who thinks and speaks from cupidity and persuasion, supposes that he does so from himself, and in Freedom . . . from which it is evident that he who supposes himself to think and speak from himself, and that when he does so he has Freedom, is then most utterly a slave; and, in the eyes of the other Spirits, is as nothing, scarcely so much as a slave; for in this way they can use him as a mere dead instrument.

3787. But with those who are . . . led by the Lord, the case is totally different. These, too, are permitted to know that nothing is of them, but that everything is of the Lord, through the Angels; and as good affections together with a persuasion of what is true and good are insinuated into them by the Lord, with which at the same time no reflection is given them, it then seems to them to be from themselves; for at the time they know no otherwise; so that they seem to themselves to be in a full state of Freedom. But the moment they begin to claim what is good and true for themselves, the Lord knows it, and reflection is given them, and they are instructed in various ways that it is not from themselves but from the Lord . . . until they are brought back into a state of Truth; and thus again enjoy the most happy Freedom. This is what is called Freedom.

3892. On Freedom. I perceived, and I said to a good Spirit of Mars who was with me, that his Freedom is left to man; and that if he cannot be reformed when he seems to himself to be acting freely, he cannot possibly be reformed by means of miracles . . . because non-freedom or compulsion never insinuates the faith which remains in the other life; and that this is the reason why his freedom is allowed to man; and why, in so far as he is aware, freedom is by no means taken away from him; and that as he is not aware of it—as for instance while his cupidities are being bent by the Lord, unconsciously to him—he still supposes that it is freedom; and therefore faith is inrooted in Freedom . . . And therefore it is false, as many suppose, that the Lord coerces man to what is good, and restrains him from the actuality, and thus from Freedom.

4162. I perceived that man is the cause of evil; as is evident from the fact, that it is an internal law that man should seem to himself to enjoy Freedom; so that nothing takes place against his will . . . Faith is implanted in his Freedom . . . and from this it is evident that as it is an eternal law that man should seem to himself to enjoy Freedom, he himself is the cause of evil.

4386. On Freedom. That in the other life everything appears free, and from self . . . The things which belong to the other life are implanted in freedom, and never in compulsion: external bonds are acquired, and at last these bonds seem to be free.

4569. On freedom. In order that I might know that the life of man consists in freedom, because freedom is of affection, I was once brought into compulsion, namely, that I was acting not from freedom, but under compulsion: this was insinuated into my thought; and then the Angels said that I had no life . . .

4877. Such as . . . believe that deeds effect nothing; but that they are in Christian Liberty . . . are dragons.

5629. In England there is Freedom to speak and write . . . but no Freedom at all to deceive others, etc. . . . whereas the opposite is the case with the Italians; they have almost complete Freedom to deceive, etc. . . but none whatever to speak and write . . .

5797. The reason (a true Christian) is in freedom, that he is led to good so as to be affected with good and truth; and thus he is led by the Lord therein; and is then withdrawn from thinking and willing evil; and not to will evil, but good, is freedom; and this freedom is from the Lord . . . whereas with the evil, to think and do evils is freedom . . .

5934. From this they believed that all could be saved, even they who are in Hell; but I said that they cannot, because they are not in Freedom to think, to will, and to do, thus not in their own life.

6006. On freedom. I heard some Spirits speaking, and I then perceived from the Lord that without freedom there is no reformation; because if he is not in freedom there is no affirmation of the thing in which he is being kept; and thus he has no extension of thought and intelligence; for he then believes that to be true in which he is, and does not see the opposites; in a word, he is not in spiritual equilibrium . . .

D. Min. 4652^e. From this it may also be evident, that man is led by the Lord to foreseen ends by continual necessities, and still he is led by means of his freedom.

4655. On philosophy and freedom.

— These things (terms, definitions, etc.) induce darkness on the mind of man . . . and take away his freedom. Ex.

4692. Spirits were present who supposed that all things are carried on by absolute necessity . . . but they were shown that they all possess freedom; and that if there is freedom there is not necessity; because there are so many contingencies which carry man in freedom to things opposite. Examp.

E. 208¹³. By 'the servants' of the sons of Israel (Ex. xxi.6; Deut. xv.17) were signified those who were in truths and not in good; and by 'the free,' those who were in good and thence in truths.

248². There are two things which are in man's freedom, from the perpetual presence of the Lord, and from His perpetual will to conjoin Himself with him. The first thing which is from this source in the freedom of man, is that he has the opportunity and capacity to think well about Him and about the neighbour . . . The second thing . . . is that he is able to abstain from evils . . .

[E.248]³. From this it is evident that nothing is wanting to enable a man to be reformed if he wills ; for all the means of reformation are left to man in his freedom. But it is to be carefully remembered that this freedom is from the Lord . . . and therefore that the Lord operates these things, if the man, from the freedom which is given to everyone, receives them . . .

349². For man is held in the freedom to choose, that is, to receive what is good and true from the Lord, or to receive what is evil and false from Hell ; in this freedom man is held for the sake of reformation ; for he is held between Heaven and Hell, and therefore in spiritual equilibrium, which is freedom. This freedom itself is not in man, but it is one with the life which flows in.

409. 'Every servant and every freeman' (Rev.vi.15) = the natural man and the spiritual man. . . The reason the spiritual man is meant by 'a freeman,' and the natural man by 'a servant,' is that the spiritual man is led from Heaven by the Lord ; and to be led by the Lord is freedom ; and the natural man is obedient to and serves him . . . With one who is regenerate, however, the natural man is equally as free as the spiritual, because they act as one, like principal and instrumental . . .

—⁹. By these words (in John viii.) is meant that freedom consists in being led by the Lord ; and that slavery consists in being led by Hell. By 'the Truth which makes free' is meant the Divine truth which is from the Lord ; for he who receives it in doctrine and life is free, because he is made spiritual, and is led by the Lord ; and therefore it is also said . . . 'if the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed ;' by 'the Son' is meant the Lord, and also the Truth.

—¹⁰. That to receive Divine truth from the Lord in doctrine and life is to be free, the Lord teaches in John xv.14-16. . . By 'friends,' here, are meant the free, because 'friends' are here opposed to 'servants ;' and that they are not servants, but friends or freemen who receive Divine truth in doctrine and life from the Lord, is taught by these words, 'if ye shall do whatsoever I command you, I no longer call you servants, but friends' . . .

412¹⁰. The Lord is present with each and all . . . and by this presence He gives them the freedom to receive Him, that is, what is true and good from Him ; and therefore if they will it from freedom, they also receive it. The reason it must be from freedom, is that the goods and truths may remain with the man, and be with him as his own ; for what a man does from freedom he does from affection ; for all freedom is of affection . . . and therefore that which is received in freedom . . . enters the will and remains.

701². In order to receive this light and this affection, there is given to man freedom of choice, which, being from the Lord, is the gift of the Lord with man, and is never taken away from him ; for this freedom is of man's affection or love, and therefore it is also of his life. Man, from freedom, is able to think and will what is evil, and also to think and will what is good. In proportion, therefore, as from this freedom . . . he thinks falsities and wills evils . . . he is not conjoined with the Lord ; but in proportion as he thinks truths and wills goods . . . he is conjoined with the Lord . . . He is mistaken who believes that a man can do nothing for his own salvation, because the light to see truths and the affection to do them, and also the freedom to think and will them, are from the Lord, and nothing of them is from man . . .

774⁴. No man has, and no man can have, the freedom to do good from himself ; for man is only a recipient. . . In a word, freedom consists in doing good from the Lord, and slavery in doing good from self.

811¹⁸. By 'the captives' to whom He will 'preach Liberty' (Is.lxi.1) are signified those who are shut out from truths and thus from goods, to whom truths will be opened, and who will thereby be imbued with goods.

820⁷. 'To gird himself, and to walk whither he would' (John xxi.18) = to ponder freely, and to see truths, and to do them ; but 'to stretch forth the hands' = not to be in this freedom ; (for it =) not to have this power, and thus not to have the freedom to think and to see truth.

836. 'Freemen and servants' (Rev.xiii.16) = those who think from themselves and those who think from others. To think from one's self is to see from one's self whether a thing is true or false, and thus to choose the one and reject the other ; these are they who are made spiritual by the Lord, and are thus in the light of Heaven, and see and are led by the Lord ; for freedom consists in thinking and living from the Lord ; and slavery in thinking and living from Hell. That the former are 'free,' Refs. That the Lord by His Divine truth makes freemen, is stated in John (viii.32-36) ; and that the Church, when it is in faith from love, is in a free state ; and when in faith without love, is in a servile state, and that this is meant by the Lord's words in John (xxi.18), see 820.

864. The Lord draws after Him the man who, from freedom, is willing to follow ; for the Lord operates this in him, that the man should follow Him as of himself ; thus He inflows into his freedom ; and this He does for the sake of the reception and the implantation of truth and good in him . . . for everything enters man, and becomes as his own, which he receives from freedom, that is, as from himself.

900³. In temptations, man is kept in his freedom ; from which it appears as though he fought from himself ; nay, in temptations, man has spiritual freedom more strongly than he has out of them, for it is more interior. Unless man fought from this in temptations, he could not become spiritual ; for all freedom is of love ; and therefore the man then fights from the love of truth, and thus from the love of eternal life. Thus, and no otherwise, is the internal opened, and the man regenerated. Sig.

—⁴. It was from His Own power that the Lord glorified His Human . . . which could not possibly have been done if He had not been left in absolute freedom as to the Human.

— . That freedom is that which is of the love and will, and thus of the life of man. Refs.

— . That man must have freedom in order to be capable of being regenerated. Refs.

— That to compel one's self is from freedom, but not to be compelled. Refs.

— That in all temptation there is freedom, but that this freedom is interiorly with man from the Lord, whence it is that he combats and wills to overcome, and not to be overcome, which without freedom he would not do. Refs.

936². Man is set in the middle between Heaven and Hell; from Heaven goods continually flow in, from Hell evils; and as he is in the middle, he is in freedom to think goods or to think evils; this freedom the Lord never takes away from anyone; for it belongs to his life, and is the means of his reformation. In proportion, therefore, as, from this freedom, a man thinks that he will shun evils because they are sins, and supplicates the Lord for aid, the Lord removes them, and gives to the man to desist from them as of himself, and afterwards to shun them. Everyone is able, from natural freedom, to shun these same evils on account of their being contrary to human laws . . . and, in the external form, his life appears exactly like the life of him who shuns these evils on account of their being contrary to the Divine laws, but it is utterly unlike it in the internal form; for the one acts from merely natural freedom, which is from man, but the other from spiritual freedom, which is from the Lord: both act from freedom. When a man is able to shun the same evils from natural freedom, why cannot he shun them from the spiritual freedom, in which he is constantly kept by the Lord?

938². As evils belong to man's life, it follows that, from himself, man cannot possibly desist from them, for that would be from his life to desist from his life; and therefore it has been provided that he is able to desist from them from the Lord; and in order that he may be able to do this, there has been given him the freedom to think that he wills it, and also to supplicate the Lord for aid. The reason he is in freedom, is that he is in the middle between Heaven and Hell, consequently between good and evil . . .

1027². For the sake of this end (reciprocity), the Lord has imparted to man the freedom to will and act as of himself, and such freedom, that when a man is thinking what is true and doing what is good, he knows no otherwise than that it is within himself, and thus from himself. . . But, as this freedom is from the Lord, and continually from Him, man ought to make a complete acknowledgment that to think and understand what is true, and to will and do what is good, is not from himself but from the Lord.

1043². All Angels, Spirits, and men are kept by the Lord in equilibrium between good and evil, and between truth and falsity, in order that they may be in freedom, and may thus be withdrawn from evil to good, and from falsity to truth, easily and as of themselves, although by the Lord . . .

1129³. It is a law of order for man to do what he does from freedom according to reason.

1138³. This law involves the other, which is, That man has freedom; and that it must appear to him as his own; and still that he must acknowledge that it is not his own, but is the Lord's with him. This law follows from the former one because freedom makes one with life; for without freedom man is not able to feel and perceive that life is as in him; from freedom he feels it and perceives it; for, from freedom, everything which life performs appears to man as proprium and his own; for freedom is the power to think, will, speak, and act of himself, in this case, as of himself; and is chiefly of the will, for a man says, I can do that which I will, and I will that which I can do; that is, I am in freedom. Moreover, who is not able to think from freedom that this is good and that that is evil? also that this is true and that that is false? Therefore, freedom has been given to man together with his life, and is never taken away from him; for in the same proportion that it is taken away or diminished, he feels and perceives that it is not he who lives, but another in him; and in the same proportion there is taken away and diminished the delight of all things of his life; for he becomes a slave.

1141². The third law of the Divine Providence is, That, from freedom according to reason, to think and speak what is true, and to will and do what is good, is not from man, but from the Lord; and that, from freedom, to think and speak what is false, and to will and do what is evil, is not from man either, but is from Hell . . . but the freedom itself, regarded in itself; and the faculty itself to think, will, speak, and do, regarded in itself, are from the Lord. Ex.

1145². A man Angel is in freedom . . . when he does what is good from good, and also when he is not doing evil; but a man devil is in freedom . . . when he is doing what is good from evil, and also when he is doing evil.

1148². The reason evil is imputed to man, is that there has been given him, and there is continually being given, to feel and perceive as if life were in him; and, because he is in this state, he is also in the freedom and in the faculty of acting as of himself: this faculty, regarded in itself, and this freedom, regarded in itself, is not taken away from him, because he has been born man, who is to live to eternity: it is from this faculty, and from this freedom, that he is able to receive both good and evil as from himself.

—³. But the principal fallacy into which man falls from this is, that he does not know that his freedom, and the faculty of acting as of himself, are from the influx of life from the Lord into his inmost; and that this influx is not taken away from him because he has been born man, who possesses this inmost . . . Man lives in the middle between Heaven and Hell . . . and he is constantly kept in the sense and perception of life as being from himself; and, by this, he is also constantly kept in the freedom to choose either the one or the other, and in the faculty of receiving either the one or the other . . .

1150². The third law of the Divine Providence is, That the understanding and will cannot be at all coerced, because all coercion takes away freedom from another; but that the man himself must coerce himself; for to coerce himself is from freedom. The freedom of man belongs to his will; from the will it is in the thought of the understanding; and, through this, it is in the speech of the lips, and in the action of the body.

For a man says, when he wills anything from freedom, I will to think this; I will to speak this; and I will to do this. From the freedom of the will, man has also the faculty of thinking, speaking, and acting: the will gives this faculty, because it is free. As freedom belongs to the will of man, it belongs also to his love; nothing else with man makes freedom but the love which is of his will. . . . Hence it is evident that freedom is of the will of man; that it is of his love; and that it is of his life; consequently, that it makes one with his proprium, with his nature, and with his disposition.

[E.] 1151². There is infernal freedom and there is heavenly freedom; infernal freedom is that in which man is born from his parents, and heavenly freedom is that in which man is reformed by the Lord. From infernal freedom man has the will of evil, the love of evil, and the life of evil; but from heavenly freedom man has the will of good, the love of good, and the life of good; for . . . the will, the love, and the life of man make one with his freedom. These freedoms are opposite to each other, but the oppositeness does not appear, except in proportion as a man is in the one and not in the other. But to come from infernal freedom into heavenly freedom is what man cannot do unless he coerces himself: to coerce himself is to resist evil and fight against it as of himself, but still to implore the Lord for aid; thus does man fight from the freedom which is from the Lord interiorly in him, against the freedom which is from Hell exteriorly in him. While he is in the combat, it appears to him that it is not freedom from which he is fighting, but as it were compulsion, because it is contrary to that freedom which is born with him; but still it is freedom, because otherwise he would not be fighting as from himself. But the interior freedom from which he is fighting, and which appears as compulsion, is afterwards felt as freedom; for it becomes as it were involuntary, spontaneous, and as it were innate; comparatively as one who compels his hand to write . . . the hand afterwards does it as it were of its own accord . . . When a man has coerced himself contrary to the infernal freedom, he then sees and perceives that the infernal freedom is slavery, and that the heavenly freedom is real freedom, because from the Lord.

1152³. When a man forces himself away from evils, he then purifies his internal; and when this is purified he does what is good from freedom, and does not force himself to do it; for in the same proportion that a man forces himself away from evil, he comes into heavenly freedom; and from this freedom comes all the good which is really good.

1155⁴. If man could be reformed by miracles and visions, everybody in the world would be reformed; (but) it is a sacred law of the Divine Providence, that the internal freedom should not have the least violence done to it; for, through this, the Lord enters into man, even into Hell, where he is; and, through it, He leads him while there, and, if he is willing to follow, leads him out thence, and introduces him into Heaven, more and more closely to Himself. In this way and in no other is man brought out of infernal freedom, which, regarded in itself is slavery, because it is from Hell, and is brought into heavenly freedom, which is real freedom, and, by degrees, he becomes more free, and at last most free, because from the Lord, who wills that man should not be in the least coerced. Neither does the freedom of man's spirit ever have violence done to it for the sake of this end, that his evil both hereditary and actual may be removed. . . . For miracles and visions persuade and compel to belief, and thus send the thoughts as it were bound to prison; and thus, freedom being taken away, there is no opportunity to remove evils from within. . . . and so the evils remain shut in; and, from their own infernal freedom, which they love, they continually act against those truths and those goods which the miracles and visions have impressed, and at last dissipate them. . . .

1168². In proportion as a man is removed from evils . . . he enters into goods . . . and then . . . his freedom is inverted. . . . His freedom, which before was the freedom to think and to will evil, becomes the freedom to think and to will good, which, in itself, is real freedom. When a man is in this, he then for the first time knows what freedom is, but not before, because from the freedom of evil he had felt the freedom of good as slavery; whereas, now, from the freedom of good he feels the freedom of evil as slavery; as, indeed, in itself, it is.

1174². Through the Societies (which are around his spirit) man, that is, his mind, walks free, although he is bound; and the Lord leads him; nor does he make a step into which and from which he is not led: and He gives continually, that the man does not know otherwise than that he goes from himself, in full Freedom. If the affection is evil, he is carried about through infernal Societies. . . . but still the Lord leads him as it were by the hand, permitting, and withdrawing so far as from freedom he is willing to follow. . . . In this and in no other way can man be led from affection into affection, in freedom, and as from himself. . . .

J. (Post.) 269. They do not tolerate in the city (London) any ruler who . . . commands them what to do: they want to be in full Freedom.

346. To do what is good from obedience is not from freedom, because it is not from affection.

D. Wis. xii. 4³. Men and Angels are nothing but receptacles; although, in the freedom in which they are kept by the Lord, they appear as if they were not receptacles: but still they are so, both the good and the evil; for the freedom in which they are kept is also from the Lord.

Free. See under VOTIVE.

Free Will. Libera arbitrium.

See under CHOOSE.

A. 9591. From these things it may be evident what free will is; namely, that it is to do what is good from the will or from the will-voluntate; and that those are in this freedom who are led by the Lord.

W. 117. Some suppose that Adam was in such freedom or free will, that he was able to love God and be wise from himself; and that this free will was destroyed in his descendants. But this is an error.

R. Pref. V^e. (The Roman Catholic doctrine is) that after the sin of Adam free will was not lost and extinguished. . . .

IXa. (The Reformed doctrine) concerning free will. They make a distinction between the state before the fall, after the fall, after the reception of faith and renovation, and after the resurrection. That since the fall man is entirely incapable of beginning, thinking, understanding, believing, willing, operating or co-operating anything from his own strength in spiritual and Divine things; or of applying or accommodating himself to grace; but that his natural will is only to those things which are contrary to God . . . and therefore in spiritual things man is like a stock; but that still he has the capacity, not active but passive, whereby he can be turned to good by the grace of God. That nevertheless there remains in man since the fall the free will to be able or not to be able to hear the Word of God; and that thus a spark of faith may be kindled in his heart, which embraces the remission of sins for Christ's sake, and imparts consolation. That nevertheless the human will has freedom to perform civil righteousness, and to make choice of such things as are within the province of reason.

M. 437. The equilibrium between these spheres is spiritual equilibrium, because it is between good and evil: from this equilibrium man has free will . . .

B. 6. (The Council of Trent) concerning free will. That free will is by no means destroyed by Adam's sin, although it is debilitated and warped thereby . . . Whoever shall say that the free will of man, when moved and stirred up by God, cannot at all co-operate by concurring with God . . . or that he cannot dissent if he would . . . let him be accursed.

15. Concerning free will, from the Formula Concordiæ. That man has not the smallest degree of ability in spiritual things. . . That still man has a locomotive power by virtue whereof he can . . . attend public worship, and hear the Word; but that in his private thoughts he despises it as a foolish thing; and . . . is worse than a stock, unless the Holy Spirit is efficacious in him. . . That in his conversion man is merely a passive subject, and . . . does not at all co-operate with the Holy Spirit. That since the fall man retains . . . the faculty of knowing natural things, as also free will in some measure to choose natural and civil good . . . T. 464.

28. As regards free will in conversion . . . it appears as if the sentiments (of the Reformers and Roman Catholics) were entirely opposite to each other; but that still they accord together, may be seen if we duly consider and compare the passages transcribed from the Council of Trent, with those from the Formula Concordiæ: for in Christian countries all are baptized, and therefore are in a state of free will, so as to be enabled not only to hear the Word of God, but likewise to assent to it, and embrace it by faith; consequently no one in the Christian world is like a stock.

T. 24². For man has free will to procure for himself Knowledges . . .

69³. Every man, so long as he lives in the world, walks in the middle between Heaven and Hell, and thus is in equilibrium, and so in free will to look upwards to God or downwards to Hell.

74³. God is perpetually present, and continually . . . acts upon man, and also touches his free will; but never does violence to it; for if he were to do violence to man's free will, there would perish the dwelling of man in God, and there would be only that of God in man . . .

110⁶. From this perpetual influx from the Lord it appears to man as though he were active from himself; and because it is so he has free will, which has been given him in order that he may prepare himself to receive the Lord; and thus for conjunction, which is not possible unless it is reciprocal; and it becomes reciprocal when man acts from his freedom, and yet by faith attributes all activity to the Lord.

185⁶. (The preacher in the frigid zone said) From the heap of mysteries I will produce still one more, which is, that man has not a grain of free will in spiritual things; for our primates . . . assert, that in regard to the things which belong to faith and salvation . . . a man has no power to will, think, or understand, nor even to accommodate and apply himself to the reception of them . . .

362². Nevertheless (the things which flow into man from without) are imputed to him as his own, on account of the free will in which are his will and thought . . .

371³. It is to be lamented that the reciprocal conjunction of the Lord and man . . . is unknown in the Christian Church. The reason it is unknown is the hypotheses concerning faith and free will. . . The hypotheses concerning free will are that man has not so much as a grain of free will in spiritual things.

—⁶. The reciprocal conjunction of the Lord and man . . . is a mutual conjunction, not effected by action and reaction, but by co-operations; for the Lord acts, and man receives the action from the Lord, and operates as from himself; yes, from himself from the Lord. This operation of man from the Lord is imputed to him as his own, because he is constantly kept by the Lord in free will. The free will thence resulting is, that man is able to will and that he is able to think from the Lord, that is, from the Word, and also that he is able to will and to think from the devil, that is, contrary to the Lord and the Word. The Lord gives man this freedom, in order that man may conjoin himself reciprocally . . .

429. The benefactions and the obligations of charity are distinguished from each other, as are the things which take place from free will, and those which take place from necessity.

463. On Free Will. Chapter.

465. These are the precepts, tenets, and decrees of the present Church concerning man's free will in spiritual things and in natural things . . . They are adduced in order that the precepts, tenets, and decrees of the New Church on the same subject may more evidently appear . . .

466. That the two trees placed in the garden of Eden, one of life, and the other of the knowledge of good and evil, signify that free will has been given to man in spiritual things. Gen.art.

469. Why did not Jehovah remove that fruit from Adam's reach? . . . My friend, God did not do so, because if He had He would have taken away free will from man ; and yet it is from this that man is man, and not a beast.

[T. 469]^e. (In spite of hereditary evil) everyone is left to his own will.

475. That so long as he lives in the world, man is kept in the middle between Heaven and Hell, and therein in spiritual equilibrium, which is free will. Gen.art.

— The origin of free will is in the Spiritual World, where the mind of man is kept by the Lord.

477. The sole reason why man is kept in (the World of Spirits), and continually in the middle of it, is that he may be in free will in spiritual things . . .

478. This spiritual equilibrium, which is free will, may be illustrated by natural equilibriums. Examps.

479. From the permission of evil, in which is the internal man of everyone, it evidently appears that man has free will in spiritual things. Gen.art.

480. The particular things which prove that man has free will in spiritual things equally as in natural things, are innumerable. Examps.

— Could you think at all without free will? In your speech, in your prayers to God, in your preachings, and in your hearings, does not free will in all these things bear along every iota? In fact, without free will even in the smallest particulars, you would not breathe any more than a statue, for the breathing follows the thought and the derivative speech at every step. I say no more than a statue, and not than a beast, because a beast breathes from natural free will, but a man from free will in natural and at the same time in spiritual things . . .

481. It is not denied that man has free will in natural things ; but man possesses this from his free will in spiritual things ; for the Lord flows in with every man with Divine good and Divine truth from what is higher or more interior . . . and in order to his reception of these things and his acting from them, He gives him ability and will, which He never takes away from anyone. From this it follows that it is the perpetual will of the Lord that man should receive truth and do good, and thus become spiritual . . . but to become spiritual without free will in spiritual things, is (utterly) impossible.

—². One of those who are in Hell . . . was told that he was able to will (truth) ; at which he wondered, and said he was not ; whereupon the Angels inspired his understanding with the glory of reputation . . . on receiving which he willed . . . From this it is evident that man is man from his free will in spiritual things ; and that without it he would be a stock . . .

482. That man would have no free will in civil, moral, and natural things, if he had not any free will in spiritual things, is evident from the fact, that spiritual things, which are called theological, reside in the highest region of the human mind . . . below them are civil, moral, and natural things, which, in man, receive all their life from the spiritual things which are seated above them ; and as life flows in from the highest things from the Lord, and the life of man is the ability freely to think, will, and thence speak and do, it follows that his free will in political and natural things is from this and no other source. From this spiritual freedom man has a perception of what is good and true, and of what is just and right in civil things, which perception is the understanding itself in its essence. Man's free will in spiritual things is comparatively like the air in the lungs . . . It is also like the blood in the heart . . . It is also like a body in motion, which is also carried along while the endeavour is in it . . . So, also, is it with the free will in which is the will of man. Both together, free will and will, in man, may be called living endeavour ; for when will ceases action ceases, and when free will ceases will ceases. If spiritual freedom were taken away from man, it would be like the wheels being taken away from machines, and the sails from windmills and ships. In fact it would be as it is with a man who loses his breath at the moment of death ; for the life of man's spirit consists in his free will in spiritual things. The Angels bemoan themselves when it is merely mentioned that at the present day this free will is denied by many ministers of the Church ; and they call the denial of it raving upon raving.

483. That without free will in spiritual things, the Word would not be of any use, consequently the Church would not be anything. Gen.art. 484.

485. That without free will in spiritual things, man would have nothing by which he could reciprocally conjoin himself with the Lord ; and consequently there would be no imputation, but mere predestination, which is detestable. Gen.art.

489. That without free will in spiritual things, God would be chargeable as the cause of evil, and thus there would be no imputation. Gen.art.

— To prevent man from entering into a participation of merit with the Lord, (the Council of Nice) deprived him of all free will in spiritual things . . . From this have sprung direful heresies, one after the other . . .

—². It may be thought that the free will given to man in spiritual things was the mediate cause of evil ; consequently, that if such free will had not been given to him, man would not have transgressed. But, my friend, pause awhile, and consider, whether any man, to be man, could have been created without free will in spiritual things : if that were taken away from him, he would no longer be man, but only a statue. What is free will but the ability to will and act, and to think and speak to all appearance as of himself ?

490. The reason God did not create evil, because He had endowed man with free will in spiritual things, and that He never inspired any evil into him, is that He is good itself ; and in this God is omnipresent . . .

—^e. From what has been said, it is evident that every man is predestinated to Heaven . . . but that man consigns himself to Hell from the abuse of his free will in spiritual things ; by which he embraces such things as exhale from Hell ; for every man is kept in the midst between Heaven and Hell, in order that he may be in equilibrium between good and evil, and thus in free will in spiritual things.

494². In the highest region of the mind principally resides man's free will in spiritual things ; and from this descends all the freedom which man has in natural things ; and as the origin of it is there, it communicates with all the free wills in natural things . . . But if anyone denies free will in spiritual things . . . he makes for himself another fountain . . . and changes spiritual freedom into merely natural freedom, and at last into infernal freedom . . .

497. That the will and understanding of man are in this free will ; but that the commission of evil, in both worlds . . . is restrained by laws . . . Gen.art.

— . Every man may know that he is in free will in spiritual things, by merely observing his thought . . . If this freedom were taken away from man for a single moment, would not his thought come to a stand . . . And therefore, my friend, if you like, by merely observing your thought, you can reject . . . that absurd and harmful heresy, which, at the present day, has induced a lethargy in Christendom . . .

—². The following are the causes why this free will resides in the will and understanding of man. Enum.

—³. Man is in the middle between Heaven and Hell . . . and hence has free will in spiritual things . . . but so long as man lives in the world, he is as to his spirit in equilibrium between Heaven and the world, and is little aware that in proportion as he recedes from Heaven and accedes to the world, he in the same proportion accedes to Hell. This he is unaware of and yet is not unaware of, to the end that in this also he may be in freedom, and be reformed.

—⁵. All the judgment which man possesses after death depends on the habitual use of his free will in spiritual things.

498. It results that the free will itself in spiritual things resides in all its perfection in the soul of man, and from thence, as a vein into a fountain, it inflows into his mind, into its two parts, which are the will and the understanding ; and through these into the senses of the body, and into the speech and actions. . . It is this freedom of man through which, in which, and with which the Lord is present in man . . .

—^e. All these (evils) can only be removed by the true use of free will in spiritual things, which consists in fixing the thoughts on the state of life after death.

499. Unless there were a certain free will in all created things, both animate and inanimate, there could not be any creation ; for, as to beasts, without free will in natural things, they would have no choice of food . . . nor any procreation or preservation of their offspring . . .

—². Unless there were something analogous to free will in the soil of the earth, in the seed cast into it, and in all things of the tree thence produced, in its fruits, and again in the new seeds, there would not be any plant.

— . If there were not something analogous to free will in every metal, and in every stone both noble and ignoble, there would not be any metal, nor stone, nor even a grain of sand. For all these in freedom absorb the ether, and breathe forth their native exhalations . . .

—^e. Since, therefore, freedom has been implanted in all created subjects, in each one according to its nature, how much rather ought man to be endowed with free will according to his nature, which is to be spiritual. Hence it is that free will in spiritual things has been given to man from the womb to the oldest age at which he arrives in the world, and afterwards to eternity.

500. That if man had not free will in spiritual things, everybody in the whole world could be brought to believe in the Lord in a single day ; but that the reason why this cannot be done is that that which is not received by man from free will does not remain. Gen.art.

— . It is a primary thing of order that man should be an image of God . . . but without free will in spiritual things, by which man is able to turn himself to God, and to reciprocally conjoin himself with Him, it would be in vain . . .

—². If man could have been created without free will in spiritual things, what would have been more easy for the omnipotent God than to bring everybody in the whole world to believe in the Lord ?

501. The reason why miracles do not take place at this day, as before, is that they compel, and take away free will in spiritual things . . .

—³. There is also this especial reason why miracles do not take place at the present day : the Church has taken away from man all free will, by decreeing that he cannot contribute anything whatever towards the reception of faith, towards conversion, or, in general, towards salvation. The man who believes these things becomes more and more natural . . . (and) the higher region of the mind, where free will in spiritual things primarily resides, is closed up . . .

502^e. There is an order in which man has been made, which is, that from free will in spiritual things shall depend his blessing or his curse ; for . . . without free will man could not have been created, nor even a beast, bird, or fish ; but beasts are in natural free will only ; whereas man is in natural free will and at the same time in spiritual free will.

503. A meeting was convened in the Spiritual World to deliberate about man's free will in spiritual things. There were present the learned from all quarters . . . All who were present at that meeting were full of confirmations in favour of the utter impotence of man in spiritual things, and thus were ridiculers of his free will in them.

—². One of them started up and declaimed as follows :—A man has no more free will in spiritual things than Lot's wife had after she was turned into a pillar of salt ; for if he had any more free will than this, he would forsooth, from himself lay claim to the faith of our Church, which is, that God the Father gives that faith gratis . . .

— . After him, another started from his seat, and said, A man has no more free will in spiritual things than a beast . . . for if he possessed it, he would do good of himself . . .

—³. After him, one leapt up from his chair, and raised his voice in the midst, saying, that man has no more free will in spiritual things, even in discerning them, than has an owl in the day time . . . (otherwise) he would believe that he could regenerate and save himself . . .

[T. 503]³. Then, in heat . . . I went on to say, If man had no free will in spiritual things, what would he be but a brute? Is it not by means of this that man is raised above brute beasts? . . . What is more frequently said and commanded in the Word, than that man must love God and his neighbour? and also that he must believe? and that he will receive life and salvation according to his love and belief? Who is there that has not the capacity to understand and do the things which are commanded in the Word and in the decalogue? How could God have prescribed and commanded such things for man, unless the capacity had been given him? . . .

504. I saw two Spirits . . . one of whom loved what is good and true . . . and the other what is evil and false. . . From the tones of their voices and answers I gathered that both of them were able to perceive Truths, to acknowledge them when perceived, thus to think from the understanding, and also to determine intellectual things at pleasure, and voluntary things as they would, and therefore that both were in the same free will as to rational things. I observed further, that from this freedom in their minds there appeared a lucidity extending from the first sight which was that of perception to the last sight which was that of the eye. But when he who loved what is evil and false was left to himself, and was thinking, I noticed that as it were a smoke from Hell ascended, and extinguished the lucidity which was above the memory, and occasioned a thick darkness there, like that of midnight; and also that that smoke, being kindled, burned like a flame, and illuminated the region of the mind which was below the memory, from which he thought enormous falsities from the evils of the love of self. But when the other Spirit, who loved what is good and true, was left to himself, I saw as it were a gentle flame flowing down from Heaven, which illuminated the region of his mind above the memory, and also the region below it even to the eye; and that the light from that flame shone brighter and brighter, in proportion as, from the love of good, he perceived and thought truth. From these sights it was evident to me that every man, both evil and good, possesses spiritual free will; but that Hell sometimes extinguishes it with the evil, and that Heaven exalts and kindles it with the good.

—². After this, I spoke to both of them, and first with him who loved what is evil and false. . . When I mentioned free will, he took fire, and said, Oh what insanity it is to believe that man possesses free will in spiritual things! . . .

—⁴. I afterwards spoke to the other Spirit . . . and when I mentioned free will, he said, What insanity it is to deny free will in spiritual things! . . . Was not freedom given to Adam to eat of the tree of life, and also of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil? And as from his freedom he ate of the latter tree, a smoke from . . . Hell entered his mind, on account of which he was cast out of paradise . . . and still he did not lose free will; for it is written that the way to the tree of life was guarded by a cherub, without which precaution he might still have wanted to eat of it.

—⁵. The Spirit who loved what is evil and false then said . . . God alone is alive and consequently active; and man from himself is dead, and consequently merely passive; how then can such a being . . . take to himself something that is alive and active? To this I replied, Man is an organ of life, and God alone is life; and God infuses His life into the organ and each thing which belongs to it, as the sun infuses its heat into a tree and each thing which belongs to it; and God gives that man should feel this life in himself as his own . . . to the intent that man may live as of himself, according to the laws of order . . . and may thus dispose himself to receive the love of God: nevertheless God with His finger perpetually holds the perpendicular tongue which is over the balance, and governs it; but He never does violence to free will by using compulsion. (Further ex.) Man has free will from this, that he feels the life in himself as his own; and God leaves man so to feel in order that conjunction may take place, which is not possible unless it is reciprocal; and it becomes reciprocal when man acts from freedom altogether as from himself. (Otherwise) man would not have been man, neither would he have had eternal life; for reciprocal conjunction with God causes man to be man and not a beast; and also causes him to live after death to eternity: free will in spiritual things effects this.

516^e. (Mere oral confession of being a sinner) is founded upon this also, that there is no free will in spiritual things.

580³. The Lord with His Divine good and truth is present with every man; from this everyone has his life, and from this he has the faculty to understand and to will, and, with these, free will in spiritual things.

615. That regeneration is not possible without free will in spiritual things. Gen.art.

617. The man who believes regeneration to be possible without any free will in spiritual things, thus without co-operation, becomes as to all the truths of the Church as cold as a stone; or, if he is warm, he is like a fire-brand burning on a hearth, which blazes up from the combustibles it contains, because he blazes up from concupiscences. (His quality shown by comparisons.)

Ad. 43. The free will of Adam.

E. 774⁴. They say, That by the fall of Adam free will, which is the freedom to do good of one's self, was lost. Refuted. J.(Post.)221.

Inv. 6. That miracles close up the internal man, and take away all free will, by which and in which man is regenerated; and free will is properly of the internal man.

26. Man is only an organ of life; and is in the middle between Heaven and Hell; and is thus in equilibrium or free will.

Coro. 27. Adam's having been permitted to eat of every tree of the garden, except the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, = free will in spiritual things; for all things of the garden = spiritual things; for without free will in these things, man could not possibly progress into light, that is, into the truths and goods of the Church, and procure for himself life . . .

28. Without this free will man would not be man, but only a figure and a phantom; for his thought would be devoid of reflection, thus of judgment . . . and his will would be devoid of determination, thus would be no more active to what is just or unjust than a grave stone beneath which lies an inanimate body. That the life of man after dead, and the immortality of the soul, is from the gift of this free will; and that 'the likeness of God' is it, has been confirmed in the work itself.

—². (Without free will in spiritual things) man, that is his mind, would be like a sponge, which absorbs water plentifully, but is not able to empty it out, which causes both the water and the sponge to go bad. . . Moreover, in each and all things of the Church, man would be more blind than a bird of night in the light of day . . .

—^e. Free will in spiritual things is derived from this, that man walks and passes his life in the middle between Heaven and Hell; and that Heaven operates into him from above, but Hell from below; and that the option to turn either to higher or to lower things has been given to man; thus either to the Lord or to the devil.

29². After childhood, the spiritual mind is gradually opened; for there is given to every man from birth the faculty, and afterwards the power, to procure for himself stairs by which he ascends and speaks with the master and mistress, and afterwards descends and carries out their behests: this power is given to him by means of the gift of free will in spiritual things.

Freely. Gratis.

A. 5649. Truth in the exterior Natural appears to be given freely. Sig. and Ex. 5657.

—³. When he reflects, he perceives that (all this knowledge and intelligence) is given him by the Lord through that angelic Society, freely.

—⁴. In the other life, they perceive what is given them freely.

5664^a. They are given him freely by the Lord, every moment . . .

8976. 'In the seventh year he shall go out free for nothing' (Ex.xxi.2)=a state of confirmed truth without his works. . . 'For nothing'=without their works.

—². The same is signified by 'freely' in, 'I will give . . . of the fountain of the water of life freely' (Rev. xxi.6); and in, 'Let him take the water of life freely' (Rev.xxii.17).

9005. 'She shall go out free without money' (Ex.xxi. 11)=alienation therefrom without truth conjoined therewith.

H. 190. The houses in which the Angels dwell . . . are given them by the Lord, freely . . .

266^e. All these things come from the Lord freely; they are clothed freely, they are fed freely, they dwell in houses freely. 393^e. W.334. E.1226². D.Love xii².

R. 889. 'To give freely' (Rev.xxi.6)=from the Lord, and not from any self-derived intelligence of man.

956. 'Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely'=that he who from love is willing to learn truths and appropriate them to himself, will receive them from the Lord without his own works.

E. 328¹⁶. 'To be sold for nought' (Is.lii.3)=to estrange one's self and to renounce falsities from self or from proprium.

840². That they should be given freely by the Lord. Sig.

Freeze. See FROST.

Frenzy. Phrenesis. M.252. T.4.

Frequent. Frequentare.

Frequent. Frequens.

Frequenting. Frequentatio.

A. 831. They had frequented churches. 1094. 1175². R.659^e. D.5792³.

1063^e. Provided he frequents sacred things. D.4854. 4327. By frequent use.

8253. To frequent places of worship. 8762. H.222. Life 25. R.859².

358. To frequent places of amusement.

T. 699². They frequent the Holy Supper from their youth.

D. 1692. Like others, they frequent divine worship.

2777^e. They had frequented a place of worship.

2778. What is the use of the frequenting of preachings, and of the Holy Supper, merely as a ritual?

Friend. Amicus, Amica.

Friendship. Amicitia.

Friendly. Amicus, Amice.

A. 51². The spiritual man . . . is also called 'friend': —'Ye are My friends if ye do whatsoever I command you' (John xv. 14, 15).

1114. Thus not only is it permitted to meet friends after death—who for the most part find each other out—but also others who have been held in esteem.

1125. They who had been of the Church Enos . . . perform offices of friendship to those who come to them; but it was evident that their charity was the charity of friendship.

1158². Islands=those things within the Church which are somewhat remote from charity, as are friendships and civilities: friendship is not charity; still less is civility; but they are a degree below charity: the more, however, that they derive from charity, the more sincere they are.

1517. I smelt a vinous odour, and was informed that it came from those who flatter from friendship, from an allowable love.

1880². It has sometimes happened that some (Spirits and Angels) have seen, through me, the friends which they had had in the life of the body . . .

2184^e. The good of the Natural is the delight which is perceived from charity, or from the friendship which is of charity.

3875². Mutual love differs from friendship in this, that mutual love regards the good which is in a man . . . whereas friendship regards the man; and it, too, is mutual love when it regards a man from good or for the sake of good; but when it does not do so from good or for the sake of good, but for the sake of self which it calls good, then friendship is not mutual love, but approaches the love of self, and in the same proportion it is opposite to mutual love.

[A.] 4054. There are Societies which have no end of use, but merely to be among their male and female friends; in pleasures and in complete self-indulgence . . . the number of the Societies of such Spirits at this day is incredible. The moment they approach, their sphere . . . extinguishes in others the affections of truth and good; and when these affections have been extinguished, the Spirits are in the pleasure of their friendship. They are obstructions of the brain, and induce therein stupidity. A number of Societies of such Spirits have been with me; and their presence was perceived from a dulness, languor, and deprivation of affection. . . They are curses and pests, although in civil life, when they were in the world, they appeared to be good, delightful, polite, and clever; for they are skilled in what is becoming, and in insinuating themselves thereby, especially into friendship. What it is to be a friend to good, or what the friendship of good is, they know not, and do not want to know. A state of sadness awaits them; at last they live in squalor, and in such stupidity, that scarcely anything human, in respect to apprehension, is left them.

4121^e. In the other life . . . the affections appear as in clear day, even the quality of the affection which one has had for another . . . and therefore they who have been discordant in mind are dissociated; and then there is obliterated on both sides all brotherhood and all friendship which had been of the external man, and there remains that which is of the internal man.

4211. 'Brethren'=those who were conjoined in a covenant, that is, in friendship.

4212. 'And they did eat bread,' in the external sense, = . . . friendship.

4327^e. They put on a most friendly expression . . . and yet are the most bitter enemies. D.2856.

4804. There are very many Societies in the other life which are called Societies of friendship, being constituted of those who in the life of the body have preferred the delight of social intercourse to every other delight; and who have loved those with whom they have had social intercourse, without caring whether they were good or evil, provided they were agreeable; thus who have not been friends to what is good or to what is true. They who have been of this character in the life of the body, are of the same character in the other life; they adjoin themselves from the mere agreeableness of social intercourse. A number of such Societies have been with me, but at a distance . . . It was given to notice their presence by a torpor and dulness, and by the deprivation of the delight in which I was . . . for wherever they come they take away the delight from others, and . . . appropriate it to themselves . . . From this it has been given to know what great injury is done to the spiritual life of man by friendship, if the person is regarded and not what is good. Everyone may indeed be friendly to others, but still he must be most friendly to what is good. D.4243, Ex. 4439.

4992^e. To do good to a friend, of whatever quality he may be, if only he is a friend, is natural and not spiritual; but to do good to a friend for the sake of the good in him, and still more to hold good itself as the friend to which one does good, is spiritual natural; and when a man is in this he knows that he transgresses if he does good to a friend who is evil; because then, through him, he does evil to others.

5060. They who lay an ambush by means of friendship and kind offices. Des.

5132^e. There is sometimes an appearance of mercy with the evil who are in no charity, but it is pain on account of what they themselves suffer; for it is shown towards their friends who make one with themselves, and when their friends suffer, they suffer. This mercy is not the mercy of charity, but is the mercy of friendship for the sake of self, which, regarded in itself, is unmercifulness; for it despises or hates all except itself; thus except the friends who make one with itself.

5180^e. The modest Spirits of this province are they who have longed to know the thoughts of men, in order to allure and bind them to themselves . . . The end in view is social intercourse and friendship . . .

5388^e. Flatteries differ according to the ends in view; for if the end is friendship, or the pleasure of social intercourse . . . it is not so evil.

5764. The union and friendship of the infernal Societies is that of robbers.

6667. The love of the neighbour which they appear to have is nothing but the love of self; for . . . in proportion as anyone does not favour them . . . he is rejected; and if he had previously been a friend, he is hated in the same proportion; such things are latent in the love of self; nor do they manifest themselves in the world, but in the other life, where they break forth.

6893^e. In the other life . . . when anyone is thought of intensely, he is presented to view; hence it is that friends meet there; and also enemies.

7363. (In Mars) the inhabitants consociate with such as agree in mind . . . they are then at once friends.

8622^e. In externals they had appeared as . . . friends; and also as Christians as to speech . . . but inwardly they were deceitful tigers.

9104. Conjunction is effected by a state of desiring to speak to another; hence it is that in the other life those meet, who in the world had been in any conjunction either by love or by friendship, or by reverence, when they long for it; but they are afterwards disjoined according to the dissimilitudes of the state of life.

9139^e. 'I will sing to my Beloved a song of my Friend touching his vineyard' (Is.v.1). . . Here the Lord is spoken of, who is 'the Beloved,' and 'the Friend.'

H. 494. As the spirit of a man when recently from the world is of this nature, he is then Known by his friends . . . For Spirits perceive this, not only from his face and speech, but also from the sphere of his life . . . Everyone there, when he is thinking about another, presents to himself his face in thought, and at the same time also a number of things which belong to his life; and when he does this, the other becomes present, as if he had been sent for and summoned. . . Hence it is that all, on their first arrival in the other life, are recognized by their friends, their relatives, and all who had known them in any way; and also that they speak together, and are afterwards consociated according to their friendship in the world. I have frequently heard that those who have come from the world, have rejoiced at seeing their friends again; and that their friends in turn have rejoiced that they had come to them.

574². When a Spirit of his own accord . . . directs his course to his own Hell . . . he is at first received in a friendly manner-amice, and is thus led to believe that he has come among friends. But this lasts only for some hours . . .

Life 69. A new-born child is kept in a state of external innocence; after a little, in a state of external charity; and then in a state of external friendship.

F. 21. Many say, I love him because he loves me and does good to me; but still, to love him merely on this account is not interiorly to love him, unless he is in good, and, from this, he loves his good. The latter is in charity, but the former is in friendship which is not charity. He who from charity loves the neighbour, conjoins himself with his good, and not with his person, except in so far and for so long as he is in good. This is spiritual; and he loves the neighbour spiritually. But he who loves another from friendship alone, conjoins himself with his person, and then at the same time with his evil. After death, the latter can scarcely be separated from the person which is in evil, but the other can.

42. The Angel said . . . Friend, who art thou? 43. T. 391.

43^e. The Angel of Heaven then looked at him, and said, My friend, come with me, and dwell with us.

P. 338⁴. Everyone (there) is his own love, and no one can live with any but those who are in a like love . . . Hence it is that after death everyone comes into the society of his own, who are those who are in a like love, and that he Knows these as his connections and as his friends; and, wonderful to say, when he meets and sees them, it is as if he had Known them from infancy: it is spiritual relationship and friendship which effects this.

R. 875. These two Angels, when they lived in the world, had been conjoined in interior friendship; but now one was in the eastern, and the other in the southern Heaven . . .

914^e. My friend . . . T. 173². 177^e. 484². 489. —². 497. 502². 521. 535². 590^e.

M. 557. From this they have a chaste love of the sex, which, regarded in itself, is interior spiritual friendship . . .

155a². Wives are as it were burning zeals for the preservation of conjugal friendship and confidence . . .

162. The love which is of the spirit, and from the spirit of the body, is insinuated into the souls and minds of married partners together with friendship and confidence; and when these two things conjoin themselves with the first love of marriage, marriage love is the result, which opens their bosoms and inspires into them the sweetnesses of love; and this more and more intimately, in proportion as these two things join themselves to the primitive love; and that love enters into them, and they into it.

164. The virtues which pertain to the moral wisdom of the men are . . . called . . . friendship, etc.

180. That the states of (love truly conjugal) are . . . inmost friendship, etc.

—^e. Innocence and peace belong to the soul; tranquillity to the mind; inmost friendship to the breast; full confidence to the heart . . .

183⁷. These heavenly nuptial sports, in the soul, are not at all perceived by man; but they thence insinuate themselves into the interiors of the mind under the appearance of peace and innocence; into the exteriors of the mind under the appearance of blessedness, happiness, and delight; into the bosom under the appearance of the deliciousness of inmost friendship . . .

214. That with those who are in love truly conjugal, the conjunction of minds increases, and therewith friendship; but that with those who are not in conjugal love, they both decrease. Ex.

—². The reason this conjunction increases in proportion as friendship conjoins itself with love, is that friendship is as it were the face of that love, and is also as it were its garment; for it not only adjoins itself to the love as a garment, but also conjoins itself with it as a face. The love which precedes friendship is similar to the love of the sex, which, after the marriage vow, departs; whereas love conjoined with friendship remains after the marriage vow, and is also rendered stable. It likewise enters more interiorly into the bosom; friendship introducing it, and making it truly conjugal; and then this love makes this its friendship also conjugal; which differs greatly from the friendship of every other love; for it is full. The contrary takes place with those who are not in marriage love . . . With them, the first friendship, which had been insinuated at the time of betrothal, and afterwards during the honeymoon, recedes more and more from the interiors of the mind, and from these it successfully departs at last to the cuticles; and, with those who think of separation, it goes away altogether . . .

216⁴. They who are in love truly conjugal have regard to what is eternal; and if this idea escapes from their inmost thoughts, they are disinclined as to marriage love, however they may not be so as to friendship; for friendship dwells in externals, but marriage love in internals.

231. A company consisting of such as in the world had been judges influenced by friendship and by gifts. Des.

—⁴. If you take away friendship for some one, these judges sit mute like statues. . . They see nothing except what belongs to their friend. . . We in Heaven regard them as monsters, whose heads are constituted of things belonging to friendship . . . and the soles of their feet of those which belong to justice.

248^e. After a tacit agreement between (married partners, one of whom domineers, and the other is a slave), it appears as if marriage love had become friend- ship; but the difference between conjugal and servile friendship in marriages is like that between light and shade . . .

[M.] 271. On the causes of apparent love, friendship, and favour in marriages. Chapter.

—e. As it is out of their power to prevent internal disagreements, it is enough for them, by apparent loves and favours, from conscience to allay the disagreeables which arise: hence, also, friendship is able to return, in which marriage love lies concealed on the part of such, although not on the part of the other.

273³. It frequently happens there, that friends meet after death, and recollect their friendships in the former world; and they then believe that they will consociate in a life of friendship as before; but when this consociation, which is of the external affections only, is perceived in Heaven, a separation takes place according to their internal affections . . .

278. That from this there is apparent love, apparent friendship, and favour between married partners. Ex.

—e. From this . . . external friendship appears like internal friendship.

290. That if favour does not cease with the wife, when faculty ceases with the man, there may exist a friendship resembling conjugal friendship when the parties grow old. Ex.

291. That there are various kinds of apparent love and friendship between married partners, one of whom has been subjugated . . . Ex.

—e. Such (domineering) men have no friendship of love except what is infatuated; and such (domineering) wives are in the friendship of spurious love, from lust.

333. That it is only with one wife that love truly conjugal is possible, consequently friendship, confidence, and potency truly conjugal . . . Ex.

334. As love truly conjugal conjoins the souls and hearts of two persons, it is united also with friendship, and, through this, with confidence, and it makes both conjugal, and so exalts them above other friendships and confidences, that as this love is the love of loves, so also is this friendship the friendship of friendships . . .

355⁶. Hence also love together with its inmost friendship with the wife, and wisdom together with its happiness with the husband, are perennially increasing, and this to eternity. This is the state of the Angels.

T. 446. That the friendship of love, attached to a person irrespective of what he is as to his spirit, is detrimental after death. Gen.art.

—e. By the friendship of love is meant interior friendship, which is of such a nature that it loves not only the external man, but also the internal, and this without any scrutiny of his quality as to the internal or spirit . . . Such friendship is attached by many persons from various causes, and for the sake of various ends. It is distinct from that external friendship which belongs to the person alone, and which exists for the sake of various delights of the body and the senses, and for the sake of various kinds of intercourse, commercial or otherwise. This friendship may be contracted with anyone . . . This is called simply friendship; but the former is called the friendship of love; because friend- ship is natural conjunction, but love is spiritual conjunction.

447. That the friendship of love is detrimental after death, may be evident from the state of Heaven, from the state of Hell, and from the state of the spirit of man, respectively. . . Immediately on his entrance into the Spiritual World . . . a man is for some time being prepared for his own Society . . . and this preparation is effected by the rejection of every love which is not in agreement with his principal love; and therefore one person is separated from another; friend from friend, client from patron, parents from children, and brother from brother; and each is interiorly adjoined to his like . . . At the beginning of this time of preparation they meet, and converse in a friendly way with each other, as they used to do in the world; but by little and little they are separated, which is done insensibly.

448. But they who in the world have attached friendships of love with one another, cannot be separated according to order as others can . . . for they are interiorly attached as to the spirit, and cannot be torn asunder, because they are like branches which are grafted into other branches; and therefore if one as to the interiors is in Heaven, and the other in Hell, they cohere together, much like a sheep tied to a wolf, or a goose to a fox, or a dove to a hawk; and he whose interiors are in Hell inspires his infernal things into him whose interiors are in Heaven; for . . . evils can be inspired into the good, but not goods into the evil . . . The consequence is, that when goods thus cohere with evils, the interiors are closed, and both are thrust down into Hell, where the good man suffers hard things; and at last, after an interval of time, he is taken out, and then first begins to be prepared for Heaven. I have been permitted to see such attachments, chiefly between brothers and relations; also between patrons and clients, and of many with flatterers . . . I have seen them kissing each other, and vowing fidelity to their former friendship; and I have perceived the good then drinking in the delights of the evil, and walking hand in hand, and entering caverns together . . . But after a time I have heard from the good lamentations of fear . . . and from the evil joyful utterances like those of enemies over the spoil; not to mention other sad scenes. I have heard that the good, when taken out, are prepared for Heaven by the means of reformation, but with greater difficulty than others.

449. The case is quite different with those who love what is good in another; thus who love justice, judgment, sincerity, benevolence from charity, especially who love faith and love to the Lord; these persons, as they love the things which are within a man, abstractedly from those which are without him, if they do not observe the same in his person after death, at once recede from friendship; and are associated by the Lord with those who are in like good. It may be said that no one can explore the interiors of the minds of those with whom he is in company and intercourse; but this is not necessary; only let him beware of the friendship of love with anybody indiscriminately. External friendship for the sake of various uses does no harm.

454. That the friendship of love among the evil is intestine hatred towards each other. Gen.art.

455a. Every man who . . . has led a civil moral life . . . and yet has not bridled the concupiscences which reside in the internal man, may believe that his friendship is not of this character; but that it is so, in various degrees with them all who have rejected the faith, and spurned the holy things of the Church . . . I have been given to know for certain by many examples in the Spiritual World. Ex.

D. 2643^e. Thus the one loves to torment the other, even if he is his dearest friend.

2651. It makes no difference that . . . the one is the friend of the other; the one may be in Hell . . . and the other in the interior sphere of good Spirits.

2740. They who in the life of the body have been of such a character, that by interior cunning they could allure to themselves companions and friends, (there become addicted to magical arts).

2771. That relations, friends, and companions find each other in the other life.

2858^e. Such as cannot be perceived not to be a friend, either from the tone of voice, or from what they say, and yet nurse a disposition to injure and destroy. Des.

2891. It is not hatred . . . for the moment they cease . . . they can be friends . . .

2974. In a dream a certain person I had known as a friend seemed to be lying near me . . . Suddenly he wanted to bite me, and suck my blood . . .

3137. Those who . . . simulated friendship together for the sake of agreeable social intercourse . . .

4375. There was one who was known to me . . . who always looked at me as a friend. He was with me for months, and continually thought evil, and studied . . . to torture me . . . I told him that I would perform the works of friendship . . . but this was as nothing . . . Such are the evil in the other life . . .

4439. On the Societies of friendship.

— They live together in a friendly way, thus in the delight of friendship; but not in the delight and blessedness of mutual love. . . Wherever they go they take to themselves the delights of others . . . This, they said, they were not aware of. . . I was informed that such is the delight of friendship, when it is not the delight of mutual love . . .

4524. On friendship and the love of friendship.

— I heard good Spirits saying . . . that friendship is possible, but never any love of friendship, because the love of friendship ties minds together; sometimes dissimilar minds, which causes them much trouble in the other life; besides that the love of friendship cares for nothing unless there are the delights of life, which they abstract from the delights . . . of life of another; and it is such that when wealth and thus delights cease with anyone it is dissolved . . .

—^c. Friendship belongs to civil life; but never the love of friendship.

4582. On the Hell of those who . . . appear outwardly to be . . . friends.

4653. They who have impressed on themselves that faith alone saves . . . are to the right . . . beneath the sole of the foot; in that place are those who form a Society of more interior friendship.

4677. On consociations and friendships in the other life in Heaven.

— When I have had social intercourse with angelic Spirits, I have observed that they appear to me as . . . old friends . . . although I had never seen them before . . .

4716. When a man sees another, he reflects upon all things he has heard about him . . . and he acknowledges him as his friend . . . and forms a friendship from various causes; but not so a Spirit; they acknowledge as friends those who are like themselves; and as acquaintances all those who receive their ideas; but this with great variety; and this whether they had before known them or not.

4731. In the other life, friendships and familiarities are not acquired by keeping company or by social intercourse; but likenesses of minds effect such things; and therefore the moment that anyone appears, he is Known either as a friend or as an enemy from the similitude or the dissimilitude . . .

4793. They do good to them in turn, but from friendship which counterfeits charity.

4796. The reason interior friendship exists with them, is that they think much about their salvation; and that they are saved and not others; this is the source of such friendship among them. 4801.

4856. They who hate and persecute . . . everybody except their friends; and who commit injustice for the sake of their friends; and have no regard for what is just and fair, except from friendship, produce adultery with a sister. (Lars Benzelst.)

5791[‡]. A great part of them ran about wherever they could find delight . . . and thus took away from others the delight of their life, like the Societies of friendship . . .

6110²⁹. The love of inmost friendship such as it is among them; that the inmost of friendship is continuous, and constitutes the delight of heavenly social intercourse.

D. Min. 4716. How the Societies of friendship withdraw the delights from others.

4735. On a Society of friendship.

4763. Their quality was shown, namely that it (the Moravian Church) is a Society of interior friendship; for, like the Societies of friendship, wherever they go, they take away the external delight of life from others . . . so that they are a Society of interior friendship. This they were unwilling to admit; but they were shown incontrovertibly that it is so; for they call all brothers who are within the society, and with them have interior delight of life, but they spurn all others who are without the Society, and call them dead; so that they despise others in comparison with themselves, and so judge others to Hell, and believe themselves alone to be the elect . . . They praise a life of good of those who are within their congregation . . . but this they do, not from charity, but from interior friendship; for friend praises friend, and thinks well concerning him; and this in the degree in which he perceives delight from social intercourse with him. J.(Post.) 295.

[D. Min.] 4810. On the love of friendship. In a dream I saw a virgin . . . with others . . . they had intimate social intercourse . . . She perceived that there was not such love of friendship with me . . . When I awoke . . . I spoke to her about the familiarity of social intercourse and the love of friendship. I said . . . that in the internal form she had either lasciviousness, delight in idleness, or contempt for others; thus that there was not anything of friendship . . . in the internal form. . . . She appeared like an angelic virgin; but was sent among her female friends and her male friends . . . and then what was within came out. She spoke contemptuously and abusively about others, so far as the modesty which is in friendship was relaxed, and she communicated with Societies of adultery and whoredom. She was shown what sort of glory and splendour was theirs who feel friendship for good, with whomsoever it may exist, and that . . . she could not be tolerated there . . .

E. 409¹⁰. 'Ye are My friends if ye do whatsoever I command you' (John xv.14). By 'friends' here are meant those who are free, because 'friends' here are opposed to 'servants.' That they are not servants, but are friends or freemen, who receive Divine truth in doctrine and life from the Lord, is taught by these words, 'If ye do whatsoever I command you, I no longer call you servants, but friends' . . .

661. 'To send gifts'=to be consociated from love and from friendship . . . The wicked enter into friendships . . . in order to inflict injury on the upright; the delight of hatred . . . consociates them; and then they appear as if they were friends at heart, when yet they are enemies.

813³. The temptations which the faithful will then undergo for the sake of truths, are described by 'being delivered up by fathers, brethren, kindred, and friends' (Luke xxi.16) . . . By 'fathers, brethren, kindred, and friends' are meant those who belong to the same Church, but are in evils and falsities.

863¹⁴. 'The virgin after her, her female friends' (Ps. xlv.14)=the spiritual natural affections of truth, which are of service.

D. Love xii³. The delights (of use) are those with friends, etc. . .

Frighten. See DETER.

Frigid. See COLD.

Fringe. Fimbria.

A. 3540. 'For the multitude of thine iniquity are thy skirts uncovered' (Jer. xiii.22) . . . Here, 'skirts'=external truths.

9825^e. 'To enlarge the borders of their robes' (Matt. xxiii.5)=to speak truths in a magnificent style, merely to be heard and regarded by men.

9917. 'Thou shalt make upon the borders thereof' (Ex. xxviii.33)=in the extremes where the Natural is. . . For by 'the robe' is signified the Divine truth in the Spiritual Kingdom in its internal form; and, in general, the Spiritual Kingdom; and by 'the borders,' which are all around below, are signified its extremes; and the extremes of the Spiritual Kingdom are natural things. . . And as the scientifics of truth and good are in the external . . . man, pomegranates were placed in the borders.

—². That 'the borders of the robe'=the extremes where the Natural is. III.

—'. 'His skirts filled the temple' (Is. vi.1) . . . By 'skirts,' here, are signified Divine truths in the ultimates or extremes, such as are the truths of the Word in the sense of the letter; and which are said 'to fill the temple' when they fill the Church. The same is signified by 'the skirts which fill the temple,' as by the smoke and the cloud which fill the tabernacle and also the temple, which are occasionally mentioned in the Word . . . E.220⁵. 253². 285².

—³. By the woman afflicted with an issue of blood being healed, when she touched the hem of the Lord's garment (Matt. ix.20,22); and in general, by as many as touched the border of His garment being healed (Matt. xiv.36; Mark vi.56), there was signified that salvation goes forth from the Divine in its extremes or ultimates; for . . . strength and power are in the ultimates of the good and truth which are from the Divine. E.815⁴.

—'. In Matthew: Jesus said of the Scribes and Pharisees, that they 'do all their works to be seen of men, that they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their robes;' where it is very evident, that 'the borders of the robe'=the external things which are exhibited to the sight; and that 'to enlarge them'=to do works in externals, that they may appear, or be seen.

—⁴. In Jeremiah: 'Jerusalem has sinned a sin, her filthiness is in her skirts' (Lam. i.9). 'Filthiness in the skirts'=in the deeds and words, thus in the extremes; for the extremes derive their essence from the interiors; and therefore when the interiors are unclean, the extremes are also unclean. 9960¹.

—⁵. In Nahum: 'I will uncover thy skirts over thy faces; and I will show the nations thy nakedness' (iii.5). 'To uncover the skirts over the faces'=to remove external things, in order that internal things may appear . . .

—⁶. In Jeremiah: 'For the multitude of thine iniquity are thy skirts uncovered. . . I will lay bare thy skirts over thy faces, that thy shame may be seen' (xiii.22,26) . . . 'To uncover the skirts,' and 'to lay them bare'=to take away external things, which veil and conceal, so that the interiors may be seen; for a man, for the sake of reputation, honour, and gain, learns to put on what is good, honest, and sincere . . .

—^c. From these things it is evident, that by 'the borders of the robe' are signified goods and truths in the ultimates or extremes, which are in the natural world.

9920. 'Upon the borders thereof round about' (Ex. xxviii.33)=in the extremes, where the Natural is, in every direction.

E. 395¹¹. By 'the borders of their robes which they enlarge,' are signified external truths; external truths are those which are in the ultimate sense of the letter;

'the robes'=truths in general; and 'the borders'=their ultimates.

Fringe. Peniculamentum.

A. 9468^r. 'Let the sons of Israel make for themselves a fringe upon the wings of their garments . . . and let them put upon the fringe of the wing a hyacinthine thread' (Num.xv.38). Life 2^e. E.576^r. 1042^e.

T. 378^s. Like those who cover their eyes with a skirt . . .

Frivolous. Frivolus.

M. 526. This is a frivolous word. B.65.

T. 183². Absurd, ludicrous, and frivolous ideas.

5 M. 1. A frivolous opinion.

Frog. Rana.

A. 7265^e. The third degree (of vastation), which is, that they reasoned from falsities against the truths and goods of the Church, is described by the frogs out of the river. 7295^e.

7351. 'I will affect all thy border with frogs' (Ex.viii.2)=reasonings from mere falsities; (for) 'frogs'=reasonings; and that they are from mere falsities is signified by their crawling forth out of the river; and because it is said that all the border should be affected with them . . .

—². That 'frogs'=reasonings from falsities, is evident from . . . 'I saw three unclean Spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet; for they are the Spirits of demons . . .' (Rev.xvi.13,14). That 'frogs'=reasonings from falsities against truths, is evident from everything that is here said . . .

—³. In David: 'He made frogs crawl forth into their land, in the chambers of their kings' (Ps.cv.30). It is said 'in the chambers of their kings,' because there is meant reasoning from falsities against truths.

7352. 'And the river shall make frogs crawl forth' (Ex.viii.3)=reasonings from these falsities; (for) 'the river of Egypt'=falsity; and 'frogs'=reasonings. The reason 'frogs'=reasonings, is that they are in waters, and there make a chattering noise, and croak; and they are also among unclean things. What reasoning from mere falsities is. Examps.

7357. 'And the frogs shall come up both on thee, on thy people, and upon all thy servants' (ver.4)=that reasonings from falsities shall be in each and all things.

7386. 'And the frog came up' (ver.6)=ratiocinations from mere falsities.

7389. 'And (the magicians) made frogs come up upon the land of Egypt' (ver.7)=as to ratiocinations from the natural mind; (for) 'frogs'=ratiocinations from mere falsities.

7392. 'Let Him take away the frogs from me, and from my people' (ver.8)=that they should not be driven to reason from mere falsities. . . . 'Frogs'=ratiocinations from mere falsities.

—². This is why Pharaoh deprecated the evil of the frogs, but not the evil of the blood . . . for by the evil of the frogs is signified infestation by ratiocinations from mere falsities, by which they cannot do harm; whereas by the evil of the blood is signified infestation by falsities from fallacies and appearances . . .

7397. 'To cut off the frogs from thee, and from thy houses' (ver.9)=that the ratiocinations should cease; (for) 'frogs'=ratiocinations from mere falsities.

7398. 'Only in the river shall they remain' (id.)=that they should remain with falsities, where they are. Ex. . . Hence it is that . . . the frogs were gathered into heaps, and that the land stank with them, by which is signified that these reasoning falsities were arranged fascicularly in the Natural, giving rise to what is hideous and revolting.

7402. 'And the frogs shall be removed from thee, and from thy houses, and from thy servants, and from thy people' (ver.11)=that they should not be driven to reason from mere falsities.

7407. 'And the frogs died out of the houses, out of the courts, and out of the fields' (ver.13)=that with them there ceased ratiocinations from mere falsities everywhere in the Natural.

W. 345^e. (That noxious things upon the Earth originate from man, and thus from Hell) may be inferred from the locusts, frogs, and lice in Egypt.

P. 40. The delights of the concupiscences of evil may be compared to the lascivious delights of frogs in ponds . . . The same things as affect frogs . . . also affect those in the Hells who are in the concupiscences of evil.

R. 702. 'Three unclean Spirits like frogs' (Rev.xvi.13)=that there arise mere ratiocinations and cupidities of falsifying truths. . . By 'frogs' are signified ratiocinations from cupidities; because they croak, and are lasciviousnesses. . . The frogs here have the same signification as the frogs of Egypt, because the devastation of the Church with the Egyptians is equally described by the miracles which were performed. . . The reason the frogs were produced from the waters of Egypt, and remained in the river, was that the waters in Egypt, and especially the waters of the river there, signified the falsities of doctrine from which they reasoned.

926^r. Instead of a floor there was a marsh containing a multitude of frogs.

Ad. 2/1955. By 'frogs' are meant unclean Spirits, thus evil men, like the Egyptians . . . as is evident from Rev.xvi. . .

1956. It here treats of unclean Spirits of the lowest sort . . . who rule the lowest parts of man . . . and who excite the cupidities which are properly of the body and blood, and are called the pleasures of the senses . . . properly the various luxuries of the body from the taste. These unclean Spirits . . . are thus called frogs, which are larger insects, of various shapes; and which in like manner once appeared to me, as they went forth . . . I saw them creeping . . . and presently they were gathered together into one; and then they were as it were fire, and they burst asunder with a noise . . . the place was afterwards cleansed. It was in London, in April, 1745. As it were a smoke burst out through the pores; but on the ground there appeared as it were so many crawling worms, in great abundance.

E. 1000. 'Three unclean Spirits like frogs'=ratiocinations from mere falsities against Divine truths. . . This signification of 'frogs' comes not only from their croaking, but also from their abiding in marshy and stinking ponds, by which also are signified infernal falsities; for they who reason from falsities against Divine truths abide in Hells which appear like marshes and fetid ponds; and those who are there, when looked at in the light of Heaven, are like frogs, some of greater size, and some of smaller, according to their elation of mind from a more acute or a grosser ratiocination. . .

—². That 'frogs'=ratiocinations from mere falsities against Divine truths, may appear from the miracle of the frogs in Egypt. . . That by 'the frogs' there, are signified the reasonings of the natural man from falsities against the truths of the spiritual man, is evident from the description of this miracle in Moses. . . 'The frogs' here=the reasonings of the natural man from falsities against Divine truths.

—³. 'The frogs crawling forth on the lands' (Ps. cv.30)=the reasonings of the natural man from falsities.

Frölich. Frolick. D. 5573.

From. Ab.

A. 3267^e. Although in the Church, not of the Church.

3938^s. That which proceeds from Him. . . is not in Him, but is from Him.

From. Ab-apud. A. 7736. 7738.

From. Ex.

E. 1126^e. We cannot say life from itself, because from itself involves an origin. . .

From day to day. Indies.

H. 334^e. Thus are they perfected from day to day.

Front. Anterior.

Front, In. Antrorsum.

A. 1276. In front are those who are of a middle sort.

2744². They hastened in front to the Sirens. . .

2751. In front above before the left eye. . . were adulterers.

2784. There are others in front upwards a little to the right. . . who claim all good from themselves.

3639. See SITUATION.

4050^e. When they hear anything about marriage love, they apply it to whoredoms. . . These appeared in front at some distance to the right.

5035². Evil or infernal Spirits appear in front and at both sides beneath the Earth of Lower Things; but evil or infernal Genii beneath the hinder part. . .

6463^e. When Jacob is thought of, there appears in the World of Spirits a bed in which a man is lying: this appears at a distance above the head towards the front parts on the right.

7800. The Spirits from Jupiter appear in front to the left at some little distance, and this constantly. There, also, is that planet in the idea of Spirits and Angels.

9668^s. In Heaven. . . the east is where the Lord appears as a Sun, which is in front opposite the right eye. . . All in Heaven look to the Lord; for to look in front there, is to look to Him.

H. 142^e. In Heaven the front parts are turned to the common centre, but in the world, the lower parts. . . Moreover, the interiors of the Angels are actually turned in front.

311². The Hell which is in front—anterior—, where are those who are called evil Spirits, is called Satan. 544².

327. The men of the Ancient Church. . . who became idolaters, were in front towards the left. . .

332^e. This Heaven (of infants) appears in front, opposite the forehead. . .

W. 120. In the natural world. . . in front is the north.

—^e. In the Spiritual World, the determination of the quarters. . . is from the east; overagainst-antorsum—this, is the west.

P. 319^s. With (the good, these substances and forms) are spirated forwards; but with the evil backwards; and those which are spirated forwards are turned to the Lord. . .

E. 422⁷. They built their temples so that the front parts, where was the oracle, looked to the east.

Frontlet. Frontale.

A. 1038^s. 'Frontlets between the eyes' (Deut.vi.8; xi.18)=the understanding.

7847. The lintel and the posts have a similar signification to the frontlet and the hands.

8090. 'And for frontlets between the eyes' (Ex.xiii.16)=that it must be perpetually in the understanding. (Compare 8067.)

9936⁴. 'For frontlets' (Deut.vi.8)=for a sign of love to Jehovah God. It is said 'between the eyes,' because the eyes=the intelligence and wisdom which are from that love; and the wisdom from that love is to have God continually before the eyes.

E. 427⁸. Its being said 'for frontlets before the eyes,' was a representative that the Lord looks at Angels and men in the forehead, because from Divine love; and gives to Angels and men to look at Him from intelligence and wisdom; for 'the eyes'=the understanding; for all man's understanding is from his good of love.

Frost. Gelu.

Frosty. Gelidus, Gelatinus.

Congeval, To. Congelare.

A. 3146^e. Man would be like ground bound with frost.

5232^e. The man who is in faith alone. . . is in frost and in darkness; in frost because he is against good. . .

8288. 'The deeps were congealed in the heart of the sea' (Ex.xv.8)=that mere falsities from the evil of the cupidities of the love of self could not possibly emerge; (for) 'to be congealed,' when predicated of those who are in the Hells,=not to be able to emerge.

H. 482. In the light of winter . . . all things are torpid, bound with frost.

M. 510^e. At a distance they appear . . . as frozen substances—gelatina.

T. 185. In the frigid zones there . . . there appear lands bound with frost.

D. 3365². With their intensely frosty persuasion they can kill anyone they meet.

3375^e. They infuse direful persuasions, and kill the ideas of a man or a Spirit, like frost which kills a man's members . . .

3550. Spirits so cold, or rather frosty . . .

E. 991⁴. (With adulterers and adulteresses) in externals there is what is fiery, in internals what is icy.

Froth. Spuma.

A. 3348^e. They call such things feculent froth.

4744². 'Setting the pot empty upon the coals, that . . . the scum thereof may be consumed' (Ezek. xxvii. 11) . . . 'An empty pot' is one in which there is uncleanness and scum, that is, evil and falsity.

8408². 'Woe to the city of bloods, to the pot whose scum is in it, and whose scum hath not gone forth out of it' (Ezek. xxiv. 6). Here, 'the pot' = the city or the people therein in whom is the evil of the profanation of good . . . The evil is the 'scum' from it; the profanation of good is the 'scum' which remains. ('The scum in it' = the external which favours filthy loves; and when this is not removed, truth is defiled. 10105⁴.)

R. 421. They cohere like the concretioned froth of the sea.

T. 30^e. Both brains . . . would go away into froth.

D. 1248. They would be cast out like froth.

E. 391²⁸. 'Her king is as foam upon the faces of the waters' (Hos. x. 7) . . . 'Foam upon the faces of the waters' = what is empty and separate from truths.

403⁶. 'He hath reduced my . . . fig-tree into froth' (Joel i. 12) . . . 'Froth' = where there is no truth within.

556⁴. 'To reduce the fig-tree into froth' = the destruction of natural truths.

Fruit. Fructus.

Fructify. Fructificare.

Fructification. Fructificatio.

Fruitbearing. Fructiferus.

See PRODUCT—genimen.

A. 43. 'Be fruitful and multiply' (Gen. i. 22) . . . Everything which has life in it from the Lord, fructifies and multiplies itself immensely; not so much while man lives in the body, but in the other life amazingly. 'To fructify,' in the Word, is predicated of those things which are of love; and 'to multiply,' of those things which are of faith; and the fruit which is of love has seed, by means of which it multiplies itself so greatly. The blessing of the Lord also signifies in the Word fructification and multiplication, because these come from it.

55. 'Be fruitful and multiply' (ver. 28) . . . As the most ancients called the conjunction of the understanding and will . . . a marriage; whatever of good was produced from that marriage they called fructifications; and whatever of truth, multiplications. III.

—². The fruits thence derived which are of truth, are called 'sons'; and the fruits which are of good, 'daughters,' and this very frequently in the Word.

57. 'The tree in which is fruit' (ver. 29) = the good of faith. 'Fruit' is that which the Lord gives to the celestial man; but 'seed from which is fruit,' is that which He gives to the spiritual man. . . That celestial food is called 'fruit from a tree,' is evident from the following chapter, where the celestial man is treated of.

—². 'Neither shall the fruit thereof be consumed; in its months it shall be reborn . . . and the fruit thereof shall be for meat' (Ezek. xlvii. 12) . . . 'Fruit' = wisdom, which shall be meat for them.

161^e. Unless charity is in an action . . . it cannot be called a work of charity, or a fruit of faith.

198. 'The fruit of the tree of the garden' (Gen. iii. 2) = the good and truth revealed to them by the Most Ancient Church. 'The fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, of which they should not eat' = the good and truth of faith, which they were not to learn from themselves.

199. That 'the fruit of the tree of which they might eat' = the good and truth of faith revealed to them by the Most Ancient Church, or the Knowledges of faith, may be evident from the fact, that it is called 'the fruit of the tree of the garden of which they might eat,' and not, as before, where the celestial man was treated of, 'the tree of the garden.' 'The tree of the garden' . . . = the perception which is of good and truth; which good and truth, being from that source, are here called 'fruit'; which, also, is the signification of 'fruit' many times in the Word.

346. 'Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering to Jehovah' (Gen. iv. 3) . . . 'The fruit of the ground' = the works of faith without charity. 348, III.

348². But that such fruit is no fruit, or that the work is dead, and that both the fruit and root perish. III.

— . . . But the works of charity are living, of which it is said, that they take root downwards, and bear fruit upwards (Is. xxxvii. 31). 'To bear fruit upwards' is from charity. Such fruit is called 'the fruit of excellence' (Is. iv. 2). It is also 'the fruit of salvation' (Is. xlv. 8).

501. The succession of Churches . . . is like that of fruits or their seeds, in that in the midst of them, or in their inmosts, there are as it were fruits of the fruits, or seeds of the seeds, from which all the successive things live in order . . .

627². 'The fruit of his works' (Jer. xxxii. 19) = life from charity.

885. 'Fruit' (Ezek. xlvii. 12; Rev. xxii. 2) = the good of love and of charity. III.

913. 'Let them be fruitful' (Gen. viii. 17) = increasings of good; and 'let them multiply' = increasings of truth. . . . 'To be fruitful,' in the Word, is predicated of goods; and 'to multiply,' of truths. . . . It here treats of the operation of the internal man into the external . . . then for the first time is good fructified, and truth multiplied, when the external man is reduced to . . . obedience . . . The fructification of good, and the multiplication of truth, take place in the external man ; the fructification of good, in his affections ; and the multiplication of truth, in his memory. The external man is here called 'the earth' . . . upon which they fructify and multiply themselves.

[A.]983. 'Befruitful' (Gen. ix. 1) = the goods of charity ; and 'multiply' = the truths of faith, which should now receive increasings. Ill. 1015.

1015. 'This fructification and multiplication' (ver. 7) are predicated of the goods and truths in the interior man . . . The reason fructification and multiplication are predicated of the interior man, or of the Rational, is that the operation of the internal man is not felt in the interior man, except in a very general way.

1069. In the Word, Churches are described by gardens, and also by the trees of a garden . . . and this from the fruits, which = the things of love and charity ; and therefore it is said that a man is Known by his fruit.

— (Thus) the Celestial Church is described by a paradisaical garden . . . and by the trees of the garden are signified the perceptions of that Church ; and by the fruits, the goods of every kind which are of love. But the Ancient Church, being spiritual, is described by a vineyard, from its fruits, which are grapes, which represent and signify the works of charity. Ill.

1488^r. 'The fruit of justice' (Amos vi. 12) = goods, which are 'turned into wormwood.'

1809. 'If thou be able to number (the stars)' (Gen. xv. 5) = the fructification of love, and the multiplication of faith ; or, what is the same, the fructification of good and the multiplication of truth . . . because they cannot number them.

1861¹⁰. 'Every tree that maketh not good fruit is cut down, and cast into the fire' (Matt. iii. 10 ; Luke iii. 9). By 'good fruit' is meant charity ; and he who deprives himself of this cuts himself down, and casts himself into such fire.

1873. (Some Spirits thus illustrated the internal sense of the Word by the fruits of faith.) It was said that good works are the fruits of faith in the sense of the letter ; but that these works are inanimate unless they proceed from charity, and therefore the fruit of faith in the next interior sense is charity ; but as charity . . . ought to proceed from love to the Lord, this is the fruit of faith in the internal sense ; and as all love is from the Lord, it is the Lord Himself.

1940. 'In multiplying I will multiply thy seed' (Gen. xvi. 10) = the fructification of the rational man when he submits himself to the authority of the interior man adjoined to good. . . Here, by 'multiplying seed' is signified the fructification of the celestial things of love in the Rational when the Rational submits itself to interior or Divine truth. 'Multiplication' is predicated of truths, and 'fructification' of goods ; but as the Lord is here treated of, by 'multiplication' is signified fructification, because every truth in His Rational was made good, thus Divine.

—². How the case is with the multiplication and fructification in man in his Rational. Ex.

1997. 'I will multiply thee very exceedingly' (Gen. xvii. 2) = the fructification of the affection of truth to infinity. 'To multiply' is predicated of truth ; but because it is here predicated of the Lord it = the fructification of truth from good to infinity.

2013. 'I will make thee fruitful very exceedingly' (ver. 6) = the fructification of good to infinity. 'To fructify' is predicated of good.

2039^r. 'Fruits' represent and signify charity, as may be evident from many passages in the Word.

2088. 'I will bless him, and I will make him to be fruitful, and I will make him to be multiplied, very exceedingly' (ver. 20) = that they shall be imbued and gifted immensely with the goods of faith and with the derivative truths ; (for) 'to be blessed' = to be gifted with all goods . . . 'to be fructified' = the goods of faith with which they are gifted ; and 'to be multiplied' = the derivative truths.

2336^r. 'The twelve fruits' (Rev. xxii. 2) = what are called the fruits of faith ; for 'twelve' = all things of faith. (= all things of charity. 3272^r.)

2349^r. The things which are of charity are also called the fruits of faith.

2455^r. 'A land of fruit into saltness' (Ps. cvii. 34) = the vastation of good in truth.

2468^r. They are not unlike fruits which in outward form are not unbeautiful, but which within are mouldy or rotten.

2657^r. The first Rational is at first like unripe fruit, which successively ripens, until the seeds are formed in it, and then . . . it begins to separate itself from the tree . . . But the second Rational . . . is like the same fruit in good ground, in which the things which encompass the seeds rot away, and the seeds thrust themselves out . . . until at last there are new fruits.

2679^r. They are like fruits as yet unripe.

2722. The spiritual things derived from (the celestial ones) were represented by fruitbearing and leafy things.

2846. 'In blessing I will bless thee' (Gen. xxii. 17) = fructification from the affection of truth. . . Fructification is here spoken of, because it is predicated of affection ; but multiplication, of the truths thence derived.

3146^r. Unless faith or truth is coupled with good in the Rational . . . there is nothing of fruit from it ; for everything that is called the fruit of faith is the fruit of the good which is of love and charity through the truth which is of faith.

3186. 'Thou our sister be for thousands of my riads' (Gen. xxiv. 60) = the fructification of the affection of truth to infinity. . . With man the case is this : goods are not fructified, nor are truths multiplied with him, until the conjunction of truth and good has been effected in his Rational, that is, until he is regenerate ; for then the fruits or offspring come forth from a lawful or heavenly marriage, which is that of good and truth . . .

3207^r. The goods of life appear to man as the fruits of faith, but they are the fruits of charity.

3416^r. They who attend (to what the Lord has said about love and charity) call those things the fruits of faith, which they thus distinguish, may separate, from charity.

3427³. They set that which is behind before ; for they lay it down that faith is the essential of the Church, and that the things which are of love to the Lord and of love towards the neighbour are the fruits of faith ; when yet the fact is, that if love to the Lord is compared to the tree of life in the paradise of Eden, charity and its works are the fruits from it, whereas faith and all things of faith are only the leaves. Since, therefore, they thus invert the Word, and deduce the fruits not from the tree but from the leaves, it is no wonder that they deny the internal sense of the Word . . .

3435. 'We shall be fruitful in the land' (Gen.xxvi. 22)=increasings of good thence. 'To be fructified'=increasings of good. 'That to be fructified' is predicated of good ; and 'to be multiplied,' of truth. Refs.

3470². This is like as it is with fruits, which are first filled with bitter juice, before they can receive sweet juice ; that bitter juice, which is not genuine, is the means of introducing the sweet . . .

3578. 'Which Jehovah hath blessed' (Gen.xxvii.27)=which is multiplied and fructified from the Divine.

3579. With the multiplication of truth and the fructification of good, the case is this. (See GOOD, here.)

—². 'The vine shall give her fruit' (Zech.viii.12)=that the Spiritual of the Church or the truth of faith shall give good.

3610³. In every tree and in every plant there lies inmost concealed the endeavour to produce fruits or seeds ; but this endeavour cannot manifest itself until it has first produced all the means, namely, twigs, leaves, and flowers.

3668. 'And make thee to be fruitful, and multiply thee' (Gen.xxviii.3)=the goods and truths thence derived. 'To be fructified' is predicated of good ; and 'to be multiplied,' of truth. Refs.

3671. Since the Natural is as ground, good and truth can be fructified and multiplied in the Rational . . .

—². The very scientifics and works are as ground ; and when man is affected with the scientifics which confirm good and truth, and still more when he perceives delight in acting them out, the seeds are there as in their ground, and grow ; thus good is fructified, and truth is multiplied . . . The case is different when a man understands good and truth . . . but still does not love to know them, and still less to do them ; then good cannot be fructified nor truth multiplied in the Rational.

3814. 'Yielding its fruit every month' (Rev.xxii.2)=a state ever new as to the reception and the consequent exercise of good.

3834^e. Just as a tree is known by its fruit.

3858¹. That love is the essential and the chief of all things in the Lord's Kingdom, and that from it is all fructification. Sig.

3903. After this conjunction there is described the fructification and multiplication of truth and good, which is signified by the flock which Jacob acquired by means of the flock of Laban. 3971².

3911. 'Who withholdeth from thee the fruit of the womb' (Gen.xxx.2)=that this must be from the Internal.

. . . For, in the internal sense, 'the fruit of the womb' has the same signification as birth ; namely, the acknowledgment of truth and good in faith and act ; and still more, the conjunction of truth and good therefrom.

3934^e. What are the works of faith, which also, from the appearance, may be called its fruits ; and what are the works of charity . . . shall be fully explained elsewhere.

3942. With the ancients who belonged to the Church, all fruits and flowers were significative . . .

3969. 'She called his name Joseph, saying, Let Jehovah add to me another son'= . . . in the external sense salvation, and fructification and multiplication.

3971². For after a conjunction has been effected of the interior man with the external . . . there takes place the fructification of good and the multiplication of truth . . . Hence, too, it is, that by 'Joseph,' in the external sense, is signified fructification and multiplication. Fructification is predicated of good, and multiplication of truths. Refs.

3982. This good . . . is like what is immature in new fruits, by which the juice is introduced, and which, when it has served its purpose, withers away, and the fruits ripen by means of other fibres, and at last by the fibres of genuine juice.

3987. That now his own good shall from this be fructified. Sig. . . That 'to do for this house'=good being fructified from this, is evident from the fact, that it now treats of the fructification of good and the multiplication of truth ; for by Joseph who was last born this fructification is signified, and by the flock which Jacob acquired by the flock of Laban . . . this signification is described.

—^e. From this it may be evident, that good cannot be fructified with anyone, unless the doing of good is conjoined with the willing of good, and the teaching of good with the thinking of good ; that is, unless the external man is conjoined with the internal.

3995². Hence it is that so many . . . say, that the goods of charity are the fruits of faith ; for so it appears at the beginning of regeneration.

4180³. If man is like spring or summer, he receives the good which is of love and charity, and produces fruits ; whereas if a man is like autumn and winter, he does not receive the good which is of love and charity, and therefore does not produce fruits ; but still he can receive light . . .

4259. Fructification and multiplication then. Sig. . . Fructification is predicated of the good which is of charity, and multiplication of the truth which is of faith. Refs.

4573. 'To be fruitful and multiply' (Gen.xxxv.11)=good and derivative truth Divine. 'To be fructified' is predicated of good ; and 'to be multiplied,' of truth. Refs.

4663². See FAITH ALONE (on the fruits of faith). 8311.

4683. They preach . . . at last . . . faith alone . . . and then they no longer call works the works of charity, but of faith, and name them the fruits of faith . . . But as they know from the Word . . . that faith is nothing without fruits, they make saving faith to consist in confidence, in order thus to get away from fruits . . .

[A.] 4689^e. From this it is evident that at this day . . . the fruits which they adjoin to faith are only in doctrine, and not at all in their minds.

5115². Like a tree (the man who is being reborn) produces leaves, then the flower, and finally the fruit; for he produces such things as are of intelligence . . . then such things as are of wisdom . . . and finally such things as are of life, namely, the goods of love and of charity in act, which in the Word are signified by 'fruits.' Such is the representative likeness between a fruitbearing tree and a man who is being regenerated.

5116. The germination and fructification of a tree represent . . . the rebirth of man . . . The fructification represents the third state, which is the state of regeneration itself. Hence it is that . . . the fruits signify the things which are of life, or the works of charity, inasmuch as these follow, and constitute the state of regeneration itself.

5117. In the regeneration all truth tends to conjunction with good. Before this, truth does not receive life, and therefore is not fructified. This is represented in the fruits of trees when they are ripening. In unripe fruits, which are here 'the clusters,' is represented the state when truth as yet predominates; but in the ripe fruits, which are here 'the grapes,' is represented the state when good has the predominance . . .

—⁷. 'To make clusters, and eat the fruit thereof' (Amos ix. 14)=to appropriate the goods thence derived.

—¹². As (in these passages) it treats of charity towards the neighbour, it is said that they should be 'Known from their fruits,' which are the goods of charity.

5144¹. 'The first-fruits of the fruit of the earth' (Deut. xxvi. 2)=the goods which are thence derived.

5351³. Charity and its works they indeed call the fruits of faith; but who believes that the fruits conduce at all to salvation when it is believed that man is saved by faith at the last hour of his life . . .

5355. 'Because God hath made me to be fruitful' (Gen. xli. 52)=the consequent multiplication of truth from good. 'To make to be fruitful'=multiplication, namely, of truth from good; for 'fructification' is predicated of good, and 'multiplication' of truth. Refs. Therefore Ephraim was named from fructification . . .

5365². In the earlier times of man's regeneration, truth is multiplied, but good not so much . . . In this state . . . also, according to the influx of good into the Natural, there takes place the conjunction of truth with good; but still no fructification takes place from this conjunction. But when the man has been regenerated, good increases . . . and procures truth with which it may be conjoined; hence the conjunction of good with truth. When this takes place, then is truth fructified from good, and good from truth.

5376⁴. Regeneration (is here signified) by 'to give a branch, and to bear fruit' (Ezek. xxxvi. 8).

5527. That thus truths from good shall be fructified. Sig. . . For when conjunction has been effected by the medium—which is Benjamin—of the external man . . . with the internal . . . or, what is the same thing, when man has been regenerated, then truths are continually being fructified from good; for he who is in good is in the faculty of clearly seeing the truths which flow from general things . . . Such a faculty is there in good, and such a consequent fructification. Des.

5622. The reason these 'nuts' have such a signification, is that they are fruits; and 'fruits,' in the Word, =works; the fruits of useful trees, good works; or, what is the same, the goods of life . . . —².

6091. 'To bless' = many things . . . as, fructification from the affection of truth . . . here, a solemn wish . . . for conjunction, and thus for fructification; for fructification follows from conjunction; because when conjunction has been effected, good increases and truth is multiplied . . .

6172. 'They made themselves fruitful, and multiplied exceedingly' (Gen. xlvii. 27)=the derivative goods of charity and truths of faith. 'To fructify themselves' = to produce the goods which are of charity . . . For 'to be fructified' is said from fruits, which in the internal sense = the works of charity; and 'to be multiplied' is said from a multitude, which in the internal sense is predicated of the truths of faith . . .

6231. 'And He said unto me, Behold I make thee to be fruitful-fructificans—and to be multiplied' (Gen. xlviii. 4)=vivification through the good of charity and the truth of faith. (For 'to be fructified' is predicated of the good of charity; and 'to be multiplied,' of the truths of faith. Refs.)

6256². Hence, too, it is, that (the spiritual) call the goods of charity the fruits of faith; and yet those are but little solicitous about fruits who assert that faith alone saves without good works, and this at the last hour . . .

6417. 'Joseph is the son of a fruitful one—focundae' (Gen. xlix. 22)=the Spiritual Church. (For 'Joseph' . . . in the external sense, = fructification and multiplication; and as 'Joseph' = the fructification of good and the multiplication of truth, he is called 'the son of a fruitful one.')

6418. 'The son of a fruitful one—focundae—upon a fountain' (id.) = fructification from truth from the Word. . . 'A fruitful one' = fructification from truth.

—^e. They who are of the Lord's Spiritual Church . . . from truth from the Word learn to know what good is, and thus through truth are initiated into good. This is the source of the fructification in their case, which is signified by 'a fruitful one.'

6430. 'Blessings' = the multiplication of truth and the fructification of good; for, in the spiritual sense, blessing is nothing else.

6502^e. 'Fruits, which are for food' = the goods of love. Refs. 9031⁴.

6634. In this first chapter (of Exodus) it treats of the state of the established Church, when good . . . is being fructified by the multiplication of the truths of faith.

6647. 'The sons of Israel became fruitful and productive' (Ex. i. 7)=that the truths of the Church increased as to good. . . 'To be fructified' = to increase as to good. Refs.

6804¹⁰. 'To make them fruitful and multiply them' (Lev.xxvi.9)=to gift with charity and faith . . .

7093³. 'The fruit of a tree of honour,' etc. (Lev. xxiii.40)=joy from good and truth from the inmost of man to his external; the good of love, which is inmost, is signified by 'the fruit of a tree of honour.'

7127². They indeed say that the works of charity are the fruits of faith, but still they make them of no account, and persuade people that man is saved by faith alone . . . thus by faith without its fruits . . .

7484. (The inhabitants of Mars) said that they live on the fruits of trees, especially on a certain round fruit, which grows on their Earth . . .

7690. 'The locusts ate) all the fruit of the tree' (Ex.x.15)=everything which is cognitive of good; (for) 'fruit'=the works of faith or of charity, thus goods; whence 'to fructify' is predicated of good. . . The reason 'fruits'=the works of charity, thus goods, is that the first of a tree is the fruit containing the seed, and its last is the fruit containing the seed, and its intermediates are the branches or leaves. The case is the same with the good of love and the truth of faith . . . That 'fruits'=goods. Ill.

7966^e. This is presented representatively in the Spiritual World as a tree with leaves and fruits; the leaves there are truths; the fruits are the goods of truth; the seeds are the goods themselves from which all the rest are derived.

8326. Therefore man, in the Word, is compared to a tree . . . the truths of faith with him are compared to leaves, and the goods of charity to fruits; and the seeds from which come new trees, to the truths which are from good . . .

8369. 'The fruit of a tree of honour'=celestial good.

8505. Man is called a field from this, that he receives the truths of faith, which are seeds; and produces the fruits of seeds, which are goods.

8603². The derivations and successions therefrom . . . may be presented to the idea from fruits; as citrons, apples, and the like; the most external things are the skins which encompass them; the interior things are the pulp; the still more interior things are the seeds, which are encompassed with . . . membranes, beneath which is the interior pulp, containing the first form, as a soul; from which again come new trees and new fruits . . .

8956. (The inhabitants of Saturn) live on fruits and pulse of various kinds . . .

9258². With the good which lies inwardly concealed in . . . truths . . . the case is as it is with the prolific germ in the seed of a fruit. While the fruit is being formed, all its fibres look towards the prolific germ of the seed, which they nourish and form by the percolating sap; but after it has been formed, the fibres retreat, and carry the sap away from the seed. In consequence of this, the pulp of the fruit splits open and rots, and then serves the prolific germ as soil. . . The prolific germ in plants corresponds in man to good; the seed itself corresponds to internal things; and the pulp of the fruit around the seed corresponds to external things. When the internal of man is being . . . regenerated, the scientific and truths which belong to the external man are like the fibres of the fruit, through which the sap is carried to the internal; afterwards, when the man has been regenerated, these things are also separated, and serve as soil. . . All things are thus made new, and are afterwards multiplied and fructified to eternity.

—³. Falsities in which there is evil . . . are like trees bearing evil fruits, which must be rooted up and cast into the fire. Ill.

—^e. From this it is evident that all good which is to bear any fruit must be from the Lord . . .

9294. 'Harvest'=the fructification of truth, thus its implantation in good.

9296⁴. Such are the things which . . . were represented by this feast, which was called the feast of the ingathering of the fruits of the earth . . .

—⁵. By 'the fruit of the earth' (Lev.xxiii.39) which was then gathered in, is signified the good of charity. Refs.

—⁶. By 'the fruit of a tree of honour' which they were to take on the first day (ver.40), was signified festivity and joy on account of good implanted.

9337. 'Until thou be fruitful' (Ex.xxiii.30)=according to the increase of the good. . . In the Word passim a man is likened to a tree, and the truths of his faith are then signified by leaves, and the goods of love by fruits; from which it is evident not only that to be fructified=an increase of good, but also that the chief thing with man is good, as fruit is the chief thing of a tree. The leaves are indeed brought forth first, yet for the sake of the fruit as the end . . . Ill.

—^e. From this it is evident that the fruit of faith, as it is called, is the primary thing of faith; and that faith without fruit, that is, without the good of life, is only a leaf; and thus that a man . . . when he abounds with leaves without fruit, is the fig-tree which withers away, and is cut down.

9666². The case herein is the same as with fruits; inmost in them are the seeds; on the outside of these is the pulp; and the seeds are in a more perfect state than the pulp which is outside . . .

10161. (The Spirits of the Second Earth) said that in their Earth they have . . . forests full of fruitbearing trees . . . and that they live . . . on the flesh of fishes, and besides on the fruits from trees, and pulse.

10185². The fruits are the ultimate ends for the sake of which the prior things existed, and to which they all look . . . and the fruit corresponds to good itself, which, in so far as it ripens like fruit, puts itself forth into works. Hence it is that 'fruits,' in the Word,=the works of charity.

10835. (The Spirits of the Sixth Earth) said that in that Earth they live on fruits and pulse.

H. 176². On the trees (in Heaven) there are fruits according to the good of love in which are the intelligent. . . Fruitbearing trees correspond to intelligence and wisdom.

185. In some places the leaves were as of silver, and the fruits as of gold.

520². The four ways which lead to the Celestial Kingdom appear adorned with olives and fruitbearing trees of various kinds . . . and this because olives and fruits correspond to the affection of good and its uses.

S. 66. Out of the ground . . . a tree extracts . . . a purer juice for the pulp of the fruits; and the purest for the seeds within the fruits.

Life 17. 'He that abideth in Me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit' (John xv. 5)=that all good is from the Lord; 'fruit'=good.

46². (The faith of an evil man) is like a tree abounding with leaves, and yielding no fruits . . . 'Fruit'=the good of love.

F. 17^e. Therefore it is a fallacy that faith produces good as a tree does fruit. The tree is not faith; but the tree is man.

W. 207. There is the like (simultaneous) order of these degrees in every seed, and in every fruit.

279^e. Before the Angels, every act or every work of a spiritual man is like a well-flavoured fruit . . .

P. 56. It presents this image (of the infinite and eternal) . . . in the fructification and multiplication of all things. —³. Ex.

57. The fructifications and multiplications of (affections of love and perceptions of wisdom), which are spiritual, (are infinite and eternal) . . . This capacity of fructification and multiplication without end . . . men have in natural things; the spiritual Angels in spiritual things; and the celestial Angels in celestial things. Not only are affections, perceptions and knowledges such in general; but also every single thing in them, even the most minute, in particular. They are of this character because they come forth from the Infinite and Eternal in itself, through what is infinite and eternal from itself.

107. Celestial love together with the affections of good and truth and the derivative perceptions, and at the same time together with the delights of these affections and the derivative thoughts, may be compared to a tree. . . . The life's love is that tree; the branches together with the leaves are the affections of good and truth together with their perceptions; and the fruits are the delights of the affections together with their thoughts.

215^e. One (man) is like artificial fruit, which in outward form appears like the fruit from a tree, when yet it is coloured wax, containing within it dust or bitumen; whereas the other (man) is like noble fruit, pleasant in flavour and odour, and containing seeds within it.

332³. There is a correspondence of man's life to the vegetation of a tree . . . His infancy is comparatively like the tender shoot of a tree sprouting out of the earth from the seed . . . the primitives of the spiritual marriage are like the beginnings of the fruit; spiritual goods, which are the goods of charity, are like the fruits, and are also signified by 'fruits' in the Word; the procreations of wisdom from love are like the seeds . . . Man is indeed an evil tree from the seed, but still there may be a grafting . . . with little branches taken from the tree of life, whereby the sap drawn from the old root is turned into sap which makes good fruits.

R. 84. Every man regards the truths of doctrine in the first place, but so long as he does this, he is like unripe fruit; whereas he who is being regenerated, after he has imbued the truths of doctrine, regards the goods of life in the first place, and in proportion as he does this, he ripens like fruit; and in proportion as he ripens, the seed in him becomes prolific.

122. Good without truths is like . . . fruit in which there is no juice . . .

360. 'Joseph' . . . in the natural sense, =fructification and multiplication.

400. In some places in Hell there are forests of trees which bear evil fruits, according to the correspondence with the concupiscences and derivative thoughts of those who are there.

417⁴. (Those who appeared like goats) replied that they had come to the conclusion, that faith alone produces the goods of charity . . . as a tree produces fruits. But . . . an Angel . . . cried . . . They have not receded from their former faith . . . Faith is not a tree, but man is the tree . . .

—⁵. (The left-hand flock of sheep) said . . . Are not faith and charity one, as a tree and its fruit are one? for the tree through its branch is continued into the fruit; take away anything from the branch which inflows by continuity into the fruit, and will not the fruit perish? . . . The priests . . . said that it was so; faith is preserved by means of the fruits; but they were unwilling to say that faith is continued into the fruits. Then one of the priests who was among the sheep on the right hand . . . said . . . They think differently . . . they think that every good of charity . . . done by man for the sake of salvation is . . . evil . . .

—⁶. They then asked, What then is the nature of their goods of charity or works, which are the fruits of faith? He replied, They are invisible, being inwardly in man from the Holy Spirit, concerning which man knows nothing. Further ex. T. 506.

566⁷. One who had been a leading writer concerning faith alone . . . said, When I was in the world . . . I taught . . . that faith could not exist . . . without good works, as a tree could not without fruit . . . He then touched the Word, and suddenly fire and smoke issued from it, and an explosion took place . . . which threw him into a corner of the room, and there he lay as if dead for about an hour.

649⁸. These goods are called goods of charity, and are meant by the fruits 'of the vineyard,' which are 'grapes' and 'clusters'; but the goods of love to the Lord are meant in the Word by the fruits of trees, especially by olives. III.

782. 'The fruits of the desire of thy soul' (Rev. xviii. 14)=nothing else than the blessednesses and happinesses of Heaven; because these are the fruits of all things of doctrine and worship . . . and because they are the desires of men when they die . . . (=the gladnesses and joys which they expected from worship and life according to the traditions of the Babylonish nation. E. 1158.)

933. 'The tree of life, which bears twelve fruits' (Rev. xxii. 2)=the Lord in His Divine love, from whom flow forth all the goods which man does apparently from himself. . . By 'fruits' are signified the goods of love and of charity, which are called good works.

934. That 'fruits'=the goods which a man does from love or charity, is indeed known without confirmation from the Word; for by 'fruit,' in the Word, the reader understands nothing else. The reason why by 'fruits' are meant the goods of love or of charity, is that man is compared to a tree, and is also called a 'tree.' That 'fruits'=the goods of love or of charity, which are commonly called good works. Ill.

935. 'And yielding fruit by the month' (id.)=that the Lord produces goods with man according to every state of truth with him. . . 'To yield fruit'=to produce goods. That 'fruits'=the goods of love and of charity, has been shown above: and as the Lord produces them with man essentially, although man does them as of himself, thus apparently, it is evident that the signification is that the Lord from the inmost, when He is there, produces them.

936. Because by 'a tree' is signified man . . . by 'fruits' are signified the goods of love and of charity; and by 'seeds' are signified the last and the first things of man.

—2. With those who are in the goods of love and at the same time in the truths of wisdom, there appear fruitbearing trees luxuriant with beautiful leaves. But with those who are in truths of some wisdom . . . but are not in the goods of love, there appear trees full of leaves, but devoid of fruits.

M. 13. The Angel said, Come with me into the garden of our Prince . . . They said, We see only one tree, and on its branches and at its top as it were fruits of gold, and leaves of silver . . . At this, the Angel with an inspired voice said, That tree is in the middle of the garden . . . But come nearer . . . They did so . . . and they saw trees most luxuriant with fruits of fine flavour, entwined with vines full of leaves, whose tops with their fruits were swaying towards the tree of life in the middle. These trees were set in a continuous series . . . forming a perfect arboreal spiral, in which species followed species without a break according to the noblenesses of the fruits. . . The first trees were the most excellent of all, luxuriant with sumptuous fruits . . . they are never seen or possible on earth . . . Here and there in this arboreal spiral . . . there were seats, formed of the young shoots of the trees behind . . . and enriched and adorned with their fruits.

92. The reason such a sphere of the marriage of good and truth proceeds from the Lord, is that this sphere is a sphere of propagation, that is, of prolification and fructification . . .

135. A tree=man, and its fruit the good of life. (This signification applied to the two trees in Eden.)

183. The Angels said . . . that all fructification, all propagation, and all prolification are originally from the influx of love, wisdom, and use from the Lord; from immediate influx from the Lord into the souls of men; from mediate influx into the souls of animals; and from influx still more mediated into the inmosts of plants; and all these things take place in ultimates from primes. That fructifications, propagations, and prolifications are continuations of creation, is evident . . .

355⁴. The very soul of man, being in the marriage of good and truth . . . is also in the perpetual effort for the fructification and production of its own likeness . . . and therefore this perpetual effort for fructifying and producing its own image . . . becomes also of the body . . . The reason the fructification is perpetual, is that the universal sphere of generating and propagating the celestial things of love and the spiritual things of wisdom, and thence the natural things which are of offspring, proceeds from the Lord, and fills the universal Heaven and the universal world . . . Moreover, love truly conjugal is just like the vernal heat, from the influx of which all things aspire to germinations and fructifications . . . But the fructifications with us in the Heavens are different from those with men on earth. With us, the fructifications are spiritual, which are those of love and wisdom, or of good and truth. Ex.

B. 13. The Formula Concordiæ on the fruits of faith.

27. The Reformers distinguished between the works of the law proceeding from man's purpose and will, and the works of the Spirit proceeding from faith as from a free and spontaneous source, which latter they denominated the fruits of faith.

46. It is indeed said 'that good works follow faith, as fruit is produced from a tree;' but . . . who does them, or even thinks of them, or who is spontaneously led to perform them, while he . . . believes that they do not contribute anything to salvation . . .

47. That the faith of the present Church cannot be conjoined with charity, and produce any fruits, which are good works. Gen.art.

48^e. From this marriage (of good and truth) good works are produced. as fruits from a tree; and hence they become the fruits of good, and the fruits of truth; the latter are signified in the Word by grapes, but the former by olives.

49. From this generation of good works, it is evident that faith alone cannot possibly produce . . . any works which can deserve the name of fruits . . . and therefore the fruits of faith is a vain expression, and a word without meaning.

T. 374³. Man . . . is like a tree, in the seed of which there lie hidden as it were the end, intention, and purpose to produce fruits . . . and finally . . . it blossoms, and produces fruits; in these things the tree corresponds to good works with man; and it is evident that they are essentially of the seed, formally of the boughs and leaves, and actually of the wood of the tree.

585². Thus initiate and successively form the fruit, which may be compared to the testicle, in which the seeds are perfected.

Ad. 1008. The fruits . . . are the uses in the human mind . . .

D. 396. A comparison of man's nature with trees and fruits. Ex.

413^e. Charities are the fruits of faith.

1194^e. Charity which becomes the good in works, which consequently are from the Lord alone, and are then first called the fruits of faith . . .

[D.] 1471. (They understand) what the fruits of faith are ; namely, that affection or love is the life . . . and is at last in the action, which is the fruit of faith.

3617. That there are fruits of faith in the other life.

— . They who were in the persuasion that faith alone saves without good works or the fruits of faith, inferred . . . that in the other life there are no good works or fruits of faith . . . But they were shown that good works or the fruits of faith pre-eminently exist in the other life, to wit, that there could be no happiness in mere repose . . . Such a life would be devoid of use . . . But they there pre-eminently exhibit good works or the fruits of faith. Enum.

5159. On the trees (in Heaven) are fruits resplendent with the most glittering celestial colours, in amazing forms.

5663. So long as they are virgins there are only flowers in their gardens, and not fruits until they become wives.

6005¹. The learned leaders affirm all things which the laity say about the good of life, saying that it is the fruit of faith ; but they believe otherwise among themselves. Ex.

6024². I was permitted to speak with those who are in faith separated, as to whether they are able to speak of the fruits of faith. They said that the last degree of justification is the endeavour to do what is good, and that they stop there ; because if fruits were added, they would be from man . . . and that therefore these fruits are from the Lord, not appearing to man . . . Then there were gathered together from all sides all who had been in such thought concerning the fruit of faith ; for the most part they were leaders who had been pre-eminently learned ; the rest, who had simply believed the fruits of faith to be good works, were not gathered together with them ; and those learned men were congregated . . . near Hell . . . nor were they permitted to preach any more . . . Many said that they had had no other thought about the fruits of faith, than that faith produces them as a tree does fruits, and that man ought to think about the works which he does and which he ought to do.

6041². Luther remained in faith alone, believing that faith does indeed produce these things as a tree does fruit . . .

6060. (Zinzendorf) said, that when he entered gardens he did not see any fruits . . . when yet others who were with him saw both fruits and green leaves.

6085². They likened faith to a tree, and the fruit to works ; but this is fallacious. By the tree is meant man ; by the branches and leaves, faith ; and by the fruits good works. The man is that which produces them.

D. Min. 4809. On faith and the fruits of faith.

— . I once spoke about good works with Spirits . . . who had believed them not to be necessary to salvation, saying, that nevertheless they declare good works . . . to be the fruits of faith, and that the tree is Known from its fruits . . . Allowing that faith is a tree, and that good works are its fruits, then if so of what quality do they believe that tree appears in the heavenly paradise, if it rejoices in leaves only, and is destitute of fruits ?

whether it would not be as the Lord says, that such a tree must be cut down ? To this they could answer nothing.

E. 48². 'Fruit' (Matt.xxi.43)=good.

109⁵. The things which are upon trees . . . signify such things as are with man ; the leaves, the truths with him ; and the fruits, the goods. Ill.

—⁶. As fruits signified the goods of life with man, therefore in the Israelitish Church . . . it was commanded that the fruits of trees . . . should be circumcised . . . (Lev.xix.23-25).

— . As the fruits of a tree signified the goods of life, it was also commanded that in the feast of tabernacles they should take the fruit of a tree of honour . . . and should be glad before Jehovah (Lev.xxiii.40).

— . As fruits signified the goods of love, which are the goods of life, it was one of the blessings, that the tree of the field should yield its fruit ; and it was one of the curses, that it should not yield its fruit (Lev.xxv.3, 19). For the same reason it was forbidden, when any city was besieged, to ply the axe against any tree of good fruit (Dent.xx.19,20).

— . From these things it may now be evident that by 'fruits' are signified the goods of love, or, what is the same, the goods of life, which are also called good works. Ill.

167³. 'According to the fruit of his works' (Jer.xvii.10)= . . . the goods which are of love.

212². They who are in faith from charity are here described by 'the tree which yieldeth good fruits' (Matt.vii.17) . . . moreover, 'fruits,' in the Word,=the works of charity . . . Whereas they who are in faith separated from charity are meant by 'the tree which yieldeth not good fruits' (ver.19) . . . moreover, 'evil fruits,' in the Word,=evil works . . .

237⁷. They who have adopted faith alone . . . when they read the Word, and see that the Lord says that man shall be recompensed according to his deeds and works . . . then call the goods which they do the fruits of faith ; not knowing or not being willing to know, that the goods which are called 'fruits' are all from charity, and none from faith separated . . .

281². The multiplication and fructification of truth from good, thus the increase of intelligence, is described by its being 'planted in a good field . . . to bear fruit . . .' (Ezek.xvii.8) . . . 'To bear fruit'=to produce the goods which are of use.

304²⁹. 'The fruit of the earth shall be for magnificence and ornament' (Is.iv.2)=the good of the Church.

—²⁹. As by 'the fruit of the earth and the vine in the field' (Mal.iii.11) are signified the goods and truths of the Church ; by 'fruit' its goods, and by 'vine' its truths, they are called 'a land of well-pleasing.'

329¹⁸. Therefore it is said, 'On the head of the mountains the fruit thereof shall be shaken' (Ps.lxxii.16). 'The head of the mountains'=Heaven, whence . . . they have the good of love, which is, 'the fruit.'

340¹². That truths will produce good, and that good will produce truths, is signified by, 'the tree shall yield her fruit, and the earth her produce' (Ezek.xxxiv.27).

—¹⁵. By 'the fruit of the belly' and by 'the fruit of the land,' etc. (Deut. vii. 13) are meant the multiplications of truth and the fructifications of good; thus spiritual blessings.

375¹⁰. By 'the fruit of the belly which is a reward' (Ps. cxvii. 3) are signified the goods through which there is happiness.

—¹⁷. 'They shall have no pity on the fruits of the belly' (Is. xiii. 18) = the doctrinal things which will destroy all . . . derivative good . . . 'The fruits of the belly' = goods.

386²¹. 'To yield fruit of increase' (Ps. cvii. 37) = to do these things and to receive goods; for 'fruits' = deeds, and the goods of charity.

403¹⁰. 'The fields shall not yield fruit' (Hab. iii. 17) = that there shall be no spiritual nourishment.

—²⁶. As by 'fruit' is signified the good of life, and the good of life is external good from internal, or natural good from spiritual, and as man is Known from this good, the Lord says, 'Every tree is Known from its Own fruit . . .' (Luke vi. 44; Matt. vii. 16).

—²¹. 'The fruit which He did not find' (Matt. xxi. 18, 19; Mark xi. 12, 13) = natural good.

405¹⁸. By 'the mountains of Israel' (Ezek. xxxvi. 8) are signified the goods of charity; and that from them are the truths of faith and the goods of life, is signified by, 'Ye shall yield your branch, and ye shall bear your fruit': 'branch' = the truth of faith; and 'fruit' = the good of life.

—²¹. By 'the earth is satisfied from the fruit of Thy works' (Ps. civ. 13) is signified that from the Divine operation the Church with man continually grows. 'The fruit of works,' when said of the Lord, = the Divine operation.

430⁷. 'By fruits' (Rev. xxii. 2) is signified the good from which are truths.

458⁴. By 'the fruit of a tree of honour' (Lev. xxiii. 39) is signified celestial good.

519⁶. Their having adulterated the goods of the Word, is signified by 'Ye have turned . . . the fruit of justice into wormwood' (Amos vi. 12).

543⁶. As the falsity and evil (of the sensuous man), when they break out thence into the natural man, completely ravage it, by destroying all truth and good therein, it is said that 'the locust . . . devoured every herb of the field, and all the fruit of the tree' (Ex. x. 15) . . . 'The fruit of the tree' = the good there.

617¹². By 'to plant vineyards and to eat the fruit of them' (Is. lxxv. 21), is signified to enrich themselves with spiritual truths, and to appropriate to themselves the derivative goods.

622¹¹. 'The fruit of the belly' . . . in the natural sense, = natural offspring; but in the spiritual sense spiritual offspring, which is knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom . . .

638¹³. As by 'a wife' is signified the affection (of truth), she is compared to 'a fruitful vine' (Ps. cxviii. 3); because by 'a vine' is signified the Church; and by 'a fruitful vine,' the Church as to the affection of truth.

644⁷. Therefore it came to pass that when they 'walked in the statutes, and observed the precepts' . . . the tree of the field 'yielded its fruit' (Lev. xxvi. 3, 4) . . . 'The fruit of the tree' = the good of love and the will of good.

—¹⁴. As from this (influx) is the fructification of good and the multiplication of truth, they are called 'rains of blessing' (Ezek. xxxiv. 26); and it is said that 'the tree of the field shall yield its fruit, and the earth shall yield its produce;' and by 'the tree of the field' . . . is signified the Church and the man of the Church; by 'the fruit of the tree of the field,' the fructification of good; and by 'the produce of the earth,' the multiplication of the truth thereof.

650⁴⁰. 'The tree shall yield its fruit' (Joel ii. 22) = the production of the good of life by means of these Knowledges; for 'a tree' = the man of the Church; specifically, the mind imbued with Knowledges; and 'fruit,' the good of life.

—⁵⁹. 'Until thou be fruitful' (Ex. xxiii. 30) = according to the increase of good.

695¹³. 'The vine shall give fruit, and the earth produce' (Zech. viii. 12) = that the spiritual affection of truth will produce the good of charity, and that the natural affection of good and truth will produce the works of charity. . . 'Fruit' = the good of charity; and 'produce,' the works of that good.

700³⁵. The multiplication of truth and the fructification of good is signified by . . . 'when ye shall be multiplied and shall bear fruit in the land in those days' (Jer. iii. 16).

706¹⁷. 'To eat the fruit of (the vineyards)' (Is. xxxvii. 30) = the enjoyment of the goods and of the happinesses from them, which pertain to a regenerated man.

710⁵. 'They shall not yield fruit' (Hos. ix. 16) = not any good; for where there are no truths there is no good.

—¹³. By 'the fruit of the belly' (Ps. cxvii.) are meant those who are in good through truths; who have Heaven, which is 'the . . . reward.'

—²³. By 'the fruit of the belly' (Deut. xxviii. 4) signified the good of love and the truth of that good; by 'the fruit of the earth,' is signified everything of the Church.

714⁸. (They who are in faith alone say that) the fourth and last degree is the endeavour to do what is good, and that it is . . . the fruit of faith.

727². 'The east wind hath dried up her fruit' (Ezek. xix. 12) = the destruction of the good thereof. . . 'Fruit' = good; that good is meant which is left from the Word with those who are in the falsities of evil, the destruction of which is signified by 'the drying up of the fruit by an east wind.' . . 'A fire . . . hath devoured her fruit' = the consuming of good.

—¹¹. As truth from the good of love alone produces fruit, which is the good of charity, 'Aaron's rod blossomed and produced almonds.'

764². The rest in the same Church, who live the life of faith . . . are not dragons . . . for they know no other-wise than that it is from doctrine that faith produces fruits, which are good works. 787⁵.

789⁴. It follows that love produces faith . . . (therefore) to believe that faith produces goods, which are called good works, as a tree does fruits, is contrary to order.

[E. 789]⁶. Therefore to say that faith produces goods, as a tree does fruit, is to say that the thought and speech of man produce his life, and not the life them.

—⁹. A faith merely natural is produced from a love merely natural . . . From this it may be evident that the faith thence proceeding cannot produce goods, as a tree does good fruits; and that if it does produce any, they are goods from the proprium of man, which in themselves are evil and meritorious . . .

790¹⁴. Hence it is that the quality of faith is Known from charity and its goods, which are good works, as the quality of a tree is Known from its fruit. By the tree, however, is not meant faith, but man as to his life; by its leaves are signified the truths through which is faith; and by its fruits are signified the goods of life, which are the goods of charity.

798⁵. This Natural is that in which are they who are at the entrance to Heaven; whither they also come who do what is good only from obedience, who are those who in doctrine and life confirm with themselves that faith produces good works as a tree does fruits.

911³. 'When the blade grew and yielded fruit, then appeared the tares also' (Matt. xiii.) = that when truth increased and produced good, falsities from evil were intermingled.

919⁴. By 'the fruits of autumn' (Jer. xlviii. 32) are signified the goods of the Church. . . For bread, which is here 'the fruits of autumn,' = the good of the Church.

942². After man . . . has been introduced into Heaven, the . . . third affection which is given him is the affection of fructifying. For when man is let into Heaven . . . he is like a tree growing from its seed . . . the birth of the fruit thence is from the affection of good; and the multiplication of itself again into trees is from the affection of fructifying.

943⁶. Man has . . . the affection of fructifying when he loves to do goods, and to be of service.

991². From the marriage of good and truth, therefore, there comes forth the love of fructifying; namely, good through truth, and truth from good; from which love descends the love of prolificating, in which is every delight and pleasure. On the other hand . . . from the marriage of evil and falsity, through the love, there comes forth the love of fructifying; namely, evil through falsity, and falsity from evil; from which love descends the love of prolificating in adulteries . . .

1211⁴. In the Inmost Heaven there are fruits and seeds of pure gold; in the Middle Heaven, of silver; and in the Lowest Heaven, of copper.

J. (Post.) 216. The Englishmen said that faith operates charity as a tree its fruit. But they were shown . . . that in this case there is not meant faith, but man; by the branches and leaves the truths of faith; and by the fruits the goods of love.

De Just. 64⁶. Thus the saying that good works (are the fruits of faith) is a mere rov et pratervea nihil. Ex. Scia. 21.

D. Wis. xi. 5a². 'Fruits' (John xv. 4, 5) = uses, or the goods of charity; and the goods of charity are nothing else than moral goods . . .

Fruitful. Foecundus.

Fruitfulness. Foecunditas.

Fertilize, To. Foecundare.

A. 3985. Fruitfulness. Sig.

6417. See FRUIT. 6418.

6418. 'A fruitful one-foecundae' (Gen. xlix. 22) = fructification from truth; for 'fruitfulness,' like 'birth,' in the spiritual sense, is that of truth and good . . .

D. 2660. From manure the earth is fertilized . . .

E. 357². As all truths proceed from the Lord through the Spiritual Kingdom, Joseph is called 'the son of a fruitful one, the son of a fruitful one near a fountain.' By 'a fruitful one' is signified spiritual good, which is the good of charity.

448⁶. 'The son of a fruitful one near a fountain' = fructification by truths from the Word. 'The son of a fruitful one' = fructification. 483¹³.

Fruitful Field. Arvum. M. 522. T. 531.

See CARMEL.

E. 654¹⁴. By 'the forest of the fruitful field' (2 Kings xix. 23) are signified scientifics.

730²³. 'A fruitful field,' or land of harvest (Is. xxxii. 15) = the natural man fructified with truths.

Fugitive. Profugus.

See FLIGHT-fuga.

A. 330. Falsity and the derivative evil is 'a wanderer and a fugitive in the earth' (Gen. iv. 12).

382. That to be 'a wanderer and a fugitive in the earth' = not to know what truth and good are, is evident from the signification of 'wandering' and 'fleeing.' III.

E. 817³. As truth without good is carried hither and thither, for there is nothing to lead it, in consequence of which it successively falls into falsities, and disappears from the way which leads to Heaven, Cain was cast out from the face of Jehovah, and became a wanderer and a fugitive.

Fulcrum. Hypomochlium. T. 478². D. 920.

See SUPPORT-fulcrum.

Fulfil. See under FILL-implere.

Full. Plenus.

Fullness. Plenitudo.

Fully. Plene.

Plenary. Plenarius.

Plenarily. Plenarie.

See under FIFTY.

A. 1109. They are reduced into plenary ignorance. D. 4051.

1557⁶. He fully conjoined the Human essence with the Divine.

2348². Falsities . . . confirmed are called . . . 'Full of days' (Jer. vi. 11).

2449^e. Separation is not plenary taking away . . .

2636. A full state of union (of the Divine of the Lord with His Human). Sig. . . This may be illustrated by those things which with man are called a full state when he is being . . . regenerated.

—². Then man's state is said to be full . . .

2905. '127 years'=their fulness . . . Thus it is the fulness or end of what is holy of the Church . . . Their fulness, namely, that of the states and times of the Church, means their end . . . Its old age is called the fulness or end. . . So with the times and states of the day . . . When night comes, it is the fulness or end.

—^e. Its being said of the Lord, that He would come . . . in the fulness of times, or when there was fulness, signifies the same ; for there was then no longer any good . . . or truth.

2906^f. That 'a year' and 'years'=a full time of the Church. Ill.

—^e. 'In the midst of the years'=in the fulness of time.

—^e. As a year is what is full of time . . . instead of a year they have an idea of what is full relatively to the states of the Church.

3105. They are said to be 'two,' to denote fulness.

3107. What is full for initiation. Sig.

—^e. 'Ten,' like 'a hundred,'=a full state.

3176. A state of departure appearing to them full. Sig.

3398^f. Such a state was that which is meant by the fulness of times . . .

3923^d. 'The earth . . . and its fulness'=the Church and all things of the Church.

5214. 'Thin' is opposed to full ; and that is called full in which there is use ; or, what is the same, in which there is good.

5955. That the medium had what is full of truth from good. Sig.

—^e. 'Three hundred'=what is full.

6297. 'His seed shall be the fulness of the nations' (Gen.xlviii.19)=that the truth of faith would reign. . . 'The fulness of the nations'=abundance, thus that it would reign. 'Fullness,' in the Word, =all ; and where it does not=all, it=what is abundant ; and it is predicated of both truth and good ; for 'multitude' is predicated of truth, and 'magnitude' of good ; thus 'fulness' of both. Ill.

—^e. 'The earth and its fulness' (Jer.xlvii.2)=all, both truth and good, that is, of the Church.

—². 'Land' (Ezek.xii.19)=the Church ; and 'fulness,' the good and truth therein. That both are signified is evident from the things which precede.

6508. 'Seventy days'=a full state.

—². That 'seventy'=an entire period, thus a full state. Ill.

—⁴. Hence it is said of Him that He would come in the fulness of time. 9228^g.

—^e. All the particulars here involve fulness.

—^e. 'Seven' equally as 'seventy'=a full state.

6721. What is full of time in which he did not appear. Sig.

—^e. 'Three months'=what is full of time, and what is full of state. 'Three'=what is full, or an entire period from beginning to end.

7518. 'Take to you the fulness of your fists' (Ex.ix.S)=power given so far as it could be received. . . So far as it could be received, is signified by 'fulness.'

7984. 'Thirty'=a full state of remains ; (for) by 'three' is signified a full state.

—³. What a full state is. Ex.

8468. A homer . . . contained ten ephas, and therefore=what is full. Ill.

—³. 'Ten acres'=what is full, and also much.

8531. 'Put therein the fulness of an omer of manna' (Ex.xvi.33)=good therein as much as it contains.

8750. 'In the third month'=fulness of state.

—². What fulness of state is. Ex.

—^e. When a state comes to its end, it is then full, and is called fulness.

—^e. There is here meant the fulness of the prior state . . .

9103. Corresponding penalty to the full. Sig.

—^e. It follows that ('two' and 'four') also=to the full ; for that which is conjoined is full.

—². The number 'four'=the restoration of interior good to the full. The reason why interior good is to be restored to the full, is that this good constitutes the spiritual life of man ; and unless spiritual life is restored to the full, the exterior good which constitutes the exterior life cannot be restored.

9137. 'He shall repay double'=restoration to the full.

9141^d. 'Seven years'=a full state, thus to the full ; and therefore 'to kindle a fire for seven years'=to consume to the full through cupidities.

9198^g. 'Three years and six months'=to the full.

—^e. '1260 days,' which make three years and six months, =to the full or up to the end.

—^e. 'A time, and times, and half a time' . . . =to the full, or up to the end.

9228. That 'seven'=an entire period from beginning to end, thus what is full. Ill.

—^e. A full state of intelligence and wisdom from love and faith in the Lord. Sig.

—². Plenary destruction through the cupidities of the loves of self and of the world. Sig.

—^e. The plenary restoration of good and truth in the Church. Sig.

—³. 'Sevenfold'=to the full.

—^e. 'Seventy,' also, =what is full. Also 'a week.'

9286. 'Three times in the year'=a full state up to the end ; for 'three'=what is full from beginning to end . . . Here, therefore, plenary and complete deliverance . . . Thus plenary deliverance from damnation . . . Therefore man is then fully delivered. 9296. —².

9295^g. The plenary implantation of truth in good . . . Sig.

9326. 'The number of thy days I will fulfil'=up to a full state.

—^e. 'To fulfil the number'=to the full.

—^e. Up to a full state, means until the man is regenerated.

[A.] 934⁸. 'To desolate the earth and its fulness' (Ezek.xix.7)=to destroy all things of the Church.

9437. What is plenary as to information and influx. Sig.

—¹. 'Forty'=what is plenary . . . Because 'four'=what is full . . . In like manner 'ten.' Ill.

—². Penalty to the full. Sig.

9487. 'Two and a half'=much and full . . . (For) 'five'=much and full . . . In like manner 'ten' . . . and also 'a hundred.'

9488. What is full as to truth. Sig.

—¹. 'One and a half'=what is full . . . because 'three' has this signification. Refs.

9556. What is full as to good and truth. Sig.

9557. What is full as to scientifics from good. Sig.

9608. Plenary conjunction in the ultimates of the spheres. Sig.

—¹. 'Fifty'=what is full.

9611. The plenary faculty of conjunction from good.

—¹. 'Fifty'=what is plenary.

9617. What is full of truth from good. Sig.

—¹. 'Thirty'=what is full.

9641. 'Twenty'=what is full : thus in every way and altogether. (For) 'ten'=what is full, and all.

9643. Plenary support by means of truth. Sig.

—¹. 'Forty'=what is plenary.

9659. 'Two,' and 'four'=conjunction to the full . . . Therefore, also, what is full. And therefore in every way ; for that which is fully is also in every way. By 'eight' is signified what is full . . . also because 'a week'=an entire period from beginning to end ; and therefore by 'the eighth day' is signified a full state. Ill.

9745. What is full with good from the Lord. Sig.

—¹. 'A hundred'=all, much, and full.

9761. Goods and the derivative truths fully supporting. Sig.

—¹. 'Three'=what is full. Refs.

10061³. By 'fulness' (Ps.lxxxix.11) is signified all the truth and good which make the Church.

10253. 'Five hundred'=what is full. Ex. 10259.

10492. The plenary closing up of the Internal. Sig.

—¹. 'Three thousand'=what is plenary.

—³. The Internal with them is plenarily closed up. That it is plenarily closed up . . .

H. 71^e. They are mistaken who believe that Heaven is closed from fulness : when yet . . . a greater and greater fulness perfects it.

349. The degree of the affection and desire is as the measure, which is increased to the full. Sig.

L. 3. That the Lord would come into the world in the fulness of times, which was when He was no longer known by the Jews, and, from this, when nothing of the Church was left.

S. 6² Therefore, when the Divine is in its ultimate degree, it is in its fulness-pleno.

37. That Divine truth in the sense of the letter . . . is in its fulness-pleno . . . Gen.art.

53. The Lord never operates anything except in ful- ness-pleno ; and the Word in the sense of the letter is in its fulness-pleno.

97³. The Lord speaks with man only in what is full ; and the Word in the sense of the letter is Divine truth in fulness-pleno.

W. 101^e. The correspondence is plenary. 413^e.

217. That the degrees of height are in their fulness-pleno . . . Gen.art.

—^e. For they are in their effect ; and every effect is the fulness-plenum-of the causes.

221. The first arcanum is, that the Word in the sense of the letter is in its fulness-pleno . . .

P⁶. The simpler and purer anything is, the more and the fuller it is.

277a^e. All reformation takes place in fulness-pleno, that is, in primes and in ultimates together.

281. Man is in full freedom to think and will, but not in full freedom to speak and act . . .

R. 160. 'I have not found thy works full before God' (Rev.iii.2)=that the interiors of their worship are not conjoined with the Lord. . . They are called 'full before God' when they are conjoined with the Lord.

—^e. Unless (truths from good) are in worship, the works are not full before God, but are empty. . . Hence 'what is full' is predicated of the man in whom there are truths and goods.

M. 156. Marriage is the fulness of man ; for by it man becomes a full man.

306³. The nuptials are an entrance to the plenary separation of the love of the sex from marriage love . . .

310. That after the nuptials, the marriage of the spirit becomes also of the body, and thus full. Ex.

324. One form, in which there is plenary unanimity and concord.

B. 63^e. The time appointed for the New Church, when there is fulness and restoration.

T. 63^e. Thus the universe as to essence and order is the fulness of God.

65². There is a plenary correspondence between Heaven and man.

109. 'In Christ dwells all the fulness of the Divinity bodily' . . . From these things the Angels know that the Lord alone in the universal Spiritual Word is a full Man.

126^e. That an inmost and thus a plenary union took place.

364³. All things are full of God, and everyone takes his own portion from that fulness.

503. They were full of confirmations for the plenary impotence of man in spiritual things.

755^e. 'Decision'=the plenary consummation of both.

—¹. The fulness of time, in which the Lord came into the world, and in which He will come, is also consummation.

E. 20. 'Seven'= . . . a full state . . . and as it=what is full, it also=all ; because all make what is full ; for fulness, relatively to those who make any society . . . are all ; and therefore when magnitude is treated of in the Word, by 'seven' is signified what is full . . .

—, 'Three,' too, in the Word, = what is full, and all. Refs.

189. 'I have not found thy works full before God' = that otherwise what is not Divine is in moral life. . . The things which are of moral life . . . are called 'full before God,' when they are from a spiritual origin; and 'not full,' when they are not from that origin . . . And therefore the works must be either full before God, or they are nothing at all before God.

257. 'Seven' = all men and all things, and also what is full and the whole . . . for what is full and the whole is predicated of the magnitude of a thing, and all . . . of the multitude.

285^e. That this is the Divine truth which fills all things, is signified by, 'The fulness of the earth is His glory' (Is. vi. 3).

304⁶. 'Fullness' = all things of (the Church). —²⁸. Coro. 34².

331³. By 'the earth' (Is. xxxiv. 1) is signified the Church as to good; and by 'its fulness' are signified truths.

375²⁹. 'The floors are full of pure corn' (Joel ii. 24) = fulness thence.

387². Therefore man is born in plenary ignorance of all Knowledges of spiritual things.

448⁷. 'Its fulness' (Deut. xxxiii. 16) = Knowledges in the external man.

532⁸. 'Three' is predicated of truths . . . and = fulness . . . and spiritual fulness is formed by truths.

600¹⁰. 'The world' (Ps. lxxxix. 11) = Heaven and the Church as to good; and 'the fulness thereof' = Heaven and the Church as to truth.

601¹³. 'The land' (Ezek. xix. 7) = the Church; and 'the fulness thereof' = the truths thereof from the Word.

633. Six weeks = . . . also a plenary state; here, a plenary consummation of good and truth; that is, a plenary vastation of the Church.

—². By 'forty' is signified either the plenary vastation of the Church, or a plenary state of temptation. III.

652²⁸. 'Full of days' (Jer. vi. 11) = wisdom.

658. The plenary extinction of Divine truth and Divine good. Sig.

—². 'Three days and a half' = what is plenary or full. Ex.

675¹⁴. 'The city' (Amos vi. 8) = doctrine; and 'its fulness,' the falsities of evil contained in it.

732. While it grows to the full. Sig.

—, '1260 days' = from beginning to end, and thus what is full. . . (For) three and a half, whether of years or days, = what is full.

—⁶. These were the causes why the Christian Church . . . did not arrive at its fulness-plenum-until after an age.

741⁸. 'The earth' (Ps. xxiv. 1) = the Church as to truth; and 'the fulness thereof' = all truths in the complex.

—¹⁵. As the Lord desires worship from goods and truths, it is said, 'The world is Mine and the fulness thereof' (Ps. l. 12); 'fulness' = goods and truths in their whole complex, as above.

764². That the Church called the New Jerusalem will stay among those who are in the doctrine of faith separated, while it grows to the full . . .

954. 'Full of the anger of God' (Rev. xv. 7) = all the falsities of evil . . .

1039. 'Full of names of blasphemy' (Rev. xvii. 3) = which are adulterated and falsified.

1045. 'Full of abominations and uncleanness of whoredoms' (ver. 4) = from profaned goods and truths.

1057⁴. By 'the fulness thereof' (Ps. lxxxix. 11) are signified all the goods and truths of the Church.

1087². (Thus) Divine truth in the sense of the letter . . . is in its fulness-pleno. That is said to be full which contains in itself all the prior things even from the first . . . This fulness-plenum-of the Word is like . . .

—³. As Divine truth in its ultimate is in its fulness-pleno . . . therefore the Lord never operates except from primes through ultimates, consequently in fulness-pleno.

—, For man in the world is in his fulness.

Can. God vi. 8. As . . . the created universe is the fulness of uses in forms, it follows that the created universe is the fulness of God. III. 9.

Inv. 10. That 'the fulness of time' = consummation and desolation . . . The fulness (of natural times) is winter.

Full. Satur.

Fulness. Saturitas.

See SATISFY-saturare.

A. 220³. That they were averse to the goods of charity, is signified by 'fulness of bread' (Ezek. xvi. 49).

3254. 'In a good old age, an old man and full' (Gen. xxv. 8). Ex.

4620. 'An old man and full of days' (Gen. xxxv. 29) = what is new of life. . . (For) 'full of days' = a full-plenus-state.

E. 721⁶. They who were of the Jewish Church are called 'full-satur', from the fact that they have truths in abundance.

Fuller. Fullo.

A. 8159². 'Fuller's soap' (Mal. iii. 2). Ex.

T. 503⁶. Like the black face of a fuller.

Fulminate. See under LIGHTNING-fulmen.

Function. Functio.

Discharge, To. Fungi.

A. 1984. The functions of the body are different from those of the soul; so much so, that if the functions of the soul were disclosed, they would not be acknowledged . . .

3928². If he does not perceive in himself something of affection for what is just and fair in his function . . .

4223. But still (the Heavens) principally correspond to the functions of these viscera or organs . . . The functions constitute one with their organic forms; for not any function can be conceived of except from the forms, that is, from the substances. Exampls. . . Functions, therefore, are what the heavenly Societies principally correspond to ; and as it is the functions, it is also the organic forms to which they correspond ; for the one is indivisible and inseparable from the other ; inasmuch that whether you say the function or the organic form through which and from which the function exists, it is the same. Hence it is, that the correspondence is with the organs, members, and viscera, because it is with the functions ; and therefore when a function is brought forth—productur, the organ also is excited. The case is the same with everything man does . . . the organs move themselves . . . according to the intention of the function or use . . .

[A.] 4653a. There are many differences of the Spirits who correspond to the ear ; that is, to its functions and offices. Enum.

4803. Good Spirits and Angels are conveyed into the interiors of the province in which they are, thus into nobler functions.

5078³. An external . . . by which he could be in the world . . . and discharge functions. . . In the other world, where there are other functions, and other forces and powers . . .

7038. Uses consist . . . in everyone discharging aright his function in his own station ; thus in . . .

8004. For the Societies in Heaven are distinct according to the functions of all the members, viscera, and organs in the body . . . The function of each member, viscus, and organ relates by correspondence to a peculiar good, distinct from another.

8122. Whether men are in any function or not . . .

8192^e. By these names is signified . . . the angelic function itself ; thus also the Divine of the Lord as to that which is of the function. H. 52^e.

8253^e. The life of charity is . . . to act in every work from what is just and fair, and from what is good and true ; in like manner in every function . . .

8719. Thus functions and offices for them. Sig.

— For the Lord acts . . . mediately through Heaven . . . not because He needs their aid, but that the Angels there may have functions and offices . . .

9438. The body . . . being of use to him only for functions in this natural . . . sphere.

10797. No honour of any function is in the person, but is adjoined to him according to the dignity of the thing which he administers ; and . . . it is separated together with the function.

H. 95^e. These are what correspond to the functions of the heart and lungs.

96^e. The influx of Heaven is into the functions and uses of the members.

212. Some fibres . . . go forth to their functions . . .

312⁴. Served them for a body and its functions in the world.

359. A man can live . . . according to his condition and function . . . and discharge worldly things . . .

360². To do what is just and right in every work and in every function.

—². Fewer of those (are in Heaven) who have . . . become rich by offices.

387. On the functions (or employments) of the Angels in Heaven. Gen. art.

— The functions in the Heavens cannot be enumerated, nor described in special . . . for they are various according to the offices of the Societies . . .

388^e. (Thus) there are many functions and administrations within every heavenly Society.

389. Hence, too, dignity is adjoined to every function according to the dignity of the use . . .

—^e. He who thinks of honour for himself (in the first place) cannot discharge any office in Heaven.

391. There are Societies whose functions are to have the care of little children ; there are other Societies whose functions are . . .

—^e. But all these functions of the Angels are functions of the Lord through the Angels . . .

392. These functions of the Angels are their general functions, but every one has his own charge in special . . .

393. These discharge the office of preachers.

394. He who in Heaven is in a function or work corresponding to his use, is altogether in a like state of life to that in which he was in the world . . .

435. The Corporeal added to him for the sake of functions in the natural world . . .

462a². From their memory were recounted all things, from the first time of their function to the last.

508. They who . . . in their offices and functions have regarded the honour of self . . . are more stupid than all others.

535². To act sincerely and justly in every function, business, and work . . .

555. The love of self . . . is believed to be the fire of life, from which a man is excited to seek for offices, and to perform uses . . .

563. They were therefore discharged from that function, and were left to seek functions—munia—elsewhere.

N. 81³. That the evil equally with the good can discharge functions, and perform uses . . . Refs.

139⁶. That those who have no conscience . . . can discharge eminent offices in the world . . . Ref.

Life 114. Christian charity exists with everyone as he performs his function faithfully.

W. 396. A man by the love of self . . . wishes . . . to solicit employments for the sake of use . . .

P. 210. Unless a man as from his own prudence disposes all things belonging to his function and his life, he cannot be led and disposed from the Divine Providence.

217². Who does not see that the person, his function and honour, are for the sake of the thing which he administers ? Examps. . . Therefore everyone has dignity and honour . . . according to the dignity of the thing in the function of which he is.

296¹⁰. The ends which are uses are as many as are the particulars and singulars of anyone's business and function.

R. 8². In Heaven the person is regarded from that which belongs to his office and function. . . Therefore, when a prophet is mentioned, because his function was to write and teach the Word, there is meant the Word as to doctrine . . .

153⁷. They dare not any longer solicit offices.

849^e. Everyone in Heaven who is in a function, discharges the office in his own Society as in the world, but under the Lord's auspices.

M. 5^e. They fled away home, each to his own function, and to his own work.

6^e. Everyone has this happiness from the use in his own function.

16³. Use is to perform the works of one's own function faithfully, sincerely, and diligently.

175². It is believed by many that women can discharge the offices of men . . .

207². There, and in Heaven, there are administrations, ministries, functions, businesses . . . T.694².

T. 80². I asked the satan what was his function ; and he said, My function is learning.

119². The internal man is well so long as the external man obediently performs its functions.

305. The Lord, in whose stead they discharge these duties.

394². The love of self is . . . also the love of deserving and soliciting offices, and thus of reigning over others.

403². The sensuous man in its own function.

—³. Nor can (a man of sound reason) condemn the honours attached to offices . . .

—^e. There are administrations in Heaven . . . but they who discharge them love nothing more than to do uses . . .

410. So a king . . . would select one qualified for an office . . .

424. There are many who act justly and faithfully in their function, and . . . still do not possess any charity . . .

429. By the obligations of charity are not here meant the obligations of functions in a kingdom and a republic—as of a minister that he should minister, of a judge that he should judge, and so on—but there are meant the obligations of everyone, in whatever function he may be.

430. The public obligations of charity . . . ought not to be confounded with the obligations of functions.

431. Every man is carried into these obligations from a love different from that by which he is carried into the obligations of his function . . .

—². But marriage love, and love towards children . . . do not produce love towards the neighbour as do the exercises of the obligations in functions . . .

441³. It is the same with the persons of magistrates who look only to the dignity of their function.

— . The mediate causes, which are of the function, are renounced if they do not promote the end.

508³. The political things which regard a man's life in the dominion where he is ; in the civil things which are of his function ; and in the domestic things which are of his house.

563². So with everyone who is in any function or in any pursuit—studio.

694². What are functions but labours ?

D. 1710. According to the forms of the members, etc. . . . they perform their functions . . .

1712. Whatever flows in from the Lord flows into the universal grand man, with variety, according to the functions.

1713^e. Hence the functions of all things . . .

2501. Such are wont to look upon those who are in employments . . . as nothing . . .

3119. These, because their causes are unknown, are called natural functions.

3914. Those with whom vastations recur, that they may be initiated into their services, which become their functions in the other life ; for in the other life everyone is initiated to his functions, because to uses.

4347. It does not condemn to despise others who are not clever . . . whether as to functions or as to businesses. . . One ought to think concerning another . . . as to whether he is skilful for functions . . .

4630. The influx is into the functions and uses of the corporeals ; and as it is into them, it is also into the forms . . .

4960. They are called spies, and everyone of them has his own function.

5046. Nearly all (the Swedes) seek public offices.

5639. Those who have been in the holy function, as many of the Jesuits . . .

5791⁵. The greatest part of them are such as seek offices in courts and kingdoms.

6105. Charity . . . is to perform faithfully, sincerely, and justly the function, the business, and the work, which belong to one's own function.

E. 624¹⁰. For by a person and his function, in the spiritual sense, is meant the thing itself which the person performs or speaks.

735². By the Angels who are named in the Word . . . are meant administrations and functions ; and, in general, determinate and fixed parts of the administration and function of all the Angels ; and therefore, here, by 'Michael' is meant that of the function of the Angels which is spoken of above . . . consequently that of the function which combats . . .

D. Love v². By which each and all things are brought forth into their vital activities and functions.

xiii. By uses they mean the uses . . . of ministry, administration, function, with priests and magistrates, with business men and workmen.

xviii². For there are men in the world who perform their functions and duties—munia—with much study, labour, and ardour . . . from mere natural affection. Enum.

D. Wis. x.7². As the love has formed the understanding . . . so it has formed all the other functions of life to their own uses.

xi. 4. That use is rightly, faithfully, sincerely, and justly to discharge one's office, and to do one's work. Ex.

[D. Wis.xi.4]². In the Heavens, as in the world, all are in some function and ministration, or in some office, or in some work.

C. 134. vi. 2. That ministries, functions, offices, and various works are the good uses which each person performs . . .

— By functions are meant various offices which are civil.

— The various functions which are civil maintain that what is just be there; and also that there be what is moral, as well as what is diligent, what is informed, and what is upright.

142. vi. 3. There are functions, offices, and works there innumerable; all spiritual, which can indeed be described, but not well to the apprehension.

Functions. Munia.

H. 563. See FUNCTION-functio. D.Love xvii².

M. 6⁴. They desired to return to their domestic affairs; some to their functions; some to their businesses; and some to their works.

17². All are intent on performing the duties of their offices.

T. 114. That in the Lord there are two functions, the priestly and the royal . . . From His priestly function-munere-He is called 'Jesus,' and from His royal function-munere-, 'Christ' . . . As to Redemption, it pertains to both functions-munus.

J. (Post.) 241. As they believed that they were worthy . . . functions were given them . . . but because they were of such a character they were cast out of their functions, and were allowed . . . to procure functions for themselves.

D. Love ix². By which they perform their works, functions, and exercises.

xiii. The goods which do not flow from their functions they do not call uses, but alms . . .

D. Wis. vii. 5². The functions of their offices in like manner differ from the . . . functions of natural men in the world, which cannot be described . . .

Fundamental. See FOUND-fundare.

Funeral. See under BURY.

Funeral. Exequiae.

A. 462². He spoke with me about the funeral obsequies, while I was following his funeral-funeralia.

H. 312¹. I have told them that now their funeral-funeralia-and funeral obsequies were being made ready for their burial. 452.

D. 4564. Through my eyes . . . he saw (his own) funeral, and those who were there. 5837. A.4527³.

Funeral. Funeralis.

A. 4622¹. See FUNERAL-exequiae. H.312¹.

D. Min. 4773. Polhem died on a Monday. . . When I was invited to the funeral he saw his coffin, and those who were there . . .

Funereal. Feralis. A.817. H.433.

Furlong. Stadium.

R. 654. 'For a thousand and six hundred furlongs' (Rev.xiv.20)=mere falsities 'of evil. 'Furlongs' have a like signification to 'ways,' because furlongs are measured ways, and by 'ways' are signified truths which lead; and, in the opposite sense, falsities in like manner.

907. 'Twelve thousand furlongs' (Rev.xxi.16)=all the goods and truths of that Church. . . By 'furlongs' are signified similar things as by 'measures,' and by 'measures' is signified quality. E.430⁶.

—². The height of (the aerial atmosphere) does not exceed thirty furlongs.

T. 665. They almost filled the space of a furlong.

E. 924. 'For a thousand and six hundred furlongs' =evils in the whole complex. (For) 'furlongs'=productions in a series; for 'furlongs,' like 'miles,' and, in general, like 'ways,'=progressions in a series according to thoughts from affection.

Furnace. See CHIMNEY-aminus.

Furnace. Fornax.

A. 1296². 'To repair the brick kiln' (Nahum iii. 14)=worship thence.

2456. 'The smoke of the land as the smoke of a furnace' (Gen.xix.28)=the state of falsity, which is 'smoke,' from the state of evil, which is 'a furnace,' within the Church, which is 'the land.'

5354². From himself man is nothing but evil, which continually exhales as from a furnace.

7519. 'The ash of a furnace' (Ex.ix.8)=of exciting the falsities of cupidities by presence with those who are infesting. . . 'The ashes of a furnace'=the falsities of cupidities. —⁵.

—⁵. As the evils of cupidities are signified by 'fire,' they are also signified by 'a furnace.' A furnace is the containant, which often involves the same as the thing contained. That 'a furnace'=these things. III.

—⁶. 'Burning as a furnace' (Mal.iv. 1)=the cupidities of evil.

—⁷. 'The smoke of a furnace' (Gen. xix. 28)=falsities from the evils of cupidities.

— 'The smoke of a furnace' (Rev.ix.2)= . . . falsities from the evils of cupidities.

—⁹. 'The brick kiln' (Nahum iii. 14)=the falsities which they invent, and which are injected by the evil.

—^e. 'The brick kiln' (Jer.xliii.9)=the cupidity of falsity from evil.

8821. 'Its smoke went up as the smoke of a furnace' (Ex.xix.18)=an obscurity like the obscurity from cupidities. . . 'A furnace'=cupidity.

H. 571². (The heat exhaling from the Hells when closed is) in some places like that from a heated oven.

R. 421². That pit, which is like the opening of a furnace . . .

422. 'He opened the pit of the abyss, and there went up a smoke out of the pit as the smoke of a great furnace' (Rev. ix. 2) = the falsities of the concupiscences of the natural man springing from their evil loves.

— . 'The fire of Hell' = evil love; in like manner 'a great furnace,' because this smokes from fire.

— . Love, when excited, appears . . . outside the Hells as . . . the smoke of a furnace.

—². The falsities of the concupiscences springing from evil loves are also described elsewhere in the Word by smoke from a fire and from a furnace. III.

D. 1288. He sank down, first into fire . . . then into fiery smoke as of a furnace; presently, under that furnace; for the place was represented as the place of a great furnace.

2641. (The lighted furnace through which David made his enemies pass. 2 Sam. xii. 31). Des.

4500. She had borne a child and had thrown it into a furnace. 4504.

4502. There opened the entrance as of a great furnace tending into the deep. . . After some torments she escaped . . .

E. 177¹⁰. The doctrine thence is called 'a brick kiln' (Nahum iii.), from the fact that infernal love is made stable by things falsified.

539. 'There went up a smoke out of the pit, as the smoke of a great furnace' = dense falsities from the evils of earthly and corporeal loves. . . 'A great furnace' = the evils of earthly and corporeal loves.

—⁴. As that people was in earthly and corporeal loves, and thence in the falsities of evil, the Lord from mount Sinai appeared to them as . . . the smoke of a furnace.

540. It is important to show that 'a furnace' = the evils of earthly and corporeal loves. . . That 'a furnace' = these loves, is from the appearances in the Spiritual World; for the Hells in which those loves reign . . . appear like furnaces glowing with fire, and above them there appears smoke such as that which ascends from furnaces. . . Hence it is that in the Word 'furnaces' = either the Hells, or a congregation of men, or a man himself, in whom such loves and cupidities reign; or, what is the same, where the evils from them are springing forth. These things are signified by 'furnaces,' 'furnaces-furnos,' 'furnaces-caminos,' and 'ovens,' in the following places. III.

—⁸. 'To repair the brick kiln' = to repair the doctrine compacted of falsified truths and figments.

—⁹. By 'the great stones hidden in the brick kiln' (Jer. xliii. 9) are signified the truths of the Word falsified by figments which are from Own intelligence. . . 'The brick kiln' = doctrine compacted of fictitious things.

—¹⁰. As by 'Egypt' is signified the natural man as to the Scientific there, and by 'a furnace of iron' in like manner, therefore Egypt in the Word is called 'a furnace of iron.' III.

— . The natural man as to the Scientific is signified by 'a furnace of iron'; 'a furnace' = the natural man; and 'iron,' the Scientific. . .

600¹⁵. The evils which are to be dispersed by that Church are signified by, 'Like a furnace among the wood, and like a torch in a sheaf' (Zech. xii. 6).

Furnace. Furnus.

A. 1861. 'Lo, a furnace of smoke' (Gen. xv. 17) = the densest falsity. . . It is said 'a furnace of smoke,' because a man, especially a man of the Church, who has the Knowledge of truth, and still does not acknowledge, but at heart denies them, and leads a life in things contrary to truth, appears no otherwise than as a furnace of smoke; he himself as a furnace, and the falsity from hatreds as smoke. The cupidities from which come the falsities appear no otherwise than as torches of fire from such a furnace.

—². That by 'a furnace,' 'smoke,' and 'fire,' such things are signified in the Word. III.

—⁵. 'A burning furnace' (Mal. iv. 1) = the like things.

M. 263. From his mouth there belched smoke like a furnace.

E. 539³. 'Lo, a furnace of smoke' = the densest falsity from evils. 701²⁴.

540⁷. That the falsities of evil . . . springing from filthy loves with the Jewish and Israelitish nation, are here meant by 'a furnace of smoke' . . . see above.

675¹². 'Ten women shall bake bread in one oven' (Lev. xxvi. 26) = that in all things of the Church with man there is so little of good and truth that there is scarcely any. . . By 'an oven' is signified where spiritual food is prepared, thus the man with whom it is being prepared.

Furrowed. Insulcatus. D. Min. 4732².

Further. Uterior.

A. 2550. Its being said again = further thought.

2844. That there must be further union of the Human with the Divine. Sig.

Fury. Furor, Furiae.

Fury, A. Furia.

Furious. Furiosus, Furibundus.

Rage, To. Furere.

A. 814. Some Genii, or rather furies . . .

818. Aiming the knives at the breasts of others, like furies.

944⁸. (Such women) become like furies. Des.

1874. (It is said according to the appearance) that Jehovah is in . . . fury against the wicked. 3605⁴. 4307².

3340⁶. He said that there was there such a fury of insanity against good and truth, and especially against the Lord, that he was amazed it could possibly be resisted. . . Therefore, unless that fury were continually repelled by the Lord, the whole human race would perish. D. Min. 4682².

4502². 'Cursed be their anger because it was vehement, and their fury because it was heavy' (Gen. xlix. 7) = the penalty of turning away from truth and good. . . 'Anger' = recession from truth; and 'fury,' from good.

5061⁸. Hatred . . . is as it were spiritual antipathy; and therefore, in the other life, the moment they perceive the sphere of him against whom they have felt hatred, they come as it were into fury.

[A.] 5798⁵. Here, 'fury,' 'anger,' etc., = nothing but the evils of penalty on account of turning away from and assault upon good and truth. Ill. —⁶.

6997⁵. By 'anger,' 'fury,' etc., are meant the punishments and damnations into which man casts himself, when he casts himself into evils. Ill.

8284. The fury of cupidities . . . with the evil. Sig.

9492. Therefore they come into fury when they perceive the blessedness of the upright.

P. 340⁷. It is as if fury takes possession of us when we see any Angel, and feel the Divine sphere about him. Then I said, So you are like wild beasts; on hearing which fury came upon them, which appeared like the fire of hatred. M.461⁸.

R. 829. 'He treadeth the wine-press of the fury and anger of Almighty God' (Rev.xix.15)=that the Lord alone endured all the evils of the Church, and all the violence offered to the Word, thus to Himself. 'The wine of the fury and anger of God'=the goods and truths of the Church, which are from the Word, profaned and adulterated, thus the evils and falsities of the Church.

M. 71². As they approached (the angelic pair) they became like furies.

425². When (confirmed adulterers) perceive the sphere of marriage love . . . if they harden themselves against it, they are exasperated with fury, and become like furies.

T. 123^e. Hell attacks all those (who are being regenerated) with diabolical fury . . .

380³. All satans cannot endure to hear any truth from the Word, or to hear Jesus named: if they hear it, they become like furies . . .

691². The Lord Himself does not descend, but an Angel . . . I have sometimes seen the wicked terrified by that descent . . . and some driven into furies.

D. 225. That the worst Genii, or furies, are shut up in Hell . . .

— The bond is relaxed to them . . . when man falls into furies-furias. I have experienced these furies-furias . . . that I might tell of them. When I had written these things the reins were relaxed a little to these furies . . .

228². They complained of those free Spirits, or those furies, who are still entertained in the third Heaven.

1229. Thus they are as it were furies; that is, when they have made their all to consist in (natural things).

1288. The infernal Genius or fury . . .

1347. On a furious crew, or on furies.

— They who . . . have lived continually in quarrels, and in thefts . . . and who think nothing about the eternal life . . . and likewise those who are inwardly like them . . . after death become as it were furies. They appear naked, with dishevelled hair . . . (Fully des.)

4829. He then began to rage like a madman . . . After these furies-furias, they fell down as if dead; and, when resuscitated, they again raged in a similar way.

6110⁹. As it were fury kindles the infernals when they feel the sphere of marriage love.

—¹⁷. If angelic Spirits speak about these two things in the World of Spirits, the Hells are violently moved, and they who are bound to the Hells as it were rage.

E. 727¹⁶. By 'the rod of fury' (Lam.iii.1) is signified the dominion of infernal falsity.

982³. If that which flows in (from Heaven) is strong, it is turned into fury.

1002^e. At the presence of marriage love, diabolical Spirits become furious-furibundi.

Future. Futurus.

A. 1382^e. In their present (the Angels) have together things past and future. Hence they have no solicitude about future things.

1389. In the life of the body there flow in . . . solicitudes about future things . . . concerning which they have no thought in the other life.

2493. I have spoken with the Angels about the memory of past things, and the consequent anxiety about future things; and I have been instructed that the more interior and perfect the Angels are, so much the less do they care about past things, and think about future things; and that from this, moreover, comes their happiness . . . Also, that this was meant . . . by the Israelites receiving manna daily . . . and by the daily bread in the Lord's Prayer; and also by the command that they were not to be solicitous about what they should eat or drink, and wherewithal they should be clothed. Yet, although they do not care about past things, and are not solicitous about future things, still they have a very perfect recollection of past things, and view of future things; because in all their present there is both the past and the future. D.2188.

2892^e. He who believes that he rules himself is continually disquieted, is carried into . . . solicitudes about future things, and thus into manifold anxieties.

3698. 'To dream' = to foretell future things; for prophetic dreams, which were Divine, were predictions of future things; as is evident from those treated of in the Word. 5195.

4815^e. To the Divine, future things are present.

5091. The reason 'a dream,' in the supreme sense, = foresight, is that the dreams which flow in immediately through Heaven from the Lord foretell future things. (Examps.) The future things which are foretold by them are from no other source than the Divine foresight of the Lord.

5177. They who have been much solicitous about future things, and still more they who on that account have become griping and avaricious, appear in the region where the stomach is . . . The sphere of their life may be compared to the nauseous stench which is exhaled from the stomach, and also the heaviness from indigestion. They who have been of such a character stay long in this region; for solicitude about future things confirmed by act greatly dulls and retards the influx of spiritual life; for they attribute to themselves that which belongs to the Divine Providence . . . D.Min.4785.

5178. As solicitude about future things is that which causes anxieties with man, and as such Spirits appear in the region of the stomach, this is the reason why anxieties affect the stomach more than the rest of the viscera . . .

—e. Hence, too, it is, that when a man is no longer solicitous about future things . . . the region around the stomach is free and expanded . . .

5195. To provide present things, and not at the same time to foresee future things . . . would be without end . . . thus not from the Divine.

5224. (To consult scientific) about future things. Sig. and Ex.

5331. 'Zaphnath Paaneah' . . . means 'the Revealer of Hidden Things, and the Opener of Future Things,' which, in the celestial sense, = the Divine therein; for to reveal hidden things and to open future things belongs to God alone.

5781. That it cannot be hidden from him who sees future and hidden things. Sig.

6811². Once, when I was writing something about future things—venturis— . . . because I would not read them in their presence (the Spirits of Mercury) were highly indignant . . . They moved still further away, but yet stood still, wanting to know what I had been writing about future things. D. 3256.

8113. (When the Spirits of Jupiter were present) the cupidities and solicitudes about future things were removed . . .

8247. The reason their faces were smiling and cheerful, was that in (Jupiter) they have no solicitude about future things . . .

10048². With those who are being regenerated, interior and exterior things are ordered by the Lord for all the following states, so much so that the present things involve the future things, and the future things in like manner, when they become present things; and this to eternity.

P. 59. The Divine is not in time, and therefore all future things are present to it . . .

178. It is the delight itself of reason, that from love it sees the effect in thought . . . not in the present, but in the future. Hence man has what is called hope . . .

179. See FOREKNOW.

333^e. This is done by the Lord, because all the future is present to Him; and all the present is to Him eternal.

R. 227. 'I will show thee things which must be hereafter' (Rev. iv. 1) = revelations concerning future things before the Last Judgment . . .

D. 1579. On those who forebode future things, and are solicitous about future things.

2271. See FUTURE—venturus. 3973.

2956^e. It was also insinuated, that (Spirits) cannot remember past things, and so cannot weigh future things; thus they are ruled by the Lord. I said that therefore their life is happy; but they were indignant.

3625. Still more (does melancholy arise from) . . . reflection about the future.

3878^e. His delight thence I perceived from the fact that I was in a like state of love; for I am devoid of all solicitude and care about future things.

3962. In the other life it is not allowable to use one's own memory, because everyone who takes out past things from his own memory, is not only solicitous about future things . . . but also grieves . . .

4150. On Spirits who think about future things.

— . There are Spirits who think about future things, from such a habit and nature in the world. They appear with a broad face, but it is not a face, but only the broad area of a face . . . It is as it were a kind of wooden something; neither do they speak, but only think. From them the sense of a man becomes so general that he thinks nothing distinctly; thus the mind is indeterminable. Such is the state of those who indulge in future things, and thus are emaciated, and devoid of understanding.

D. Min. 4796. There are Spirits beneath the anus, who are those who have been much solicitous about future things . . . They are not evil. They correspond to the anus.

4825^e. Care about future things and the attendant anxiety, especially (takes away the influx from Heaven and from the Lord).

E. 87. 'Write the things which thou hast seen, and which are, and which will be hereafter' (Rev. i. 19) = that all things are for posterity because Divine . . . For the three times, namely, the past, the present, and the future = all things.

261. 'The first voice which I heard' = revelation now about future things, especially about the future things which are before the Last Judgment, at it, and after it . . .

Future. Venturus.

See COME.

A. 730^e. That which is future, or that which is present is the same with the Lord, and therefore in the angelic Heaven. That which is future is present, or that which will come to pass, has come to pass. Hence came the representation of the temptations . . .

6811². See FUTURE—futureus.

6934. Everyone ought to provide for himself the necessities of life . . . not only for the present time, but also for the future.

J. 74. (The Angels) said that things to come they know not, because to know things to come belongs to the Lord alone . . .

D. 1460. A signification of the future in respect to the interior and more interior doctrine of man. Ex.

1465. A signification of the future. Ex.

2271. On future things.

— . The Angels do not know future things; the Lord alone knows them, and he to whom He deigns to reveal them. I before perceived something to be as it were detested when some desired to know future things . . . but in the last times . . . future things are not foretold. . . One reason only may be adduced. The Angels, in order to be in happiness, must not know the least of what is future-futurum; for the Lord provides for them what they should think every instant. So the Lord has said, that they be not solicitous about the future-futuro. Besides, the Knowledge of the future-futuri, which Spirits are very eager for, would involve very many things that would disturb them . . .

[D.] 3538°. Nor are they able or willing to acknowledge . . . that man should not be solicitous about future things.

3624. There are various objects of the thoughts, which, while a man is kept in them . . . by Spirits, create much harm; as . . . concerning those things . . . which are future . . .

3973. As to what is eternal (the Angels) have no idea of past and future things-futurorum, but both past and future things are in their present.

END OF VOLUME II.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY

1 1719 01555 6998

1714

